The Sign of the SLATE

THERE are now four different kinds of Shoes made or sold by people whose names are "Slater."

Some of these are good Shoes, some are —different—and some are very indifferent.

None of them is the genuine 1869 "Slater Shoe" which has the Slate mark and the makers' price stamped on the soles or linings to prevent overcharge.

Many Shoe Retailers now buy a few dozen pairs of these "near-Slater" Shoes so as to be able to answer (when asked for "The Slater Shoe") as follows:—

"Oh, yes, we have Slater's make of Shoes" or "Slater's Shoes."

Now, the Courts have ruled that we (The Slater Shoe Co. Limited) have sole and exclusive right to use "The Slater Shoe" as a brand established by our factories through years of use.

And, we don't waive a single point upon that right.

But, to protect the public against deception and fraud, we henceforth accent the Slate in our brand.

When you want the original 1869 "Slater Shoe," with the makers' fixed price stamped on it and the makers' guarantee behind it, that is made of the best materials throughout: by the Goodyear Welt process which insures comfort and durability, look for the Slate mark on the sole or lining.

"Beware!" London.

Mr. Richard Bell, the railwaymen's friend, is one of those people who have their convictions and live up to them. He does not agitate just for the sake of agitation, nor does he espouse a cause without first satisfying himself that that cause is just. It is only natural that he should have the interests of his men well at heart, inasmuch as he was originally a railway guard; and his telegraphic address—"Beware!"—is nothing if not significant.

One of the earliest incidents which proved his mettle was a deadlock at some large steel works in Wales, where he was at the time employed as foreman. The blacksmiths had gone on strike, and Mr. Bell and his associates were ordered to take their places. Now Mr. Bell was firmly convinced of the justice of the blacksmiths' cause, and therefore refused to obey the order; whereupon he was not only "sacked" by his firm, but temporarily expelled from home by his indignant father. Finally, however, both received him back, and, mounting by gradual steps, he at last attained to the dignity of a member of Parliament and the position of secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, which office he now so admirably fills.

A Royal Academician's Escapade.

Sir William Richmond, R.A., the famous artist, always had a love of art, and when he was a boy he determined to run away and try to make his fortune as a painter. Accordingly, he left home quietly, with only a few shillings in his pocket, and for a time he thought himself in clover. At last, when all his money was gone, he became so hungry that he entered an inn and boldly offered to paint the landlord's portrait in return for a square meal. The offer was accepted, but while he was enjoying his dinner his whereabouts was discovered by his anxious friends, and the future Academician was marched off home again.

Married In Court.

Proceedings at the Edinburgh Sheriff Court were interrupted recently to allow a marriage ceremony to take place. Marriages are usually solemnized in the sheriff's private room, but he was so busy he could not leave the bench, and the young couple were ushered into court just as he was sentencing a criminal.

Curiosities of Our Calendar.

There are some curious facts about our calendar. No century can begin on Wednesday, Friday or Sunday. The same calendars can be used every twenty years. October always begins on the same day of the week as January, April as July, September as December. February, March and November begin on the same days. May, June and August always begin on different days from each other and every other month in the year. The first and last days of the year are always the same. These rules do not apply to leap year, when comparison is made between days before and after February 29.

The Musk Deer of Tibet.

Consul General William H. Michael reports that a number of Tibetan traders who visited Calcutta in March, 1908, brought with them, among other articles, a large quantity of musk, which is held in high esteem by the high caste Indians. The little deer from which the musk is obtained ranges in the Himalayas and Tibetan mountains, 9,000 feet above sea level. The male deer yields the finest and greatest quantity of musk. The deer are shy and alert and difficult of capture.

An Economical Suiter.

It was fair time in Selkirk, and Sandy and his sweetheart were wandering round arm in arm, enjoying the sights. Presently they espied a smart looking pie shop, which they promptly entered. Sandy ordered one pie and sat down and commenced to eat it. Meanwhile the girl looked shyly on.

"Is't fine, Sandy?" she timidly asked.

"Aye, 'tis awful fine, Jennie," he answered. "Ye should buy one!"

$15,000 FOR AN UMBRELLA.

Sir Horace Tozer Bought Patent and That Was His Only Return.

The Agent-General for Queensland (Sir Horace Tozer) was born in Port Macquaris, New South Wales, on St. George's Day, 1844, and was the son of a Port Macquarie merchant, who was a native of Langport, Somerset, England. Among Sir Horace's earliest recollections was seeing the wreck of the yacht Wanderer at Port Macquarie, which was the first yacht ever seen in Australian waters. It was taken there from England by its owner, Mr. Benjamin Boyd, a man of an adventurous nature. After staying at Port Macquarie for some time Mr. Boyd went off on a cruise among the South Sea Islands—a voyage from which he never returned. It is supposed he was killed by natives. The yacht Wanderer returned, manned by a Kanaka crew, but only to meet a dramatic ending. The vessel drifted on to the rocks near Port Macquarie, and was completely wrecked. The native crew were washed ashore, and managed, somehow to carry with them countless beautiful curios collected by Mr. Boyd among the islands. These were subsequently exhibited in a large store. Sir Horace was, it is believed, the first to be put under chloroform in Australia. While at school he had the misfortune to fracture his right arm during the progress of some sports. In turn nearly all the Sydney doctors were called in to put the injured limb right, but they failed. In the end a French surgeon who had taken up his residence in Australia, and who was debarred from practice there because he only bore a foreign diploma, guaranteed to successfull set the limb. Young Tozer was put under chloroform and operated upon. It proved successful, and the French surgeon was admitted to practice in Australia. He became a distinguished physician there, and amassed a fortune, of which the youth Tozier laid the foundation. Sir Horace once had a costly experience over a patent which he was invited to help to put on the market. The only return he got for $15,000 was an umbrella.

MISTAKEN FOR TOWN PORTER.

Duke of Norfolk Is Often Have of Queer Errors.

There is, perhaps, no man who has been mistaken for that which he is not more than the Duke of Norfolk, who was in Canada recently. One afternoon the duke went into a shop to order something. A well-meaning shopman, believing that he came in response to an advertisment for a man, told him the situation had been filled, and noticing an expression on the duke's face which he took to be disappointment, offered him sixpence!

Once, at a railway station, a lady, who had arrived by train, mistook the duke for a town porter. She said to him: "Here, by man, fetch me a cab at once, will you?" The duke promptly acceded to the request, and was rewarded with a small coin, in which he had a hole bored in order that it could be worn on his watch chain.

That the duke is not a selfish man is proved conclusively by kindness shown to an old woman. He had arrived at Arundel from London, and was stepping into his carriage when he chanced to notice an old lady sheltering herself beneath the station porch from the rain. The duke instructed his coachman to drive her home, and he would walk. By the time he reached the castle he was soaked to the skin.

Playing Football With Skulls.

There is good reason for believing that football had its origin in the gruesome custom of kicking about an enemy's skull.

Among the traditions of the city of Chester there is one which refers to the head of a Dane having been used for the sport. With regard to this, it might be pointed ont as an interesting fact that the headquarters of the Rugby Union were for long situated at Dane's Inn.

As to the intermediate stage between the skull and the inflated leather, but little appears to be known. The Greeks and the Romans certainly possessed games somewhat resembling "Rugger," and in the Greek game the players of one side had to carry a ball over a line defended by the other.

Some of the Red Indians also played a similar game; and in very early days in the old country there used to be keen local struggles over ball games, which are regarded by historians as relics of the old clan feuds, and were fought out in more or less bloodthirsty manner.

So rough were these early games that timid James I. denounced "all rough and violent exercise as the football, meeter for laming than for making able the users thereof."

A Well-Paid Judicial Position.

The retirement of Sir Francis Maclean, Chief Justice of Bengal, removes from the Indian bench its most picturesque figure and renders vacant the most important and attractive judicial position in the Empire outside Great Britain. Sir Francis Maclean, formerly member of Parliament for Mid-Oxon, has occupied it for nearly twelve years, a period rather more than sufficient to entitle him to a full pension. The question of his successor has for some months been the theme of eager discussion in Anglo-Indian legal and social circles. Unofficial opinion in India tends strongly to the view that, especially in these difficult times, the Chief Justice of Bengal should be a barrister appointed direct from England. The Chief Justice is in precedent second to the Lieutenant-Governor. His salary is $25,000 a year and he has the opportunity of a yearly visit to England.

More Boxerism.

Of a revival of Boxerism in China the North China Daily News says: "It is stated that there are a large number of idle persons devoting themselves to teaching people fencing and boxing in Chenghua, Kwangtung province. Their teaching also consists of making charms by which people are supposed to become possessed of power to resist sword cuts and bullets. Recently a well to do merchant, with official rank also, joined the society. This step became known to the district magistrate of Chenghua and led to the man's arrest."

TO MAKE ICE CREAM.

Many good cooks do not have success in making ice cream. This should not be difficult if it is done in the right way. In the first place, the proportions of salt and ice should be right, and the ice should not be left in large pieces, but crushed with the salt.

One part of ice to three parts of salt is the proportion, and they should be packed firmly in layers. Both should be measured. Rock salt is the best to use, but barrel salt will do if the other cannot be easily obtained.

Be sure that the freezer is perfectly clean and sterilized. Place a three inch layer of finely crushed ice in the tub, cover with one of salt and alternate these layers, packing each down very hard until the mixture is a few inches above the cream in the can.

The crank should not be turned rapidly at first, but slowly, and as the cream begins to harden the crank can be turned more rapidly. When the crank becomes hard to turn take out the beater and stir the cream with a strong porcelain spoon. Press the cream down smoothly and place a cork in the hole where the beater belongs. Then remove the plug and draw off the water.

Then repack the box as before, cover with a piece of carpet and set aside for an hour before serving. The longer it stands the better it will be, even if it stands for three or four hours.

For a delicious uncooked ice cream scald a quart of thin, sweet cream and dissolve in it one and one-half cupfuls of sugar. Add a quart of cold cream, two eggs well beaten and two tablespoonfuls of vanilla. Freeze and pack as above directed. This is Philadelphia ice cream and can be made without eggs.

To make lemon ice cream scald one pint each of milk and cream with one-fourth of a pound of sugar. Grate the rinds of three lemons, squeeze out the juice, add half a pound of sugar. Stir this mixture into the scalded milk and cream and when cold freeze.

FOR BABY'S COMFORT.

Covering For Crib or Carriage Made of Elderdown.

To keep the baby warm in crib or carriage nothing equals this novel contrivance called a "baby bunting." To make it take two pieces of elderdown one yard square, one pink, the other white. Bind them together with pink satin ribbon, putting the pink elderdown on the outside. Fold together so that the opening bound in the satin ribbon comes to one side. Turn down the two upper corners to form revers of white. A band of ribbon is put around the center to keep it close, with a large pink bow as a finish.

A New Tonic.

For the woman who is tired out there has been prescribed a new kind of stimulant.

This is a mixture of grape juice and olive oil. One tablespoonful of the latter to four of grape juice is taken after each meal. If the taste of oil is too strong for some stomachs two more tablespoonfuls of the grape juice may be added.

It is claimed that both serve as excellent medicine. The dose becomes very palatable after awhile. It should always be iced. It builds up the appetite, and the oil lubricates the stomach in a most beneficial way.

How Polly Saved the Plate.

An old lady had a parrot, which she had bought from a sailor friend, and on taking it home much to her astonishment she found Polly could only say three words, "Get the gun!"

One dark night, when all was still, burglars broke into the house. The silver was kept in the same room as Polly. They crept in as quietly as possible, but before they had time to strike a light a deep voice from the other side of the room said, "Get the gun!" The men were so frightened that they ran off as fast as their legs could carry them. And so Polly saved her mistress' silver.

Object, Matrimony.

"I want to put an ad. in your paper," said the weary looking man. "Make it, 'Wanted, a situation—any old job."

"Shall I say 'wages no object?'" suggested the clerk.

"No; make it 'object matrimony.' If I could get acquainted with a decent job, I'd be willing to marry it for life."—Catholic Standard and Times.

A MECHANICAL FEAT.

Sawing a Stone House in Two With a Steel Cord.

They have just performed an extraordinary feat of mechanical engineering in an extraordinary way in Paris. It became necessary to isolate the electric plant in the Rue St. Roch from the houses that adjoin it because of the incessant tremor which its vast dynamos sent through these houses. The foundations and the facade were continuous masonry, but the side walls were separate. So only the heavy piers of the foundations and the stones of the facade had to be considered. Tearing down was impossible, at least so far as the basement was concerned. So Mr. Friese, the company's architect, conceived the idea of sawing the buildings apart.

Every one is familiar with the cord that is used for cutting butter and soap, but most people will be astonished when told that there is also a cord for cutting stone. This is used in sawing blocks of marble. It is an endless spiral cord of steel wire, drawing with it wet sand, the friction of which cuts rock. This is just what was used for sawing the electric plant away from the adjacent buildings.

An elaborate framework was erected upon the sidewalk, with pulleys and counterbalancing weights and traveling motor. A well was dug to receive the water and sand and a pipe to convey it. A horizontal hole was bored at the top of each pier of the foundation, and the steel cord was threaded through these so as to work upon all at once. The motor which operated the cord descended with it as fast as it cut the masonry. About every twenty hours the cord was worn out, and a new one had to be substituted. It cut between three and four inches an hour. When the masonry had been cut all the way down a second cut was made two inches from the first, thus leaving a layer of stone which it was easy to break away, and so the walls were separated from their neighbors by a clean space of two inches.

In a similar way the facade was cut away. There was no interruption of work or damage to the buildings.—New York World.

The Kilt in China.

According to all accounts, the arrival of the Cameron highlanders in Pekin to replace the Middlesex regiment as legation guards created something of a sensation among the inhabitants. The kilt is a source of great wonderment. The China Times asserts that the natives are hard at work trying to assimilate the Scotch language. They are reported as already making favorable progress. Instead of their favorite expression, "Me no savvy," they now employ "I dinna ken," and they greet the foreigner with "Guid marnin'!" with an excellent Auchtermuchty accent. It is added that some Chinese compradores, who are men of inquisitive turn of mind, want to know "what for new soldier man catchee clothes allee same missis?" which recalls the story of the Russian Crimean veteran who declared that the best fighters in the British army were the women!

Luck of First Baby in Town.

It must be a nice thing to be the first baby in a new town and start life with a fistful of stocks and bonds. That was the good fortune of Wagner William Norton, who was born Aug. 31 in Mildred, a "cement" town in Allen county, Kan. Mildred Wagner, after whom the town was named, gave the baby a gold spoon, and J. W. Wagner of Kansas City, after whom the baby was named, gave the child a solid silver cup. And the manager of the cement plant at Mildred was so gratified at the increase of population in the little town that he gave the infant a share of preferred stock in the company.

The residents of the town are now predicting an unusual augmentation of settlers, but it is not unlikely that the next baby will be lucky if it gets a rubber doll.—Kansas City Star.

London's Plague of Whistles.

While a noise crusade is going on in New York there is another in London which beats it. The latest London noise is the whistle. It begins in the manufacturing quarters somewhere in the early hours. Then comes the whistle of the early worker—the morning whistler, the metaphorical "plowboy," who merrily takes his way, whistling as he goes, and then, day in and day out, there is the whistle for the cab, and the taxicab demands three multiplied by thirty. And London has always been held up to New York as a model of a quiet city.—New York Tribune.

Sensitive.

"I hear you is out of a job, Willie?"

"Yes. I may be a little too sensitive, but when the boss sez 'Git to blazes out of here before I kick you out!' then I got mad and resigned me position."—Illustrated Bits.

Woman's World

MRS. CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

Society Matron Will Serve as Leader in Woman's Rights Cause.

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay has unfurled her standard as a leader in this country of the woman suffrage cause. After a novitiate, during which she has studied exhaustively the economic problems of her sex, she has publicly subscribed to the faith and pledged her support to its doctrines.

Although it has been hinted for some time that Mrs. Mackay indorsed the tenets of suffrage, it was not until recently that she made a public announcement of her conversion. She unfurled her standard in the Roslyn (N. Y.) public school, where was the scene of her first victory for woman's rights. It was there she won an election as a school trustee, defeating at the polls her male opponent.

Suffragists in this country who shared in the secret have eagerly awaited an opportunity to install Mrs.

MRS. CLARENCE MACKAY.

Mackay in a place similar to that occupied in England by the talented Countess of Warwick. Workers in the cause have said that a leader was wanted who combined high social position and acknowledged intellectual attainments—one who would further compel serious attention to the movement and disarm ridicule.

Mrs. Mackay said recently concerning her new faith:

"I have been a convert to the principles of woman suffrage for some time past. I believe that the day is not far distant when success will be attained for the cause in this country. I regard it as inevitable that the American woman suffragist will share in the honors already won by her English sister and that the doctrines will be firmly implanted in all of the English speaking lands."

The Woman Who Is Always Right.

We all have met her—the woman who lays down the law—and most of us regret the meeting.

No matter what is under discussion, she has her opinion and does not hesitate to proclaim it. That she knows nothing of the subject makes no difference in her vociferousness.

Her voice is usually rasping, her words staccato and her emphasis sharp. She may not intend to be disagreeable, but the effect is not altered by intentions.

The irritation of a disturbed hornets' nest is mild compared with the feelings aroused by the layer down of the law. Even when in the right her wisdom is hated on general principles. She can stir up more opposition than a motion to raise taxes. You go out of your way to thwart her and make yourself uncomfortable doing what she does not wish.

Silent protest or open pugnacity is the usual attitude of her hearers. The good tempered sufferer revels when the town regulator strikes a scrapper.

Tact is not her long suit. The more reason there is for silence the louder is her expression of opinion. Her knowledge of where her own business ends is scant.

It is the layer down of the law who can be depended upon to say the wrong thing every time. She it is who makes it her business to take a meek little wife to task for her husband's shortcomings or widens a breach by telling both combatants their duty.

If only she knew how great is her conceit! Most people find regulating their own lives so difficult that they are slow to think themselves capable of including the rest of mankind in their managing. Seeing both sides is not her chief characteristic. Her way is the right way, and woe to the one who differs! Arguing is as futile as the fight with old age.

You might stand her better if only she were ever in the wrong. To be able just once to convince the regulator that her opinion is unfounded we would cheerfully consent to be "bossed" the rest of our days.

She would be easier to bear if her rulings were from the height of superiority. Too often the director of the morals and manners of others is far from being invulnerable herself.

Counterpanes.

Every woman likes to have dainty attractive looking beds, but for the woman who does her own work and the woman who must consider laundry bills a bit of discretion is necessary when it comes to the choosing of a counterpane.

Some of us still cling to the notion that a bed's furnishings must all be white. We hanker after the curiously whdded affairs in intricate floral designs that gave so many hours' employment to our grandmothers' industrious fingers, or we cast covetous eyes upon the heavy handsome Marseilles counterpane displayed in the shops.

These, however, are not only costly in the beginning, but must go to an expensive laundry or a professional cleaner when soiled, so if madame must have white—all white—and her purse is limited she would best buy dimity or honeycomb counterpanes, which are light, dainty and almost as easily laundered as a sheet.

If she is willing to introduce a "color scheme" into her bedroom, however, her range of choice is very much wider. She can buy ready for use a colored counterpane in blue, brown or pink which is lighter in weight and much cheaper than the Marseilles, but heavier than the dimity or honeycomb.

If she has a taste for novelties and time and talent for needlework she can make herself covers of flowered lawn or cretonne.

Two or three, according to the size of the bed, strips of lawn sewed together and finished all around with a deep flounce make an attractive substitute for a regulation counterpane. The lawn, even the cheapest grade, is apt to wash well, and these covers are easily "done up," even by an amateur.

The Useful Onion.

Half a freshly cut onion briskly rubbed over marked and spotted velvet will restore it to beauty if the velvet be directly afterward gently rubbed with a damp soft linen cloth and passed across a hot flatiron standing upright.

For dyeing specked or faded cotton goods a pretty dark ecru or light brown take two red onions and a big handful of onion peels and boil them briskly for one hour in a quart of water, then strain and in the colored water thus obtained boil your goods slowly for three hours. Rinse in several waters.

Onion juice makes a strong adhesive for pasting paper, such as labels, etc., on tin or other metals.

The juice of fresh cut onion stems rubbed on insect stings and mosquito bites will when immediately applied prevent redness and swelling.

Onion juice mixed with good pure vinegar inhaled through the nose will stop nosebleed. Slices of fresh cut onion applied to the back of the neck help along the cure.

Plait It Loosely at Night.

At night a little girl's hair should never be lightly curled or plaited if you want it to grow thick and long, but be very loosely done in two plaits, so that in the morning there are practically no tangles to be combed out. What does it matter if she doesn't look particularly pretty? So long as children are healthy and happy that is the great point, and it is far better for a girl to have straight hair in nursery days than to have no hair at all or only very skimpy locks when she grows to womanhood, a quite possible result of overmuch crimping and curling. Do all you can to make it grow and don't bother about kinks, and you will earn your child's gratitude not only while she is in the nursery, but all her life long.

When Baggy Below the Eyes.

If you are puffed or baggy below your eyes be sure one of two conditions exist—either there is danger from the kidneys or the eyelid is inflamed.

The first needs the diagnosis of a doctor. You can tell the second for yourself by standing before a mirror and gently turning back the lower lid. Should it look scarlet or be covered with tiny granules then be sure that is one cause at least of the puffiness. Though it is better to consult an oculist at once, until you do you can bathe the eyes with a weak solution of boracic acid and water to which have been added a few drops of camphor. Hot compresses will also give relief, and the puffiness may be gently massaged.

Patent Dress Shields.

The average girl is in such a hurry that sewing shields in a clean shirt waist is often neglected, but at the notion counter she will find a good quality of dress shields with a tiny patent fastener attached. This attachment slips right on to the seam in the armpit and holds the shields in place. If the price of these patent shields is too high, then the busy girl should invest in a paper of the smallest white safety pins found at the counter and pin in the shields, but nothing will excuse her going without shields at all. And in buying shields be sure you get the kind that will both wash and iron.

Easing Whooping Cough.

"When my boys had the whooping cough," said the mother who was not afraid to try simple home remedies, "I greatly relieved their paroxysms of coughing and reduced the number by having the children gargle frequently with lemon and water.

"I also gave them a laxative diet and kept them in the open air as much as possible. Two of the boys who had it in summer fairly lived out of doors, and each day I would make them take sun baths and run barefooted."

Generous.

"This is a foine country, Bridget!" exclaimed Norah, who had but recently arrived in the United States. "Sure, it's generous everybody is. I asked at the postoffice about sindin' money to me mither, and the young man tells me I can get a money order for $10 for 10 cents! Think of that now!"—Youth's Companion.

Tricking the Hens.

Chinamen have a way of tricking hens so that they assist in the hatching of fish. Fish eggs are carefully placed in an eggshell, which is then sealed and placed under an unsuspecting hen. In a few days the spawn is warmed into life, and the contents of the shell are then cast into a shallow pool, where the sunshine completes the work.

BANKERS AND BURGLARS.

Laxity of Authorities in Robberies is Severely Condemned.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—At the annual meeting yesterday of the Canadian Bankers' Association, complaint was general among the 30 odd delegates that a decided improvement is desirable in the fashion in which the authorities tackle bank burglaries. Legislation will be sought in all the provinces to facilitate the apprehension and conviction of such criminals, although Quebec was the only province mentioned as being at fault. There, according to one banker, it is usually 24 hours after a bank is broken into before a provincial officer comes in, and he makes his enquiry very leisurely, while the burglar is getting across the border. Not only is there a loss of money, but frequently the lives of the staff are in danger. The quality of some of the police was also said to be poor.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Erie Canal will be closed on Dec. 1.

Rudolph Musser is dying. A piano fell on him in Fort William and broke his back.

The committee of evangelization of the Presbyterian Church in Canada will meet on Nov. 26, when a special series of meetings will probably be arranged.

Prof. Nanthorst and Capt. Nilsson, the best known Arctic authorities in Sweden, do not think it possible that Andree's balloon could have reached Labrador.

Lumber dealers in New York and Brooklyn have petitioned the State Department of Public Works to keep the Champlain Canal open for navigation until Dec. 1.

The American Anti-Saloon League will begin a pledge-signing movement early next year throughout the U. S. Dr. Russell, at present superintendent of the league work in New York, will have charge of this campaign.

Three young men from Beaconsfield, a suburb of Cornwall, passing the West Front school, fired on the British flag, which is kept flying at the school from patriotic motives. The principal of the school has reported the matter to the trustees.

Three cars in the eastbound Twentieth Century Limited, the New York Central's fastest train, were thrown from the rails at Blossom road crossing, just east of Rochester, shortly after three o'clock yesterday morning, but not one of the many passengers that were hurled from their berths was badly injured. A broken rail caused the accident.

Love Rejected; Took Paris Green.

Brockville, Nov. 13.—James Dunn, a bridge builder, aged about 45, committed suicide at Theresa, across the river from here, by drinking paris green. He became infatuated with a 16-year-old girl at whose house he boarded. Her parents objected, and when turned away he took his life.

A year ago Miss Minnie Willard, aged 18, with whom Dunn had been keeping company, died from taking paris green.

U. S. Postal Deficit Grows.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 13.—United States Postmaster-General Meyer announced yesterday that the postal deficit for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, amounted to $16,910,279. The receipts were $191,478,633, being $7,893,657 greater than the previous year, and the expenditures $208,351,886. The deficit is the largest in the history of the Postoffice Department.

British Vessels on Tour.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 13.—H.M.S. Shearwater will proceed to Callao, via Acapulco, where she will await the coming of H. M. S. Algerine, which is expected to leave Esquimalt on the 20th inst. The two vessels will then steam south, and may go as far as Australia, returning about next April.

Child Fatally Burned.

Windsor, Nov. 13.—Florence, five-year-old daughter of James Bastien, was fatally burned yesterday. She was left alone in the house for a time and started to kindle a fire. Her dress came in contact with the blaze and she ran out on the street. Her face and body were badly burned.

A BLESSING TO MANY PEOPLE

IS A HOME-MADE REMEDY

This is a simple home receipe now being made known in all the larger cities through the newspapers. It is intended to check the many cases of rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble which have made so many cripples and invalids and weaklings of some of our brightest and strongest people.

The druggists here have been notified to supply themselves with the ingredients, and the sufferer will have no trouble to obtain them. The prescription is as follows: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; and Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Recent experiments prove this simple mixture effective in rheumatism, because of its positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It compels these most vital organs to filter from the blood and system the waste impurities and uric acid, which are the cause of rheumatism. It cleanses the kidneys, strengthens them and removes quickly such symptoms as backache, blood disorders, bladder weakness, frequent urination, painful scalding and discoloured urine. It acts as a powerful stimulant to the entire kidney and bladder structure.

Those who suffer and are accustomed to purchase a bottle of medicine should not let a little inconvenience interfere with making this up.

TORIES GAIN TWO.

Kootenay and Yale-Cariboo Give Conservative Majorities.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 13.—The deferred elections for the House of Commons in Yale-Cariboo and Kootenay were held yesterday.

Conservatives won both seats by overwhelming majorities.

Conservatives ...	5
Liberals ...	2

Synod of Lutheran Church.

Guelph, Nov. 13.—The first synod of Canada of the Evangelical Lutheran Church is in session here.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Rev. M. J. Bieber, M.A.; secretary, Rev. H. A. Kunkle, M.A.; treasurer, Mr. L. L. Merrifield of Toronto. The following executive committee was elected: Rev. W. C. Miller, Toronto; Rev. H. J. Croushare, Brantford; Mr. Carl Prints, Toronto; Mr. George Keamp, Guelph; Mr. Alteman, Galt; Mr. Summerfelt, Unionville.

The question of an educational institution to prepare young men for the ministry was earnestly presented and it was decided to appoint a committee to investigate. Berlin is considered a good centre for such a school and others advocate Guelph.

Shot His Wife.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 13.—Crazed with liquor, Ludwig Chodura started to shoot his family Wednesday night. His wife was hit in the fleshy part of the thigh and then after a free-for-all the family broke and fled.

Inspector Robertson hurried to the scene, but Ludwig, with a revolver in one hand and a German cavalry sabre in the other, was prepared for war. The inspector closed with the man, but not until Ludwig was stunned by a blow on the ear could his dangerous weapons be secured.

Two Arrests.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 13.—As a result of the collision which on Wednesday cost eight lives and the serious wounding of a score of persons at Littlewood's station on the New Orleans and Northwestern Railroad two trainmen have been arrested and a thorough investigation is being made into the wreck, as well as the delay in sending a relief train.

Moffatt Goes For Trial.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 13.—John Moffatt, grand secretary of the Provincial Workmen's Association, was yesterday committed for trial at Sydney on a charge of perjury in the injunction proceedings between the association and the United Mine Workers of America. He was admitted to bail, and will be tried by the county court judge.

Boy's Nose Chopped Off.

Chatham, Nov. 13.—Bert, the eight-year-old son of James Hastings, Park street, had his nose severed from his face yesterday morning by a playmate accidentally striking him with an axe. A surgeon replaced the nose, and says it will grow on without disfiguring the face.

Strike Oil.

Chatham, Nov. 13.—The Boston International Co. on Wednesday afternoon struck a well on concession 8, Raleigh Township, which, since it has been shot, has steadily produced at the rate of 80 barrels a day.

Champagne Mayor.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—Controller N. A. Champagne was last night appointed mayor in the place of D'Arcy Scott, who has assumed his duties on the Railway Commission.

Sir Wilfrid Has Cold.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier is suffering from cold. The Cabinet, therefore, did not meet yesterday.

CATTLE MARKETS.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—London cables for cattle are steady, at 12c to 12¾c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 11c to 11¼c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market on Wednesday and Thursday, as reported by the railways, were 169 carloads, composed of 2678 cattle, 2207 hogs, 4343 sheep and lambs and 88 calves.

Exporters.

In the proper sense of the word there were no export steers on sale, and there were none sold at $5 or $5.25 either. A few cattle picked from amongst butchers' loads sold at $4.60 to $4.85, and bulls sold at $3.60 to $4.00.

Butchers.

George Rowntree, who bought 400 cattle for the Harris Abattoir Company reported butchers' cattle at $3.70 to $4.35; cows, $3.25 to $4; canners and butchers' bulls, $1 to $2.25. Mr. Rowntree also bought a few export steers and a few picked butchers' at $4.60 to $4.85, and we heard of one or two very select butchers' heifers at $4.90 per cwt., sold by Maybee & Wilson. As will be seen by sales given below, there were few cattle reached $4.50 in the comparison with the large number that did not reach $4 per cwt. But when the quality is considered prices were good.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report a fair trade in stockers and feeders this week, and prices about held their own with last week, with the exception of good feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs. each, which class were a little stronger. Messrs. Murby bought 400 head this week at following quotations: Best feeders, 950 to 1050 lbs. each, at $3.60 to $4; best feeders, 850 to 950 lbs. each, at $3.40 to $3.75; best stockers, 650 to 800 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.60; common and medium stockers, $3 to $3.75.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were moderately large. Trade for them was brisk at about steady prices. Good to choice cows sold from $45 to $65 each, with one or two at $70, and one, the best seen on the market in months, brought $78, but these $70 and $78 quotations are no criterions to go by, but we wanted to let our readers know that we were on the market and generally know what is going on in all departments of it.

Veal Calves.

The demand is not so great for veal these days, as poultry and lamb are so cheap. Calves sold at $3 to $4.25 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts were large, 4343 being on the market these last two days. Trade was dull with market slow in comparison with last week. Export ewes sold at $3.25 to $3.40; rams, $2 to $2.50; lambs, $4 to $4.60 per cwt., and it took select ewes and wethers to bring the latter price.

Hogs.

Receipts from all sources for the past two days only totaled 2207, which looks like higher quotations. Mr. Harris reports the market steady at $6 per cwt. for selects fed and watered, and $5.75 for lights.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 12.—Cattle—Good demand and firm; prime steers, $5.85 to $6.75.

Veals—Receipts, 100 head; active and 25c higher; $5.75 to $8.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 15,700 head; fairly active; pigs and yorkers, 10c to 15c lower; heavy, $5.90 to $6; a few, $6.10; yorkers, $5 to $5.75; pigs, $4 to $4.90; stags, $4 to $4.50; dairies, $5 to $5.75.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 12,000 head; active and steady; Canada lambs, $5.75 to $6.25.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Beeves—Receipts, 1331; no trading; feeling steady; calves, receipts, 287; no trading; feeling steady.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 3231; sheep steady; lambs firm; sheep, $3.50 to $4; culls, $2.75; lambs, $5.50 to $6.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 4397; none on sale; feeling nominally weak.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Cattle—Receipts, 7000; market steady to strong; steers, $4.60 to $7.75; cows, $2.85 to $5; heifers, $3.50 to $4.65; bulls, $3.50 to $4.50; calves, $5 to $7.25; stockers and feeders, $3.60 to $4.65.

Hogs—Receipts, 35,000; market 10c to 15c higher; choice heavy shipping, $6.20 to $6.35; butchers', $6.10 to $6.30; light mixed, $5.65 to $6.25; packing, $5.65 to $6.15; pigs, $4.35 to $5.50; bulk of sales, $5.85 to $6.20.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 15,000; market steady; sheep, $4.40 to $5; lambs, $4.75 to $6; yearlings, $5.25 to $5.75.

Cheese Markets.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 12.—At the weekly meeting of the cheese board to-day, 150 white and 325 colored were offered—a total of 1025. The best offer was 11½c; none sold.

KINGSTON, Nov. 12.—To-day 725 boxes of colored cheese and 225 of white were registered at the Frontenac Cheese Board. Almost all the stocks were cleared out at 11¾c to 11¾c. The next meeting is on Nov. 26.

SMUGGLERS DESERT THEM.

Six Chinamen Are Killed in Gale on Buffalo Sea-Wall.

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 13.—Two boats containing ten Chinamen were wrecked against the break-wall about half a mile east of Michigan street early yesterday. Six of the Chinamen were dashed against the rocks and wedged in, while four were rescued and are locked up at the West Seneca street station. All of the six, wedged in the works, died apparently of fractured skulls, while the four who were saved have scalp wounds.

That the Chinamen were deserted by the trio of white smugglers and left to battle for their lives was revealed yesterday afternoon in a statement made at the West Seneca street police station by Mock Quong, the oldest of the Celestials.

Quong said that the boat loads were made up of Celestials and three white men. He said he and his countrymen came from Toronto to Hamilton.

Quong stated that the boats were running on a high sea close to the break-wall when a terrific gust of wind swamped both crafts. He said the white men managed to scramble up the rocks. The Chinamen appealed to them for assistance, but only one responded.

Two of the dead Chinamen are believed to be Mark Moon of Yonge street, Toronto, and Tem Kee, also thought to be from Toronto.

Mayne Daly For Cabinet.

Winnipeg, Nov. 13.—It is rumored here that either Hon. T. Mayne Daly, who was defeated by Hon. Clifford Sifton in Brandon or Hugh Armstrong, member for Portage la Prairie, will be taken into the Provincial Cabinet to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. J. H. Agnew, Provincial Treasurer.

Used Toronto Men's Cards.

London, Nov. 13.—(C.A.P.)—Howard Mortimer Clark, aged 28, was sent to jail at Bow street police station for obtaining money by false pretences. He used the cards of E. B. Osler and Major W. Hendrie, Toronto.

Forty Fatal Cases of Diphtheria.

St. John, Nov. 13.—Provincial health authorities have been notified of a serious outbreak of diphtheria at Caraquet, Gloucester County. There have been more than 40 fatal cases.

Bail For Chief Kimball.

Chatham, Nov. 13.—An order was received here yesterday, directing that Elliott J. Kimball, the police chief awaiting his second trial for slaying a fleeing man, be released on bail till next spring. Bail is fixed at $5,000 for himself and two securities of $5,000 each, making $15,000 in all.

Sifton's Majority 69.

Brandon, Nov. 13.—The recount in Brandon election was concluded yesterday. Hon. Clifford Sifton was confirmed in his seat by a majority of 69.

Strike Unknown Mineral.

Chatham, Nov. 13.—Workmen excavating for a new bridge on McGregor's Creek, Harwich, struck a vein of some unknown ore yesterday.

PETERBOROUGH FRIDAY NOVEMBER 13 1908

THE PANAMA CANAL

Will be Completed by January 1st, 1915, And Ready for the Passage of Ships --The Work Going On.

ONE-THIRD OF CANAL IS ALREADY COMPLETED

Washington, Nov. 13.—At the end of October, according to figures given out at the office of the Isthmian Canal Commission, the United States, since beginning to make the "dirt fly," had taken 59,788,593 cubic yards of material from the canal cut. The keeping of records was begun on May 1, 1904, at which time it was estimated the task before the canal builders was the removal of 142,000,000 cubic yards of earth and rock.

At the rate of progress shown since the keeping of records the canal should be finished so far as the main cutting is concerned, late in 1913. Lieut.-Col. Goethals, president of the commission, on his recent visit to Washington said he adhered to his original estimate which was that ships would be passing through the canal on Jan. 1, 1915. He said that there would be considerable work to be done even after the ordinary excavating was finished.

This last report shows that another record was broken in October by the men who do the actual digging. They took out, place measurement, 3,282,-276 cubic yards of material. In September the record was 3,158,886 yards, while in October, 1907, the removal amounted to only 1,574,329 yards.

CONTRACTOR TO GET MORE PAY FOR HIS WORK

Mr. Luke Milaney will receive more pay for doing the street watering in the southern section of the city than the first price called for. Mr. Milaney waited upon the Board of Works at their meeting held yesterday and asked for additional pay, pointing out that there had been more territory to be covered this summer than before.

It was moved by Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Buller, that in view of the facts that no tender was received for the southern district, and that additional territory was added to the district, that $75 additional be paid for watering that district during the past season.—Carried.

OXEN HAVE DONE WORK OF HORSES FALL PLOUGHING

Ploughing with oxen in the harness is not entirely a thing of the past. This custom of our earliest ancestors is still alive at Alderville on the south side of Rice Lake, where Mr. Robt. Franklin has a yoke of oxen with which he has done his fall ploughing, and through the summer has performed many other tasks on his farm. While not apparently as fast workers as horses, results are accomplished which surprise his neighbours. These oxen have appeared at fall fairs and everywhere have caused much comment. It will probably be news to those who have seen them on exhibition that they are as useful as horses and are not merely ornamental.

"CHIEF" COMEGO ASPIRES TO BAND IN BALTIMORE

Professor S Comego, the leader of the Indian band of the Aldervilles Indians, and himself one of the tribe, is reported by the Hastings Star to be negotiating for a position as instructor of a brass and piccolo band of Baltimore. Chief Comego, as he is known to picnickers that have visited Idyl Wyld, is a "fiddler" of distinction and has provided music for more than one set. His Indian band has also helped considerably to promote enmity among the Alderville young men who have a repertoire of some class. Whether he will be able to secure the position he is reported to have tried to secure is another matter.

Examiner Special

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—Mr. S T Bastedo, Canada's representative on the International Fisheries Commission, will meet the American representative, Professor David Starr Jordan, at Boston, Mass., next Tuesday. They will begin their reports relative to fisheries and other questions pertaining to the Great Lakes, and expect to have them ready early in January.

HARVEY TOWNSHIP SCHOOL BOY FOUND DEAD WITH CHARGE OF BUCKSHOT IN HIS BREAST; BELIEVED TO BE THE RESULT OF CARELESSNESS WITH COMPANION'S GUN

Roland Ayotte, Living Fourteen Miles North Young's Point, On His Way Home From School With Companion Who Had Shot Gun --No Explanation As Yet Of The Affair.

CORONER WAS INFORMED; INQUEST NOT DECIDED

Young's Point, Nov. 13. (Special).—The lifeless body of little Roland Ayotte was found in a field in Harvey township yesterday with a ragged wound in his breast evidently caused by a charge from a shot gun. A farmer named Weaver, who lives about 14 miles of this place was working on his farm when a younger named Gordon excitedly approached him, and brokenly told him that Ayotte was lying in a field nearby and that he had been shot.

Mr. Weaver followed the boy to the spot he had mentioned, where he found the body of the fatally wounded boy, but life had flown while young Gordon had gone for help. There seemed to be no explanation of the deed other than in some careless way the boys had been carelessly handling a shot gun whi ch the boy Gordon was carrying and in some manner it was accidentally discharged.

It was learned that Roland Ayotte had left home for school as usual, but on arriving found that there was no session. Accordingly with young Gordon they started to return.

It is not known how the boys came in possession of the gun, but that they had one is made clear in the fact that Mr. Weaver found it near the body of the dead boy. From the account of the accident the Gordon lad could not give any clear explanation. As soon as he heard the explosion and saw his companion so badly injured he ran for help, but the boy was dead when help arrived.

Roland Ayotte is the youngest son of Mr. Baptiste Ayotte, of the 5th concession of Harvey, and was ten years of age. There are two other older children, a boy and a girl. Further particulars have not yet been received here.

About the only explanation of the sad fatality is believed to be that the boys were carelessly handling the gun when as usual in these cases it was exploded in some inexplicable way.

LINDSAY MAN KILLED AT NOON TO-DAY AT ORILLIA

Special to Examiner

Orillia, Ont., Nov. 13.—John Campbell, a G.T.R. brakeman from Lindsay, was killed at 12.20 this morning by his train here. His body will be taken to Lindsay for burial.

REVISION COURT THROUGH WORK FOR THIS YEAR

The Court of Revision is through with its work in connection with the assessments for 1909 and had a much easier task than last year. The last meeting of the court was held last evening, when the remaining appeals were heard and disposed of, and the members have finished their labours. This year seventy-six appeals against the assessment were heard, as compared with three hundred and fifty-three last year.

NEW SERIAL STORY

The Examiner's new serial story, the first instalment of which appears to-morrow, will be that entrancing romantic novel from the pen of Anthony Hope, entitled "Sophy of Kravonia." This stirring story is certain to please all those who appreciate a well written, clever tale. "Sophy of Kravonia," is written in Mr. Hope's best vein, and those who have read his "Prisoner of Zenda," will find his new effort even more enjoyable. Readers of the Examiner should not miss a single instalment of this splendid story.

Reeve Maloney and Councillor B Lemby, of Douro, had a conference with the Board of Works Committee of the City Council yesterday afternoon in connection with the maintenance of the boundary road between the city and the township. The township authorities had written asking for a meeting to take up the matter and the two bodies met yesterday.

After the subject had been discussed for some time the following motion, moved by Ald. Elliott and seconded by Ald. Buller, was carried: "That the city assume the boundary from the corner of Concession and Smith streets, west, and the township from the same point, east, but that the city pay $50 towards the cost on rebuilding the culverts on the road running east, providing that the Government does not rebuild these culverts, and that any claim either municipality may have against the other for work done or money spent on these roads, be dropped."

This agreement was satisfactory to the Douro representatives.

It Looks Like A Case Of "Getting Busy" With The Snow Shovel Soon

It the recommendation to the Board of Works by the City Engineer is carried out, more people than ever will have to get busy with their snow shovels after every fall of the "beautiful" during the coming winter. At yesterday's meeting of the Board of Works a letter was read from Mr. Hay, recommending that the area in which the keeping of the pavements free of snow, be increased.

On motion of Ald. Bradburn and Buller, the Engineer was authorized to advertise for tenders for snow cleaning for the districts suggested by him, the tenders to be received up to Nov. 20th, at 4 p.m.

The Chairman and City Engineer were authorized to purchase four snow ploughs and to have the others repaired, on motion of Ald. Elliott and Buller.

Oakwood Citizen Was Held Up By Two Men But Was Allowed To Go

Lindsay, Nov. 12.—Joe Goard, a resident of Oakwood, was the victim of a hold-up on Monday night, while returning home from the Valentia fowl supper. The highwaymen, for such they seemed to be, did not search Goard, but simply scrutinised his features and then let him go. Evidently they had been waiting for someone else and saw their mistake when they stopped the Oakwood man.

The victim of the hold-up incident, which happily had no evil results, was driving along between Little Britain and Oakwood, when two masked men stepped out from the roadside and the customary brigand salute, "hands up" was given the occupant of the rig. Goard promptly complied with the request and the men made a cursory examination of him, and let him go.

Some time ago a similar hold-up was reported from Oakwood vicinity, and it may be that two dangerous men are lurking in the neighborhood.

Fox Running Off With Rooster Was Killed By Passing Hunter

It is not often that hunters have the game come right into their hands as it did for a party of three who were on their way to Warsaw yesterday to look for fox. They were driving in a buggy and had proceeded about four miles out the road east of the city when they saw a fox running across a field from a farmer's house with a rooster over his shoulder.

They untied their hounds from the back of the buggy and started after Mr. Reynard. A first shot slightly injured him and this gave the dogs a better chance. The chase was in full view of the men for a time until the fox disappeared in the woods. For a time it looked as if he would get away but he came out again in the field with the dogs close at his heels. He was shot by one of the men as the hounds brought him in close range. The rooster had been dropped in the field and was found dead.

Two Girls Hunting Moose In Minnesota Forests, As In Past

In charge of the largest number of passengers ever carried on a Booth line steamer at this time of year, W. Marshall, steward, made the trip on the steamer Easton from Duluth, arriving here yesterday. The list included 175 first class and 125 second class passengers, most of whom were huntsmen and woodmen.

Of considerable interest to the other passengers were the Misses Anthony, of Minneapolis, who for the fourth year will stalk big game in the northern Minnesota forests. In their homes the young ladies have seven moose heads and four deer heads, animals killed by them.

A hunter of unusual qualifications for the sport was C. L. Jenkins of Blue Point, Minn., a passenger on the boat, who has both legs off at the knee. He is one of the most successful hunters in the State.—Fort William Times-Journal.

Seventy Grain Trains In And Out Of Fort William In Two Days

Saturday and Sunday were record days in the C.P.R. yards at Fort William, no less than 3,210 cars being handled in and out of the terminals—1,530 on Saturday and 1,680 on Sunday.

The arrivals for the two days were well over one thousand cars, which would mean over one million bushels of grain.

Some idea of the immense amount of traffic these figures mean may be gained by the fact that the 3,210 cars represented over seventy trains of thirty cars each.

This remarkable record was accomplished without any delay to passenger trains, twelve regular trains being handled on schedule time.

Interesting Double Function At The Salvation Army Barracks Last Night

There was a double function at the Salvation Army barracks last night, when the local corps welcomed Staff Captain Walton, and shortly after bade farewell to Staff Captain Goodwin and Captain Maisey. The new officer, who will be in charge here for the next year, arrived on the local from the Salvation Army Temple, Toronto. He was met at the station by the band and accompanied to the barracks, where the meeting was in charge of Sergt.-Major Brooks.

Are Meeting With Much Success Securing Land For Gas Company; Over 5000 Acres Now Leased

Mr. R. H. Leary, who has been assisting Mr. U. E. Dittman, the representative of the American capitalists who are to start an oil ad gas company here, reports that they have been meeting with success in their work of leasing property west of the city. Already between 5,000 and 5,500 acres have been leased, and no difficulty is being anticipated in getting the 15,000 acres necessary for the purpose of the company.

Mr. Dittman leaves to-day for Hamilton and will send a contractor here at once to look over the ground. He is delighted with the prospects.

Peterborough Man Visits One Of Pittsburg's Largest Steel Plants

Mr. S W Lowry has just returned from Buffalo and the vicinity where he enjoyed the privilege of going through the Lackawanna Steel Company's plant at Seneca, a short distance out of Buffalo. In this large steel manufacturing establishment the products are manufactured by what is known as the open hearth and Bessemer methods and in the work the most advanced devices are employed in handling the ore, in the molten metal and in fact in all stages of the operations. Although a perfect stranger, Mr. Lowry had no difficulty in having his request to witness the work, granted. He speaks in glowing terms of the courteous treatment received at the hands of Mr. Frank Rogers, the principal usher in the head office, and Mr. Davis, chief of the company's police, who spent an afternoon showing Mr. Lowry and his sister, Mrs. Clements, of Warsaw, through the entire plant.

The buildings cover over 1,500 acres. Every facility is afforded for shipping. There are long docks on Lake Erie by which the ore is brought down from the other great lakes. There is also the company's own railway running into the city of Buffalo. The immense furnaces, blast ovens, Bessemer converters and Siegel Cupolas, open hearth furnaces and rolling mills, these and all the other important equipment were carefully explained to Mr. Lowry, who states that the experience was one of the most educational that he could possibly receive in the same time in regard to the manufacture of steel.

The Life Underwriters' Association Of Central Ontario Holds Meeting Here

A meeting of the Life Underwriters Association of Central Ontario was held in the Toronto Loan and Savings Company's office, Friday evening, November 6th, at 8 p. m.

The following members were present, Mayor Rush, president; 1st Vice W. R. Widdess, Lindsay; W. F. Nelson, secretary; T. J. Robson, Oshawa; W. J. Robertson, Port Hope; J. D. Howden, Whitby; H. Argue, Millbrook; R. J. Kidd, T. W. Robinson, S. E. Sells and S. G. Sells.

After the usual business was transacted, the speaker of the evening, Mr. J. R. Reid, of the Sun Life, Ottawa, president of the Dominion Association, gave a most interesting and intellectual address on association work. Mr. Reid is a most able lecturer on life insurance work, and carries conviction whenever and wherever he addresses insurance men. This was evidenced last night by the enthusiasm created by his address.

The annual meeting will be held some time in January, at which Mr. Reid has promised to be present, if at all possible.

Lost Fortune As Easily As He Gained It--Goes Back For More

Tacoma, Nov. 11.—Stopping here for a few days on his way from Californian cities to Alaska, was William V. Campbell, a picturesque prospector and miner from the Copper River country, who spent $150,000 in a few weeks.

A little more than a month ago he came south, passing through Seattle, Tacoma and Portland, picking up as he went along a party of "jolly good fellows," with whom he was acquainted. He paid all bills, and admits that his hotel bill averaged something like $170 a day. But that was one of the smallest items of expense, and there were days and days, his friends claim, when he hit his bank account to the tune of $5,000.

California cities, the party found, were waiting for them, typically speaking, with open arms, and the money began running out of Campbell's "barrel" as though it were tapped at both ends.

With his bank account running low and the ebb of his credit in sight, Campbell turned wistful eyes towards the dreary North. He has been here several days and had just $14 left of the $150,000 with which he sailed south. His one satisfaction is that "it's in circulation at a time when the country needs all the circulating medium possible."

He does not lament his meteoric experience, and declares he may come back when fortune smiles upon him again. The Copper River country, he says, is the spot for every man who is foot loose and has grit, industry and "stickability."

The Exposition Buildings At Seattle Are Nearing Completion

Seattle, Nov. 12.—One day in the fall of 1906 the people of Seattle subscribed $650,000 for stock in the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. Only half a million had been asked for but so much in earnest were the people that they subscribed over-subscribed. The capital stock was accordingly raised to $650,000. All this was done after several months of agitation. Then came the demand from all the states and many foreign countries of the Pacific that the proposed exposition be broadened to include the mighty Pacific. This was done and the capital stock raised to $900,000, the balance being subscribed at once by the people of Seattle and Washington.

This sum of money with the $1,-100,000 given by the state legislature and the various county appropriations made a grand total of nearly $2,200,-000. Within the last month, however, the demands of exhibitors for space and the general plan of making much of the work on the grounds and buildings permanent, made it necessary to enlarge the scope of the exposition. The incorporation of the "Pacific" in the title of the exposition was like a magic wand, for the countries across the Pacific as well as many European countries accepted the invitations to participate. It finally became necessary to have more money. The directors decided upon a bond issue, as every other great exposition has done. Three hundred and fifty thousand dollars on bonds, at a rate of interest close to eight per cent. were ordered sold. The local banks offered to take the entire issue, but the directors wished the people to have the advantage of the bonds. Two weeks' advertising brought characteristic Seattle results. The bonds were sold in lots from $100 to $11,000 to a total of $190,000, to private individuals and firms. The banks took the balance and resold them to subscribers who were late in making their offers. Nearly 500 individuals now hold these bonds. This perchance will show that Seattle means business in backing the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, and is determined that it shall be a huge success, as far as money can make it. And it is now felt that that with the financial side settled, there is no doubt about its success, for the vast number of inquiries from distant points indicates a far reaching interest.

Work on the exposition buildings and grounds is going forward rapidly. Within the next thirty days work will start upon the last of the building groups, including the five government buildings, the EWomen's, Forestry, Missouri, Spokane, King County, Machinery annex and other buildings. Plans are being considered for several annex buildings to take care of the scores of applicants for space. A dozen concessionaries have started work. The laying of asphalt on the eleven miles of roads and walks has started. The great central court of honour is finished. Exhibits are arriving and are being stored in the buildings now completed. In fact, were the exposition to open a month earlier than the date set, June 1st, it would be ready and complete in every detail.

Jas. Dunn Commits Suicide Over a Love Affair—Was Infatuated With Young Girl Aged Sixteen Years.

HER PARENTS STRONGLY OBJECTED TO HIM

Ottawa Nov. 13.—James Dunn, bridge builder, 45, committed suicide at Thereso, by drinking Paris green. He became infatuated with a 16-year-old girl at whose home he boarded. Her parents objected to his company and when turned away he took his life.

COUNTY HOUSE OF REFUGE IS WELL PATRONIZED

Reeve Scott, chairman of the House of Refuge Committee, states that an excellent crop has been harvested on the county farm. Both grain and roots have yielded well and have been garnered in good condition. There are at present thirty-five inmates in the House of Refuge, it being this largest number that has ever been in the institution since it was opened. From all indications the winter will be the busiest yet experienced.

Some improvements have been recently made to the premises. The fences have been improved in places and a new one has been constructed along the road, thereby adding greatly to the appearance of the property.

BOATS AT STONY LAKE CLOSE THEIR SEASON THIS WEEK

An old resident near Stony Lake in writing to a friend in Peterborough, states that in all the 44 years since he has been residing near the lake he has never seen the water as low as it is at present. In many parts navigation was impossible and owing partly to the low water and the late season, this is practically the last week for the boats. The Stoney Lake ran her last freight trip for the season and one which holds the record. She carried 29 tons of freight. This vessel will remain in the water during the winter. The Empress and Majestic will be hauled out on shore this week to be in readiness for repairs in the spring.

BIG INCREASE IN LOCKAGES ON CANAL THIS YEAR

With navigation practically closed for the present season, Mr. J. H. McWilliams, lockmaster at Lock No. 1, on the Trent Canal, at Lakefield, has prepared a statement of the number of lockages during the past summer, which shows that the increase over 1907 is exactly 100.

Last year there were 747, this year 850 lockages. The articles carried were 4,000 cords of wood, 600 cords of stone, 1,000,000 brick, 9,500 tile. 4 live stock, 15 pigs.

HUNTERS WILL NOT LIKELY BREAK CAMP UNTIL SUNDAY

Few of the local deer hunters have yet returned from the chase, and it is not likely that they will begin returning until Monday or Sunday. It is most likely that they will wait until Sunday to get away when they will pack up and get back to the city some time on Monday. It all depends on the weather at the end of the week. If it is fine they will remain the full time allowed by law. Enquiry does not enable one to find out whether the local parties have been very successful or not. No word has been received from them, and but few deer have been sent down.

Freight traffic on this section of the C.P.R. is very heavy just now, and a gentleman recently in Havelock stated that one day this week over 400 cars were sent out of the railroad town. This added business of course means more money for the employees and as a consequence more money for the whole town. The yards are constantly congested and the trains are very busy handling them.

CIVIC BEAUTY.

A speaker at the meeting of Horticultural Societies in Toronto, characterized Galt as the foremost town in Canada in the possession of parks. No details having been provided it is impossible to compare Galt's possessions in this matter with those of Peterborough. We have always been inclined to boast that this city through the munificence of the late Mrs. Nicholls, and the superiority in park possessions in proportion to population. There is, however, no doubt, according to the testimony of travellers, that Peterborough is the most abundantly supplied with street and shade trees of any place in Ontario, a circumstance that practically makes every street in the residence portions of the city a public park. What is lacking, however, in Peterborough is the proper care of our streets and public places. Not that those in charge of them do not try, but their efforts are to a great degree neutralized by public apathy or indifference, amounting in many cases to absolute hoodlumism. Our citizens even those who may regard themselves, as the most cultured, show an indifference to the beauty of appearance of our streets that is discouraging to those having an interest in the preservation of public beauty and neatness, and not creditable to those showing such indifference. We expect a "hoodlum" to perpetrate such acts as the malicious defacement of public places or the uprooting or destruction of bulbs or plants in our public parks; but what is the difference, so far as results, at least, go, between a "hoodlum," who commits acts like those mentioned and the man who, after a citizen has built, trimmed and grassed a beautiful boulevard, destroys it by tramping the life and beauty out of it by taking what is called the "short cut" as he passes to and fro? Yet every day we see men of influence or "culture"—merchants, professional men, teachers in our public schools and Collegiate Institute, outraging the beauty of our streets by committing the vandalism implied in wantonly, at least in effect, destroying what has cost money and labour to provide, thus destroying in detail and ultimately in mass the beauty of our streets.

When leaders, or what should be leaders, offend in this manner what can be expected from those with less opportunity for culture, less education and presumably less aesthetic taste? The fact is that there is a deplorable lack of healthy public sentiment in regard to the beauty of our streets and public places. Under a properly constituted citizenship, in this regard, every citizen should consider himself a private police officer. He or she should consider it the part of duty to not only protect the beauty of our public and private places from impairment or destruction, but to contribute a share to the general beautification. The causes of this public indifference are due to the apathy and lack of public spirit of those who should be leaders and exemplars in the creation and practice of a proper sentiment. Our city fathers, in their management of our streets, set a bad example. They are perpetually ripping—or permitting the ripping—up of our streets, without providing for restoration to the original condition or without promptly removing the results. A pavement is put down and the surplus stones, gravel or cement are left for days to litter, obstruct and disfigure the streets. In one case on Hunter street, west of the Cathedral, a mass of cement was left in the street to harden and has remained there two or three years, projecting several inches above the street line and producing as much of an obstruction as if an iceberg-sown boulder had been imported from Burleigh and purposely and maliciously placed in the same spot. A private contractor puts in a walk and leaves his surplus gravel mixed with cement in the street and there it stays. These things practised and permitted all over the city tend to disfigure our streets and destroy the beauty of the city. Respect for public beauty, the gospel of beauty should form a subject in the curriculum of our schools. If children are taught that beauty of appearance is a principle of religion, typical of the beauties Nature spreads in the form of tree and flower—if this principle is ingrained in practice it will be a step to appreciation and practice of moral beauty of character and life.

CANADA'S TRADE INTERESTS ABROAD.

Canada has for some years been represented abroad by a number of competent trade commissioners who have done much to promote the commerce of the Dominion. The result is a strong argument for the extension of the system.

Being an integral portion of the British Empire, Canada cannot, of course, have a regular consular service. Its interests are supposed to be looked after by the British consuls, who naturally pay less attention to fostering Canadian trade than to matters which more directly concern the mother country. If the trade commission service were extended, the effects of this neglect, due as much to the ignorance as the indifference of consuls, would be largely overcome.

Attention is drawn to this matter by Mr. F. C. Salter, European traffic manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, who, after an extended organizing tour of Europe and Asia Minor, has returned to England. To a Liverpool reporter he said he was much impressed by the lack of knowledge and interest evinced by the British representatives in the industrial and commercial affairs of Canada. There is shown, he says, a tendency to consider Canada as some colonial outstation rather than a progressive nation, co-equal with England, Ireland and Scotland. He has generally found those representatives possessed of all requisite social qualities, and has received courtesy and attention at their hands, but when his relations with them became of a business nature the consuls seemed at sea and he sometimes found that they did not, or could not, realize the importance of any commercial interests, Canadian or otherwise. As an illustration of this he relates the following incident which occurred on his recent visit to Asia Minor:

"The great awakening of Turkey under its new constitution presages wonderful developments. Germany keenly alive, has its business representatives already planted there, being guided by consular reports. The opening up of railways, which should be supplied by Britain; agricultural implements, which should be supplied by Canada, in competition with German and United States products, are points of the utmost importance. The British representative in this instance had no knowledge of Canada's ability to supply these instruments; did not realize that his duties in this respect lay beyond the British Isles, or that he was actually to promote the commerce of every nation flying the Union Jack. These men are mainly drawn from a class whose education and surroundings cannot in the nature of things have fitted them for sympathy with, or grasp of commercial matters. They should be recruited from the aristocracy of commerce, the bone and sinew of the nation."

Mr. Salter concludes that unless properly qualified men are appointed to the consular service, Canada must have her own commercial representatives to enable her to hold her commercial position amongst the other nations.

If conditions are as bad as described by Mr. Salter, there need be no doubt that the matter will receive from the minister of trade and commerce the consideration due it.

AN ENGLISH MEMBER'S EXPENSES.

Of course the corrupt practices act has done much to prevent the spending of huge sums of money at the actual election. Expenses, then, are, we believe, effectually as well as nominally controlled. But if the "short sharp shock" of heavy disbursement at an election is a thing of the past, we understand that a new kind of disguised bribery has more than taken its place. The demands upon the pocket of every pliable member are unceasing. His annual subscriptions and donations amount to more, perhaps, than ever before. It has been said that in some cases it costs as much to have a constituency, as to keep a steam yacht or a pack of hounds. But even if this is an exaggeration, it is, we are assured, by no means uncommon for constituencies to cost their member between $10,000 and $15,000 a year. In other words, it used to cost a rich man $50,000 down to get into Parliament. Now, it costs him $6,000 at the election, and $10,000 a year for the five years which is the average duration of a Parliament. Naturally it is not easy to come at the details. We can hardly expect members of the House to tell us what they spend; but it is possible that some past members will be good enough to state in the public interest what amount they were compelled to spend each year in order to secure their seats.—The Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The London Times, apropos of Hon. Mr. Lemieux's penny cablegram proposals, says that the interest aroused by them is sufficient proof that it is an object, which all are eager to see advanced. The Times is also kind enough to say that Canada which has always led the way shows no remission in zeal in regard to the all-red girdle of telegraphs. Premier Deakin says that Australia will welcome all rate-lowering proposals. Canada, by virtue of its statesmanlike leading in the promotion of imperial unity bulks more largely every year in the view of the centres of the Empire and of the world.

Canada has proven, by happy experience, in her postal administration, that the lowering of prices stimulates expenditure and produces more abundant revenue. Russia has proved the success of the same principle, but in a less benign form. Russia experimented with strong drink as a state monopoly. It proved a great producer of revenue and the best revenue results proceeded from lowered prices. The state improved the quality of stimulants and made them cheaper. On the same principle the proposal of Hon. Mr. Lemieux to lower trans-oceanic cable rates seems to be justified. The lowering of postal rates encouraged correspondence and increased revenue. Would not the same apply to cable rates, to railway rates and to the prices charged for the use of public utilities of all kinds?

FOR SICK CHILDREN

Mrs. Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, Who Has Done So Much Good Among Sick Children of New York, Recommends Vinol.

In my work among the destitute sick I gave Vinol in many cases where it would be impossible to give cod liver oil in any other form, on account of the extreme weakness of the patient's stomach. I have known Vinol to restore appetite and infuse new life in many cases of sick women and children when everything else failed. Little children seem to delight in taking Vinol."

The reason Vinol is so far superior to old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions is because it contains all the medicinal, body building elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cods' livers with the disagreeable oil eliminated and tonic iron added.

As a body builder and strength creator for old people, weak women, delicate children, after sickness and for all pulmonary troubles, Vinol is recommended by over 5,000 of the leading druggists of the United States. Your money will be returned on demand, if Vinol fails to benefit. McDermid & Jury, Peterborough.

HOW TRIFLES COUNT IN DAIRYING

Small Things Which Mean Dollars and Cents But Which are Often Overlooked.

MR. R. G. MURPHY'S ADVICE

From the Canadian Dairyman

In addressing the district meeting held at Peterboro on Wednesday November 4, Mr. R. G. Murphy, secretary of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, said:

"Three things go to make dairying profitable. The milk must be produced cheaply. It must make a fine quality of product, which product must sell for the highest price. Producers should look at both ends of the business. One-sixteenth of a cent on a sale should not count for much when one can save one-half a cent on more on production. By allowing cows to lay out in the evenings when one is busy with threshing or fall plowing much is being lost that could otherwise be saved. It pays to house the cows on cool evenings, even if they are fed nothing."

Mr. Murphy dwelt on the importance of having a first-class water supply. He cited an instance of where he had a spring in the pasture field in which the cattle ran, but yet those cows came to the barn to be milked and were thirsty. Even if there was a never-failing supply of water in the pasture, water should also be provided at the barn, where the cows were milked. "Some," said Mr. Murphy "are inclined to think that if the cows are fools enough not to take water enough, they may go without. Such folly on the part of the farmer costs him hard cash every time. Cows should be given all the water they want and should even be induced to drink all they will. To make them drink more, give them all the salt they will eat; have salt before them at all times.

"Some, if they wish a cow to stey over in the stall, hit her with the stool or twist her tail. It is a sure thing that such a practice never made the cow give any more milk." Mr Murphy said that he had been a farmer for 40 years. He was familiar with all that the farmer had to contend with. He pointed out that the hope of reward was often what sweetened the labor on the farm. He recalled one instance where he was left on the 12th of July with 28 cows to milk, his men having gone off to the Orange walk. At that time, he felt that he earned all he got. These hints regarding dairying, would be found useful and meant dollars and cents to dairymen when practised.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Practice deep breathing. A person with fully developed lung capacity purifies his blood several times per minute.

A cup of cold water before retiring and a cup of hot water in the morning before breakfast work like magic as a cure for indigestion.

Almond meal is preferred by some women to soap and acts as a pleasing alternate to soap at any time. This softens, cleanses and whitens the skin.

The most easily digested foods which contain the greatest amount of nourishment and are free from acids and starches are those best adapted to the child's needs.

Rubber gloves to wear when washing china and old kid gloves when dusting are an inestimable boon to housekeepers, for nothing so ruins the skin as coarse soaps, soda and dust.

To soften and perfume the bathing water mix together four ounces of alcohol, one-half ounce of ammonia and one dram of oil of lavender. A few drops of this mixture will be sufficient for a bowlful of water.

True Bill Against Editor.

Winnipeg, Nov. 13.—The grand jury yesterday morning brought in a true bill against John W. Dafoe, editor of The Winnipeg Free Press, on a charge of criminal libel. The case arose out of the Dominion elections. The Free Press accusing C. R. McLaghlan, an ex-Winnipeg policeman, of organizing a gang to create a disturbance at a political meeting.

Somewhat Peculiar.

Calgary, Nov. 13.—The News, Dan McGillicuddy's paper, in an editorial last night republishes the plea of justification in the criminal libel case, and says: "The verdict of the jury is, to say the least, somewhat peculiar and as it has been appealed to the higher court, we will not comment upon it, but merely reproduce the verdict."

Stood the Test.

A statesman was making a speech recently when he was annoyed by the frequent interruptions of an opposition voter, who seemed bent on making trouble.

"My friend," said the speaker, determining to suppress the disturber, "haven't you heard the story of how a braying ass put to flight the entire Syrian army?"

"Don't you be afraid of this audience," shouted back the disturber of the meeting; "there ain't no danger of it stampeding. You've tested it!"—London Mail.

Millions of Acres Remain.

Though it has given away whole empires to settlers and railroads and has been robbed of millions of acres by land "grafters," the United States government still holds 754,805,290 acres of public lands. This would give every man, woman and child in the country nearly ten acres apiece. However, nearly half of this land is in Alaska—368,021,509 acres of it—and probably will not be of great value for years to come. But enough of it remains in the western states to accommodate millions of settlers. The constant pressure of overpopulation is certain to force continuous immigration to this country until all our surplus land is taken up.—Baltimore Sun.

Gotham and the Hub—A Contrast.

Says the Boston Traveler: "New York decees her dwellers by ordinance, her visitors by agreement, her transients by sand bags; Boston sells them copper stocks and revolutionary souvenirs The New Yorker who has escaped the alderman, the lobster palace and the sandbagger gives his money to a bank receiver, and that prudent person brings it to Boston to escape the burglar. New York is a financial center; Boston is a financial refuge. People camp on the cliffs of New York; they have homes in Boston. Gotham is clubbed by policemen; the Hub is policed by clubmen. New York is a way station on the road to hades; Boston is the gateway to paradise."

No One Questions It.

An automobile party was touring through a mountainous district of one of the states and had made a stop in one of the small towns to make some repairs to the machine. While they waited the attention of one of the party was called to an intelligent looking lad of about fourteen who seemed to be very much interested in the work and of whom the following question was asked:

"Say, son, what do you live on out here?"

"Nuthin," replied the somewhat surprised youth. "Dad's a preacher."—Judge.

The Greyhound.

The greyhound seems to have been developed in level, treeless and shrubless countries, where a moving object is visible at a long distance, and great speed is therefore necessary to enable a predaceous animal to overtake its prey.

The Aeolian Harp.

The aeolian harp was the invention, it is believed, of Athanasius Kircher, who lived in the seventeenth century.

Cats of Heliopolis.

The cat was considered a sacred animal by the ancient inhabitants of Heliopolis, Egypt. When one of these animals died in a private residence, the occupants shaved off their eyebrows.

African Pygmies.

MUCH MONEY WILL BE WAGERED ON RESULT OF TO-MORROW'S BIG GAME

Examiner Special

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—There is the strongest objection here to the choice of Kingston for the Tiger-Ottawa match, but at the same time there will be a big crowd take in the excursion Saturday. The main objection is that at either Toronto or Montreal there would have been an eight or nine thousand gate, whereas they will do well with a four thousand one at Kingston. As neither of the teams would concede anything, there was nothing else to do but go where President Molson had decided on when he broke the tie. Several Ottawa officials have already gone to the Limestone City to make preparations. Several thousand dollars will be wagered on the result, and already considerable Hamilton money is here to be covered. It is expected that the struggle will be the greatest ever seen on any Canadian football field. The teams will line up about the same as last Saturday. Ottawa practised yesterday and left to-night for Kingston.

LONGBOAT IS SAID TO HAVE SIGNED TWO CONTRACTS; TROUBLE ARISES

Toronto, Nov. 11.—That stormy petrel of Canadian athletics, Tom Longboat, has not yet found a safe haven of rest with Tom Flanagan.

True, he has signed with the Irish sportsman for a year, and will run his first professional race to-night in Kingston, where he tin-cans with five alleged runners in a five-mile relay race, but he still has to reckon with Tom Clams, the Mohawk, who weaned him for one short week from Flanagan.

The Flanagan contract isn't the only one the Onondaga signed.

He signed up with the Mohawk before he did with Flanagan, and now the Mohawk threatens trouble. Claus is still in town, and is dumbfounded at the turn affairs have taken.

"Longboat came to me and asked me to help him, and I did to the best of my ability, and this is my fate," said Claus to The Star. "Well, I'm disappointed in Tom, but I hope everything turns out the best for him. I wish him all the luck in the world.

George Benjamin, the former secretary-treasurer of the old Toronto Rugby Football Club, is now located at Calgary, and writes as follows to The Toronto Star about Rugby in Alberta;

"Red Lamont and myself are now humble spectators at the great Rugby games in this most energetic and thriving metropolis. Red played one game, but he did not show class, and drew the big blue envelope.

"We have a big three-team league out here, namely, the Tigers (minus their claws), the Y.M.C.A. (and bear much 'cursing'), and least, but well in the fast, the 'illorest and 'ornets,' a club composed of the 'by Jove outfit, who play rugger, you know.'

"So far the Y.M.C.A. have it on them all, and they play great ball, just the same as Hamilton, 12.23.34, quarter through the middle wing, and if the play does not go, same signal, and play it over again, unless the wind is blowing about 9,000 miles an hour, when they will kick. The Tigers play the same sort of game, but not quite so well, and as for the 'illerest 'ornets,' they do beastly fine if they could get the bally ball out of the scrum, old chap, but it won't come out, you know.'

"So far the attendance on fine days to matches runs about 4,000,000, but in real cash does not exceed $13 n.t. (for your information n.t. stands for useless tinsel.)"

CHIEFTAINS MAY PLACE A TEAM IN THE JUNIOR RANKS OF O. H. A.

It may be the Junior O. H. A. for the Chieftains this season.

The officers and players of the red and black team have been discussing the matter among themselves and from the present outlook they will be found in the junior ranks of the big Ontario body this season.

The Chieftains made a grand showing last season and should give a good account of themselves this year. They have a fast team of youngsters, who play hockey from the drop of the hat. They are young enough, it is true, but last season they demonstrated their ability to defeat players of nearly twice their weight. They took the Bridgenorth team of the City League into camp without any difficulty and put the Indian sign on other big teams.

The Chieftains discussed the matter at a meeting on Wednesday night and will hold another meeting to-night.

T.A.S. AND Y.M.C.A. SENIORS LIKELY TO PLAY OFF FOR CITY CHAMPIONSHIP

Next Saturday may see a battle between the T. A. S. Athletic Club Seniors and the Y. M. C. A. Senior team, to decide which club is entitled to the Rugby championship of Peterborough. It is understood that a challenge will be issued, and, no doubt, both teams will be anxious for the game. Such a contest will, no doubt, prove most interesting to the local Rugby enthusiasts, as a hard-fought battle should be the result when the two get together. Both teams are strong and in good shape and it would be a struggle all the way through, judging by the performances this season. It is quite likely that the arrangements for the match will be made and that the contest will be pulled off at Riverside Park.

TREMBLAY AND EDMUNDS ARE TO MEET IN TORONTO

Toronto, Nov. 12. — "Tremblay's legs knees fully recovered; match with Edmonds definitely on for Riverdale Rink, November 20," was the fire Manager Smith of the Riverdale Athletic Club, received from Geo. Kennedy, of Montreal, manager of Tremblay, Westergarde, Caseau and other grapplers this morning.

This wire sets at rest all doubts as to the handicap match between Tremblay the world's lightweight champion and Artie Edmunds, of Toronto, the "pocket Heroules." Tremblay agrees to throw Edmunds twice an hour for a $200 side bet and a 75 per cent. division of the Riverdale club's purse. Edmunds is training hard and says that if Tremblay will face him under 140 pounds he will go right after him and not bother with any defence work. He thinks he has a royal chance even against such a crack as Tremblay. Two preliminary bouts will also be put on. Riverdale Rink is an ideal place for wrestling, seating 2,000 people and is well heated.

WHY NOT PETERBORO' IN THIS NEW LEAGUE?

West End's senior basketball team are practising hard to get into good condition for their season, which will soon be on. Harry Bickle has been chosen captain, and Ed. Pyke, manager. Among those who are trying for positions are Vogan, Day, Ham, Montgomery, Downard, and Andy Kyle; more are expected out later. The team will try to bring the best teams in Canada here for games before their regular season opens. A team will be entered in the new league to be composed of Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford, London and Stratford.—Toronto Star.

Sporting Comment

The South City Athletic Club will meet to-night at 7.30 o'clock.

FOUL TIPS ARE HARD ON CATCHERS

The foul tip is responsible for removing for varying periods from the field of action almost every big league backstop of prominence. Last year Criger, Kling, Sullivan, Clarke, Bemis, Schmidt, Schreck and Bresnahan were the harvest that it reaped.

A broken finger hurt Detroit's chances in the world's series; Chicago claims Sullivan's absence on account of a damaged digit spoiled its pennant chances, while Cleveland could most probably have raked up one more game had Clarke not had the misfortune to have his finger hurt. Some people wonder why it is that many of the catchers in the game right along bat way down next the pitcher. Freddy Payne claims that it is because the catcher is sure to be carrying one or more very sore fingers and consequently cannot grip his club.

The worst kind of foul-tip is the one that the batter barely touches, just deflects the ball out of its course enough to smash it anywhere but into the waiting palm. It makes no difference how a catcher holds his hands when one of these are coming. No man can change his clutch quick enough to avoid them. With a pitcher using lots of steam the result of one of these foul tips is something awful. One of Walsh's fast ones tipped by a Cleveland batter hit Schreck in that memorable no-hit game of Joss' last season. Schreck's finger was merely held together by the skin, so terrific was the force of the blow. One little pull would have yanked the poor fellow's finger clean off.

ROUGH RIDERS TO HOLD MEETING

A meeting of the members of the Rough Riders' club will be held on Monday night at eight o'clock in the Y. M. C. A., for the purpose or organizing a hockey team for the season. All the members of the club are urgently requested to be present as matters of importance will come up for discussion, upon which it is necessary to get the opinion of the members.

PROPER CARE OF THE COAL STOVE

How to Guard Against Dirt and Litter in Removing the Ashes.

HOW TO KEEP FIRE ON

From The Canadian Dairyman.

A large share of the dirt and litter attendant upon the use of coal results from irregularity and neglect in emptying the ash pan. The space for the ash pan should be thoroughly cleaned when the stove receives its annual blackening and then the ash pan never be allowed to come to overflowing. It might better be emptied twice a day in the coldest weather than to have it become heaping full and the ashes run over only once.

For getting the ashes and cinders from the fire pot into the ash pan, nothing equals the poker. It is true that long-continued shaking will get out most of the ashes and a portion of the cinders, but it also brings down a large quantity of coal and so packs together the contents of the fire pot that the draft is almost destroyed. Using the poker through the small openings made for that purpose is so much like eating soup with a fork that nearly everyone opens a lower side door and it is this practice that fills the room with the dust-like ashes. The air inside the stove is warmer and lighter than inside the room and it rises out of the opening thus made, bringing with it the dust that is being stirred up by the poker. This difficulty may be overcome by turning back the large damper, pulling out the check damper and closing the damper in the front of the stove, thus causing a strong draft to pass in at the open door, when not a particle of ashes will escape into the room.

Getting up some cold morning and finding the fire "out" is usually the result of burning the fire at a rapid rate the previous evening and then retiring without poking out some of the ashes and bringing down a fresh supply of coal. The fire probably looked bright and fresh on the surface when it was left for the night but the life was nearly burned out of those bright coals and just beneath them was a great mass of ashes and cinders. By the way, the bringing down of a fresh supply of coal to last overnight ought not to be postponed until the last moment and then the dampers closed. "Suffocated by coal gas" is the heading of many an item in our papers that never would have been written had it not been for this practice. It is when coal is being heated that it gives out the greatest amount of gas, for the removal of which a strong draft is necessary; after it becomes hot and glowing, a slight draft is sufficient to carry away the small quantity of gas that it throws off.

TO KEEP BOTTLES

My bottles of extract were constantly knocked over, and, moreover, occupied a much-needed space in my crowded cupboards. My son devised a simple arrangement inside of the cupboard door. It consists of a narrow strip of wood not quite as long as the width of the door, supported on each end by a small block, making the space the width of the bottles; another strip about seven-eighths inch square was nailed one inch below for the bottles to rest upon.—G. Matthews, Hastings Co.

FOR THE KITCHEN TABLE

The book box illustrated is to be fastened to the wall over the kitchen table at such a height that when the front cover falls into place it makes a shelf on a level with the eyes. A special feature of this shelf is a band of elastic tape under which an open cook book can be slipped. By this contrivance the books are always out of the way and free from dust when not in use; and even when in service they are not lying on the kitchen table to become soiled in handling.—R. Davis, Ont.

TO CLARIFY RAIN WATER

To clarify rain-water that has turned dark and greasy-looking from standing in either a cistern or barrel, mix half-pound of powdered alum, and add half-pound of powdered borax, and all to the water. The pound mixture is sufficient for fifty barrels of water—it can be duly proportioned. In a few hours the water will be clear, and all sediment at the bottom.—Jessie Burns, Peterboro Co., Ont.

WHEN COOKING CABBAGE

To prevent the odor of cabbage or cauliflower from permeating the house, place a good-sized crust of bread in the bottom of the kettle in which the vegetable is cooking.—Country Maid.

A FISH TASTE

To get rid of the taste and smell of fish, baked or fried, wash the vessel it was cooked in well with soap and water; dry it, then scald with boiling vinegar, or vinegar and water.—Martha Brown, Man.

UNPROFITABLE COWS WEEDED OUT

From The Canadian Dairyman.

This subject has frequently been discussed in bulletins and the methods of determining profitableness or unprofitableness of individual cows has been quite fully explained. The following "true story" from records made by the Massachusetts Station enforces so strongly and concisely the lesson of the importance of studying the performance of individual cows in a herd with a view to weeding out those that are not only not profitable but are being carried at an actual loss that is reproduced as it appears in a recent bulletin of the Station.

A year's record.—6,975 pounds milk testing 4.87 per cent. fat equal to 340 pounds fat, equal to 396 pounds butter. Food cost of one quart milk 2.76 cents; one pound butter 22.9 cents. Profit from milk at 3½ cents a quart, $31.38; from butter at 30 cents a pound, $31.31.

A year's record.—3,141 pounds milk testing 4.38 per cent. fat equal to 137.4 pounds fat, equal to 165 pounds butter. Food cost of one quart milk, 4.53 cents; one pound butter, 39.2 cents. Loss from milk at 3½ cents per quart, $17.37; loss on butter at 30 cents per pound, $15.23.

Query.—What kind of cows are you keeping? If you don't know, isn't it about time you found out?

Waste Lands That May Be Used As Forest Nurseries

From The Canadian Dairyman.

In several sections of Older Ontario, there are tracts of land which are practically absolute waste. The lands are of no use agriculturally as they consist of light sand and even of shifting sand. A large tract of such land exists in Norfolk County. The Forestry Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has already done some work in connection with a part of this waste area. In Simcoe County, another large tract of such land, locally called "The Plains," is to be found. This area covers some 10,000 acres and is of value only for forestry purposes. In Northumberland and in Durham Counties exists another large tract of this land, which cannot be exploited successfully for any branch of agriculture.

At one time, this land produced the best of timber. The area in Durham County was originally timbered with pine and oak, two of our most valuable timbers. These lands should never have been opened for settlement and at least should never have been deforested. Now that the timber has been taken off, these lands have, in some cases, been abandoned, and in others, are furnishing but a poor existance to those who live upon them. The one thing to do is to reforest these areas.

In view of the existing conditions on these tracts in Durham and Northumberland Counties, as outlined on another page of this issue, some forest policy should be adopted in the very near future in connection with them. The great difficulty in handling these waste areas is that they are frequently poorly served by railroads, thus making it difficult to get material in for reforesting purposes. The areas in Northumberland and Durham Counties are well situated in this respect and offer probably the best chances of success of any of these waste lands in that they are near a railroad station. Burketon or Pontypool on the C. P. R. are situated close by. A nursery established in this vicinity would serve both Northumberland and Durham Counties. Were a forest reserve to be established in this locality, while it would not only be profitable to the country at large, it would be one of the very best demonstrations to the people of the district that waste portions of the farm can be successfully planted to trees. Farmers in the locality could be furnished planting material at a very low cost from the nurseries in connection with such a reserve.

These waste lands in their present state are of little value to the country. In many cases, they are not worth the taxes, hence they bring in no revenue. There is no reason why these lands cannot be exploited successfully for forestry purposes.

Mulching Strawberry Plants To Ward Off Winter's Frost

Horticultural Practice That Assures Strong Plants in the Spring—Best Materials for Mulching.

WHEN TIME TO APPLY IT

From The Canadian Dairyman.

Good horticultural practice demands that strawberries be mulched not only as protection from the severe cold of winter, but because, first, alternate freezing and thawing are rendered impossible by mulching, thus preventing the straining and breaking down of the plants; second, mulching keeps the plants dormant, preventing to a degree extra-early blooming and reducing the danger from late spring frosts; third, mulching insures clean berries at harvest time; fourth, mulching retains moisture in the soil at fruiting time, just when the plants require the most ample supply; and, fifth, it gives to the strawberry grower complete assurance that his plants are coming out all right in the spring.

Not only is mulching of great advantage to the strawberry plants, but the soil is benefited beyond estimate by this covering. The mineral substances in the soil, which constitute the feed that nourishes the plants, would be lost in large quantities were the open spaces left to the ravages of wind and rain. The fertility is conserved, the moisture is retained, and the soil enters upon its work in the spring fully equipped to do its part in producing big crops of big red berries. No argument is needed in behalf of a practice that will accomplish all of these desirable results.

The most satisfactory mulch we have used is old and somewhat rotted wheat straw, and following in the order of excellence may be named oat and rye straw, shredded corn fodder, thickly sown corn and marsh hay. Old leaves are all right to place between the rows, but something having the look of straw should be put over the plants.

The time to apply is in the fall after severe frosts have begun. Up to that time the root development of the strawberry plant continues, and this the grower wishes to encourage, of course. Then the mulch comes on to protect the plants from injury and to insure a healthy spring foliage, which in turn makes certain a vigorous growth of the plant when the gentle rains and warm sunshine of spring return.

OBSTINATE FACE SORES

REFUSED TO CLOSE FOR 4 YEARS

Zam-Buk Healed Them Inside Two Weeks.

Have you some eruption, or sore, or ulcer, or wound, on any part of your body which has hitherto refused to close, no matter how treated? If so, that is a case for Zam-Buk, the great herbal balm. The herbal saps and essences in this balm are so powerful that they can heal the worst cases of chronic sores, ulcers, blood poison and skin diseases. Here are proof of this:

Mrs. W. H. Taylor, of North Bay, Ont., says: "I had a scaly spot as big as a ten cent piece on my face. I had it for four years, and hardly a night during that time went by but what I applied cold cream, or some ointment or other, but it would always be there. I recently applied Zam-Buk, and in little over a week's time the spot had disappeared entirely."

Mrs. S. J. Holden, of 343 West Hannah street, Hamilton, says: "My little girl had a running sore on her leg which defied all treatment. I applied Zam-Buk, and in about a week's time the wound was closed. I have found Zam-Buk just as good for other skin troubles and injuries."

Mr. J. B. Hamilton, of Thornbury, says: "A friend of mine had an obstinate sore on her temple. It had been treated once or twice by a doctor, and would heal up for a short time, but would break out again. Zam-Buk healed it permanently, and it shows no sign whatever of returning."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for all skin diseases and injuries, such as cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, psoriasis, ulcers, scalp sores, cold sores, chapped hands, itch, rashes, tetter, face sores, etc. It is also an unequalled embrocation, and rubbed well into parts affected cures rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, cold on chest, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding, or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50 cents.

"CERTIFIED MILK" FOR CHILDREN

Statement That Small Proportion of Milk is Free From Poisonous Germ.

From The Canadian Dairyman.

"If children got one-quarter of a spoonful of unpasteurized milk per day, they would get enough to poison them!"

Such was the declaration of Dr. Charles J. O. Hastings, chairman of Milk Commission before the Progressive Club recently, in support of the statement that polluted milk was principally responsible for the fact that 1,625 children under 5 years of age had died in Toronto last year.

The remark quoted above was delivered in reply to an interruption from one of the auditors, to the effect that those children may not have had the opportunity of drinking much milk. In further support of the assertion that a very meagre proportion of the milk produced nowadays was absolutely free from some poisonous germ. Dr. Hastings said that since civic inspection of milk had been taken up, the mortality lists had been reduced from 33 to 50 per cent., in districts supplied by pasteurized milk.

J. A. Amyot, M.B., bacteriologist of the provincial board of health, had previously delivered a lecture on "The Clean Milk Problem." He said that until such time as "certified milk" could be assured to the consumer at a reasonable price and a reasonable profit to the farmer, the only safe method was to have the milk inspected, pasteurized and refrigerated. He described "certified milk" as milk produced under ideal conditions—healthy cows, specially adapted sanitary stables, healthy, clean milkers, shipped in refrigerator cars and certified to by a commission.

But no farmer could afford to take all these precautions without being compensated.

MIND THE MASTER

Man's life unfolds, like the rose, from within.

For mind is source of all.

As the seed is so is the flower; and as the state of a man's mind is so is his life.

Mind is the master weaver of destiny. Mind environs the man with conditions of its own making. Out of the mind comes every word, action and achievement that make up one's life.

No more pregnant words occur in Holy Writ than these: "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

The main difference between millionaire and pauper is that one thinks in millions and the other in pennies. The whole difference between poet and ploughman lies in the inner mind.

Every man is where he is and what he is by reason of the thoughts out of which he has made himself and his conditions. There is no deviation from the divine law that thought is the moulder of circumstance.

The law of cause and effect is as absolute and immutable in the secret realm of the soul as in the outer world of visible things.

The lightest word, the faintest smile, the slightest impulsive action, were first definitely framed in the mind.

The most intricate mechanism existed first as thought. The grandest cathedral, the greatest work of man was constructed out of a thought. Thought was the builder, not the machine-like workman. Thought is the substance, not the dead stones.

Joy and sorrow, hope and despair, courage and fear, love and hate, enlightenment and ignorance — the warp and woof of life — are nowhere but in the mind.

The boy who longs for the sea and whose heart leaps at sound of the breakers, and thrills at sight of a sail is building his own ship.

The youth who sits spell bound by the word of an orator and makes the solitudes eloquent with his own declamations is erecting his own rostrum or pulpit.

Wishes are wings.

Upon them we mount to what heights we will.

But they must be genuine, soul deep.

The painter cannot, by mere wishing, have the colours arrange themselves upon his canvas. The wish must be virile enough to give source to ceaseless efforts and consummate skill.

For the thought or wish that does not shape itself into the concrete form of determined and continued effort is but a whim.

We become what we wish to become, we do what we wish to do — not in fleeting fancies, but in the earnest, constant yearnings of the soul.

He who can control his thoughts can control his destiny, and his destiny will be as grand as his thoughts.

Mr. S. Lowry Returns From Buffalo—Surrogate Court Case.

Mr. S. W. Lowry and his sister, Mrs. George Clements, of Warsaw, returned from Buffalo last evening, where they have been for the last week, attending the trial of a claim made by their attorney for exorbitant fees for services in connection with the estate of the late Dr. R. E. Campbell, of that city. The Surrogate Court appointed Edward O. Sullivan to hear and decide the case. A settlement was reached without consulting Mr. GGreen's hire, whereby the Buffalo attorney withdraws from the case and drops his claim.

Large Amount of Work Was Gone Through—Canopy for Grand Opera House Entrance.

SOME CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES

The Board of Works Committee held a meeting yesterday afternoon at which there were present Ald. Phelan, Chairman; the Mayor, Ald. Buller, Elliott and Bradburn.

A letter was read from T. Kinnear & Co., in regard to the flooding of their cellar and a report was also received from the City Engineer on the same subject. No action was taken.

No action, on motion of Ald. Bradburn and Buller, in the claim of A. McCarthy for $4 for delay in moving a house on the street.

W. P. Castrieum was on motion of Ald. Buller and Elliott, refunded $25, a deposit made by him for a sewer connection on Stewart street.

Ald. Bradburn moved, seconded by Ald. Buller, that the claim of Wm. Logan be referred to the City Solicitor for his opinion and that the City Engineer give the solicitor a report of the facts.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Buller and Bradburn, no action will be at present taken in regard to a recommendation from the Board of Health for a sewer on Bethune street, between Brock street and Hunter street.

J. J. Turner & Sons were, on motion of Ald. Elliott and Buller, given permission to erect a canopy over the entrance to the Grand Opera House, provided the plans are satisfactory to the City Engineer.

Ald. Elliott moved, seconded by Ald. Buller, that the culverts on Park street at the southern boundary be re-built and that the clerk write the township of North Monaghan and ask them to clean out the drain from there to the river, and that the chairman also see the Reeve of the township in connection with the matter.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Elliott and Buller, the matter of purchasing gravel from cellars was left with the chairman and Engineer.

A CRAZY ELECTION BET IS PAID

Atlantic City, N.J., Nov. 13 — J. F. Smith, said to be a rich Western visitor, to settle an election bet, knelt at every crack in the boardwalk in front of Young's Ocean Pier this afternoon and yelled: "I voted for Bryan!" He wore a dress suit with the trousers turned around.

By doing this he saved $1,000 put up as a forfeit. A jeering crowd of friends of both bettors carried megaphones, through which they called attention to the feat being performed by the perspiring victim.

WHEN GEESE SOLD AT FIFTY CENTS

Man at Market Recalls Old Times and the Price That Then Existed.

The report that fowl sells at reasonable prices on the market these Saturdays was taken exception to by an old citizen who says that good prices are a thing of the past. "It is not so many years ago," he said to a reporter this morning, "when you could buy fowl on the market at decent prices, but now they are exorbitant. Chickens that you could get a few years ago for 25 or 30 cents a pair are now 75 or 80 cents and then you say the present prices are fair. And then geese, they are now a dollar or one twenty-five a piece and just as good used to sell at 50 cents." He had a long list of prices to show that in the days that are beyond recall the people had an opportunity of buying fowl now and then.

A FORWARD STEP

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—I think it will be generally admitted by those of our citizens who have carefully watched the record of our present City Council, that a forward step has been taken in good municipal government this year. Exception will, of course, be taken to some of the expenditures during the year in connection with the Board of Works. Indeed, it is frankly admitted by some of the aldermen themselves, that much of the work that has been done this year might very well have been left undone, to be taken up by next year's council, without detriment to the city's present requirements. But, it was ever thus with Boards of Works and my only regret is that this chronic fault has not been corrected by our present Board. The improvements made are, of course, all very nice and perhaps needed, but some of them might have waited, to be distributed over the expenditures of other years.

A great deal of time and good judgment has been devoted to many important civic matters this year, and progress has been the result. In the discussions of these questions it has been remarked that a degree of harmony and good business spirit has characterized the sessions of the Board. Much headway has particularly been made in the direction of improved bridges, streets, sidewalk, sewers, etc., and the excellence of our fire service is recognized, not only by our citizens, but also throughout the province.

But whether the aldermen, whose terms of office will soon expire, may be complimented on having faithfully performed their work, much more might be said of our present mayor. The city is to be congratulated upon having had the benefit of the practical business intelligence and fidelity of Mayor Rush. The excellent qualifications for the office which he has displayed have resulted in the prompt, efficient and economical dispatch of municipal business. The harmonious relations existing between him and the Board of Aldermen must have been a pleasure to the latter, and to those who have been in the habit of attending the sessions of the council. And the faithful attention given by the mayor to every appeal that has been made to him by private citizens or corporations, and the frank manner in which he has endeavoured to meet every problem claiming his attention as the guardian of the city's welfare, should make an extension of the term of his office very desirable, just now.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITIONS

—All cities over the Province are preparing for their exhibition, and Peterborough is no exception to the rule. It is the time we meet our old and new friends, and those who are not our friends. It is also the best time for the introduction of the newest and smartest out in fall suits and where they can be shown to the greatest advantage. "Too Early!"—you say, to commence buying Xmas presents. Perhaps you are right, but if you recall the rush you had last year and the previous years getting your presents ready at the last minute, and the big outlay, too, about a week or so before Xmas, just when you would like to feel financially strong, you will think there is some truth in the statement that the early purchasers get the most advantages. If you leave off buying until the last week the result will be:—You will not get what suits you, the service will not be nearly so good and your time will be limited. The Sheffield Choir Concert In Peterborough

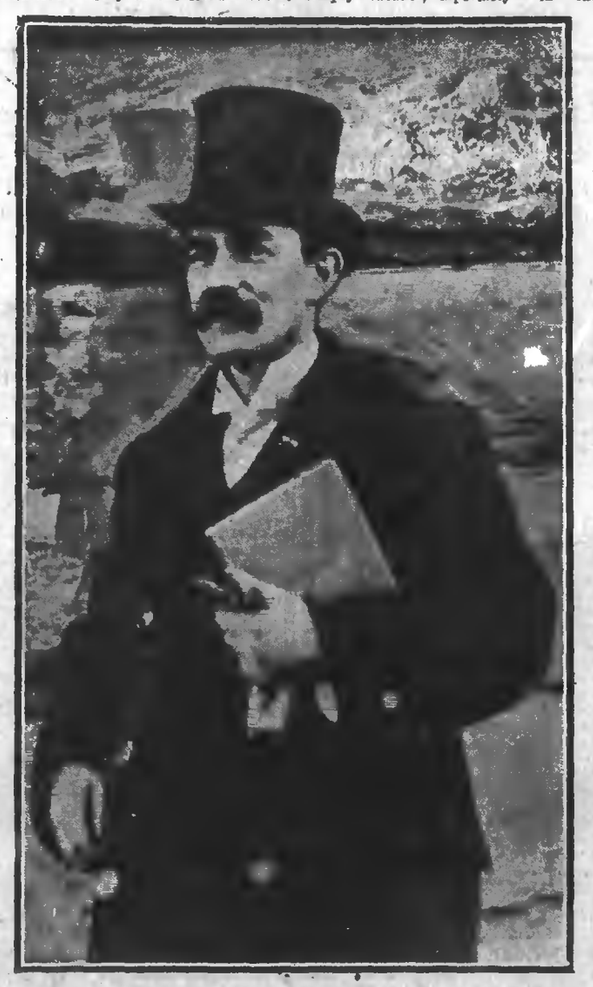
To use Macbeth's words, "tongue nor heart cannot conceive" words to adequately express the grandeur, quality and perfection of choral music as exhibited by the Choir of the Sheffield Musical Union at the Grand Opera House last night. The large audience attracted by the reputation achieved by the Choir during its short Canadian tour, listened to concerted music the like of which they never heard here before and may never again hear in Peterborough. It was a surprise, after an exacting tour, singing nightly, sometimes in draughty auditoriums, improvised into concert halls, to accommodate large crowds, to hear two hundred voices so fresh, clear, true and powerful as those heard last night with such great delight. The most difficult passages were taken with an ease and absence of apparent effort, a splendid spontaniety, that showed that the Choir individually and en semble knew how to breathe, knew how to sing. The perfect balance of tone in the different sections, the body of tone, whether in volume like the thunderous diapason of a mighty organ, or as soft and rich as the muted strings of a 'cello, stopped in flawless tune, was grand and effective beyond description, and, by hearing only, capable of approximate appreciation. While the Choir is supposed to be particularly capable in the interpretation and presentation of the sublime and stately music of grand oratorio, they seem to be equally at home in catch, glee, madrigal, demons' chorus or Indian lullaby. By request the Choir, instead of a programme number, sang Handel's "Glory of the Lord" and it enthusiastic encore and in response the Hallelujah Chorus, literally, as well as musically, brought the audience up standing. It received an interpretation worthy of its majestic beauty. The part songs, Vogt's "Indian Lullaby," marked by delicious beauty of shading and delicacy of treatment, and "Moonlight' were perfectly given, the tone effects were admirable, the finale as perfectly beautiful, dying away into silence to the imperceptible close. The Choir's vocal capacity and executive skill, were, perhaps, most severely tested in the "Demon's chorus from Elgar's Dream of Gerontius, with its intricate scoring, involved time and headlong haste. It was weird, sombre and simply satanic, especially in the demoniac laughter, like the baying of wehr wolves, but never passing the bounds of melodious expression. It was a triumph of concerted vocal art. The choral singing of the Sheffield Choir, under the baton of Dr. Coward is a memory to cherish. In perfection of enunciation, tonal quality, defined expression and interpretative excellence nothing was left to be desired. The local impresario responsible for their appearance here have laid the citizens of Peterborough under a mighty obligation. Mr. Walter Stocker, a Lancashire lad, was tirelessly enthusiastic, having been in correspondence for Dr. Coward for nine months in regard to a visit of the Choir to Peterborough.

The soloists were worthy of the choir, which is high praise. Mr. Robert Charlesworth, the basso, has a voice, not heavy, but of splendid quality, which when used even with force, retains its rich musical quality. He sang "Blow, Blow Thou Winter Wind (King Lear) in grand style, his enunciation and finished style being especially marked. In response to an encore he gave "Only a Baby." Miss Emily Breare, soprano, with a voice of more phenomenal purity and sweetness than strength, sang her number with perfection of method; her voice pure and level was, in this respect an object lesson to those vocalists who affect the distressing "wobble' too often heard, which Madame Marchesi pronounces one of the greatest defects of a singer. Her encore number "Ye Merry Birds" was also a treat, no stridency in forte passages but music all through. Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, contralto, who sang here with the Watkyn Mills Company, was as magnificent as ever, in presence, voice and vocal achievement. Her voice resonant and so to speak, of a rich fruity quality, was used with perfect art, and in her encore number, "Daddy," tender, true and fresh. Mr. Henry Breare, the tenor, is a real tenor, and sang "The Sailor's Grave" by Sir Arthur Sullivan, with a distinction of style, truly artistic. His beautiful treatment of his encore number, "Sally in Our Alley" converted a homely slum ditty into a classic.

One thing which detracted from the enjoyment of many was the almost absolute departure from the printed programme placed in the hands of the audience. But the conductor evidently knew his material, which had been subjected to a severe strain in Lindsay, where the choir sang, practically in the open air—in a skating rink—and consequently selections had to be used that could be treated with justice. But in spite of all considerations the visit of the Sheffield Choir to Peterborough will be "marked with a white stone" in the musical annals of Peterborough.

Dr. Coward, seen after the concert, said that he and the Choir were well pleased with their visit to Peterborough, the arrangements for the concert made by the local management were among the most satisfactory of the series. He regards the closing concert of their Canadian tour as a pleasant finale. Both himself and his Choir would carry with them pleasant recollections of Peterborough. The concert party took the midnight C.P.R. express and will at once embark for their return journey, which, musically considered, will be a triumphant home-coming.



DR. COWARD,

was the glory of the evening. In this the marvellous promptitude of attack, for which the Choir is famous, was splendidly exemplified; the most involved passages came out in perfect accord, and the quasi contrapuntal effects dovetailed with perfection of time, the finale being given with a vibrant sonority and tonal quality, grand and robust, but continually melodious. Sullivan's "O Gladsome Light" was a choral gem. In this the beauty of attack—sharp as the blow of a hammer on a melodious anvil, was splendidly illustrated; the shading was inexpressibly perfect and smooth, the pianissimo passages exquisitely tender and delicate, a long drawn vocal whisper surpassingly beautiful. This was honoured with an

MR. COWAN ELECTED TREASURER

Peterborough Man Honoured by the Ontario Horticultural Association.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—A plea for an increase in the grant from the Ontario Legislature from $8,000 to $12,000, to aid the Ontario Horticultural Association in its work, was made by W B Burgoyne of St. Catharines at the meeting of the association this morning.

The meeting approved of the idea. A. H. Scott advised that renewed efforts be made to have the Department of Education insert selections in the readers dealing with agriculture, horticulture, and farming generally.

"Our association next year will have 50 per cent. more branches connected with us than we have this year," said H B Cowan.

The officers for the ensuing year were elected by acclamation: Pres., Major H J Spelgrove, Cobourg; 1st. Vice-Pres., Roderick Cameron, Toronto; Secretary, J Lockie Wilson, Toronto; Treasurer, H B Cowan, Peterborough.

THE GIRL A MAN LIKES BEST

She is neither pretty nor plain, but she is charming. Her clothes portray her individuality, and are a part of herself. There is no clashing tone in the scheme of colour, and her attire is always suitable to the occasion.

This particular girl is never obtrusive. She can listen with interest to the conversation of her companion, but can, if necessary, converse brightly upon various topics of interest. A shy man is quite at ease with her, and a clever man appreciates an intelligent companion.

This girl makes a point of studying human nature, and she is well rewarded for her trouble, for the more she realizes the many trials and sorrows of life, the greater is her sympathy with human beings.

And, the cultivation of compassion and loving kindness is probably the secret of her power of fascination.

People realize instinctively the influence of sympathy and will usually respond to sincere expressions of friendship.

The average man seeks a help-mate in his wife. He has visions of a gentle, loving influence in his home, and also an inspiring, encouraging personality, who will cheer him on the gloomy days and delight in his success. He appreciates a girl with taste, who will grace the head of his table, and who is sufficiently clever to order his home in an intelligent manner. He is proud of her accomplishments, but they are secondary objects of interest so far as his general happiness is concerned.

Beauty is not the all-important factor; indeed good looks are occasionally a doubtful asset, for the frivolity and foolishness of pretty women has almost become proverbial.

Sympathy, tact and unselfishness are among the chief weapons of the girl whose fascinations attract men.

GRACE MERRETT

Miss Grace Merrett, who has appeared during the last two seasons with much success as Mary Tudor in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," the romantic novel by Charles Major, which Miss Julia Marlowe first popularized on the stage, is to return to that role next month and act in it during the remainder of the season.

Stephen T King, who was formerly Miss Merrett's manager, has induced the star to give up the play in which she embarked at the beginning of this season, and he will provide a good company for her revival of her old success. She will begin an engagement in Brooklyn at the Majestic Theatre on Dec. 7th.

KOSTER JARVIS HAS SECURED LEASE OF MONTREAL STORE

Mr. M. Pappas recently received a letter from Mr. Koster Jarvas, formerly manager of the confectionery store at the corner of Charlotte and George streets, to the effect that with his brother they had leased a large store on St. Catherine street, Montreal, and would soon open it up for business. They are paying a very high rental, as the place is a most desirable location. On the ground floor they will conduct a confectionery business and on the second storey will likely have a pool and billiard parlour.

ANOTHER COTTAGE AT CHEMONG PARK

The Third That Mr. Owen of Hamilton Has Erected—Used 40,000 Feet of Lumber in the Last.

MEN GOING TO THE WOODS

Examiner Special

Bridgenorth, Nov. 13.—Mr. Harry Aldridge has a gang of men taking out cedar and spruce on Mr. Wm. Milburn's lot, about one mile from the village. He expects to employ about twelve men and two teams of horses as it is an all winter job, and it is going to give employment to quite a number of the working men. The timber is being taken out for Messrs. Dr. Thorne and Henderson, of Bobcaygeon, for canoes and boats of every description.

Kelly Bros. expect to put in a camp next week in Harvey Township with Mr. A. McWilliams as foreman. Mr. McWilliams has been foreman for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Udy have returned after spending a few days visiting friends in Toronto.

Rev. Mr. Bunner preached the anniversary services in Bridgenorth Church on Sunday, and his old congregation was pleased to see him and Mrs. Bunner again. The thankoffering that was taken up amounted to $115.51 in the two services.

Quite a few weddings have come off in the village lately with more to follow.

Mr. Wolfe, of Hamilton, has just completed a large cottage in the park. Mr. G. Jopling was the contractor and has used 40,000 feet of lumber in the construction of the cottage. Three of the finest cottages in the park are now owned by Mr. Wolfe.

Mr. Harstone and Mr. Wolfe are still residing in the park, but will go south one of these days.

The Bridgenorth hunting party is expected home to-morrow. The party contains A. Nicholls, captain, J. Grant, T. Jopling, Wm. Telford and P. Gravel. Word has come that they have had good luck.

DUST-PROOF BAGS FOR DELIVERING BREAD

Reader Submits Following Article for Publication—An Advanced Idea.

HOW ABOUT THE BAKERS?

The Examiner has received the following article, evidently taken from a Toronto paper, for publication. It deals with the question of the delivery of bread, as follows:—

"Most tidy housekeepers must gaze with dismay upon the occasional soiled loaf of bread that comes to their door when indications of dust and dirt are plainly visible. How does this occur? Did it fall on the street or how? Let us consider it a moment? The bread is placed in a delivery waggon with a band of paper placed around each loaf, the ends and part of the sides of the loaf being exposed. On this band of paper is printed the name of the maker, etc. This also enables the driver to handle the loaf without touching it.

"Everything being ready, the driver starts off on his round. The driver dismounts and with the same hands that he drove the horse with, mind you, he piles his basket full of bread, and remember that not all loaves have these paper bands on them, and so must be handled directly. Then often a driver may be seen with his arm slipped across the top of the bread under the handle of the basket, thereby carrying it easier, so that the coat sleeve comes in actual contact.

"Now consider. Every time the basket is piled up the door of the waggon is opened. The dust of the passing traffic, such as automobiles, street cleaners or a passing gust of wind laden with the dust of the street, flings itself upon the bread and perhaps the identical loaf in particular destined for the feeder.

"Of course there are people no doubt living in Toronto who enjoy good health, and who have eaten bread all their lives brought in the self same way, and while we do not anticipate immediate death or illness from such a cause, does it not increase the danger of such? For bread cannot be washed very well. If not, surely the science of bacteriology must amount to naught.

"So first we consider it from a health standpoint; and second from the aesthetic point of view. We all like to see dainty clean things around us, and our food brought to us and served in a clean way, and we appreciate our bottled and sealed milk. Why not have our bread brought to us in dust-proof bags? Is it not time this was looked to? And if the bakers did it themselves or the health officers enforced it I am sure they would have the gratitude of a grateful public.

THE LUMBER BUSINESS IS NEARLY FINISHED

Information from the McDonald Lumber Co., regarding to the closing of the mill for the season is to the effect that the work will be continued as long as the weather will permit. The freezing of the lake is about the only thing which will bring on the close of operations, and this is not expected for at least three or four weeks.

Campbellford Butcher Charged With Breach Of Transient Traders' By-law

County Magistrate Edmison was in Havelock yesterday hearing a county police court case, in which Robt. N. Simpson, a butcher, residing in Campbellford, was charged with violating the Transient Traders' By-law in Havelock. The action was laid at the instigation of the Havelock authorities. Mr. Simpson has been selling meat in Havelock and taking orders for the same, it is said. Evidence was heard in the case yesterday and at its conclusion the case was adjourned. The counsel will argue the case before the magistrate at his office next Thursday.

"ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME" TO BE REPEATED HERE

At the request of a large number of local people, it has been decided to repeat the production of "All the Comforts of Home," at the Grand Opera House, towards the latter part of the next week. This will be welcome news to many local people, who were unable to be present upon the last occasion of the presentation of the sparkling comedy which made such a hit before.

HAVELOCK MAN GOES TO GOAL HERE FOR NON-PAYMENT

The chief constable of Havelock was in the city yesterday in charge of a man named Hubbell, who will serve a term in the county goal here. Hubbell had been fined for an offence some time ago, but neglected to pay the fine and costs. His overlooking this important financial detail resulted in his being arrested for non-payment, and he was apprehended and brought to Peterborough yesterday.

The Awful Predicament Young Theodore Eiler Was Placed In When His Mother Cried To Him To Save Her From The Brutal Attack Of Father

Boy Shot Straight at Father, Killing Him With Well Directed Shots—Husband Angered and Crazed Struck Wife With Iron as Boy Entered the Home.

WAS AN AWFUL SITUATION

"Yes, I shot my father; I hoped to kill him," sobbed the boy, as he bowed his head in his hands, sitting there in his cell. "I had to do it to save my mother's life. Is he dead ?"

The police already have all the evidence they want against Theodore Eiler, the nineteen-year-old boy. They have the revolver with which he put the bullets into the body of his father, John Eiler, at their home. No. 30 Littleton avenue, Newark. They have the boy's confession; they have his word for it that this married sister gave him the pistol to shoot his father if he ever attacked their mother.

John Eiler did attack his wife just once too often. The moment he came home on that fatal evening he began abusing his helpmeet for twenty-five years—mother of his six children. He raged up and down the room. The patient wife was silent. When she didn't reply to the man's ravings Eiler picked up an iron matchsafe and flung it at her with unerring aim. It struck her full on the forehead; she sank to the floor with a cry of agony.

The boy upstairs heard the cry. Then he heard his father shout out. "I'm going to get my gun and finish you right now."

In the boy's pocket was the pistol. He remembered the injunction of his older sister, Mrs. Frederick Prestler, who had gone out for the evening, as she gave it to him : "Keep this always by you, for you will need it to protect your mother. Don't be afraid to use it if your father attacks her again in one of his jealous rages.

Three steps at a time the lad dashed downstairs. As he ran into the room his mother fell upon him. "Theodore, Theodore!" she screamed, "save me, save me."

She flung her arms around him. He put one arm around her and faced his father, who came charging on at the two of them.

"I'll kill you both!" yelled the man.

"Shoot, shoot, if you must; save our lives!" screamed Mrs. Eiler.

For an answer Theodore levelled the pistol at his father more quickly than it takes to tell it. The man never stopped. It was the mother's life or the father's. The boy had to choose. He let the pistol do the choosing.

It barked once. On came the father, closing in. Again the weapon spit forth a bullet. Eiler dropped, mortally wounded. The mother swooned in her son's arms. But her life had been saved.

They hurried the father away to a hospital, where the surgeons said he was mortally wounded. The boy was arrested and held without bail. Had he allowed his mother to be beaten to death he would not have been put in a cell; he had his choice to make, and only a moment to make it in.

What would the everyday son do in such case ?

Has he a right to shoot down his father to save his mother ? Should he not be imparted ? Would it not be better to fight than to shoot ? Is a son justified in killing his father to save his mother's life ?

Other sons have been called upon to decide, just as Theodore Eiler has had to decide, and in the twinkling of an eye, too. And occasionally even a daughter has been forced to make the same decision in a moment's time.

Only two weeks ago fifteen-year-old Frank Peterson, out at Greenport, L.I., had to face the same dilemma. If he didn't shoot his father, then his mother's life would pay the forfeit.

Frank didn't hesitate. He fired, brought his father down with a serious wound in the head and saved his mother's life. Then he ran for the doctor to come to his father, Frank Peterson, Sr.

The Petersons are well-to-do and live in a pretty home at No 18 Bridge street, Greenport. Frank is the eldest of seven children. But the father apparently, had little love for his family, and more than once his wife has felt the effects of his blows, so the son said when the shooting was over.

It was Sunday. The husband had been browbeating the wife. Suddenly he turned and with clenched fist started towards her. She screamed for the boy.

"Stop!" yelled Frank, as his mother cowered to the floor.

On came the father. The boy, without another word, drew a revolver from his pocket, and as his father struck out at his mother, fired one shot. It hit the frenzied man in the jaw, ranged upward and lodged behind the right eye. Peterson dropped.

"I've shot my father because he was going to strike my mother," said Frank, running into the house of Dr. A. C. Loper. "Go to him quick!"

Then the boy went to the home of the chief of police and gave himself up. He was put into the village jail. The mother and children corroborated Frank in all he said. The father was hurried to a hospital.

A Difficult Task

Mrs. Madeline Langlois had ever a harder task set before her than these boys. She saw her father, George Wasser, shoot her mother down in their flat at No. 2058 Third avenue, where Mrs. Langlois, a widow was living with her mother. The daughter had to make her choice only too quickly.

"He was a beast," she declared vehemently. "I'm glad I shot him. He shot my mother, the best woman that ever lived. When I saw her fall I fired at the man the best I knew how and I'm glad one of the bullets hit him—my father."

The Wassers, husband and wife had separated. When Mrs. Langlois's husband died she went back to live with her mother and her little sisters. Three years ago the man came into the little home and attacked little Annie, one of his daughters. He was arrested, but nothing came of the case. This made him bold.

Wasser hung around the home and more than once he tried to get in. He was arrested, but each time got free on some plea or another. This made him bolder still. On the fatal morning he knocked at the door of the flat and demanded admission.

"If you don't let me in I'll kill you and all the brats," he yelled.

There was no answer. He broke down the door. Mrs. Wasser stood facing him. There was fire in her eye and decision in her voice.

"I'll never take you back, George Wasser," she said, firmly.

This was her death warrant.

"Well," sneered Wasser, "you'll never telephone for the police again."

Mrs. Wasser started to run. Wasser pulled a revolver out of his pocket. Before his wife had taken two steps he fired. The bullet struck the poor woman in the breast. She fell to the floor with her clothing ablaze, so close was the range. Mrs. Langlois and little Annie were in a rear room. They rushed out just in time to see their mother fall. Remembering the revolver her mother kept in the bureau drawer, Annie ran and got it. Quick as a flash she handed it to Mrs. Langlois. Just then Wasser was raising his weapon to fire again at his helpless wife.

His daughter fired first. The bullet grazed his face. Wasser returned the shot, but he missed, though they were but twelve feet apart. Then the daughter fired again, and both emptied their revolvers. Every shot of Wasser's missed, but the daughter's last shot found its mark. It made an ugly hole in the man's forehead, and he sank to the floor with a groan. Then the young widow dropped her revolver and fell in a faint after the duel with her father.

The police came in, the two wounded persons were taken to the hospital. The wife died in the afternoon at three o'clock, the husband an hour later. The daughter was arrested, only to be freed next day.

"She wasn't a murderess," said one of the coroner's jury, "she was a heroine!"

And for all that, facing her father's loaded revolver, firing shot for shot, the young widow hadn't been able to save her dear mother's life. But she had made her choice between

CHATS ABOUT FAMOUS BOOKS AND THEIR AUTHORS

By F. M. D.

Prior to the introduction of the art of printing the literature of the world was embodied in manuscripts and scrolls. These were in many cases works of the highest order of merit, beautifully executed, embellished with wonderful designs and representing labour of the most arduous and exacting kind.

Monks the Early Publishers of Literature

The greater part by far of this literary output was performed by monks in the various monasteries, in the ranks of whom most of the scholars of those times were to be found. The introduction of printing, however, revolutionized everything, for by the dissemination of knowledge throughout Europe the dense ignorance of the masses, in regard to all that pertained to their temporal and spiritual affairs, was to an appreciable extent swept away.

Who was the Inventor of Printing

The history of an art, which, next to the appearance of our Lord on this earth, has exercised the most marked influence on mundane affairs, must of necessity be a most interesting one to all lovers of literature. Unfortunately, there seems to have been, and, in fact, still is, much controversy as to who was the real inventor of the art. Up to 1499 it was universally believed that typography was invented at Strasburg by Gutenberg, who, it is known, set up a press at Mainz, from which emanated the magnificent Latin Bible known by the name of the Mazarin Bible. This name it received, owing to a copy having been found in Cardinal Mazarin's Library at Paris. The peculiar thing is, however, that Gutenberg's name does not appear in a single production of his press, and not one of his associates mentions his name as the inventor of printing. This has led to the belief in some quarters that Gutenberg never held any commanding position as a publisher, but was simply a master printer, acting under the orders of others.

Coster the Probable Inventor

In 1499 there was published at Cologne a pamphlet since known as the Cologne Chronicle, in which one chapter is devoted to the invention of printing. The writer therein declares that the art was first discovered at Mainz-on-the-Rhine, about the year 1440, and that the circumstances were communicated to him by one, Ulric Zell, a printer of Cologne. Adrianen de Jongho, (otherwise Junius) printed in his work "Batavia," at Antwerp, an account of the invention, which he claimed to have received from old and trustworthy people. But this was 150 years afterwards, in 1588. Junius states that in 1440, a man named Lourens Janszoon, surnamed Coster, lived at Haarlem. One day, says the Chronicler, he took a walk in the Hout and started to cut letters on the bark of a beech tree; he printed these letters on paper for the amusement of children, and invented a suitable printing ink and afterwards began to print whole sheets with pictures. Subsequently he used leaden letters, and then tin ones. He goes on to say that a man named Johannes, whom Coster had in his employ, one day stole the types and fled to Mainz, where he opened a workshop and in 1442 published two works. This Johannes might have been Gutenberg, for the surname is not given. Many of the documents on which the Costerian advocates have founded their belief have been shown by an eminent investigator, Dr. Van der Linde, to be frauds and forgeries. Enough proof of an authentic nature remains, however, to show that certain very crude and clumsy specimens of printing antedate the productions of Gutenberg, and are probably ascribable to the handiwork of Coster. Gutenberg, however, so vastly improved on the original idea, even if he did not create it, as to be almost entitled to the merit of producing the invention.

Caxton Born in Kent

The Father of the English Press was born about 1412 in the Weald (wooded part) of Kent. About 1428 he was apprenticed to Master Robert Large, a rich mercer. The fact that he was taken into the service of so influential a man, goes to prove that he, himself, must have sprung from an important family. On the death of his master Caxton went abroad and resided chiefly in Holland and Flanders for about thirty years. That Caxton must have been regarded in high quarters as a shrewd and clever man is seen from his appointment in 1464 as an envoy from England to Burgundy, to negotiate a treaty of commerce with Duke Philip. He was afterwards employed as secretary to the Duchess of Burgundy, and, it was whilst in her employ that he occupied some of his leisure moments in translating the "Recueil des Histoires de Troye" written by Duke Philip's chaplain, Raoul LaFevre. He was encouraged in this work by his noble mistress who helped him, by pointing out certain inaccuracies in the work which he had fallen in the work of translation.

His First Work

From Bruges Caxton moved to Cologne, and here he probably learned the art which has carried his name down to posterity. It was at Cologne that he printed the "History of Troy," the first English book that emanated from any press.

Shortly afterwards, having possibly been forced thereto by reduced circumstances, Caxton returned to England, and set up a printing press in the almonry at Westminster, on the very spot at the present time occupied by the main entrance to the Westminster Palace Hotel.

Caxton in England

Printing was introduced into England between the years 1474 and 1477. The first work printed by Caxton was "The Game and Play of the Chesse." A second edition of this work was the first English work executed with wood cuts. Sixty-six books in all, are assigned to Caxton—the labour of seventeen years of his pen and press. In 1491 he died, and his faithful band of printers laid their venerable chief to rest at St. Margaret's Church almost contiguous to the scene of his many labours. Wynkyn de Worde and Pynson, both foreigners, and both assistants to Caxton, carried on the work after his death. Pynson, in time, started up a separate establishment, and had the honour of being the first to receive the appointment of King's Printer.

The Spread of the Art

With regard to the spread of the art the following notes may be of interest: Printing was introduced into Scotland in 1507. The first printing press established in America was in 1536; its installation is attributed to the Viceroy of Mexico, Antonio de Mendoza. The first book printed thereon was titled "La Escala de Juan Climaco." Harvard College, 1638, introduced the first press used in the American Colonies.

QUALITY FIRST

In some lines of business price may well be the great talking point. Those who can buy best and sell least have something interesting to say to the public. In the DRUG BUSINESS it's different. Quality, regardless of price, should be the main factor, and it is here. What you buy here in the line of Drugs and Medicines will be of right quality, and prices also will be right —as low as goods of same quality can ever be bought for anywhere.

Sophy of Kravonia

by

ANTHONY HOPE

Auther of "The Prisoner of Zenda"

Copyright, 1908, Anthony Hope Hawkins

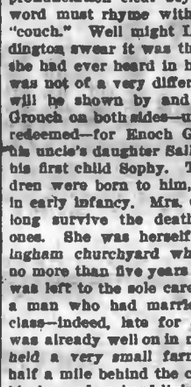
In vain will the readers of this tale of romantic love and brilliant daring search the maps of the world for the picturesque land of Kravonia, wherein lovely, fascinating Sophy and her mysterious Red Star played their parts. This much we may tell him before he embarks on his voyage to Kravonia. But we may assure him that when he reluctantly parts with Sophy, sometime scullery maid of Morpingham, Essex, England, later spiritualistic medium of Paris, France, and still later of high rank in Slavna and Volseni, in Kravonia, the country of her adoption will be to him, like Zenda and Graustark, more real than are many of the smaller, actual kingdoms of the earth. Sad and tragic in some of its aspects is the love story of Sophy of Kravonia, but its pathos is so lightened by devoted loyalty, hardy bravery and tender, self sacrificing affection that at the end the reader will surely feel its telling has not been unworthy of the master hand of its famous chronicler.

Chapter One

GROUCH! That is the name, and in the interest of euphony it is impossible not to regret the fact. Some say it should be spelled "Groutch," which would not at all mend matters, though it makes the pronunciation clear beyond doubt—the word must rhyme with "crouch" and "couch." Well might Lady Meg Duddington swear it was the ugliest name she had ever heard in her life! Sophy was not of a very different opinion, as will be shown by and by. She was Grouch on both sides—unmixed and unredeemed—for Enoch Grouch married his uncle's daughter Sally and begat as his first child Sophy. Two other children were born to him, but they died in early infancy. Mrs. Grouch did not long survive the death of her little ones. She was herself laid in Morpingham churchyard when Sophy was no more than five years old. The child was left to the sole care of her father, a man who had married late for his class—indeed, late for any class—and was already well on in middle age. He held a very small farm, lying about half a mile behind the church. Probably he made a hard living of it, for the only servant in his household was a slip of a girl of fifteen, who had presumably both to cook and scrub for him and to look after the infant Sophy. Nothing is remembered of him in Morpingham. Perhaps there was nothing to remember—nothing that marked him off from thousands like him. Perhaps the story of his death, which lives in the village traditions, blotted out the inconspicuous record of his laborious life.

Morpingham lies within twenty-five miles of London, but for all that it is a sequestered and primitive village. It contained, at this time at least, but three houses with pretentions to gentility—the hall, the rectory and a smaller house across the village street, facing the rectory. At the end of the street stood the hall in its grounds. This was a handsome red brick house set in a spacious garden. Along one side of the garden there ran a deep ditch, and on the other side of the ditch, between it and a large meadow, was a path which led to the church. Thus the church stood behind the hall grounds, and, again, as has been said, beyond the church was Enoch Grouch's modest farm, held by Mr. Brownlow, the owner of the hall. The church path was the favorite resort of the villagers, and deservedly, for it was shaded and beautified by a fine double row of old elms, forming a stately avenue to the humble little house of worship.

On an autumn evening in the year 1855 Enoch Grouch was returning from the village, where he had been to buy tobacco. His little girl was with him. It was wild weather. A gale had been blowing for full twenty-four hours, and in the previous night a mighty bough had been snapped from one of the great elms and had fallen with a crash. It lay now right across the path. As they went to the village her father had indulged Sophy with a ride on the bough and she begged a renewal of the treat on their homeward journey. The farmer was a kind man—more kind than wise, as it proved, on this occasion. He set the child astraddle on the thick end of the bough, then went to the other end, which was much slenderer. Probably his object was to try to shake the bough and please his small tyrant with the imitation of a seesaw. The fallen bough suggested no danger to his slow moving mind. He leaned down toward the bough, with watching his doings with excited interest, while the wind raged and reveled among the great branches over their heads. Enoch tried to move the bough, but failed. In order to make another effort he fell on his knees and bent his back over it.



He set the child astraddle.

At this moment there came a loud crash, heard in the rectory grounds and in the dining room at Woodbine cottage, the small house opposite.

"There's another tree gone!" cried Basil Williamson, the rector's second son, who was giving his retriever an evening run.

A second later the garden gate of Woodbine cottage opened and Julia, the ten-year-old daughter of a widow named Robins, who lived there, came out at full speed. Seeing Basil just ahead of her, she called out, "Did you hear?"

He knew her voice—they were playmates—and answered without looking back: "Yes. Isn't it fun? Keep outside the trees—keep well in the meadow!"

"Stuff!" she shouted, laughing. "They don't fall every minute, silly!"

Running as they exchanged these words, they soon came to where the bough, or, rather, the two boughs, had fallen. A tragic sight met their eyes. The second bough had caught the unlucky farmer just on the nape of his neck and had driven him down, face forward, on to the first. He lay with his neck close pinned between the two and his arms spread out over the undermost. His face was bad to look at. He was quite dead, and apparently death must have been instantaneous. Sobered and appalled, the boy and girl stood looking from the terrible sight to each other's faces.

"Is he dead?" Julia whispered.

"I expect so," the boy answered. Neither of them had seen death before.

The next moment he raised his voice and shouted, "Help, help!" then laid hold of the upper bough and strove with all his might to raise it. The girl gave a shriller cry for assistance and then lent a hand to his efforts, but between them they could not move the great log.

"He's dead, poor fellow," said Mr. Brownlow.

Up to now neither of them had perceived Sophy.

Next on the scene was Mr. Brownlow, the master of the hall. He had been in his greenhouse and heard the crash of the bough. Of that he took no heed. Nothing could be done save heave a sigh over the damage to his cherished elms. But when the cries for help reached his ears, with praiseworthy promptitude he rushed out straight across his lawn and, though he was elderly and stout, dropped into the ditch, clambered out of it and came where the dead man and the children were. As he passed the drawing room windows he called out to his wife, "Somebody's hurt, I'm afraid!" and she, after a moment's conference with the butler, followed her husband; but, not being able to manage the ditch, went around by the road and up the avenue, the servant coming with her. When these two arrived the squire's help had availed to release the farmer from the deadly grip of the two boughs, and he lay now on his back on the path.

"He's dead, poor fellow," said Mr. Brownlow.

"It's Enoch Grouch!" said the butler, giving a shudder as he looked at the farmer's face. Julia Robins sobbed, and the boy Basil looked up at the squire's face with grave eyes.

"I'll get a hurdle, sir," said the butler. His master nodded, and he ran off.

Something moved on the path about a yard from the thick end of the lower bough.

"Look there!" cried Julia Robins. A little waif followed. With an exclamation Mrs. Brownlow darted to the spot. The child lay there with a cut on her forehead. Apparently the impact of the second bough had caused the end of the first to fly upward. Sophy had been jerked from her seat into the air and had fallen back on the path, striking her head on a stone. Mrs. Brownlow picked her up, wiped the blood from her brow and saw that the injury was slight. Sophy began to cry softly, and Mrs. Brownlow soothed her.

"It's his little girl," said Julia Robins. "The little girl with the mark on her cheek, please, Mrs. Brownlow."

"Poor little thing! Poor little thing!" Mrs. Brownlow murmured. She knew that death had robbed the child of her only relative and protector.

The butler now came back with a hurdle and two men, and Enoch Grouch's body was taken into the saddle room at the hall. Mrs. Brownlow followed the procession, Sophy still in her arms. At the end of the avenue she spoke to the boy and girl:

"Go home, Basil. Tell your father, and ask him to come to the hall. Good night, Julia. Tell your mother, and don't cry any more. The poor man is with God, and I shan't let this mite come to harm." She was a childless woman, with a motherly heart, and as she spoke she kissed Sophy's wounded forehead. Then she went into the hall grounds, and the boy and girl were left together on the road. Basil shook his fist at the avenue of elms, his favorite playground.

"Hang those beastly trees!" he cried. "I'd cut them all down if I was Mr. Brownlow."

"I must go and tell mother," said Julia, "and you'd better go too."

"Yes," he assented, but lingered for a moment, still looking at the trees as though reluctantly fascinated by them.

"Mother always said something would happen to that little girl," said Julia, with a grave and important look in her eyes.

"Why?" the boy asked brusquely.

"Because of that mark—that mark she's got on her cheek."

"What rot!" he said, but he looked at his companion uneasily. The event of the evening had stirred the superstitious fears, seldom hard to stir in children.

"People don't have those marks for nothing—so mother says." Other people, no wiser, said the same thing later.

"Rot!" Basil muttered again. "Oh, well, I must go."

She glanced at him timidly. "Just come as far as our door with me. I'm afraid."

"Afraid!" he said scornfully. "All right!"

He walked with her to the door of Woodbine cottage and waited till it closed behind her, performing the escort with a bold and lordly air. Left alone in the fast darkening night, with nobody in sight, with no sound save the ceaseless voice of the angry wind essaying new mischief in the tops of the elm trees, he stood for a moment, listening fearfully. Then he laid his sturdy legs to the ground and fled for home, looking neither to right nor left till he reached the hospitable light of his father's study. The lad had been brave in face of the visible horror. Fear struck him in the moment of Julia's talk about the mark on the child's cheek. Scornful and furious at himself, yet he was mysteriously afraid.

Chapter Two

SOPHY GROUCH had gone to lay a bunch of flowers on her father's grave. From the first Mrs. Brownlow had taught her this pious rite, and Mrs. Brownlow's deputy, the gardener's wife, in whose cottage Sophy lived, had seen to its punctual performance every week. Things went by law and rule at the hall, for the squire was a man of active mind and ample leisure. His household code was a marvel of intricacy and minuteness. Sophy's coming and staying had developed a multitude of new clauses, under whose benevolent yet strict operation her youthful mind had been trained in the way in which Mr. Brownlow was of opinion that it should go.

Sophy's face, then, wore a grave and responsible air as she returned with steps of decorous slowness from the sacred precincts. Yet the outer manner was automatic—the result of seven years' practice. Within, her mind was busy. The day was one of mark in her life. She had been told her destined future and was wondering how she would like it.

Her approach was perceived by a tall and pretty girl who lay in the meadow grass and munched a blade of it which bordered the path under the elm trees.

"What a demure little witch she looks!" laughed Julia Robins, who was much in the mood for laughter that day, greeting with responsive gleam of the eyes the sunlight which fell in speckles of radiance through the leaves above. It was a summer day, and summer was in her heart too. Yet not for the common cause with young maidens. It was no nonsense about lovemaking. Lofty ambition was in the case today.

Then sat down beside her.

"Sophy Grouch! Sophy Grouch!" she cried in a high, merry voice.

Sophy raised her eyes, but her steps did not quicken. With the same measured paces of her lanky, lean little legs she came up to where Julia lay.

"Why don't you say just 'Sophy?'" she asked. "I'm the only Sophy in the village."

"Sophy Grouch! Sophy Grouch!" Julia repeated teasingly.

The mark on Sophy's left cheek grew redder. Julia laughed mockingly. Sophy looked down on her, still very grave.

"Yes, yes! So I tease you, don't I? But I like to see you hang out your danger signal."

She held out her arms to the little girl. Sophy came and kissed her, then sat down beside her.

"Forgive?"

"Yes," said Sophy. "Do you think it's a very awful name?"

"Oh, you'll change it some day," smiled Julia, speaking more truth than she knew. "Listen! Mother's consented, consented, consented! I'm to go and live with Uncle Edward in London—London, Sophy, and learn elocution."

"Learn what?"

"El-o-cu-tion, which means how to talk so that people can hear you ever so far off."

"To shout?"

"No. Don't be stupid. To—to be heard plainly without shouting. To be heard in a theater! Did you ever see a theater?"

"No. Only a circus. I haven't seen much."

"And then—the stage! I'm to be an actress! Fancy mother consenting at last! An actress instead of a governess! Isn't it glorious?" She paused a moment, then added, with a self conscious laugh, "Basil's awfully angry, though."

"Why should he be angry?" asked Sophy. Her own anger was gone. She was plucking daisies and sticking them here and there in her friend's golden hair. They were great friends, this pair, and Sophy was very proud of the friendship. Julia was grown up, the beauty of the village, and—a lady! Now, Sophy was by no means any one of these things.

"Oh, you wouldn't understand," laughed Julia, with a blush.

"Does he want to keep company with you—and won't you do it?"

"Only servants keep company, Sophy."

"Oh!" said Sophy obviously making a mental note of the information.

"But he's very silly about it. I've just said 'Goodby' to him—you know he goes up to Cambridge tomorrow—and he did say a lot of silly things."

She suddenly caught hold of Sophy and kissed her half a dozen times. "It's a wonderful thing that's happened. I'm so tremendously happy!" She set her little friend free with a last kiss and a playful pinch.

Neither caress nor pinch disturbed Sophy's composure. She sat down on the grass.

"Something's happened to me, too, today," she announced.

"Has it, Tots? What is it?" asked Julia, smiling indulgently. The great events in other lives are thus sufficiently acknowledged.

"I've left school, and I'm going to leave Mrs. James' and go and live at the hall and be taught to help cook, and when I'm grown up I'm going to be cook." She spoke slowly and weightily, her eyes fixed on Julia's face.

"Well, I call it a shame!" cried Julia in generous indignation. "Oh, of course it would be all right if they'd treated you properly—I mean, as if they'd meant that from the beginning. But they haven't. You've lived with Mrs. James, I know, but you've been in and out of the hall all the time, having tea in the drawing room and fruit at dessert, and—and so on. And you look like a little lady and talk like one—almost. I think it's a shame not to give you a better chance. Cook!"

"Don't you think it might be rather nice to be a cook—a good cook?"

"No, I don't," answered the budding Mrs. Siddons decisively.

"People always talk a great deal about the cook," pleaded Sophy. "Mr. and Mrs. Brownlow are always talking about the cook—and the rector talks about his cook, too—not always very kindly, though."

"No, it's a shame, and I don't believe it'll happen."

"Yes, it will. Mrs. Brownlow settled it today."

"There are other people in the world besides Mrs. Brownlow."

Sophy was not exactly surprised at this dictum, but evidently it gave her thought. Her long delayed "Yes" showed that as plainly as her "Oh" had a little while before marked her appreciation of the social limits of "keeping company." "But she can settle it all the same," she persisted.

"For the time she can," Julia admitted. "Oh, I wonder what'll be my first part, Tots!" She threw her pretty head back on the grass, closing her eyes. A smile of radiant anticipation hovered about her lips. The little girl rose and stood looking at her friend—the friend of whom she was so proud.

"You'll look very, very pretty," she said, with sober gravity.

Julia's smile broadened, but her lips remained shut. Sophy looked at her for a moment longer, and, without formal farewell, resumed her progress down the avenue. It was hard on teatime, and Mrs. James was a stickler for punctuality.

Yet Sophy's march was interrupted once more. A tall young man sat swinging his legs on the gate that led from the avenue into the road. The sturdy boy who had run home in terror on the night Enoch Grouch died had grown into a tall, good looking young fellow. He was clad in what is nowadays called a blazer and check trousers and smoked a large meerschaum pipe. His expression was gloomy. The gate was shut, and he was on the top of it. Sophy approached him with some signs of nervousness. When he saw her he greeted her moodily.

"You can't come through," he said firmly.

"Please, Mr. Basil, I must. I shall be late for tea."

"I won't let you through. There!"

Sophy looked despairful. "May I climb over?"

"No!" said Basil firmly, but a smile began to twitch about his lips.

Quick now, as ever, to see the joint in a man's armor Sophy smiled too.

THE DOCTORS SAID "THERE MUST BE AN OPERATION"

"Fruit-a-tives" Saved Mrs. McCready Untold Suffering and Almost Certain Death.

"Publish this for humanity's sake," writes Mr. C. McCready, of Putnam, Ont., in his letter to the owners of "Fruit-a-tives." Physicians said that only an operation could save his wife's life. But again "Fruit-a-tives" proved its wonderful powers. The doctors were wrong—Mrs. McCready is to-day well and strong—and "Fruit-a-tives" have made friends of every one for miles around Putnam.

"Dear Sirs,—My wife suffered for over a year from Indigestion and Bowel trouble. Several doctors treated her for this trouble and advised her that only an operation would save her life, as they stated it was a tumor that was causing the trouble. The operation was to cost $300.00 and, while she was debating in her own mind about being operated on, she was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives," which I procured for her from our local merchant. From the first box she improved, and after having taken four boxes she is completely cured and is now as well as ever.

I decided then that "Fruit-a-tives" was the most wonderful remedy in the world and it certainly saved my wife's life. She still takes one tablet every night, we also give them to the children with excellent results, and they have to thank "Fruit-a-tives" for the fact that their mother is now with them, they fully expected she would be in her grave. Publish this for humanity's sake."

TRENT CANAL

LINDSAY SECTION

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Trent Canal," will be received at this office until 16 o'clock on Tuesday, 17th November, 1903, for the works connected with the construction of the Lindsay Section of the canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after the 19th October 1903, at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will be considered, unless made in accordance with the printed forms and in the case of firms unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $10,000.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By Order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary.

Department of Railways and Canals,
Ottawa, 17th October, 1903.

TENDERS FOR DREDGING

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dredging Middle Channel, River St. Lawrence," will be received until November 16, 1903, at 4.30 p.m., for dredging required in the Middle Channel in the River St. Lawrence, between Kingston and Brockville, in the Province of Ontario.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the form supplied and signed with the actual signatures of tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained from the Department of Public Works, Ottawa. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the works. Only dredges can be employed which are registered in Canada at the time of the filling of tenders. Contractors must be ready to begin work within twenty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

An accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works for ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00), must be deposited as security. The cheque will be returned in case of non-acceptance of tender.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender,

By order,
NAP. TRUDEL,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, October 23rd, 1903.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

A NEW PAIR OF EYES.

Startling Effect Produced With Shell of a Walnut.

Take two half shells of an English walnut, large enough to cover your eyes completely, and in the middle of each bore a hole a little larger than the pupil of your eye. Use a penknife for the work. Then clean the inside of the shells thoroughly and paint the hells with a coat of white water paint. Around the pupil hole paint the iris a dull green, leaving a small space of white on the upper left hand side, like the picture.

In arranging them for painting lay them on the table in position with the pointed end toward each other and the white spots on the iris in the same position on both shells. Finally, with bright red, paint a border all around the edge of the imitation eyes. These eyes are easily fitted over your own eyes by opening your eyes wide and drawing up your brows to their fullest height.

Strange will be the effect. In fact, it is such a startling sight that it is best not to go into a room without some intimation of your intention of showing a new "eye dear."

EYES OF THE SAVAGE.

His Keen Sight Due to Knowing What to Look For.

The scientists are always delving into the mysteries of nature, many times on lines that the average man never thinks of. Here, for example, is that question of the keen eyesight of the savage. We have all heard how much keener his eyes are than those of civilized men, and we have accepted the statement as a fact without stopping to think how and why it is true. But a party of scientists from Cambridge, England, who have been on an anthropological expedition to the Torres strait, tell us as a result of their investigations that the keen sight of the native is due to his knowing what to look for.

They found that members of their party could see and distinguish objects as far as the natives could after they had become familiar with the surroundings. A queer illustration of this principle is given in the western Indian's power to distinguish the sex of a deer at a distance so great that the antlers cannot be seen. It is not only sight that gives the Indian that power, but his knowledge of the peculiar gait of the male deer.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Is without an Equal for COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS and all Affections of the THROAT and LUNGS.

All the most serious affections of the throat, the lungs and the bronchial tubes, are in the beginning but colds or coughs. Too much stress cannot be laid on this fact, and neglect to cure the cold very often causes years of suffering and in the end comes "Consumption." Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines of recognized worth, and is absolutely harmless, prompt and safe.

Mr. J. L. Purdy, Millvale, N.S., writes:—"I have been troubled with a hard, dry cough for a long time, especially at night, but after having used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, for a few weeks, I find my cough has left me. To any person, suffering as I did, I can say that this remedy is well worth a trial. I would not be without it in the house."

So great has been the success of this wonderful remedy, it is only natural that numerous persons have tried to imitate it. Don't be humbugged into taking anything but "Dr. Woods." Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

PRECEDENT.

A hat the size of Saturn's rings
She wore, quite lost to view,
But when I asked, "Why hide your head?"
She looked surprised and only said,
"The other girls all do."

In dress she wore enormities,
The dreaded sheath gown too.
A modest, shrinking maid is she,
But fatefully she says to me,
"The other girls all do."

One day I caught her in a fib—
Not very large, 'tis true—
Still, when I urged, as duty led,
A slight remonstrance this she said,
"The other girls all do."

So from her book a leaf I took,
And one I'll never rue.
Now when I beg her for a kiss
And then some more I say just this,
"The other girls all do."

What He Knew.

"Do you believe that love makes the world go round?" queried the sentimental maid in the big touring car.

"I don't know about that," replied the practical young man at the steering wheel, "but it is gasoline that makes the wheels go round on a grade like this."

And, realizing that it was a hopeless case, the sentimental maid closed her face and proceeded to get interested in the scenery.—Detroit Tribune.

"Not at all. I allude to the hypothetical question."—Brooklyn Life.

Cruel Thrust.

"The old gentleman in the first row said I had a voice like a bell," said the sweet singer. "Do you think it should be rung?"

"No," hissed the low comedian. "If I had my way it would be wrung."—Chicago News.

The Crumbled Tombstone.

When the young wife from up state grew reminiscent, as frequently happened, she told her husband about that wonderful tombstone in the village cemetery wherson were recorded the manifold deeds and virtues of her maternal grandfather, not long deceased. On the occasion of the husband's first visit to his wife's old home he was straightway conducted to the cemetery to see grandfather's tombstone. To the wife's dismay the stone had crumbled away until the inscription was entirely illegible.

"I can't understand it," she sobbed. "Here are tombstones five times as old as grandfather's standing just as good as new, while his has gone all to pieces."

"I guess," said the husband unfeelingly, "that it couldn't stand it to tell those whoppers about grandfather any longer and so crumbled away for very shame."—New York Globe.

The Intelligent Jury.

We are justly proud of our jury system, but the twelve "good men and true" are not always the wisest of mankind. At a recent session a prisoner was indicted for pocket picking, and to most people in court the clearest possible case was made out by the prosecution.

"Have you anything you would like to tell the jury before they retire?" said the judge.

"Well, all I wanter say is, I hopes as 'ow they'll give me the benefit of the doubt," replied the prisoner despondently.

The jury considered their verdict; they were no little time over it.

"Can I assist you in any way, gentlemen?" said the judge, at last becoming impatient.

"We are almost agreed, me lud," said the foreman, "but we can't quite understand what the doubt is the prisoner wishes us to give him the benefit of."—London Answers.

Elephants and White Ants.

Some American engineers, in constructing a power transmission line in India, had several things to consider and avoid that had never confronted them before perhaps. The line, which was nearly a hundred miles in length, was carried on tall poles through the jungle, and in constructing it the ravages of white ants, and the playful pranks of wild elephants had to be provided against. That sounds amusing, but the engineers found it a serious problem. The ants attacked the first poles set and fairly riddled them, and the elephants reached up with their trunks and tore down the wires. So iron sockets seven feet in height were used to set the poles in, which circumvented the ants, and after a careful measurement of the highest reach of an elephant's trunk the poles were made tall enough to keep the wires out of the way.

Planting—A Game.

This is a game in which each player in order tells what he has planted and what came up. The articles planted may be persons or objects of any kind, but they may come up as plants or trees, having some punning connection with the thing planted. Thus one player may say, "I planted Shakespeare and sweet william come up." Another, "I planted a pack of cards and w(h)istaria came up."

Perhaps He Was.

One pupil whispered to the next, "Our teacher is a regular duffer."

The professor, who had just put a question to the class, thought the boy was framing a reply and said, "Come, my lad, speak up. Perhaps you are right."—Pathfinder.

One Way of Getting Out.

Gaston burst like a whirlwind in upon his friend Alphonse. "Will you be my witness?" he cried.

"Going to fight?"

Alphonse after a pause inquired, "Can't you apologize?"

A COURSE OF OX.

Try It as an Antidote For the Ills of the Strenuous Life.

In the choice of motor power allow me to suggest the ox. The horse leans forward to pull and even helps himself along by bobbing his head. He jerks a load out of a hard place by plunging bodily against the collar, stopping and lunging again. He strains through a hard place and then starts suddenly forward at his release. He works himself into a lather, and you, if you are the right kind of person, cannot help feeling for him and assisting him with inward stress and strain.

The ox does not bob a horn. He simply journeys, and the load goes along. When he comes to a tough place his pasterns do not bend down, he does not squat to pull, he does not pinch along on the toes of his shoes, he seldom blows, and he does not know how to sweat. He does not exert himself at a patch of woven soft and then hurry up when he is past it. The chain becomes stiffer, and the yoke sits solider to his neck, and that is all. There is no sign of effort. The earth may grit its teeth and crunch as it swallows the plow, but the ox stalks on his way. With the share deep or shallow or lifted entirely and hanging from the axle, whether he is plowing earth or air, it makes no difference to him. His most ponderous task is still himself, and he heeds no incidentals.

He is out for a stroll. He does not allow work to interfere with the even tenor of his way. His tendons are rigged to his outstanding rump bones like so much spar and tackle, and he goes along by interior leverage. Inside his old woman hulk is the necessary engine work, and he will neither go slower for this thing nor faster for that. There is much about him besides his disposition that is self contained. He is the antithesis of the automobile. To ride on his back is a cure for indigestion; to ride behind him is a rest for the mind. A course of ox is an antidote for the ills of the times.—Charles D. Stewart in Atlantic.

A BRIER PIPE.

A collegian who prides himself on the sweetness and color of his brier wood pipes and pretends to know a lot more about them than any ordinary smoker spent half an hour in a tobacco shop making an addition to his already large collection.

Some pipes he discarded because of the grain in the wood. There was too much stripe or too much birdseye, he remarked. When he found one which suited him he put it aside until he had gathered three or four which apparently were all right, and then came his final test to pick out the best of them all.

He held each with the bowl toward the light, then slowly rubbed his little finger inside. Two he discarded, then repeated the operation with the others until only one remained out of the discard. That one he bought.

"Want 'em smooth inside," he explained. "A brier pipe roughly finished inside the bowl isn't worth bothering with. I wouldn't take one for a gift; wouldn't take the trouble to try to break it in, for it will never be any good. It won't cake up right, and it'll never be nice and sweet.

"I've got a theory that when the inside of the bowl is rough all the little edges and points of wood char and burn the first time you smoke it, and a burnt pipe is no good. That's why I always take a pipe that has a bowl as smooth on the inside as on the out.

"Then it doesn't char, but cakes up evenly and gets good in a little time. Maybe the theory is wrong, but it has worked out well in my own experience, and some of my friends who have tried it agree with me."

A Foolish Question.

"Was your father an old man when he died?" asked the prosecuting attorney.

"Haven't I just told you," flung back the irritable witness, "that my father was a baseball umpire?" — Brooklyn Life.

Another Kind.

"Didn't know liquor killed him."

"It didn't."

"But you said he died from taking a drop too much."

"Yes. He was what's called an aviator."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HIS LUCK.

How a "Linguist" Came to Lose a Good Meal.

"Madam," began the man with the red nose to the farmer's wife, "you see before you a learned man in hard luck. In fact, I am one of the world's greatest linguists."

"Is it painful?" she sympathetically asked.

"You don't understand, madam. A linguist is one who can talk the languages. Now, I can converse with you in Latin. I can tell you the sad story of my life in Greek. I can go to the lecture platform and lecture in any language known to man."

"Dew tell!" she gasped.

"Yes, madam; all the languages are spoken fluently by me. Were you German I would talk German with you; were you French we would converse in the language of that country; were you Spanish you would think from my talk that I was a native of the land of the dons."

"I want tew know! Mebbe you'd jest as soon ask fur a piece of pie in Latin?"

"Certainly, madam—E pluribus union semper idem de pumpkin."

"Waal, the idea!" exclaimed the amazed farmer's wife. "An' how does the French language sound?"

"Beautiful, madam. When I say in French, 'Parle yous rouget noir ou sausage?' I mean, 'Isn't it a lovely day?'"

"Good lands!"

"The same sentence in German would be, 'Ach, budweiser und der klempstein is oudt.'"

"Waal, waal, waal! How sum folks dew run tew smartness! Will ye take dinner with us?"

"Certainly, madam."

"It's real kind of ye to be so obligin'. My son will be hum from college any minit, an' he writes that he knows all them languages. You an' him can talk 'em all over an' let pa an' me listen to ye. Would you like to step over to the wash house an' wash up fur dinner? It's all ready."

The great "linguist" heaved a heavy sigh, muttered something about fool sons being around when they were not wanted and started in the direction of the wash house.

But he did not return.—Bohemian.

Her Visit to the Dentist.

An Irish maid in the service of a Washington family recently sought permission of her mistress to take an afternoon off for the purpose of consulting a dentist.

Upon her return the mistress said:

"Well, Rosalie, did you have the tooth filled?"

"I did, mum."

"And what did the dentist fill it with—gold or amalgam?"

"I don't know just what it was, mum, but from the way I feel I should think it was with thunder and loightning, mum."

Spare the Horses.

A cavalry sergeant at a western post had endured the stupidity of a recruit for many days. One day the "rookie" was thus greeted when he had violated the sergeant's orders:

"Say, don't ever come at the horses from behind without speakin' to 'em!" exclaimed the sergeant. "They'll be kicking in that thick head of yours. Then the first thing you know there'll be a lot o' lame horses in the squadron."—Harper's Weekly.

"I don't want you to dust his jacket," said Mrs. Binks. "I want you to soak him for fair."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Had Heart Trouble and Shortness of Breath For Six Years.

Was Weak and Thin—Only Weighed Seventy-three Pounds. Now Weighs One Hundred and Thirteen.

When you find your heart the least bit out of rhythm, your nerves unhinged, your breath short, don't wait until you are prostrated on a bed of sickness. Take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They'll put you in such condition you'll never know you have a heart, make your nerves strong and your whole being thrill with new life. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cured Mrs. K. E. Bright, Burnley, Ont. She writes: "I was greatly troubled, for six years, with my heart and shortness of breath. I could not walk eighty rods without resting four or five times in that short distance. I got so weak and thin I only weighed seventy-three pounds. I decided at last to take some of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking eight boxes I gained in strength and weight, and now weigh one hundred and thirteen pounds, the most I ever weighed in my life. I feel well and can work as well as ever I did, and can heartily thank Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for it all."

Gave Him All the Lot.

"So that is your final word?" said the rejected one. "Very well, then, Arabella. In your presence I will end the life you have blighted."

He drew forth a small bottle labeled "Poison," drank off the contents and fell senseless at her feet. Did she sink beside him sobbing with remorse? No. She hastily left the room and in two minutes had returned and was kneeling beside him. Then she forced between his lips the following: Half a cup of turpentine, one pint of milk, a cup of warm soapsuds, a tablespoonful of aromatic ammonia, a cup of black coffee, a glass of mustard and water, a gill of vinegar, the juice of a lemon, the beaten whites of six eggs and one cup of flour and water.

"Algernon," she observed coldly as he slowly opened his eyes, "it is evident you had forgotten that I am a graduate of a correspondence course in first aid. My one regret is that, as I could not on the instant ascertain whether you had taken an acid or an alkali, I was compelled to administer all the antidotes I had learned."—London Scraps.

It is said that one of the most beautiful ladies in French society today was first revealed to her husband on the walls of the salon. It was while visiting the salon in 1878 that the youthful Marquis de C. was struck by the childish beauty of a young girl, one of the prominent figures in a picture of a village fete. Her tumbled golden locks, her dancing blue eyes and the freshness and graceful abandon of her figure so fascinated him that he sought out the artist and learned from him that the "little witch" was the daughter of a poor peasant near Avranches, where the picture was painted. To seek out the peasant and to make the acquaintance of his fascinating daughter, child of nine summers, was soon accomplished, and the marquis lost his heart even more completely to the real than to the pictured maid. With the father's approval he had the girl educated at one of the best schools in Paris, and nine years later, on her eighteenth birthday, the maid of the village fete blossomed into the still more lovely Marquise de C.

Ivory Jelly.

The jelly was singularly pale. It almost resembled junket.

"It is ivory jelly," said the invalid. "My English cousins sent me a case of it from Sheffield."

"But why is it called ivory jelly?" they inquired.

"Precisely because it is made of ivory. A third of England's ivory goes to Sheffield, and in the process of grinding and cutting it for knife handles, and so forth, a lot of ivory dust remains, a fine dust, similar to the best flour. Of this the Sheffield folk have made jelly for many years.

"The jelly for some reason is nourishing, extremely so. The doctors prescribe it for the anaemic. And of late a Sheffield firm has taken to manufacturing it on a large scale. Sheffield ivory jelly is now on the market.

"Out of courtesy to my cousins I tried it. To my surprise I found it good. My doctor, sampling it, found it good too. He told me to take the whole case."—Buffalo Express.

An Interesting Book.

A French marquise whose country house is crowded with guests during the hunting season hit upon the original idea of placing a register at the disposal of her visitors in which to record their desires and criticisms. The pages of the richly bound book soon began to be covered with notes such as:

"Count de R. still owes 25 louis. He knows to whom."

"The green peas yesterday were burned."

"Baroness M. flirts—unfortunately not with me."

The marquise has withdrawn the register.

Parents' Hairs and Heirs.

It is possible to predict from the hair of parents the form of their children's hair. Two blue eyed, straight haired parents will have only blue eyed, straight haired children. Two wavy haired parents may have straight, wavy or curly haired children, but the chances of curly hair are slight. Two curly haired parents may have children with either straight, wavy or curly hair, but the proportion of curly haired offspring will probably be large. —American Naturalist.

The Bolster.

The crusaders are said to have brought home with them the bolster, and, according to Dr. Cantile, their wives, in ignorance of the only rational way of using the article (i. e., lengthwise as a support for the back of a person when lying on his side) and not knowing what else to do with it, put the bolster where it is still found on the beds of those who have not learned the wisdom of discarding it altogether—under the pillow.—London Chronicle.

Of Interest to Women.

Mrs. Philip Snowden of London, one of the most celebrated of English suffragists, will be a speaker at the national convention of woman suffragists to be held in Buffalo Oct. 15 to 21. Mrs. Snowden's husband is a member of parliament, and she will bring to her American colleagues the true story of the suffragette movement in Great Britain.

The Power of Habit.

After having been a faithful devotee of the automobile two years or more Mr. Bragdon suddenly was seized with a violent fancy for motor boats. "A beautiful river runs by this town," he said. "Why not have some enjoyment out of it? In a motor boat you don't have to dodge policemen and rural constables."

So he bought one, took a day's instruction in the art of managing it and keeping the machinery in running order and started out on his first trip with it one bright morning in July.

It was late in the afternoon when he returned home. He came in by the back way. His clothes were water soaked, and he had a generally limp and bedraggled appearance.

"For pity's sake, Alfred!" exclaimed his wife. "What has happened to you? Did the boat upset?"

"No, Lucy," he answered. "Don't say anything about it and I'll tell you. The boat's all right, but when I had been out on the water an hour or two something went wrong with the motor."

"Well?"

"Well, before I—er—knew what I was doing I was over the side of the boat and trying to get under it to fix the thing."

A Shrewd Doctor.

"This incident," said a doctor, "happened in France two or three centuries ago, in the days when public criers were always in evidence. There was a physician of Montpellier who used to go from place to place to practice the healing art. He employed a very ingenious trick to help him on his way. When he came to a town where he was not known he pretended to have lost his dog, which he declared was a very valuable animal, and ordered the public crier to roam about, beat loud on his drum and offer a reward of 25 louis to whoever should bring the dog to him. At the same time the crier was directed to mention all the titles and academic honors of the doctor as well as his place of residence. Of course it happened that the doctor was not long in becoming almost the sole topic of talk in the town. The people made up their minds that he must be a famous physician as well as a very rich one, as he could offer 25 louis for finding his dog. You might reasonably judge that the dog was never found, but plenty of patients were."

Winning a Juryman.

It is related of Lachaud, the most famous of French criminal lawyers in the last century, that in pleading a certain case he perceived that one of the jurors seemed to be hostile to him and his argument.

In the faces of all the other men in the box he saw with his practiced eyes that his oratory or his shrewdness was having its effect, but this man, in spite of all Lachaud could do, remained frowning, suspicious, obdurate.

Lachaud continued with his work, however, and presently saw that his opportunity had come. It was a hot day, and a ray of sunlight had penetrated a crevice on the curtain and was shining on top of the head of this juryman, who was quite bald. The lawyer paused in his argument and addressed himself directly to the court.

"If your honor would please," he said, "to order that the curtain in yonder window be lowered a trifle I am sure that the sixth juryman would appreciate it."

Walking on Your Hat.

"Nothing is wasted in this house" is the proud remark which you may often hear from the lips of an expert housekeeper. It is a boast, however, that few people could really justify. Take the case of a worsout derby hat. In the majority of instances this discarded article of headgear finds its way to the rubbish heap or perhaps into the hands of a passing tramp. If only people were aware of the fact, the most excellent felt soles for the inside of their boots and slippers are thus being discarded. These soles can be cut from the sides of an old hat and are much more comfortable than the ordinary cork ones.

Way to Marital Happiness.

"Marry a bright woman for success and a pretty one for happiness," advises a student of the problem. Also one who can cook for the benefit of the digestion might be advisable, but the pesky laws limit you to one.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Ringing the Breakfast Bell.

An American family who had experienced the difficulty of obtaining and retaining the services of a reliable kitchen girl while on a visit to Ireland became acquainted with a promising young girl and brought her back home with them.

In a few weeks she was installed in her new home and made acquainted with her new duties. Among other things she was told that it was customary when breakfast was ready to be served to ring the breakfast bell. Her "all right, mum," came in such a confident tone that her mistress gave the matter no further thought.

The following morning at 6 o'clock the family were rudely awakened by the violent ringing of the front doorbell. Thinking that a messenger must be waiting with some unusual message, the gentleman of the house did not stop to dress, but hurried down in his night robe and opened the door. The new kitchen girl awaited him, her face beaming with a beautiful smile of triumph. Bowing low, she said in her rich Irish brogue, "Breakfast is ready, sor."—Los Angeles Times.

Diamond Cutting.

It is said that before the fourteenth century no one knew how to cut and polish diamonds. They were esteemed for their marvelous hardness, but not greatly admired for beauty. There is a tradition that a journeyman jeweler in Flanders, Louis Van Berghem, discovered the art of cutting diamond with diamond. But it is probable that he only made some notable advance in the art since associations of diamond cutters had existed in France and Flanders from the fourteenth century. Louis Van Berghem's most famous achievement was the cutting and polishing of a huge diamond belonging to Charles the Bold. Charles was so delighted with the result that he rewarded the artist liberally and declared that the diamond would now serve him for a bedroom lamp. This jewel, which was found on Charles' body after the battle of Nancy, is still in existence and celebrated under the name of the Sancy diamond.—Youth's Companion.

He Gave Them Latin.

Once, before he was president, Andrew Jackson was making a political speech in some obscure campaign in a backwoods Tennessee district. His address was very well received, but somehow there did not seem to be exactly the enthusiasm wanted for the occasion. Having vainly tried to "warm up" his hearers, the general was just going to sit down when the chairman of the meeting plucked him by the coattail. "For the Lord's sake, general, give 'em some Latin!" he hurriedly whispered in the speaker's ear. "They won't think you know anything at all if you quit like this. Smith, the opposition candidate, talked Latin to 'em half the evening."

Old Hickory rose to the situation. Advancing to the edge of the platform, he extended his arm and thundered out: "E pluribus unum! Sic semper tyrannis! Habeas corpus!"

The audience roared with applause. The credit of the orator was saved, and the Jackson ticket won out in that county.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A Spoiled Scene.

E. H. Sothern once found his wit fail him in time of need. It was in the fourth act of "The Lady of Lyons." Sothern played Claude Melnotte, and Virginia Harned was cast as Pauline. Beausant, the villain, was pursuing Pauline, and she cried loudly for help. Claude is supposed to dash to her rescue and catch the fainting Pauline in his arms. Sothern dashed on to the stage, but slipped and slid, sitting down near the footlights. Losing his presence of mind, he declaimed the line: "Look up, Pauline. There is no danger." As Virginia Harned was standing, this was, of course, an impossibility. By this time the audience was in an uproar, and when Arthur Lawrence, who played Beausant, scornfully said, "You are beneath me," the amusement of the audience knew no bounds.

The Stick For Wives.

In the old Anglo-Norman marriage ceremony the gentlewoman used to promise her husband to be buxom "unto my gentil manne." The word buxom corresponds to the modern German biegsam, meaning bending or pliant, and the old English was "buksam," all of which goes to show that things must have been very pleasantly ordered in the good old days that are dead and gone. According to the old English law, which is still unrescinded in the statute book, the "gentil manne" was allowed to beat his goode wife with a stick the diameter of which did not exceed a quarter of an inch.—New York World.

Trophies of the Chase.

In the days when buffalo still roamed the plains of Kansas in countless numbers a great many hunting parties came over from Europe to have a hand in their slaughter. One party was composed of a Frenchman named Auguste Rouzaud, the first husband of Christine Nilsson, the prima donna, and an Englishman, a Mr. Blackmore, from London. They arrived at Dodge City one day in the fall with a carload of equipment, including every sort of delicacy that the market afforded and several large trunks full of bright new butcher knives. A detachment of the Sixth cavalry from Fort Dodge was detailed to accompany them, and probably no command ever fared better than that one did. The Englishman shot a few buffalo, and the soldiers slaughtered them by the hundreds. But the Frenchman didn't kill one. Instead, as fast as the animals were shot he would take one of his brand new butcher knives, plunge it into the slain animal until it was smeared with blood, wrap it carefully in tissue paper and put it back in the trunk as a trophy of the chase to exhibit when he got back to Paris as proof of his mighty prowess as a hunter. That was his idea of sport.—Kansas City Star.

Thread Used in Surgery.

Are you aware that the modern surgeon employs in his work dozens of different kinds of thread for sewing up cuts and wounds? Among them are kangaroo tendons, horsehair, silk and very fine silver wire. Many of these threads are intended to hold for a certain number of days and then naturally break away. The short, tough tendons taken from the kangaroo, which are used for sewing severe wounds, will hold for about four weeks before they break away. Silk thread will remain much longer, sometimes six months, while the fine silver wire is practically indestructible.

With the entire outfit a surgeon is able to select a thread that will last as long as the wound takes to heal and will then disappear completely. To accommodate this assortment of threads special varieties of needles are required. Besides the needle craned in different segments of a circle, surgeons use needles shaped like spears, javelins and bayonet points. — St. James' Gazette.

Just Names.

She had passed a season abroad, and in London, she said modestly, her success had been unprecedented. The earl said he could readily believe that.

"The dinner," she resumed, "that Lady Featherstonhaugh"—

"Excuse me. The name is pronounced Freestonhay," said the earl.

"Well, at the dinner Lord Dalzell"—

"Though written Dalzell, it it pronounced Deal. But pray go on."

"Ho and Sir Dugald Colquhoun"—

"You mean Calhoun. Yes?"

"And Lady Leveson-Gower and Mr. Bohun"—

"Lewson-Gore and Boone are the correct pronunciations. But I'm interrupting you."

"Not at all. All these persons and Lord St. Maur drank"—

"Not St. Maur—Seymour. Well?"

"Oh, I forgot what I was going to say. You've quite put me out with your corrections."

"And your story was just getting interesting, too," said the earl regretfully.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Professor Blackie's Opinion.

A correspondent sends an anecdote concerning the attempt of a serious minded lady to lure Professor Blackie into giving his opinion of Sankey's hymns at a time when they had an enormous vogue. The lady was giving the professor lunch, and he tried to fob her off by praising a Stilton cheese on the table. Some time after the lady sent him a copy of Sankey and a piece of the cheese, hoping thus to draw him. She succeeded to the extent of these four lines of verse:

Thrice blessed is she that hath done what she could
To make a lean man fat and a bad man good—
For the body, cheese; for the soul, Sankey;
For both, thankee.

—Glasgow Herald.

A Polite Turn Down.

Sir Algernon West in his reminiscences tells this story of Robert Browning: "When he had become famous some one wanted very much to meet him. A kind friend arranged a meeting, and the guest besieged Browning with questions and conversation during dinner, and even after dinner he continued buttonholing his victim. 'Come,' said the poet, 'this will never do. They will say I am monopolizing you!'"

PREVENTION OF THE WHITE PLAGUE

The prevention of Consumption and its cure in the early stages is a matter of fresh air and nourishment, but to secure nourishment you must have appetite, and nothing is better known to medical science to stimulate and invigorate the system than the active principles of COD LIVER OIL—the only drawback has been that it has hitherto been impossible to separate the really valuable elements of cods' livers from the nauseous oil or grease, which fact has largely offset the good derived from the alkaloids or active principles contained in the OIL.

"BRICK'S TASTELESS" is a preparation of the valuable alkaloids or active principles separated from the grease and combined with Phosphorous in the form of the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, the nutritious Liquid Extract of Malt, and the Bronchial Tonic and Sedative Fluid Extract of Wild Cherry Bark.

In all cases of wasting diseases or an enervated condition of the system immediate improvement and eventual cure follow its use.

"BRICK'S TASTELESS"

is put up in eight (8) ounce bottles, retail price fifty (50) cents; and in twenty (20) ounce bottles, retail price one (1) dollar.

A Sailors' Christening.

"The late Bishop Potter once in his early days had occasion to officiate at a christening in a small fishing village on the Massachusetts coast," says a writer in Harper's Weekly. "The proud father, a young fisherman, awkwardly holding his firstborn daughter, was visibly embarrassed under the scrutiny of the many eyes in the congregation, and his nervousness was not decreased by the sudden wailing of the infant as they stood at the front.

"When the time for the baptism of the babe arrived the bishop noticed that the father was holding the child so that its fat little legs pointed toward the font.

"'Turn her this way,' he whispered, but the father was too disconcerted to hear or understand.

"'Turn her feet around,' the bishop whispered again, but still there was no response. The situation was fast becoming critical, when an ancient mariner in the back of the church came to the rescue. Putting his weather beaten hand to his mouth, he roared across the room, "Head her up to the wind, Jack!'"

Throw 'Em Down Babies.

"I wonder," mused the young father, "what there is in a baby's makeup that prompts him to drop things. It isn't really dropping, though—it's throwing. My baby is good about sleeping and behaving when there is company, but everything he can snatch he immediately flings to the floor. I've noticed and known a lot of others, too, who do the same thing. It's not only the joy of throwing, but the delight in seeing somebody pick the stuff up. Babies certainly seem to take a fiendish delight in watching their fathers and mothers or nurses pick up the toys and other things which they throw out of their beds, carriages and chairs. My boy used to be quite pleased with a rubber toy attached by a string to his carriage so that it just escaped the ground. He would grin and dangle it for hours. Now he yells as soon as he discovers it is fastened, and the minute we give it to him loose, bang, it goes on to the ground, while he laughs aloud in his joy. There's probably a reason, and the psychologists will discover it some day."—Exchange.

The Holy Grail.

From a book reviewed a passage is quoted in which mention is made of "the holy grail, the sang-real or true blood of God." This used to be a common mistake, and so learned a man as Thomas Warton in his "Remarks on Spenser's Imitations From Old Romances" writes, "The holy grale, that is the real blood of our Blessed Saviour." But this is wrong. It is the holy grale, or vessel, and does not mean real blood, though it contained the real blood, collected by Joseph of Arimathea. It was made from a diamond and emerald which fell from the crown of Satan when he fought with Michael. M. de Villemarque, who has written about Armoric legends, says that this jewel was a diamond. The word greal is old French, as I understand, for I have no knowledge myself that it is so. In the legend of Percival it is shown that the grail is a vessel. "The holy grail!' Percival heard whispered by one voice after another. Then from the shining vessel streamed an endless supply of the costliest dishes and wines."—London Notes and Queries.

A Poor Defense.

"Speaking of a poor defense," said a lawyer, "reminds me of the valet who was accused of drinking his master's wine. To this valet the master said:

"'Look here, you! I believe that you have been at this decanter of claret and then filled it up with water.'

"'Oh, no, sir,' said the valet in an aggrieved tone.

"'Well, it tastes like it,' said the master, and he set down his glass with a wry face.

"'Oh, no, sir,' said the valet excitedly. 'In the first place, sir, I never drink wine; in the second place, when I do drink it I never think of filling the bottle up with water, and, in the third place, when I do put water in I always am very careful to add a little brandy so that the wine may not lose its strength.'"

Soda and Water.

For sheer simplicity of phrase and conception few have surpassed that delightful old lady who, with a shrewd twinkle in her eye, inquired whether 'soda water" should be written as two separate words or if there should be a sinbon between them.

Two Great Orators.

As an orator Demosthenes was head and shoulders above Cicero the Roman. The great Athenian stands in a class all by himself, if we are to believe the consensus of learned opinion. Cicero, it is said, prided himself on his faculty of extemporizing at need, but probably trusted little to it on great occasions, while with Demosthenes it was the rule never to speak without the most careful preparation. The speeches of both were spoken without manuscript. They would never have made the reputation they did if they had been tied down to their notes.—New York American.

Their Only Job.

"Why, Mrs. White," began the summer visitor newly returned to Saymouth, "how those maples of yours have grown since last year! It's perfectly amazing!"

"Oh, I don't know's it's anything to wonder at," said Mrs. White easily. "They ain't got anything else to do."—Youth's Companion.

Erudite.

"Oh, baby," exclaimed the Boston mother, "what does make you cry so?"

"I really cannot say," was the unexpected answer. "I have never indulged in introspection."

The costliness of keeping friends does not lie in what one does for them, but in what one out of consideration for them refrains from doing.—Henrik Ibsen.

The Wrong Heart.

"Mr. Bubkins," said the proud father, shaking the young man warmly by the hand, "let me tell you that you are a man after my own heart."

"Oh, no, sir," protested the blushing suitor; "I'm after your daughter's!"—London Answers.

No Leak.

"Suppose," hissed the villain, "suppose our plot should leak out?"

Embarrassing.

A colored woman of Alexandria, Va., was on trial before a magistrate of that town charged with inhuman treatment of her offspring.

Evidence was clear that the woman had beaten the youngster, aged some nine years, who was in court to exhibit his battered condition.

Before imposing sentence his honor asked the woman whether she had anything to say.

"Kin I ask yo' honah a question?" inquired the prisoner.

Eating Carelessly

frequently causes stomach troubles, but careful eating will never right them. When your stomach is out of condition, it needs help that no food can supply. It must be thoroughly cleansed, settled and strengthened. Food never does this.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

are the greatest stomach medicine human skill ever compounded. Don't attempt to cure your stomach by dieting. You will half starve and get little benefit. Give Beecham's Pills a chance and you will again know the pleasures of a sound digestion. Appetite will return and the stomach again work without any discomfort. The skin will clear, the face plump out, while people will remark "How well you're looking." These are facts, not fancies. Prove it yourself.

FATAL MISTAKE BY FATHER—SON HAD TO SHOOT HIM DOWN the two and she had done the best she could.

Constantin Pellegrino, barely seventeen years old, had hardly as much time to make up his mind whether he should see his mother stabbed to death or kill his father.

The family lived at No. 198 East Twenty-third street, Brooklyn. The father, Anselmo, came home one evening crazed with drink. He attacked his wife and began to drag her around by her hair. The boy sprang to his mother's aid and the father knocked him to the floor.

"Now, I'm going to kill you both!" yelled Pellegrino, drawing a knife.

The boy wriggled away from his father's clutches—the man was too busy holding his wife by her hair—and ran into the bedroom, where he knew his father kept a loaded revolver under the pillow. Constantin got back into the dining room just in time to see his father about to slash his mother across the throat with his stiletto.

He fired twice, as quickly as he could. Both bullets hit the would-be murderer in the left side. He dropped his victim and ran for the door. Twice again the boy fired. This time he hit his father twice in the back of the head. The man fell in his tracks.

A policeman heard the shots and came running up.

"I've killed my father," said Constantin, coolly. "I want you to arrest me. I had to do it to save my mother's life."

The mother implored the police not to arrest her son, but law is law, and he had to go to the station house. The son, knowing the choice he had made, was perfectly cool.

"I knew I would have to kill my father some day," he said. "He has always been saying he would kill my mother, and I am glad it is over now."

In Bowerton, Miss., it was only a little boy who stood between the mother and the infuriated father. Frank Mullins was whipping one of his children unmercifully, when the mother interfered.

"Curse you!" cried the husband and father. "I'll kill you if you don't let me alone."

The mother stepped between the child and her infuriated husband. He struck her and knocked her down, kicking her face as he did it. Their ten-year-old boy saw it all from across the yard, and, running into the house, got a rifle, levelled it from behind the woodpile and shot his father dead. But he saved his mother's life.

This little boy made his choice between father and mother and acted upon it quickly, whether he was right or wrong.

First Shot Fatal

Frederick Cramer, his wife, and their children, lived at Page & Oak. The husband and wife had domestic differences and it was agreed that he should have the first floor of their home and she and her song the second floor.

One night Cramer came home in an ugly mood and tried to break into the second floor of the house. Mrs. Cramer barricaded the downstairs door, but her husband broke it down.

"I'll settle you!" he cried, plunging up the stairs. Mrs. Cramer ran and got her loaded revolver. She levelled it down the stairs, but her hand trembled so that she could not aim.

"Take this and shoot him," she said to her oldest son, Arthur, a boy of sixteen, handing him the pistol. "I'm too nervous to hold it."

The boy obeyed only too well. One shot was fatal. "I only did what my mother told me," he said, "and that was to save her life from my father."

Ezekiel Gregory, an old farmer of Davidson, N.C., didn't like the hours of his son, David. He told him that he ought to rise earlier. He killed his father with an axe and escaped.

John and James Randall, fourteen and fifteen years old, of Marshall, N.C., found their mother murdered, as they believed, by their father. They hurried for their rifles, and one of the boys wanted to kill him then and there when they found him.

"No," said the other, "let's keep him guarded here until we can get the police."

So while one held his loaded rifle against his father's temple the other telegraphed for a constable. Hour after hour they kept their grim vigil, and when the constable came they turned over their prisoner — their father—to the tender mercies of the law.

Randall had driven his wife from their home. She sought refuge with friends, and he came for her. Reluctantly she went back with him. Later Mrs. Randall was found by her sons dead in the road, with her head crushed in. So they hunted down their father and, after finding him, kept guard until he was safe in jail.

Not one son in a million is called upon to do as these sons and daughters have had to do. Few have to make such a choice. But when the call is made what shall it be—Father or mother?—New York World.

RHEUMATISM IN THE BLOOD

Liniments and Rubbing Will Not Cure It —The Disease Must be Treated Through the Blood.

The trouble with men and women who have rheumatism is that they waste valuable time in trying to rub the complaint away. If they rub hard enough the friction causes warmth in the affected part, which temporarily relieves the pain, but in a short time the aches and pains are as bad as ever. All the rubbing, and all the liniments and outward applications in the world won't cure rheumatism, because it is rooted in the blood. Rubbing won't remove the poisonous acid in the blood that causes the pain. But Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will, because they are a blood medicine acting on the blood. That is why the aches and pains and stiff swollen joints of rheumatism disappear when these pills are used. That's why sensible people waste no time in rubbing but take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when the first twinges of rheumatism come on, and of their system. Mr. John Evans, 12 Kempt Road, Halifax, N.S., says:—"About three years ago I had an attack of rheumatism which settled in my right leg and ankle, which became very much swollen and was exceedingly painful. I wasted a good deal of time trying to get rid of the trouble by rubbing with liniments, but it did not do me a bit of good. My daughter was using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at the time and finally persuaded me to try them. Inside of a week the pills began to help me, and after taking them a few weeks longer the trouble had completely disappeared and has not bothered me since. My daughter was also taking the pills at the time for weakness and anaemia, and was also cured by them, and I am now a firm friend of this medicine."

Most of the troubles that afflict mankind are due to poor, watery blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new red blood. That is why they cure anaemia with its headaches and backaches, and dizziness and fainting spells; the pangs of rheumatism and the sharp stabbing pains of neuralgia; also indigestion, St. Vitus' dance, paralysis and the ailments of young girls and women of mature age. Good blood is the secret of health and the secret of good blood is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

KEEP BACON INDUSTRY ALIVE

From The Canadian Dairyman.

There is a growing indifference on the part of many to have but little to do with bacon production. The price for the finished product being somewhat unstable, tends to discourage some producers. Especially at this season of the year when hogs are inclined to drop in price, this feeling becomes marked.

It has been a matter of common experience that when the price of hogs is falling, that is the time to stay with the business, and even to load up more heavily with hogs. The producers who have stayed by this business through its times of adversity are the ones who have made money out of hogs. They have learned the game well and when the price of hogs goes down, they are not the ones that wear the long face and cry down the business. When their neighbors are in such spirits, these men are actively engaged buying in the hogs which their neighbors are too ready to sell at a sacrifice.

The bacon industry has reached a point where it is of great importance. It is largely accountable for the ready money which our farmers possess today, and while it is sometimes difficult to figure out a direct profit from the hogs, especially when prices are declining and feed bills are high, still, on the long average, the production of bacon is a profitable business. It has done much for our farmers and for our country. It is capable of doing as much, or even better, in the future. Let us stand by this great industry, that has been built up at considerable cost, in seasons of adversity as well as in prosperity. By doing so, we will all share the profits which, in the past, have been realised mostly by those who have learned to stay with the business.

VISITS BY CHEESE INSTRUCTORS

Will Speak at Closing Meetings of Factories Throughout the Country— The November Flow of Milk.

MONTH'S YIELD WAS SMALL

From The Canadian Dairyman.

The cheese-making season of 1908 nominally closed on Oct. 31st. Many factories will keep open longer. Owing to the dry weather of September and October it is not likely that the number which will keep on making during November will be any larger than last year. In fact there were more factories closed earlier this year than last owing to the short milk supply. Three weeks ago over fifty factories in Ontario had closed for the season. The length to which those now running will keep open will depend on the weather and the amount of feed in the country. The higher prices for which cheese is now selling will have some influence on the milk supply and may induce patrons to make a special effort to keep up the milk flow. But the chances are that the amount of November cheese to be made this year will not be large.

The instructors will continue their work so long as the factories keep running. In districts where a number of the factories have shut down, the instructors are devoting their spare time to visiting as many producers as possible. While more good could be done by visiting patrons during the height of the season, a great deal can be accomplished by calling on them at this time of the year. Patrons will have more time to discuss matters with the instructor than during the busy season and can be encouraged to do better work next year.

The Department of Agriculture is again arranging for the instructors to attend as many annual meetings of factories as possible. Some of these meetings will be held before the end of the year. Last year the instructors in Western Ontario attended about 60 per cent. of the annual meetings in their district. The instructors in Eastern Ontario attended over 200. More could be attended if the dates did not conflict. Where possible, factories should endeavor to have their annual meetings at a time when an instructor can be present. By communicating with the department and leaving the date open the meetings can be arranged in consecutive order so as to admit of instructors attending them at the least cost and loss of time. Many factories have the date for the annual meeting fixed for a certain time each year. This makes it difficult to arrange meetings in consecutive order.

Where factories are so fortunate as to obtain the services of the instructor for their annual meeting, the business to be transacted should be so arranged as to give the speaker plenty of time. The rule decided upon by the department last year, was that the speaker should have at least, one hour at the beginning of the meeting. This will be insisted upon this year. If it is not and the speaker comes on last there is often not much time left after the business is transacted.

HOW TO KILL SEEDS IN MANURE

Experiments Which Have Proved Successful in This Regard.

From The Canadian Dairyman.

It is well known that there is considerable risk of introducing new weeds by the purchase of manure and hay and other feeding stuffs. E. I. Oswald, of the Maryland Station, undertook to obtain more definite information on this point, especially as regards dissemination through manure, by studying the effect of the fermentation of manure handled in different ways and passing through the digestive systems of animals on the vitality of various weed seeds, including seeds of about fifty of the worst weeds found in Maryland.

In experiments in which the manure remained (1) for six months in a barnyard heap, and (2) for a short while in piles as when shipped in carload lots from cities, it was found that in the first case there was no danger and in the second case little danger of distributing live weed seeds. In the experiments in which the weed seeds were fed to yearling steers and the manure handled in various ways it was found that—

(1) Where the manure was hauled directly from the stable as a top dressing an average of only 12.8 per cent. of the seeds fed to animals germinated.

(2) Where manure was hauled directly from the stable upon the land and plowed under, 2.3 per cent. of the seeds fed to animals came up.

(3) Where the droppings remained on the pasture fields unadulterated as they fell an average of only 3.1 per cent. of the seeds fed to animals germinated.

The results indicate that in general it is safe to assume that the vitality of weed seeds is destroyed in well-rotted manure, but that many pass unharmed through the digestive tracts of animals and may be carried to the land if the manure is not well rotted before use.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. T. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club for November 15th, 1908, are:—

The Lord Our Shepherd — Psalm 23. Golden Text — The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want. Psalm xxiii: 1.

Verse 1 — Does God personally shepherd each individual soul?

Does scientific research and our fuller knowledge of the vast net work of worlds, in the universe, tend to weaken, or strengthen, our faith in God's individual love and care for each person?

Does God "shepherd" and love sinners as well as saints? (Read Jesus' story of the lost sheep.)

May we learn of the reality of God's individual and constant care of us by "The practice of the presence of God," the same as we learn to think and see, and do, almost everything else by practice? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Is it possible for a Christian to depend upon God the same as one depends upon a government bank note, and to always have the comfort of that dependence in the most trying circumstances?

Verse 2—As a matter of fact do all who serve God actually enjoy the bliss suggested by the figures "He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters?"

Are Christians like sheep, sometimes full and lying down "chewing the cud of contentment," and at other times hunting for food or flying for protection from the enemy?

Verse 3—In the struggle for existence, with men as with sheep, the soul gets tired and weary, and its strength exhausted; what, and where, is the source for restoring this soul exhaustion?

What are some of the means which our shepherd takes to restore our exhausted strength, to increase our faith, and revive our flagging energies?

A hungry sheep is not troubled with "righteousness," but will take food which belongs to another; contrast this with the way in which God leads the Christian.

Our shepherd leads the soul in "paths of righteousness;" now if one be found in the paths of unrighteousness, is that, or not, clear evidence that he is a wandering sheep, not under the control of the shepherd?

Verse 4 — The shepherds in Palestine often had to lead their sheep, through valleys and ravines, where death lurked in the shape of wild beasts and other dangers; do Christians to-day have to pass through similar dangers, and what are some of them?

Is there any part of the journey of life, from the start out in the morning until we reach the sheep fold at sunset, which is not beset with dangers?

What is the guarantee that the "shepherd" will destroy all that would destroy the Christian, and take him home to the fold in perfect safety?

When our shepherd finally leads his sheep "through the valley of the shadow of death" which leads to the "better country," what is invariably their experience?

How do you account for it that when rebellious men come down to die they are paralysed with fear for the future, while the children of God fear not, but are comforted?

Verse 5 — In the evening time of life what are the peculiar enemies which God's sheep have to face?

In the presence of old age, failing physical and mental powers, eyesight and hearing gone, "the pains of death" gripping him, what sort of a table does God spread before the departing saint?

Verse 6 — What blessings answering to "goodness and mercy" follow the Christian all the days of his life, as contrasted with the experience of those who live in rebellion against God?

Is the life of a faithful servant of God always a triumphant one?

What is "the house of the Lord" in which the Christian will live forever?

Lesson for Sunday, Nov. 22nd, 1908.—Solomon Anointed King. I Kings i-ii: 12.

HAVE YOU EVER FIGURED

What an immense amount of work your eyes have

Every moment you are awake you use them steadily and those who read new a great deal or whose duties require close application of the eyes are almost to stand in need of an Optician's services sooner or later. To wait until it is inconvenient time is an injustice, as the trouble is being increased every day. Do now to see us about the matter. We tell many persons that they need not wear and will tell you if we find your eyes not under strain. Even if you need glasses may get them where you like and when you like.

LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT WILL BE INAUGURATED IN PETERBOROUGH AT BANQUET TO BE HELD IN EARLY PART OF DECEMBER

Lay Representatives of City's Churches Decide to Take up the Work Which Has Grown Throughout the Country—Special Speakers Will be Here

DETAILS GIVEN LATER

The Laymen's missionary movement will be inaugurated in Peterborough early in December, the probable date being Tuesday the eighth. This was the decision of the largely attended meeting of the laymen and clergy who assembled in the parlours of the Y. M.C.A. last night to discuss this all important question. Practically all the churches were represented and the subject was thoroughly considered with the result that it was decided that the laymen of this city should unite in this great work, and assist in advancing Christianity by helping to spread more widely the Gospel of Christ as He commanded before departing from this world.

There was some difference of opinion expressed as to what form the inaugural meeting should take. A few were not in favour of holding a banquet, stating that this was entirely a spiritual matter and if it could not be launched without "the assistance of the kitchen," it might as well be dropped. Those entertaining this idea were reminded of the fact that in all the cities in Canada where the laymen had united in the missionary work their first meeting took the form of a banquet. The method had proved a success and for the same reason Peterborough should be able to do likewise.

Spirit of Fellowship

Rev. Mr. Pearson, Rev. Mr. Coon, Rev. Mr. Webb, Mr. Rebt. Harding, Mr. J. C. Shook and others explained that the banquet was not for the purpose of a feast, it was in fact of trival importance, but it brought the men together in a manner that could not be secured otherwise. Men are social creatures, it was said, and the banquet was a matter of position. It placed everybody on the same level. There was nôt the formality of a lecture in a church where discussion was eliminated, and no one made bold to ask the speaker for any information he might desire. On the other hand they met in an easy manner, talked with their neighbours, listened to addresses and were free to ask any questions they desired. This was the first step that had been taken in other cities and everywhere had proved successful.

The Movement

Mr. D. W. Dumble was appointed chairman of the meeting and called upon Mr. J. C. Shook to speak on his impressions of the recent meeting in Toronto, when 1,000 laymen met in a grand assembly. The latter stated that we have a missionary work in the northwest strangers, too, are coming into the country who need help, and particularly had God opened up the world, offering to Christian nations every facility of reaching those people who have not yet heard His word. Let us then put into effect our duty to our fellowmen, he said. The organized effort of the man is educational. It aims at presenting to them the needs of those heathen and the golden opportunity offered of teaching them His message. It interests men in the work for they cannot but fail to appreciate their duty in this regard, and Mr. Shook said the laymen where organized have already done good work.

Unites the men

It brings men of all denominations together for one purpose. They are united in their determination to carry out God's instruction. "We are all agreed on this fundamental point," he said, and stated that it not only wakened men to their duty in the missionary work, but in all the departments of the church. It supplements the missionary work now being done and does not interfere with the congregational work of any body of Christians.

Mr. Clifford and Mr. A. McKenzie, of Knox Church, who attended the Toronto convention, likewise spoke highly in favour of the movement. Mr. Harry Long spoke in the same terms. Mr. Dumble referred to it, pointing out what could be accomplished.

Banquet Decided Upon

The question of having a banquet occupied the most time, and finally it was decided to adopt this idea. Mr. Wilson, of All Saints' Church, was appointed secretary. The committee who will have charge of the arrangements is composed of Messrs. R. G. Clifford, J. C. Shook, H. Long, Jas. Donnal, Mr. A. E. Wilson and Mr. E. J. Reid.

Further particulars will be announced when the speakers have been selected for the event.

The tea you buy may be good, but you may be quite sure it is if it is "Salada." It is infinitely more delicious and decidedly more economical than other teas because it goes farther.

PUBLIC PRESENTATION OF EXAMINER ROAD RACE PRIZES

Arrangements have been made to have the presentation of the prizes donated by the Examiner to the winners in the annual road races on Thanksgiving Day, take place in the Grand Opera House on Friday evening of next week, when Wm. Gillette's clever four-act comedy "All the Comforts of Home" will be repeated. As has been the custom in other years all those who started in the two races will be the guests of the management, and will occupy the boxes of the Grand. The event has been very popular in the past and the runners have shown their appreciation of the invitation by never failing to be on hand.

A large number of local people were unable to see "All the Comforts of Home" on its last presentation here by the clever cast of local amateurs which Mr. Irving Beers had collected for its production, and no doubt they will avail themselves of the opportunity that they will be given next week to see what has been termed the best amateur production ever seen in this city.

Further announcements in regard to the function will be given next week when the competitors will be informed as to where they are to obtain their tickets.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE SECURE OPTIONS ON SITES AVAILABLE FOR NEW LIBRARY

Boston Architects Write Offering to Send Plans Free of Cost, But no Action Was Taken Yesterday

WILL COST ABOUT $30 000

The Property Committee of the City Council at a meeting held yesterday afternoon discussed the public library question, or more particularly, the matter of securing a site and plans for the $30,000 building that is to be erected.

A letter was read from Messrs. Wright & McLean, a firm of Boston architects offering to submit sketches of a suitable building without any cost to the city, and to take their chances of being awarded the contract. A representative of the firm had been in the city and had seen Chairman Bradburn in connection with the matter.

It was felt that it would be better to decide upon the site first in order that it might be possible to give the architects some idea of the nature of the building needed and it was decided to take no action in regard to the letter from Messrs. Wright and McLean at the present time.

The question of the best site for the library was discussed and a number of sites situated in the central portion of the city were mentioned. The committee decided to secure options on these desirable sites as soon as possible.

There were present Ald. Bradburn, chairman; Ald. Gillespie, Morgan and Mayor Ruse.

Yachtsman Appreciates Courtesy Of The Lock Officials Of Trent Canal

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Now that the navigation on the Trent Waters has closed, I, as an old yachtsman, beg to show my appreciation of the accommodations and consideration, shown to me by the officials.

Great courtesy was received, especially in Peterborough, at the various locks, especially from Mr. Gillespie at the Lift Lock, and our old veteran John Cronin, at Lock No. 6, and Mr. Collins and his assistant, Mr. Jackson, Peterborough Lock. I am sure that they have done all in their power to oblige the various yachtsmen.

I merely say this to assure the officials, as far as I am concerned, of my appreciation, and I am sure I can speak for the rest of the yachtsmen in this vicinity.

Yours truly,
"YACHTSMAN."

HIS ARM WAS BROKEN

David Flynn Was the Victim of a Painful Accident at the New Armouries This Morning—Two Men Went Down Together.

FELL FOURTEEN FEET FROM TRESTLE TO THE GROUND

As a result of an accident at the new armouries this morning, David Flynn, a local carpenter, was very painfully injured and is now in St. Joseph's hospital. His injuries are the result of a fall of fourteen feet to the ground. Mr. Flynn and another carpenter, Fred Guerin, were at work upon a trestle when in some manner it is said a plank slipped from the scaffold throwing the two men to the ground. Guerin escaped unhurt with the exception of a shaking up, but his companion was not so lucky.

It was found that he was cut on the head and face, that one eye was hurt and that his left arm was broken. The Dan Spence ambulance was summoned and took the unfortunate man to St. Joseph's hospital, where his injuries were attended to by Dr. Morgan. At the time of going to press he was resting as easily as possible, considering his condition.

THE SHEFFIELD CHOIR SAIL FOR HOME FROM MONTREAL YESTERDAY

Montreal, Nov. 12—[illegible] saw the last of the Sheffield Choir early this morning, for it was just after daylight when they arrived in the city by a special train from Peterborough, over the C. P. R., and went immediately on board the Allan Liner Grampian, which sailed without delay for Liverpool. The members expressed themselves as highly pleased with their reception in Canada, though they did not speak so highly of the hotel and boarding-house accommodation which they had to put up with in different parts of the Dominion.

A LAYER OF ICE ON RICE LAKE JUST A YEAR AGO TO-DAY

A year ago to-day there was a layer of ice on Rice Lake, causing a cessation of navigation for a short time. It disappeared again before it finally froze up for the season. So far this fall the ice has not yet appeared, and the rivermen do not expect it for a few weeks yet. They are greatly pleased with the mild weather that has been experienced, as it has given them a chance to conclude their work.

BIG DERRICK BOOM FALLS UPON TWO MEN, CRUSHING THEM; BAD DOUBLE FATALITY TAKES PLACE ON THE TRENT CANAL

Wm. Cronin, Foreman for Larkin and Sangster, Was Almost Instantly Killed Near Glen Miller as Result of an Accident Yesterday—Italian Workman Was Also Killed.

CROWNER'S HEAD CRUSHED

Trenton, Nov. 13.—A most shocking accident occurred shortly after 4 o'clock this morning at the enlargement of the canal near Glen Miller, about three miles north of Trenton. Two men were instantly killed by the falling of a big derrick. One of the men was the foreman in charge of the work, and his home is in Trenton. The name is Wm. Cronen, a middle-aged man of forty odd years. He moved to Trenton early this year to undertake his duties as foreman for Larkin and Sangster, the contractors, of sections number one and two of the Trent Canal.

The other man killed was an Italian workman of rather advanced years, whose name is as yet unknown.

Tarsee Beary, a young man of Trenton, who was employed with Mr. Cronen, tells the story of the terrible accident. How he escaped death is difficult to explain. As it was one of his legs was scarred, and when he realized what had occurred he was lying on his face between the two dead men.

The large derrick had just lifted a big rock and, having discharged its load, and was returning empty when suddenly, without a moment's warning, what is known as the goat-neck broke. The supports of the derrick gave way and the great boom of the derrick came down with terrible force. Almost beneath it stood Foreman Cronen, and he was struck on the side of the head with a piece of a trestle, his ear being torn away, and his skull crushed. He only lived long enough to speak a few scarcely distinguishable words to Tarsee Beary, which, the young man thinks, was a message to his wife.

"Pearce, tell her——" were the only words he caught from the dying man's lips.

The unfortunate Italian workman met his death in a similar manner, and was killed instantly, as he was shovelling clay by.

OIL COMPANY MEETS WITH A DIFFICULTY; SOME FARMERS REFUSE TO LEASE LAND

Some difficulty is being experienced by those interested in the new gas and oil company that is to begin operations here, in regard to securing the property required. In most cases there has been no difficulty in securing the lease of property as soon as the objects of the company were pointed out and the terms of the lease made clear. However, in a few cases farmers have been met who, perhaps, because they did not understand clearly what is to be done, have refused to lease their land. As it is necessary that a solid block of land to the amount of 15,000 acres due west of the city must be secured the difficulty can be seen.

The conditions of the lease which Mr. Dittman is asking the farmers to sign provide that no wells are to be drilled within 200 feet of main buildings without the lessor's consent, that the lessee shall deliver to the lessor free of all cost the one-tenth part of all petroleum and other minerals produced and saved from the premises, and to pay $30 per annum for each gas well from which the gas is marketed.

The lessee also undertakes to pay any actual damage to crops caused by the operations and to give the lessor the free use of gas for one dwelling house situated upon the premises upon which gas may be found.

STAFF-CAPTAIN WALTON,
The new officer in charge of local corps of Salvation Army. He will conduct his first meetings to-morrow.

Interesting Statistics About the Townships and Villages of the County From Report of Bureau of Industries.

THE COUNTY'S TAXES

The annual report of the Bureau of Industries for the Province of Ontario for the year 1907 has just been issued, giving the municipal statistics of all the counties. Those referring to Peterborough contain a few facts that may be of interest to readers who like to know things.

The total population of the county for 1907 is given as 36,709, an increase of 1,127 over the preceding year. The total assessed values is quoted $19,671,717.00 and is $493,877.00 greater than in 1906. The total of the taxes imposed for all purposes including schools is for 1907, $251,955, which is $16,659 more than in 1906.

The township of Otonabee is recorded as having in 1907 a population of 2,860, thereby leading the others. Smith is next with 2,608. Otonabee's total assessment was $2,402,983.00 and Smith, $1,507,840.00; the former paid taxes amounting to $21,101.90 and Smith likewise had $15,256.00. The townships do not include the City of Peterborough nor the villages of Havelock, Norwood and Lakefield.

Music Lover Suggests Formation Of A Choral Union In Peterborough

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The visit of the Sheffield Choir was a most successful event, and I feel that I am but expressing the feelings of the community at large when I say that the committee who had the affair in charge are to be congratulated and thanked by the citizens for their efforts. However, I would venture to suggest that the committee might finish their task in a manner that would achieve the greatest benefit, if they would take steps to organize in Peterborough, a union such as visited us on Thursday evening. No doubt the task looks like a gigantic one, but I have no doubt that if the gentlemen who had charge of the arrangements for the visit of the Sheffield Choir were to take it in hand they could accomplish wonders. There is plenty of vocal ability in the city, and there is every reason to expect that all would lend their assistance to making a choral organization a success. At any rate the committee might look into the matter and give publicity to their opinion as to whether or not it would be practicable in Peterborough.

Yours, etc.,
A LOVER OF MUSIC.

THE ONWARD BIBLE CLASS HOLD SOCIAL; AN ENJOYABLE EVENING

The members of the Onward Bible class of the George street Methodist Church which is taught by Mrs. Jas. Stubbs, held a most successful and enjoyable social last evening in the Sunday School room of the church. There was a large attendance and the evening passed most pleasantly. Games were played and a delightful musical programme given. Mr. R. E. Armstrong occupied the chair. The following was the programme:

Solo—Mrs. McCall.
Recitation—Miss Powell.
Instrumental duet — The Misses Guggisberg.
Recitation—Miss Smith.
Duet—The Misses McKee.
Speech—Dr. Middleton.

At the close of the programme delightful refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour spent.

A DISCOVERY OF PETROLEUM ON OLD MAN RIVER IN ALBERTA

Pincher Creek, Alta., Nov. 12.—Considerable excitement has been caused here by the discovery that Dr. I. C. White, the great American gas and oil geologist, located in October of last year a great oil reservoir on the anticlinal ridge passing through this town, and extending from the south fork of the Old Man River at the north-west to the Waterton River, south-east of here. Dr. White was engaged by one of the oil companies operating in this vicinity, and although it was known that he had reported that gas would certainly be found near here, the fact that the prospects for oil were equally good was suppressed by the directors of the company and held secret, even from their shareholders, and a second report, referring only to gas, was made public. The company, in the meantime, has secured leases covering all minerals, which will include gas and oil, over about 12,000 acres. The information as to the real conditions has now only leaked out through the company above referred to having just let a contract to a Pennsylvania firm of oil well drillers to sink a number of wells. They are now placing four oil well drilling rigs on their leases here. Southern Alberta will soon be in the throes of a big oil boom. Leases have already advanced considerably in this vicinity.

HEAVY LOSS TO ROLLING STOCK AND THREE MEN WERE INJURED IN REAR END COLLISION ON THE C. P. R. NEAR PARNELL STREET AT ONE O'CLOCK THIS MORNING

SERIOUSLY INJURED—Thos. Abbey, brakeman, West Toronto.

TIME—One o'clock this morning.

PLACE—On C. P. R. main line at the west end of Parnell street.

A young brakesman in St. Joseph's Hospital with serious injuries about the head which may develop into concussion of the brain; a fireman and engineer with slight facial injuries; a jumbled mass of charred wood, twisted iron, car wheels and train debris, a van splintered into matchwood, four box cars wrecked and an engine battered and dented, its bare boiler mains the upperworks; this, in brief, was the result of a serious rear ed collision on the C.P.R. this morning at one o'clock on the main line at the west end of Parnell street.

Orders had been given the train crews to take the sidings to allow the midnight to pass and shortly after it had gone through Peterborough a freight train took the main line but was standing at the station. Another freight train pulled in but was stopped at Park street by the semaphore being against it. The van was just a short distance west of the end of Parnell street, when a third freight train, going east, as were the other two, flashed around the curve near Mr. O'Brien's residence and smashed into the standing freight before its speed could be even slightly diminished.

Heard for Blocks

As the train approached the city it was gradually slowed up, compared with its usual rate, but even then it was travelling at a fast clip. The crash of the impact was heard for blocks around and the shock rattled window panes and dishes as if the earth had quaked. Residents of Parnell street said that for a moment they thought something of that nature had happened. The big mogul engine with its long freight behind ground the van into small splinters. The sound of the wrenching of iron bars was simultaneous, and heardly had it died away when the hiss of escaping steam mingled with the long-drawn whistles of distress.

Cars Piled up

The engine literally swept the end cars of the standing freight from the track. It first plowed through the van and hurled four cars into the ditch on the east side of the main line before it left the rails and was itself turned in the opposite direction. The top of one car was taken off as cleanly as if sawn, another was turned up on its end, a third was almost broken up into its individual boards and a fourth was turned over on its side.

The big engine was minus its smoke stack, pilot, engineer's cabin and many of its smaller parts. In fact the boiler was bared, and stood out prominent above the wreckage with a big dent in the front plate.

Hurled From Car

Thomas Abbey, of Toronto Junction, a brakesman on the standing freight was in the van at the time and before he could escape the smash had come and the van was literally broken around him and he was hurled to one side of the tracks. He was badly injured about the head and for a time was unconscious. Several of the crew found him shortly afterwards and carried him back to the van. Dr. Gray, the company's physician was summoned and Mr. Abbey was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital. He was resting easily this morning and will likely recover if concussion of the brain does not result or internal injuries become apparent.

Jumped From Train

Michael Clark, of Havelock, was engineer on No. 1036, and with his fireman, named Hagerty, also of Havelock, jumped from their engine in time to save themselves. The engineer had a narrow escape as a box car of his train just missed falling on him. It leaned on another car and in this manner surely saved him from being crushed to death.

Both were slightly injured about the face, being cut and bruised around the eyes. Their wounds were dressed and they went through to their homes in Havelock.

Fire Broke Out

Shortly after the collision fire broke out around the engine, the van proving the first prey. A strong west wind fanned the flames which spread to another car. An alarm was sent in and the fire brigade responded quickly. They connected with a hydrant at the corner of Lake and Park streets, but had to return to the fire hall to obtain enough hose to reach that long distance. The flames were finally subdued and by 2.30 o'clock the auxiliary from Havelock arrived. The wheels and boiler of the engine had been red hot and certainly presented a fine picture, as the old black mogul took on this new colour.

Other Details

It was learned from one of the men that young Abbey was having a belated meal when the collision occurred, and the scattered food seemed to bear up the statement. The crews of the several trains searched through the debris for the books and papers that had been in the van and those of any importance were regained.

A fourth train came from the west about 1.30 o'clock and was flagged near Marvin's. This made four trains in a little over an hour, pointing to heavy traffic.

Contents of Car

This morning the goods in the wrecked cars were removed to empties.

General merchandize was found in one, and candies fell out of one of the packing cases. About 20 yards back from the engine a second fire broke out last night, but was extinguished by the brigade. This morning several barrels of oil were found within a few feet of it.

Track is Damaged

The main line rails and those of the siding on the west side are spread and twisted and the ties badly cut and in places rooted up. The engine extended over both lines leaving free a third siding which the wrecking crew began to clear.

LATER—This afternoon at three o'clock it was learned that Abbey was resting quietly and there was no appearance of complications. His friends consider that he had a miraculous escape. That he was not crushed to death in the van was wonderful. It was practically broken around him, and he was thrown out of the mass of splintered wood.

THE FRUITS OF OPTIMISM.

"Faint heart never won fair lady." The man who planned this proverb, pregnant in spirit and meaning, of great things, was an optimist. The following of its spirit's leading has won greater achievements, if such greater things be conceded, than the conquest of the fairest woman's heart. In church and state; in war and peace; in science and song; in trade and traffic; in ploughing and poetry; in empire building and empire wrecking; in all the realms of human activity; in all advance of the world, optimism counts its trophies a thousand to one of those of pessimism and faint heart. It led Columbus to the discovery of a new world, and lured or drove John Cabot and Jaques Cartier to the shores of Canada. It animated the Fathers of Confederation. The statesmen who builded the new empire of the West, made optimism its corner stone. Optimism moved the public spirit of the public spirited men who conceived and carried out the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway into the depths of unknown regions of unassessed resources. Who can reckon the fruits that are ripening and will ripen from this vine of steel that trails its shining metals across a continent? What the Canadian West is to-day, what much of its brilliant future will be, it owes to the optimism that laid out and laid down the Canadian Pacific Railway, which has become the greatest railway corporation, the greatest transportation system, in essence and potentiality, on this continent, if not on this globe. And it has become thus great through the development it has brought to the resources of Canada; every mile of new line represents a new mine of Canadian wealth staked out, a new fountain of growth tapped. It has blazed the trail of an all-red route between the centre of empire in the middle east, across the pathway of the Canadian West to the shores of the newest and oldest empire of the Far East. All the achievements and all the promise these conditions represent are the fruits of optimism exploited by enterprise and sanely guided.

It was optimism, founded on faith in the resources and future of New Ontario, that led the Ross Government in 1902 to conceive and build the Temiscamingue and Northern Railway, piercing a region whose worth was a matter of the big faith optimism begets. (In its very construction was disclosed a mighty deposit of silver whose existence in their day would have slumped the shares in the mines of Solomon. This year it is estimated the mineral output of these mines in the Cobalt will reach a value of ten million dollars, one year's fruit of optimism, more than enough to build and equip the provincial railway the some two hundred miles from its first steel at North Bay to its junction with the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, a combination augurring a tide of traffic and trade between west and north and east and south beyond computation. Not only is the unearthing of the argent wealth of the Cobalt, a fruit of the optimism that built the Temiscamingue and Northern, but another and as rich an orchard of ore fruit is in sight along the Montreal River, and this calls for another railway to bring its treasures in touch with commercial conditions.

Another fruit of optimism is the magnificent conception of the Grand Trunk Pacific, now under construction across a virgin belt of Canada's share of the continent. If a hundred miles stretch of the T. & N. R. R. opened up the richest silver deposits in the world, what may we not expect from the construction of 1,800 miles of railway through a trackless region in Ontario and Quebec that may contain similar stores of mineral and other wealth or equivalent actual worth, or resources of even greater economic value. And this, without taking into account, that other ninety score miles of the Transcontinental Railway will bring under economic subjection millions of acres of wheat lands as fertile as the valley of Egypt, under the influence of the flood silt of the Nile; joining its forces with the great work of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern, under which triple alliance of development, 1,500 new towns have been christened west of Lake Superior, in the past twelve years. Railways mean added national riches. In 1896 between Port Arthur and Banf there were 3,366 miles of railway. In 1908 there were 9,356 miles of railway built or under construction. Behind all this railway building activity —the answer of energy—and enterprise to demands of legitimate warrant—is optimism, faith in the resources and future of the great West and Canada at large.

In these dull days, between general elections, when political polemics are for the time largely relegated to the journalistic lumber room, it is meet to rhapsodize a little about the greatness and growing greatness of the Canada, of which we are so proud, especially as such large warrant therefor is so temptingly presented. An optimistic outlook, a hopeful heart, are spurs to action, incentives to achievement.

THE IMPERIAL PROBLEM IN CANADA.

The above is the title of an able article which appeared recently in The London Times. The article is evidently founded upon the letters of its correspondent in Canada, now stationed at Calgary. The Times opens its article by quoting Emerson's uncomplimentary description of the manners of the Englishman abroad and goes on to give the case for the Englishman away—for there is a case in favour of him. Nothing more severe has been said by any Canadian newspaper in regard to the Englishman than The London Times has to say of him. The Times says:—

"It is not only against ignoramuses and ne'er-do-wells that the resentment is felt, it includes all Englishmen as members of a tribe with certain characteristics in common which the Briton overseas is unable to endure. Even this comprehensive resentment we are constrained to admit, has considerable excuse. The travelling or immigrant Englishman has only one standard to which he instinctively refers everything that confronts him in his new surroundings, and that standard is 'home.' So little does he understand the irritation caused by this attitude that he is usually unconscious that any irritation exists. Yet such irritation is natural, and only needs a little imagination to be easily understood. A simple illustration would probably make the matter clear. Let him imagine himself, the Englishman, as an elder brother who has inherited the family seat and thus come easily into luxuries and conveniences which his younger brothers have had to set about to create. Let him remember when he descends upon the shores of one of the younger Britains, that he is entering the new home which a younger brother has built with toil and enthusiasm for himself. In such a case, the elder ought not to fail to realize the inevitable effect upon his junior of judging things in his new home by no other standard than their conformity to things in the old. But he almost invariably does so fail. Consequently and most naturally, he is unpopular."

Our great contemporary then turns its attention to the Canadians, and having done its best to make the Englishmen angry it performs the same kind office for the native born:

"At the same time the responsibility admittedly is not entirely upon the shoulders of the immigrant. Self-sufficiency and bluntness can be charged with equal justice to the other side of the account. If the immigrant Englishman has a galling standard of comparison, the local stalwart of the backwoods or the bush has no standard at all. He is prone to assure you that everything in his country is the finest of its kind in the world. He is given to the opinion that unfamiliar habits or garments or methods have only one explanation, the vernacular for which is 'side.' He has stock legends about the stupidity and incapacity of Englishmen, numbers of which any Englishman who knows one of the self-governing Dominions must inevitably have heard. He is even inclined to think such weaknesses an inevitable feature of any society that is old, and this tendency ends by colouring his political beliefs." The Times is on safer ground when it passes from the particular to the general; "It is indeed, the political aspect of these various forms and causes of disagreement, which is really serious from the Imperial point of view. Transferred into the atmosphere of high politics, the rooted English narrowness inspires, and colours the whole creed which looks still upon the self-governing Dominions as English possessions, whose sole and sufficient purpose should be to follow English opinion and strengthen English prestige. It is this spirit which confounds the growing aspirations of the Dominions for self-realization as national entities, and their desire for individual responsibility in such national duties as their own defence, with disloyalty to the British system and even to the Crown. Conversely, in the Dominions themselves, the reaction against the superiority assumed by Englishmen as a right leads in some sections to a total disregard of what the younger Britains still owe to the prestige and the protection of the country from which they sprang. It often also brings about a complete obliviousness to considerations which may not immediately affect the interests of this Dominion or of that, but which yet intimately concern the reputation of the Empire as a whole. During the last half century the growth of opinion in the Dominions has in fact been centrifugal. By a development as inevitable as any process known to history their patriotism, sprung from native soil, looks first and foremost to the future of their own land. The problem confronting Imperial statesmanship in our days is the reconciliation of these growing forces of nationalism with the principle of common aims and common action in the crucial questions which affect them all. That principle must find some definite political expression if the Empire is to be maintained, but, to be lasting, its realization must be gradual, and it will only be attained when Imperial statesmen, and particularly those of the Mother Country, understand the popular opinion with which they have to deal with in other parts of the Empire than their own. The growing system of conference is bringing an ever-increasing number of colonial statesmen and authorities to our shores, but there is not at present (a corresponding tendency among our statesmen to acquaint themselves at first hand with the feelings and ambitions of the colonies. The memorable example set by Mr. Chamberlain in his visit to South Africa, is not, perhaps, one which can be followed with much frequency but such unofficial visits which Lord Milner is now paying to Canada cannot be too widely commended to men in this country who aspire to real service in the Imperial cause. At present the self-governing Dominions undoubtedly know more of England than England knows of them."

The Times concludes by emphasizing the need for closer personal acquaintance among English statesmen with the life of the Dominions, and their ways of thought. The position taken by The London Times,—which, in journalism is, or was, the "Englishman's Bible," as a few years ago The Globe was described as the Scotchman's Bible,—sets forth some of the causes which interfere with harmonious relations between some Canadians and some Englishmen, and demonstrates that the fault is not all on one side.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Montreal Witness in the course of a recent article does, unwittingly no doubt, an injustice to the memory of Sir John A. Macdonald. It says that Sir John, in response to a remonstrance that protection in Canada, would imperil British connection, said "So much the worse for British connection." Now as recollection goes that sentiment or defiance as one chooses to call it, was uttered, not by Sir John, but by the Conservative organ, The Mail, now the Mail & Empire. The expression appeared in the second column of the editorial page about two-thirds of the distance down the column at the end of a short article. It therefore appears that Sir John did not originate the saying though he may have endorsed it. The "Old Chieftain," in his palmy days of power would jauntily dispose of the magnificent inconsistency revealed by a counter quotation of his celebrated saying, "A British subject I was born, a British subject I will die."

GRAND NEWS FOR WOMEN

Mrs. E. P. Richards Tells How Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Her.

Cottle's Cove, Notre Dame Bay, Nfld., Nov. 13.—Special—Grand news for women is that being scattered broadcast by Mrs. Elizabeth P. Richards, of this place. For years she suffered from that terrible weakness and those agonizing pains so many women know. She has found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills and she wants all suffering women to know it.

"For twenty-eight years," says Mrs. Richards, "I suffered from rheumatism, kidney trouble and neuralgia. I got so weak I could not do my housework. Sleep was out of the question except for a few minutes at a time. My back ached so I could not sleep. I tried all kinds of medicine and had come to the conclusion there was no cure for me, when reading advertisements led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I now sleep well and rise refreshed every morning. Dodd's Kidney Pills are all the medicine I want."

The woman who has healthy kidneys will never know the pains and weakness that make life hardly worth living. Dodd's Kidney Pills always make healthy kidneys.

Mi-o-na will cure your dyspepsia or any other stomach trouble by building up the flabby walls and making the stomach so strong that it will digest food without pepsin or other artificial aid.

In other words, Mi-o-na cures dyspepsia by removing the cause.

Wm. Madill is the agent for Mi-o-na in Peterborough and he says to every reader of the Examiner whose stomach is weak, who has indigestion or dyspepsia, that Mi-o-na is guaranteed to cure or money back.

The price is only 50 cents a large box, and one box is all you need to prove that you are on the right road to health and happiness.

Mr. Geo. Linder, of corner Mill and Park streets, Elmira, Ont., says: "For about ten years I have been severely troubled with stomach trouble and indigestion so bad that I could not retain my food after eating. I could not eat meat, or scarcely anything and had headaches and constipation. I secured a package of Mi-o-na with the result that now after having taken two boxes I am entirely cured and can eat anything, digest perfectly and am feeling fine. Mi-o-na also overcame my constipation. I am only too glad to publicly endorse and recommend Mi-o-na."

The Varied Life Of A Normal School Student

It is as it is, and so must be; the Normal school stands majestic on Aberdeen avenue and the students to the number of 158 are in our midst. On their arrival here they presented to the principal their credentials in the form of certificates which showed that in regard to the art of teaching, they were either experienced or inexperienced. Thus two grades or classes are necessary for the proper instruction of these teachers-in-training. As the majority of the students hail from the rural districts, the villages and small towns, this is (to a few at least) their first residence in a big city.

Let your mental camera get focussed on the High school graduate who has seriously considered the advisability of becoming a public school teacher and has finally decided to attend the Normal. For a month previous to get-away-day, the whole household is in a turmoil in the excitement of packing the student's trunk. Every member has suggestions as to what will be necessary in the city, What will be the proper clothes to wear and what amount of real cash is desirable, etc., etc. But when the neighbours hear of the pupil's expected departure they begin to say such things as "Going to the Normal, eh, and learn how to wallop kids!" And thus our future Normalite becomes quite a hero or heroine in the home settlement. The day of leaving home for the first time is always a trying one on the "interested party" as everyone seems so sad at losing the bright star of the family. There may be weeping with a few tears and the organs of speech may get balky, but still there is an element of pride and joy in the thought that "big bruder Bill" or sweet sister Liz" has set out for a famous young city which has famous new buildings.

The difficulty of securing a suitable boarding-place is completely annihilated because the principal of the school already has the names of those persons wishing to give accommodation to students, and has approved of the applicants and their households. Happily then, the new Normalites' entrance to the city is made easy and the fears of parents and friends at home, are allayed.

When the student is settled in the new quarters and writing materials are collected from the miscellaneous conglomeration in the travelling box, the first and most urgent duty is to get a quart of picture postal cards with views of the city and despatch them to each and every member of the family, to the neighbours and to the neighbours' children. For a few days this amusement sustains a strong link with Home, Sweet Home, but the re-action sets in and a certain degree of homesickness, according to the temperament of the student, is evident in the manner and countenance of the afflicted one. However, it is not for long, as the machinery of school is set in motion and the hum and buzz of industry with the whirl of social life, becomes so engrossing and the young man's or young woman's vision becomes so broadened that the habit of adapting oneself to circumstances is then and there acquired and firmly rooted.

The first class in a new building is usually working at a disadvantage for a week or so because of the unfamiliarity with the structure and its equipment; the apparatus needs limbering up and the work of organization requires careful consideration and trial. The handicaps on Peterborough's first class are especially large on account of the unfinished condition of the building and grounds. Indeed the sessions are greatly interrupted by workmen of mechanics in other rooms or by the teamsters and men improving the lawns. Yet it is not so important to be in the first class after all, for the judges in the final examinations will likely make due allowance for these drawbacks, and another point worthy of consideration is that the larger churches are tumbling over each other to get the honour of entertaining the real Normalites. These social events are in proper order as they give the student and opportunity of getting acquainted with the young people of the city, and destroy that tendency of some classes to hold aloof and refrain from mingling with the citizens. Now we call on the prophets to inform us as to how the future Normal classes will fare regarding cake and coffee, select programmes and young men to escort the ladies—it is not deemed advisable to even whisper anything about the possible doings of mysterious Mr. Cupid.

The real essence of the last paragraph is that the Normalites must be made aware in a tangible way that they are welcome in Peterborough, whether in 1908 or in years to follow, and both residents and visitors will be benefitted by the interchange of news and views.

To those of us who are unversed in the ways and means of gaining an education, the Normal life seems one grand round of pleasure, but the experienced ones say that "all that glitters is not gold," and that many weary hours must be spent every night grappling with such a misty subject as the science of education, or juggling with lesson plans. We are almost led to believe that the Normal Union calls for a twenty-four hour day, and that although the body is relaxed in slumber when the midnight oil runs down, yet the mental activities still continue looping the loop and jumping the gap in order to have a good score card next day. However, we surmise that there is some let-up to this nerve-racking pace on Saturdays, and that the student may take a jaunt into the country, explore the heights and depths of the city, experiment with skates, go shopping or attend the market.

To the students in Grade B, Normal life is one of new and ever-changing experiences as this is their first training in the teaching art, while to those in Grade A, it is but a continuation of the course at the Model School with several new subjects added. One of the pleasant memories which the Grade A students have of Model life is that of the literary society, which is such an important adjunct to every class of would-be teachers. When the "Lit" is thoroughly organized in the Normal, it should be a hummer, for with the foundation of previous experience, the large number of students from such a wide area, and the splendid assembly hall at their disposal, the result will certainly startle the inhabitants in that locality. The Literary Society with its "journal," bearing some fitting appellation, gives a grand opportunity for original minds to gallop around and kick over the traces in the exuberant joy of exultant youth. There it is that the tantalizing "wit" gets a start; the amateur poet scribbles rhymes and riddles, the embryo journalist becomes the real thing, and the budding elocutionist blossoms forth in all its glory.

To the humble members of the general public the question naturally arises, "Shall we be permitted to witness these magnificent displays of intellectual fireworks?" 'Nuff said.

Thoroughness of Normal Training

One supposition for the application of the name "Normal School" to an institution for the training of public teachers is this: When the course of study taught and practised there, has been completed and mastered, the student is in that "normal," healthy educational condition to which it is absolutely necessary for every teacher of young Canadians to attain, in order that the nation may advance. Thus the curriculum must embrace such subjects that it may be described as thorough and comprehensive and produce teachers of the all round variety. Anyone considering the scope of the work covered by the Normal students would, as a consequence, expect them to be fully equipped for the task before them. With a review of Public School work, a review of High School work, Science, Manual Training, Science of Education, Music, Art, Domestic Science and Commercial work, what more is desired along that line? In addition there is a gymnasium in which physical development is encouraged, and there is also religious instruction by city pastors to guide in the strengthening of moral fibre.

With this variety of studies to ponder, the Normalites would not be judged harshly if they blotted the word monotony from their vocabulary and offered no substitute.

In all probability the month of April will separate the lower and higher grades. The former have full possession of the building while their more advanced companions will likely speed away to the McDonald Institute at Guelph to complete their course. This will add a few pages to their already varied life, in the way of new scenery, new friends and new environments, but the final examinations will be approaching so closely that the shadows will tend to drive the light and merry thoughts behind the scenes. Another feature that is predominant about the end of the term, is that of securing a school where the training so faithfully assimilated may be put into use and be a factor in gaining a livelihood. The large daily newspapers are eagerly sought and scanned, friends are written to and requested to be on the alert for vacant schools and altogether it is an interesting and strenuous time.

The end of the term brings the last grand act in the form of the final examinations, when all the reserve forces are summoned to win the victory and march triumphantly home with the highly prized certificate, which gives the holder the right to be a real teacher in a real school.

About the end of next June, in the house where the departure of the future Normalite causes such a depression in the family spirits, the reverse condition will prevail, and a hearty welcome be extended to the one who will be much richer in life's experiences by the sojourn in the city. When the schools open next August the students of Grade B will endure that "first terrible day which comes to every teacher and will commence the work of a noble profession, the members of Grade A, having in years agone passed through the "mill" and with the power gained at the Normal, will recommence their duties with added vim and increased capacity.

In concluding the article it is requested that some of the Normalites will inform the humbler members of the general public through the medium of this publication, concerning the real variety of the life of a Normal student—the pleasures and pastimes, the joys and sorrows, the trials and tribulations, the ups and downs, and the work and play sides. The chief object of such a sketch would be to bridge over any omissions made here and to correct the misconceptions under which we labour. Set the pen artists get busy and clear our visions with a refreshing breeze from Dixon Park.

SLEEPLESS BABIES
ARE SICKLY BABIES

When babies are restless and sleepless it is the surest possible sign of illness. Well babies sleep soundly and wake up brightly. Sleeplessness is generally due to some derangement of the stomach or bowels or to teething troubles. A few doses of Baby's Own Tablets will put the little one right, and make it sleep naturally and soundly. Mothers need not be afraid of this medicine as it is guaranteed by a government analyst to contain no opiate or narcotic. Mrs. Louis Reville, Gaspe, Ont., says:—"I am never without Baby's Own Tablets in the house. I have used this medicine for my children as occasion required, for the last five years and have found it superior to all other medicines in curing the ills of childhood." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

International Co-operation In Maintenance Of Prices

An Interesting Article on the Principle and Practice of Industrial and Commercial Co-operation—A Matter of Interest to Local Business Men and Merchants.

In view of the spirited discussion at the recent banquet of the Retail Merchants' Association the following article by Judge Gary, in the Iron Age, will be read with interest by merchants as well as customers:

At the dinner given in London by the Iron and Steel Institute on September 11, to Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, the principal topic of discussion was the maintaining of prices at a remunerative level by international co-operation. Judge Gary's remarks were in part as follows:

"The nations of the earth are being brought nearer together. Steam, electricity and other forces are enabling us to travel and to communicate with each other more speedily and with less difficulty, by land and sea and sky. And soon, it is to be hoped, we shall have a common language. The day is approaching when among the nations there will be less diplomacy and more fraternity. God speed the day! We should be striving with, and for, one another, each nation endeavouring to help itself by helping all others. Weapons of war should be converted into implements of agriculture, and every question of difference determined by intelligent and honest discussion and equitable conclusion. As applied to the present, these ideas may not be wholly practicable. The people are not ready to avail themselves of their opportunities. Feelings of distrust and doubt and envy more or less predominate. In the future, however distant, there is hope and confidence. But, as applied to some of the prominent lines of business, including iron and steel, the doctrine of conciliation and co-operation are practicable, even now. If so, and we are ready to take advantage of the fact, who can estimate the benefit to be derived?

An American Demonstration of Co-operation.

"It has been demonstrated in America during the last year that the idea is practicable. In the month of October of 1907 we were visited by a financial cyclone. It was the culmination of many unfavourable and uncontrollable currents, not necessary to detail at present. At the beginning no one could accurately forecast the future. The possibilities of a prolonged and disastrous business depression were in the minds of all. The danger related to the iron and steel trade, perhaps, more than to any other; and that has been considered the barometer of trade conditions. Most of the jobbers throughout the country had purchased large stocks at the prices prevailing when conditions were favorable, which were undisposed of. Pending contracts for construction, which involved large purchases of iron and steel, extended to every locality. Contracts for new furnaces, mills, and equipment, and for raw and semi-finished material, had been made by large numbers of manufacturers. An immediate and radical reduction in prices would have meant bankruptcy to multitudes of concerns that had been successful and were considered substantial. And this would, perhaps, have precipitated trouble in many, if not all, other lines. These conditions were realized by bankers and financiers generally, and certainly by the manufacturers of iron and steel. They recognized their responsibility and rose to the occasion.

"Early in November an invitation was extended to the leading men connected with this industry, including about 60 in number, to meet in conference, and without exception the invitation met with an affirmative and cordial response. Conditions were favourable to the cause. The United States Steel Corporation, one of the largest concerns, has a Finance Committee composed of nine gentlemen, of great experience and intelligence, and connected in various ways with nearly all other prominent lines of industry, who determine the policy of the corporation. Then, the officers of the corporation and all its subsidiary companies are efficient and energetic, and always loyal to the policies determined by the committee. They can be relied upon to promptly carry to a successful conclusion any campaign determined upon. Besides, and better still, the manufacture of iron and steel in the United States as a whole is in the hands of men who cannot be surpassed in excellency. They are intelligent, honest, broad-minded and sincere.

"At the first meeting, after each one present expressed his opinion that the conditions and dangers were as I have previously stated, the doctrine of conciliation and co-operation was suggested. In some respects, at least, it was novel. In times gone by, when business prosperity was interrupted by a financial depression, or by doubt and distrust, however provoked, it had been customary for each one to consider and to endeavour to protect his own interests, regardless of all others. Each sold his own products wherever he could and at whatever prices he could obtain. Demoralization, panic and prolonged failure followed. It was customary to urge that the action was inevitable; that the law of supply and demand must control; that natural conditions cannot be changed. Parenthetically, I may say, I have my own definitions of these well worn expressions, but will not stop to name them. And so, last November, at first there were some who were more or less skeptical. They had doubts as to the success of the movement. But a large majority had confidence, and all were willing to make a trial.

"The suggestions which were made and finally adopted were simple. It was proposed to appoint a General Committee the respective chairmen of appoint subcommittees, connected with special lines. To the subcommittees any one interested in a particular line might apply for information and advice. And to the General Committee the respective chairman of subcommittees or any individual might apply for information and advice. Without going into detail, it suffices to say these committees kept fully informed in regard to the affairs of all, and freely advised individuals with respect to conditions, generally or in detail. While they were given no power, their advice was usually followed. No agreement to maintain prices, restrict output, or divide territory, or any other agreement was made. It seemed clear, however, that the result would be the same if the movement was to be successful; for how otherwise could any benefit be derived? Why meet together and keep one another fully informed unless each could recognise the rights and interests of all others? Each one was acquainted with the producing capacity of the others, of the territory naturally tributary to their furnaces and mills, of the customers of the others and of the prices charged. If any one proposed to change his prices or increase his output, or sell in a new territory, he would, as a matter of honesty and fairness, inform the committee. Without going further into detail, it is important to say the effort has been successful. It was to be expected there would be some mistakes by subordinates, and that, to some extent, there would be transactions beyond the bounds of propriety and fairness; but the total result has been a great benefit. Of course, from time to time manufacturers were imposed upon by proposed purchasers, who made the usual misrepresentation that other manufacturers were selling at a reduced price. This caused more or less anxiety, and the services of the committees were required to straighten out the trouble. The tricks of the trade are too well known to make it necessary to discuss them at the present time.

"It was not long before the movement secured the approval and hearty co-operation of all concerned. Prices have generally been maintained, demoralisation and insolvency prevented, and greater profits realized. The benefit to general business conditions and the influence in aiding restoration of business prosperity are testified to by financiers and by the press generally. Perhaps the most prominent good which has resulted is found in the feeling of friendship which exists among the members of the industry. This will be of great pleasure and profit to all in the long future. Frequent meetings are held at which each one present expresses with great freedom and frankness his views concerning all questions that are involved, and all have confidence in one another. The business is well in hand. The manufacturers are running their own business for their own gain, and yet at the same time they have injured no others. On the contrary, they have advanced the interests of their customers, their employees and the public generally.

Manufacturers in All Countries Should Work Together.

"I wish to emphasize the idea this evening that practical co-operation should be extended in our line of business particularly. The manufacturers of iron and steel in all countries should be working together with and for one another. If we have the intelligence and disposition to take advantage of our opportunities, we can be of great benefit to ourselves and to all others. While success cannot be reached without effort, perseverance and patience, and, above all, confidence in one another, it may be reached if we are determined.

"Human nature is about the same the world over. We are selfish, conceited and suspicious. We are inclined to look through a glass that magnifies our own importance and rights and minimises those of all others. We wrap around ourselves the coat of self-righteousness; but the good Lord looks down upon us and sees very little difference. When removed from temptation we are saints; but when it comes to business transactions with one another we are apt to be common sinners. We need to occupy a high plane where our vision is clear and unobstructed; where we can see the rights and interests of all others. We need to recognize the fact that by helping others we help ourselves, and that by injuring others we injure ourselves.

"I do not advocate anything that is antagonistic to the laws or to the public welfare. What I propose is the utilization of all our opportunities for the advancement of all our interests. A closer connection, a better understanding, a complete confidence, a full and free interchange of ideas, information conveyed by one to another concerning all the business in question, and an organized committee composed of men whose advice should always be followed; these thoughts amplified and formulated should bring to all of us the largest measure of success."

The Varied Life Of A Normal School Student

It is as it is, and so must be; the Normal school stands majestic on Aberdeen avenue and the students to the number of 158 are in our midst. On their arrival here they presented to the principal their credentials in the form of certificates which showed that in regard to the art of teaching, they were either experienced or inexperienced. Thus two grades or classes are necessary for the proper instruction of these teachers-in-training. As the majority of the students hail from the rural districts, the villages and small towns, this is (to a few at least) their first residence in a big city.

Let your mental camera get focussed on the High school graduate who has seriously considered the advisability of becoming a public school teacher and has finally decided to attend the Normal. For a month previous to get-away-day, the whole household is in a turmoil in the excitement of packing the student's trunk. Every member has suggestions as to what will be necessary in the city, What will be the proper clothes to wear and what amount of real cash is desirable, etc., etc. But when the neighbours hear of the pupil's expected departure they begin to say such things as "Going to the Normal, eh, and learn how to wallop kids!" And thus our future Normalite becomes quite a hero or heroine in the home settlement. The day of leaving home for the first time is always a trying one on the "interested party" as everyone seems so sad at losing the bright star of the family. There may be weeping with a few tears and the organs of speech may get balky, but still there is an element of pride and joy in the thought that "big bruder Bill" or sweet sister Liz" has set out for a famous young city which has famous new buildings.

The difficulty of securing a suitable boarding-place is completely annihilated because the principal of the school already has the names of those persons wishing to give accommodation to students, and has approved of the applicants and their households. Happily then, the new Normalites' entrance to the city is made easy and the fears of parents and friends at home, are allayed.

When the student is settled in the new quarters and writing materials are collected from the miscellaneous conglomeration in the travelling box, the first and most urgent duty is to get a quart of picture postal cards with views of the city and despatch them to each and every member of the family, to the neighbours and to the neighbours' children. For a few days this amusement sustains a strong link with Home, Sweet Home, but the re-action sets in and a certain degree of homesickness, according to the temperament of the student, is evident in the manner and countenance of the afflicted one. However, it is not for long, as the machinery of school is set in motion and the hum and buzz of industry with the whirl of social life, becomes so engrossing and the young man's or young woman's vision becomes so broadened that the habit of adapting oneself to circumstances is then and there acquired and firmly rooted.

The first class in a new building is usually working at a disadvantage for a week or so because of the unfamiliarity with the structure and its equipment; the apparatus needs limbering up and the work of organization requires careful consideration and trial. The handicaps on Peterborough's first class are especially large on account of the unfinished condition of the building and grounds. Indeed the sessions are greatly interrupted by working of mechanics in other rooms or by the teamsters and men improving the lawns. Yet it is not so important to be in the first class after all, for the judges in the final examinations will likely make due allowance for these drawbacks, and another point worthy of consideration is that the larger churches are tumbling over each other to get the honour of entertaining the real Normalites. These social events are in proper order as they give the student and opportunity of getting acquainted with the young people of the city, and destroy that tendency of some classes to hold aloof and refrain from mingling with the citizens. Now we call on the prophets to inform us as to how the future Normal classes will fare regarding cake and coffee, select programmes and young men to escort the ladies—it is not deemed advisable to even whisper anything about the possible doings of mysterious Mr. Cupid.

The real essence of the last paragraph is that the Normalites must be made aware in a tangible way that they are welcome in Peterborough, whether in 1908 or in years to follow, and both residents and visitors will be benefitted by the interchange of news and views.

To those of us who are unversed in the ways and means of gaining an education, the Normal life seems one grand round of pleasure, but the experienced ones say that "all that glitters is not gold," and that many weary hours must be spent every night grappling with such a misty subject as the science of education, or juggling with lesson plans. We are almost led to believe that the Normal Union calls for a twenty-four hour day, and that although the body is relaxed in slumber when the midnight oil runs down, yet the mental activities still continue looping the loop and jumping the gap in order to have a good score card next day. However, we surmise that there is some let-up to this nerve-racking pace on Saturdays, and that the student may take a jaunt into the country, explore the heights and depths of the city, experiment with skates, go shopping or attend the market.

To the students in Grade B, Normal life is one of new and ever-changing experiences as this is their first training in the teaching art, while to those in Grade A, it is but a continuation of the course at the Model School with several new subjects added. One of the pleasant memories which the Grade A students have of Model life is that of the literary society, which is such an important adjunct to every class of would-be teachers. When the "Lit" is thoroughly organized in the Normal, it should be a hummer, for with the foundation of previous experience, the large number of students from such a wide area, and the splendid assembly hall at their disposal, the result will certainly startle the inhabitants in that locality. The Literary Society with its "journal," bearing some fitting appellation, gives a grand opportunity for original minds to gallop around and kick over the traces in the exuberant joy of exultant youth. There it is that the tantalizing "wit" gets a start; the amateur poet scribbles rhymes and riddles, the embryo journalist becomes the real thing, and the budding elocutionist blossoms forth in all its glory.

To the humble members of the general public the question naturally arises, "Shall we be permitted to witness these magnificent displays of intellectual fireworks?" 'Nuff said.

Thoroughness of Normal Training

One supposition for the application of the name "Normal School" to an institution for the training of public teachers is this: When the course of study taught and practised there, has been completed and mastered, the student is in that "normal," healthy educational condition to which it is absolutely necessary for every teacher of young Canadians to attain, in order that the nation may advance. Thus the curriculum must embrace such subjects that it may be described as thorough and comprehensive and produce teachers of the all round variety. Anyone considering the scope of the work covered by the Normal students would, as a consequence, expect them to be fully equipped for the task before them. With a review of Public School work, a review of High School work, Science, Manual Training, Science of Education, Music, Art, Domestic Science and Commercial work, what more is desired along that line? In addition there is a gymnasium in which physical development is encouraged, and there is also religious instruction by city pastors to guide in the strengthening of moral fibre.

With this variety of studies to ponder, the Normalites would not be judged harshly if they blotted the word monotony from their vocabulary and offered no substitute.

In all probability the month of April will separate the lower and higher grades. The former have full possession of the building while their more advanced companions will likely speed away to the McDonald Institute at Guelph to complete their course. This will add a few pages to their already varied life, in the way of new scenery, new friends and new environments but the final examinations will be approaching so closely that the shadows will tend to drive the light and merry thoughts behind the scenes. Another feature that is predominant about the end of the term, is that of securing a school where the training so faithfully assimilated may be put into use and be a factor in gaining a livelihood. The large daily newspapers are eagerly sought and scanned, friends are written to and requested to be on the alert for vacant schools, and altogether it is an interesting and strenuous time.

The end of the term brings the last grand act in the form of the final examinations, when all the reserve forces are summoned to win the victory and march triumphantly home with the highly prized certificate, which gives the holder the right to be a real teacher in a real school.

About the end of next June, in the home where the departure of the future Normalite causes such a depression in the family spirits, the reverse condition will prevail, and a hearty welcome be extended to the one who will be much richer in life's experiences by the sojourn in the city. When the schools open next August the students of Grade B will endure that "first terrible day which comes to every teacher and will commence the work of a noble profession. The members of Grade A, having in years agone passed through the "mill," and with the power gained at the Normal, will recommence their duties with added vim and increased capacity.

In concluding the article it is requested that some of the Normalites will inform the humbler members of the general public through the medium of this publication, concerning the real variety of the life of a Normal student—the pleasures and pastimes, the joys and sorrows, the trials and tribulations, the ups and downs, and the work and play sides. The chief object of such a sketch would be to bridge over any omissions made here and to correct the misconceptions under which we labour. Get the pen artists get busy and clear our visions with a refreshing breeze from Dixon Park.

SLEEPLESS BABIES
ARE SICKLY BABIES

When babies are restless and sleepless it is the surest possible sign of illness. Well babies sleep soundly and wake up brightly. Sleeplessness is generally due to some derangement of the stomach or bowels or to teething troubles. A few doses of Baby's Own Tablets will put the little one right, and make it sleep naturally and soundly. Mothers need not be afraid of this medicine as it is guaranteed by a government analyst to contain no opiate or narcotic. Mrs. Louis Reville, Gawas, Ont., says:—"I am never without Baby's Own Tablets in the house. I have used this medicine for my children as occasion required, for the last five years and have found it superior to all other medicines in curing the ills of childhood." International Co-operation In Maintenance Of Prices

An Interesting Article on the Principle and Practice of Industrial and Commercial Co-operation—A Matter of Interest to Local Business Men and Merchants.

In view of the spirited discussion at the recent banquet of the Retail Merchants' Association the following article by Judge Gary, in the Iron Age, will be read with interest by merchants as well as customers:

At the dinner given in London by the Iron and Steel Institute on September 11, to Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, the principal topic of discussion was the maintaining of prices at a remunerative level by international co-operation. Judge Gary's remarks were in part as follows:

"The nations of the earth are being brought nearer together. Steam, electricity and other forces are enabling us to travel and to communicate with each other more speedily and with less difficulty, by land and sea and sky. And soon, it is to be hoped, we shall have a common language. The day is approaching when among the nations there will be less diplomacy and more fraternity. God speed the day! We should be striving with, and for, one another, each nation endeavouring to help itself by helping all others. Weapons of war should be converted into implements of agriculture, and every question of difference determined by intelligent and honest discussion and equitable conclusion. As applied to the present, these ideas may not be wholly practicable. The people are not ready to avail themselves of their opportunities. Feelings of distrust and doubt and envy more or less predominate. In the future, however distant, there is hope and confidence. But, as applied to some of the prominent lines of business, including iron and steel, the doctrine of conciliation and co-operation are practicable, even now. If so, and we are ready to take advantage of the fact, who can estimate the benefit to be derived?

An American Demonstration of Co-operation.

"It has been demonstrated in America during the last year that the idea is practicable. In the month of October of 1907 we were visited by a financial cyclone. It was the culmination of many unfavourable and uncontrollable currents, not necessary to detail at present. At the beginning no one could accurately forecast the future. The possibilities of a prolonged and disastrous business depression were in the minds of all. The danger related to the iron and steel trade, perhaps, more than to any other; and that has been considered the barometer of trade conditions. Most of the jobbers throughout the country had purchased large stocks at the prices prevailing when conditions were favorable, which were undisposed of. Pending contracts for construction, which involved large purchases of iron and steel, extended to every locality. Contracts for new furnaces, mills, and equipment, and for raw and semi-finished material, had been made by large numbers of manufacturers. An immediate and radical reduction in prices would have meant bankruptcy to multitudes of concerns that had been successful and were considered substantial. And this would, perhaps, have precipitated trouble in many, if not all, other lines. These conditions were realized by bankers and financiers generally, and certainly by the manufacturers of iron and steel. They recognized their responsibility and rose to the occasion.

"Early in November an invitation was extended to the leading men connected with this industry, including about 60 in number, to meet in conference, and without exception the invitation met with an affirmative and cordial response. Conditions were favourable to the cause. The United States Steel Corporation, one of the largest concerns, has a Finance Committee composed of nine gentlemen, of great experience and intelligence, and connected in various ways with nearly all other prominent lines of industry, who determine the policy of the corporation. Then, the officers of the corporation and all its subsidiary companies are efficient and energetic, and always loyal to the policies determined by the committee. They can be relied upon to promptly carry to a successful conclusion any campaign determined upon. Besides, and better still, the manufacture of iron and steel in the United States as a whole is in the hands of men who cannot be surpassed in excellency. They are intelligent, honest, broad-minded and sincere.

"At the first meeting, after each one present expressed his opinion that the conditions and dangers were as I have previously stated, the doctrine of conciliation and co-operation was suggested. In some respects, at least, it was novel. In times gone by, when business prosperity was interrupted by a financial depression, or by doubt and distrust, however provoked, it had been customary for each one to consider and to endeavour to protect his own interests, regardless of all others. Each sold his own products wherever he could and at whatever prices he could obtain. Demoralization, panic and prolonged failure followed. It was customary to urge that the action was inevitable; that the law of supply and demand must control; that natural conditions cannot be changed. Parenthetically, I may say, I have my own definitions of these well worn expressions, but will not stop to name them. And so, last November, at first there were some who were more or less skeptical. They had doubts as to the success of the movement. But a large majority had confidence, and all were willing to make a trial.

"The suggestions which were made and finally adopted were simple. It was proposed to appoint a General Committee the respective chairmen of appoint subcommittees, connected with special lines. To the subcommittees any one interested in a particular line might apply for information and advice. And to the General Committee the respective chairman of subcommittees or any individual might apply for information and advice. Without going into detail, it suffices to say these committees kept fully informed in regard to the affairs of all, and freely advised individuals with respect to conditions, generally or in detail. While they were given no power, their advice was usually followed. No agreement to maintain prices, restrict output, or divide territory, or any other agreement was made. It seemed clear, however, that the result would be the same if the movement was to be successful; for how otherwise could any benefit be derived? Why meet together and keep one another fully informed unless each could recognise the rights and interests of all others? Each one was acquainted with the producing capacity of the others, of the territory naturally tributary to their furnaces and mills, of the customers of the others and of the prices charged. If any one proposed to change his prices or increase his output, or sell in a new territory, he would, as a matter of honesty and fairness, inform the committee. Without going further into detail, it is important to say the effort has been successful. It was to be expected there would be some mistakes by subordinates, and that, to some extent, there would be transactions beyond the bounds of propriety and fairness; but the total result has been a great benefit. Of course, from time to time manufacturers were imposed upon by proposed purchasers, who made the usual misrepresentation that other manufacturers were selling at a reduced price. This caused more or less anxiety, and the services of the committees were required to straighten out the trouble. The tricks of the trade are too well known to make it necessary to discuss them at the present time.

"It was not long before the movement secured the approval and hearty co-operation of all concerned. TOWN OF CAMPBELLFORD ADVANCING

More new buildings have been erected in Campbellford during the past season than for years past and the little town on the Trent claims to have enjoyed a prosperous summer, while on every hand there were reported hard times. The factories continued doing a good business, the farmers all around had a good harvest, the business men kept up with the rest, and the labouring class had plenty of work to keep them busy. The operations on the Trent Canal have done considerable to promote prosparity and it is said that the predictions that the closing of the bars would ruin the town, have not been realised.

HOWARD HANDS HUFF A CHRISTMAS CARD

Quite a complimentary expression of appreciation from Fire Chief Howard and the members of the Fire Brigade has been received by Mr. Ed. Huff, the civic tailor, who was awarded the contract for supplying the Brigade with new winter suits. The letter conveys the entire satisfaction of the men with the excellent make-up and smart fit of the suits, which effect such an improvement in the appearance of the men.

Music and Drama

AMERICAN GIRL AND MUSIC

"There are many voices, but alas! few singers," was a recent declaration of Mme. Gadski. "So much is needed in addition to a good vocal organ. One must have health, brains, training, and above all the capacity for indefatigable work. I have heard many wonderful voices in this country and many poor ones! Young American girls often come to me for advice, and I urge them to study seriously. Then I wait and wait but I seldom hear of them again. What becomes of them? The old story — a voice, but no patience. A girl had best renounce all thoughts of an operatic career unless she will devote at least seven hours a day to vocal training. And then, when ready for her debut, she will find her labours have just begun." Of America, Mme. Gadski is sincerely fond. "Americans are learning to live as well as to work," she said recently. "The musical taste is steadily improving. During my nine seasons in this country I have noted wonderful changes. When I first came, they wanted only cheap music — now it is only the best. Schumann, Schubert, Wagner, they want now."

WEDDING BELLS

HARRISON—WINDSOR

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abner Windsor, Apsley, on Nov. 3rd., when his eldest daughter Miss Ethel, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Albert J. Harrison, son of Mr. Thomas Harrison, Peterborough. The bride who was given away by her father, looked very pretty in a travelling suit of brown poplinette, with champagne colored silk, blouse and hat to match. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Sybil, who was dressed in a brown tailor-made suit, while the groom was supported by Mr. Donald Tucker of Apsley. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Garbutt, of the Methodist church, Apsley, in the presence of only the intimate friends of the bride and groom. After the ceremony dinner was served in the dining room, which was prettily decorated for the occasion. Mr and Mrs. Harrison left at 12.30 for Peterborough where they will reside in future.

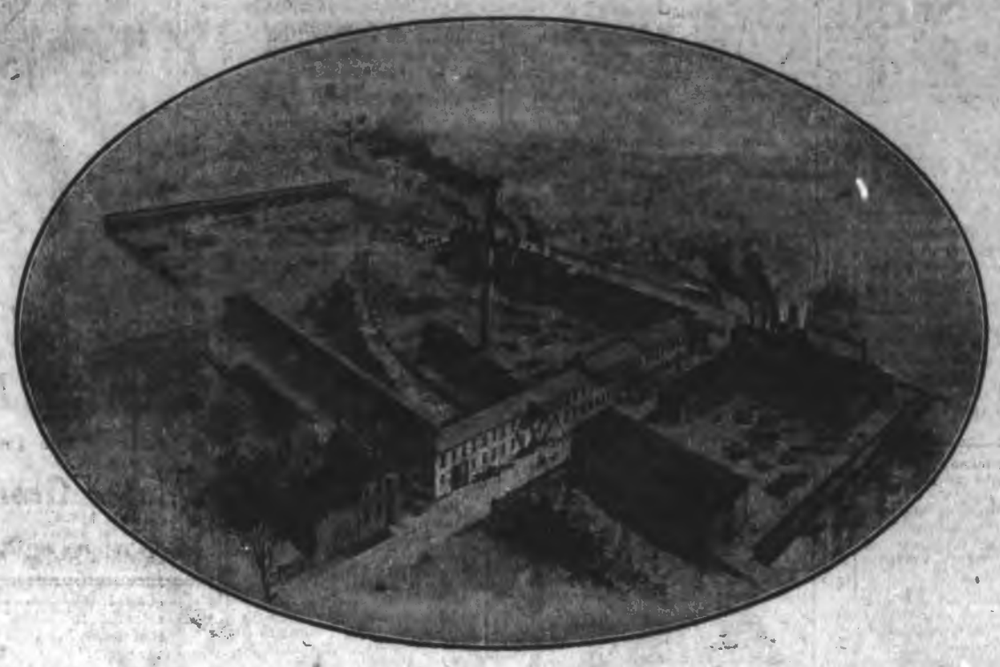
BUILD UP PETERBOROUGH

WM. HAMILTON COMPANY LIMITED

GOING TO START



Peterborough can become in a few years a very large manufacturing centre, with a population of 50,000 people. Its railway facilities, its water power, its Trent Valley Canal, its magnificent agricultural country can if judiciously used at least double its present population in the next ten years.

Peterborough is essentially a manufacturing centre, every factory located here, means increased money to be spent in Peterborough, more pay rolls means increased buyers at the market, at the stores, in the shops—it means more houses to be occupied, more people to be fed and clothed—it means more employment for the people, more money to be handled by our banks—it means in short, Growth and Prosperity for Peterborough and surrounding country. One of our oldest and best factories The William Hamilton Manufacturing Company which started on a small scale fifty years ago, and which has done so much for Peterborough in the past has been closed now for some months and a systematic and concerted effort is being made at present to have the factory opened and at least 150 hands at work by January 1st, 1909. This factory is located almost in the centre of Peterborough and with grounds covers between six and seven acres.

The cost of this factory and its equipment was over $319,000. The present company have purchased the entire plant, buildings, machinery, patterns, good-will, name and over $20,000 of raw material and stock in trade, all for less than one-third of original cost.

Of the plant the boiler shop and pattern warehouse are new, having been built during the past five years, while the moulding shop, foundry and part of the machine shop have been modernized and equipped with labour saving devices and there is over $35,000 worth of modern machinery that has been installed in the past 6 years, so that the plant to-day is easily worth more than twice what it has cost the present company, beside the large amount of stock in trade valued conservatively at over $20,000, now on hand.

To get working capital we are asking the citizens of Peterborough and surrounding country to subscribe for $30,000 of Preference Stock in this enterprize on the following conditions:—

The Preference Stock bears interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum and is cumulative so that if in any year there were only sufficient earnings to pay 7 per cent. the other 1 per cent. is a first charge on the profits of the next year, with each two shares of Preference Stock one share of Common Stock is given as a Bonus. Each purchaser of Preference Stock can thus receive 8 per cent. on the money invested and whatever dividends the common stock may earn. This is a good, straightforward proposition, honest from top to bottom in which there is no watered stock and in which each shareholder is most amply secured. What has been the output of this factory? From the signed statement of W. R. Morris, Chartered Accountant, who has audited the books of this company, the sales for the six years 1901 to 1906, both included were $1,552,050.00 or average sales for the six years of $258,675 per year, the bulk of the sales being in Ontario, though their customers are found from Vancouver to Halifax. Having been manufacturing for over fifty years and supplying Saw Mill Machinery, Water Wheels, Boilers, Engines and Mining Machinery to hundreds of Mills and Factories in Canada—the keeping in repair of these each year gives the Company a very large revenue—and as the present Company own and hold all the Patterns this Repair item alone is a guarantee of a large trade.

If you are one of the citizens who want to knock everything that is coming Peterborough's way you will go right out and condemn this enterprize; but if, on the other hand, your business is here and your home is here, this enterprise asks for your backing, for your Co-operation—your good word and for a careful examination—to see if this is not the very soundest, the safest and the surest investment that has ever been offered to the citizens of Peterboro and the surrounding country. Let every business man—every one with idle money—look at the cut of this magnificent factory shown herewith covering nearly seven acres in the very heart of Peterborough—all ready equipped and ready for business—and tell us if there is any sane reason why this factory should remain closed for lack of working capital when we have $3.000,000 in the Savings Bank in the City on which we are receiving 3 per cent—Is there any reason why the trade that this factory has built up should be allowed to go elsewhere to build up other towns and cities—while skilled men are here to do the work and this trade belongs legitimately to Peterboro? Running with the full complement of men this factory will pay out $12.000 per month in wages. What does this mean to you? What does it mean to this city? And what does this mean to the surrounding country? We ask you to examine what we have to offer and give us an opportunity of showing it to you. We can show you an investment in every way sound and reliable, and your money will at the same time help to build up Peterborough. We are asking neither gifts nor charity, but do ask that every one who has the interest of Peterborough at heart will co-operate with us in this movement.

The buildings are being put in thorough repair and a large part of the former staff have taken up the matter and are working to the limit of their ability.

Will you co-operate with them and at the same time help yourself?

Society Woman Has Educated Chimpanzee Dine With Guests

Lunches With Spain's Ambassador in Paris—One of Four "Gentleman Monkeys"—It also Brushes its Teeth.

IT AMUSES HER FRIENDS

Paris, Nov. 14 — Mrs. Abreu, by birth a Cuban, well known in society here and in New York, rejoices in the possession of a most gifted pet, a wise and cultivated chimpanzee. All Paris is laughing over the polite chimpanzee's social qualities and good manners.

Americans living here were vastly amused some time ago by the report that some of their countrymen at Newport, being rather jaded and seeking fresh social excitements, had a monkey named Consul as their guest at dinner. The report was denied here; so, perhaps Mrs. Abreu had no precedent for the remarkable incident at her table one day this week. At any rate she is not imitative.

The Marquis del Muni, the Spanish Ambassador at Paris, was one of Mrs. Abreu's guests at luncheon. When the party had seated themselves one chair at the table was unoccupied. A tall chimpanzee, walking erect and wearing an elegant costume of scarlet cloth, bowed profoundly and gravely took the chair until then vacant, which happened to be next to the Spanish Ambassador.

"Ambassador," laughed the hostess, "if you do not desire your neighbour to remain, pray tell me so."

"Madame," returned the Ambassador with perfect gravity, "let me remind you that, as a diplomat, I must be deeply interested by a creature so gentlemanly — and so silent."

So the extraordinarily intelligent chimpanzee, which Mrs. Abreu herself educated, remained at table. It behaved perfectly, used napkin, fork and spoon almost as gracefully as the Marquis himself.

"Ambassador, you are eating nothing," said Mrs. Abreu several times.

"I am watching our friend here, madame," said the Ambassador. "Superb as is your luncheon, to watch him is better than to eat."

The luncheon finished, the chimpanzee gallantly kissed the hands of the ladies present and retired.

Mrs. Abreu, who has a residence in New York, maintains a private zoological garden at her magnificent home near Havana. She brought four chimpanzees to Paris and a negress to take care of them. Usually the great monkeys dine together at their own table. Occasionally the most intelligent of the surprising quartet is admitted to Mrs. Abreu's table.

This chimpanzee saw Mrs. Areu brushing her teeth one morning. "Monkey see, monkey do." The next morning she saw the chimpanzee going through the motions of brushing its teeth; now it uses a tooth brush and tooth powder, and, like its three brethren, receives a warm bath twice a week.

Mrs. Abreu says the chimpanzees behave like human babies, and that she has the greatest interest and amusement in watching the development of their minds by training; they soon come to understand everything that is said to them, whether in English or Spanish.

Mrs. Abreu says that if the winter is severe here she will take her pets to Cuba rather than run the risk of losing them by pneumonia.

FINE BUILDING FOR NEW BANK

Residents of Stirling Will Have Use of Vault of Bank of Montreal.

Among the new buildings that are being erected in the recently devastated village of Stirling is that which will be the new office of the Bank of Montreal. It is being equipped with all the latest equipment of which the cash vault will be a feature, that will be of great service to the residents of the village. It has been strengthened by another layer of fire-proof brick and covered with a new dome-shaped steel reinforced cement roof, is to be equipped with steel safety deposit boxes, in which anyone may leave their valuable papers, such as wills, insurance policies, mortgages and deeds. This will furnish a positively safe place for valuables and it is the intention of the bank to offer this convenience to all of its customers free of charge.

THE SHEFFIELD CHOIR LEAVES OUR BORDERS

Quebec, Nov. 13 — The Sheffield Choir closed their Canadian tour here tonight by a concert at the drill hall before an audience of three thousand people.

The choir donated half of the proceeds to be divided between local Catholic and Protestant charities.

HUNTERS RETURN FROM THEIR TRIP

The members of the Peterborough and Lindsay party who have been hunting at Morgan's Lake, near the Algonquin National Park, returned to the city yesterday and report a most enjoyable hunt. The party succeeded in getting a deer for every member and thoroughly enjoyed the outing. It was new country for the majority of the nimrods and they all have a good word for it, although they state that it is a bad country for dogs. They lost one dog and several others were missing for some days. The weather was good, although somewhat cold. Some three inches of snow fell in the vicinity of the camp. The members of the party were Messrs. T Houlihan, Frank White, T Rutherford and Herb Kendry, of Peterborough; Messrs. Little and Pratt, of Lindsay, and Mr. Geo. Burnham, of Toronto.

FORMER PETERBORO' BOY IS LIBRARIAN OF TORONTO

Becomes Librarian of Toronto Public Library at a Salary of $4000 Per Year.

Mr. George H. Locke, dean of the teaching faculty of Macdonald College, and acting professor of education in McGill University was yesterday appointed by the Public Library Board as chief librarian in succession to the late Dr. Bain. The salary is $4,000 a year. Mr. Locke, who has received the signal honour referred to above, was a former resident of Peterborough, being a son of Rev. J H Locke, at one time pastor of the George street Methodist church. He is a graduate of Toronto University, and 38 years of age. While here he was a student of the Collegiate, and the many friends he made in Peterborough will join in congratulations upon his success.

A CARNIVAL OF BIG SAVINGS AT TURNBULL'S

Wonderful Concessions Secured From a Toronto Wholesaler — Peterboro' Public to Reap the Benefit.

What is claimed will be the biggest price saving event ever offered in Peterborough will be started on Thursday night, the 19th of November, at the Turnbull Company's Departmental Store. This aggressive firm has been demonstrating in various ways the power of money in securing surplus stock of manufacturers for the benefit of their patrons at bed-rock prices. What it will do for Peterborough buyers, and what it has done for the Turnbull Company, will be still more wonderfully developed by the big, bustling saving sale, which is billed to last for fifteen days. See the page advertisement in to-day's Examiner.

Once in a while, only, is it possible for such immensely good things to come the way of economical buyers, especially ladies and housekeepers. The why and the wherefore of the lucky stroke of economy by the Turnbull Company is soon to be known in all corners of the city. In addition to the bold and effective full page advertisement in another part of this issue, every house in the city is to be tagged with red tags, giving a brief statement of the facts.

It seems that this deal was consummated by securing a Toronto wholesaler's surplus stock, prior to stock taking.

The goods consist of tapestry and Brussels carpets, linoleums, oilcloths, tapestry velvets and tapestry squares, tapestry curtains, art sateens, art muslins, damasks, tablings, cloths and napkins, women's underwear, dress goods, etc., as well as many Christmas lines. These goods were bought at a good deal less than they are worth—the saving estimated to be about 33 1-3 per cent. off. And they are going to be sold the Peterborough shoppers that way. They were bought for the same reason that the public will buy them; away below value. It was a rare chance for the Turnbull Company, and it should prove a rare chance for the customers of this firm. It isn't often that a store can offer the newest of fall and winter styles at about one-third off regular value, just at this time of year. Here is an opportunity worth waiting for—an opportunity for everyone within reach of this store, to supply themselves with articles of most up-to-date requirements, almost every need of the home, every known staple at most substantial and decidedly marked money saving on every purchase.

All The Departments Of Y.M.C.A. Now In Satisfactory Operation

Last Night Was Typical Example of the Average Evening at This Now Flourishing Institution—Every Room Was Occupied.

THE BOYS TAKING INTEREST

The activities of the Young Men's Christian Association are now in full swing. Last night saw every room in the building in use for one or another of the many departments of the Association's work.

In the basement the bowling alleys were taxed to their utmost to accomodate the "would-be" bowlers. The rooms adjoining the bowling alleys were used for wrestling and boxing respectively—and, of course, the dressing rooms and baths were scenes of activity.

On the main floor all evening men were coming and going. In the parlour early in the evening some few met for prayer, remembering the topics outlined for the day by the International Committee—this being the Week of Prayer for men throughout the world. Following this was held in the parlour a meeting of representatives from the various churches to discuss the Laymen's Missionary Movement. In the Club room to the rear of the parlour was a meeting of Older Boys, which was the result of the Boys' Conference. This was to organize a club of older boys for their social and moral improvement. The game room was kept in continual use while the entrance to the secretary's office was the scene of men coming and going to and from interviews with the secretary relative to the different phases of the Association's work. The reading room had men in it from early in the evening right up to closing time at 10 p.m.

The gymnasium had its quota of members all evening where basketball games were played and class was held—in which the men participating were better qualified for the duties of life because their physical being had been improved by Nature's best tonic—a bath. No place in the whole building is more popular with the men than the physical director's office, for there is in it between classes and basketball matches the genial physical director, who is fast making friends among the men and boys.

On the second floor all was brightness and activity. In the boys' game room all the tables were in use all the evening, by boys who were getting their amusement and spending their leisure hours in the midst of wholesome environment. In the reading room many boys found the papers and magazines of value and interest.

In the Board room the class of young men spending their evenings after working all day, in preparation for matriculation, put in two good hours of study and instruction by one of the Collegiate Institute teachers.

In the boys' parlour was a meeting of the Alexandra Dramatic Club, which is in progress of organization.

See our window to-night for attractive prices in Graniteware. These goods will soon be gone. Get your share. The Best Stove and Hardware Company. 3d—88

STRUCK ON ANKLE WITH HEAVY BEAM AT BIRDSALL WHARF

MURDERER BOWEN WAS SLAIN

Man Who Escaped Hanging Killed by Spaniard He Wronged.

QUEBEC CASE IS RECALLED

Remarkable Letter From Spaniard In Buenos Ayres to Sherbrooke Police Chief Tells How James Bowen, Who Killed Man In Compton 25 Years Ago, Met Death at the Hands of Outraged Husband.

Sherbrooke, Que., Nov. 14.—Chief of Police Davidson has received a most extraordinary letter from Buenos Ayres, South America, which has a direct bearing on a murder that occurred near Coaticooke over a quarter of a century ago, the killing of Francis Daly, by James Bowen, while the former was driving to his home. The murderer was never captured.

The letter referred to states that Bowen had confessed to the writer that he killed Daly and escaped the gallows by breaking out of jail.

The most remarkable part of the letter is that the confession was made a few moments before the writer, a Spaniard, killed both Bowen and his (the writer's) wife, whom he discovered together alone at his home, his wife believing him away from the city. The writer, whose name Chief Davidson prefers to withhold for the present, goes on to say:

"I stripped him of all, and then in the presence of my wife I asked him to make any statement before I would kill him. He told me that he once lived in a small village near Compton, and during a quarrel in which he was to blame he killed a man. He then told me that he was arrested, tried and found guilty and sentenced to the gallows, but his relatives took him away one night. He asked me to write you and let you know his finish in South America. After his confession I shot him and my wife back to back. The law of this country cleared me before a court of justice. You will pardon me for taking up your time. I have written you as requested by the man that wrecked my home. If you wish to know more of the affair you can address a letter to the chief of police department, where you will receive full information in regard to this matter. I will send you a picture if you desire. A feature that would attract attention was the funny shape of his nose. He also informed me that he came from an old and respected family."

ANNEXATION POSSIBLE.

Lord Milner Says Subtle Influences Are at Work.

London, Nov. 14.—(C. A. P.)—Lord Milner, interviewed here, said he had not discovered any prejudice against English immigrants in Canada.

Regarding the preference there was universal feeling in its favor, but he thought the movement had receded slightly since the present Government took office.

Lord Milner added that while all Canadians would oppose emphatically annexation to the United States there were many silent, unconscious influences at work which may bring them to the verge of annexation before they realize it.

He is unrestrained in his enthusiasm for Canada, her resources and potentialities.

Suffragettes In Church.

London, Nov. 14.—The suffragettes on Thursday night for the first time carried their campaign into a place of worship.

Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, while addressing a meeting in favor of disestablishment at the City Temple, was subjected to disgraceful interruptions. Nearly a score of the adherents of the suffragette movement, men and women, were ejected from the building, amid uproarious scenes of struggling and violence.

The earnest appeals of Secretary Birrell and the pastor of the Temple to the disturbers to respect the sacred building, were without avail.

Prince of Wales Now a Chief.

Ohsweken, Brant Indian Reserve, Ont., Nov. 14.—The following interesting telegram was received by the chiefs of the Six Nations in council assembled on the King's birthday, from the Governor-General:

"Ottawa, Nov. 8, 1908.—To Chief J. S. Johnson, deputy speaker of the Six Nations, Onondago:

"His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has been graciously pleased to accept the chieftainship, Turtle Clan; a letter will follow.—Signed, Sir J. Hanbury Williams, Governor-General's secretary."

TAKES AXE TO WOMEN.

One May Die and Another Is Hurt In Assault at Cobalt.

Cobalt, Nov. 14.—A Frenchman named J. Jouin visited the house of Ethel Crawford and Carrie Russell, one mile north of Cobalt on Thursday night.

Through some cause he became enraged and attacked the two women with a four-pound axe, cutting them badly about the head and neck.

The women sought refuge at a neighbor's house, one-half mile distant, which they reached by walking in their night-clothes and bare feet through three inches of snow.

Miss Russell is in a very critical condition in the Cobalt hospital, and is not expected to recover.

Miss Crawford, although receiving two cuts on the top of the head, is expected to survive.

Chief Calbeck has not been able to catch the man as yet.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Trenton will vote on local option Jan. 4.

The Sheffield Choir sailed for England yesterday from Montreal.

Fire broke out in The New York American building early yesterday, just after the first edition had been issued, and further publication was stopped.

At a meeting of the British group of the Inter-Parliamentary Union for Peace, at Westminster, Lord Weardale presiding, the holding of a congress in Canada was discussed. A meeting of the council of the union will be held in January.

Fire visited Spooner, a station on the Canadian Northern Railway, between Winnipeg and Port Arthur, originating in the Stockholm Hotel. The hotel, an adjoining saloon building and The Northern News building were totally destroyed. Loss about $15,000.

Brakeman John Carter of Wilkes-Barre was killed and Fireman E. T. Bradshaw of Wilkes-Barre was fatally injured, when the boiler of the engine, drawing a fast freight train, south-bound, on the Delaware & Hudson, blew up about half a mile south of East Windsor.

Small Boy Shot by Companion.

Peterboro, Nov. 14.—Information has been received from the Township of Harvey, via Young's Point, of a fatal gun accident. A ten-year-old lad named Roland Ayatte, with a companion of the same age, was on Thursday returning from school, the latter carrying a loaded shotgun. By some means the piece was discharged, the contents entering Ayatte's chest. His companion ran for help, but when it came the boy was dead.

Barrie Boy's Accident.

Barrie, Nov. 14.—In spite of the warnings of his play companions, little Frank Moran, son of Patrick Moran, a G.T.R. mechanic, locked himself in an outhouse on Thursday. Thinking to escape, he climbed to a window, but lost his balance, falling backwards, impaling himself on a hook attached to the wall. The sharp steel penetrated the abdomen. Slight hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Wilbur Wright Improves.

Lemans, France, Nov. 14.—Wilbur Wright, the American aeroplanist, succeeded yesterday afternoon for the first time in making a start with his flying machine without the use of the derrick previously employed for his purpose.

He circled the field twice on this flight and then came to the ground.

Boycott Postmaster.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—A large portion of the community of Chelsea have boycotted the postmaster. They mail their letters there, but buy their stamps in Ottawa, and the postoffice inspector has written a number of people in Chelsea telling them that they must buy their stamps where they mail their letters.

Four Children Burned.

Alliance, Ohio, Nov. 14.—The country home of John Wampfler, a local milk dealer, was destroyed by fire early yesterday. Four children, Lucille, aged 9; Leroy, 7; Katherine, 5; Chas., 3, perished in the flames. The parents and three children escaped. The father was badly burned, but will recover.

Librarian Chosen.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—George H. Locke, dean of the teaching faculty of Macdonald College, and acting professor of education in McGill University, was yesterady appointed by the public library board as chief librarian in succession to the late Dr. Bain. The salary is $4,000 a year.

Another Tercentenary.

Montpelier, Vermont, Nov. 14.—The celebration of the tercentennial anniversary of the discovery of Lake Champlain and surrounding territory, will take place on July 4 to 10 next

IS EMPEROR OF CHINA DEAD

Reports From Pekin Say Kuang Hsu Has Passed Away.

DOWAGER REPORTED DYING

Two Edicts Have Been Issued Calling Heir to Palace and Appointing Regent Which Gives Color to Story That Weakling Ruler Has Died —Empress Said to Be Very Low—No Change Expected.

London, Nov. 14.—Advices from Pekin are contradictory as to the reported death of Emperor Kuang Hsu.

The Pekin correspondent of The London Times reports that two edicts have been issued from the palace, one appointing Prince Chun Regent ad interim and the other ordering his five-year-old son to the palace. The correspondent says it is the general opinion that this son of Prince Chun has been chosen by the Dowager-Empress as the heir to the throne. This selection involving another regency would be unpopular with the progressive party, which favors the appointment of Prince Pulun.

There is a second report, which says that the Empress was present at a meeting of the Grand Council in the palace, and that she swooned during the sitting. She is reported to be dying.

If the Emperor and the Dowager-Empress both have died at Pekin at practically the same time, China has lost two Manchu rulers, one nominally and the other actually, whose dynasty has endured for twelve generations. But unless the edicts of yesterday should be reversed the dynasty will be continued in the person of Prince Chun, a brother of the Emperor, and the prince's three-year-old son, Pu Wei.

Sings For Charity.

Quebec, Nov. 14.—The Sheffield Choir closed their Canadian tour here last night by a concert at the drill hall before an audience of 3,000 persons.

The choir donated half of the proceeds to be divided between local Catholic and Protestant charities.

Grief Causes Suicide.

New York, Nov. 14.—Grieving over the verdict of physicians, that his wife would never recover from an illness which had made her an invalid for months, J. Freebody Thompson, a teacher of languages, killed himself yesterday by inhaling illuminating gas.

Girl Swallows Acid.

Welland, Nov. 14.—Annie Falkenhagen, aged 15, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid yesterday morning. The girl had been out the night before with another woman and her mother expressed displeasure at the company she was in.

Bank of Montreal Earnings.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—The Bank of Montreal issued its annual statement yesterday for the year ending Oct. 31. It shows net profits of $1,957,658, against $1,980,138 in 1907.

The bank added $1,000,000 to the rest account.

Britain Is Satisfied.

London, Nov. 14.—(C.A.P.)—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux yesterday had a long interview regarding the Japanese question with Sir Edward Grey, who expressed satisfaction at the way Canada had handled the matter.

To Decide on Viaduct.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—The problem of the Toronto Esplanade viaduct will come before Commissioners Mabee, Scott and Mills on Dec. 7, when an endeavor will be made to reach a conclusion.

Lord Northcote Declines.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—Lord Northcote, former Governor-General of Australia, who is now crossing Canada, en route to England, has declined an invitation to address the Canadian Club of Ottawa.

Sheriff Iler Dead.

Windsor, Nov. 14.—Sheriff Iler, who has been seriously ill for the past few weeks, died yesterday afternoon. In 1875 he came within twenty-five votes of being elected to Parliament.

Three Charged Wtih Murder.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 14.—The grand jury yesterday afternoon returned a true bill against Roblin Cooper, Col. B. D. Cooper and ex-Sheriff J. D. Snarp, charging them with the murder of former United States Senator E. W. Carmack.

GRAFT PROBER SHOT.

Ex-Convict Nearly Kills Francis J. Heney In 'Frisco Court.

San Francisco, Nov. 14.—Francis J. Heney, the leading figure in the prosecution of municipal corruption in San Francisco, was shot and seriously injured at 4.20 o'clock yesterday in Judge Lawlor's courtroom by Morris Haas, a Jewish saloon-keeper, who had been accepted as a juror in a previous trial of Abraham Ruef and afterwards removed, it having been shown in court by Heney that Haas was an ex-convict, a fact not brought out in his examination as a venireman.

The shooting of Heney occurred in the presence of many persons in the court room during a recess on the trial of Abraham Ruef, on trial for the third time on the charge of bribery. At 6 o'clock last night Mr. Heney, who regained consciousness and will likely recover, said on the operating table: "I will live to prosecute Haas and Ruef."

The physicians in attendance on Heney expressed the opinion that the assistant district attorney would live.

It was during a ten minutes' recess of court, and while the jury was out of the court-room that Haas came forward from among the spectators. He approached Heney, and placing a revolver against Heney's right cheek, fired.

Instantly the court-room was the scene of the greatest excitement. Several bystanders seized Haas, while others hastened to the relief of Heney.

Haas made the following statement: "I am the wronged man. I do not care what becomes of me now. I have sacrificed myself, not for my own honor, but for the honor of those who are situated like myself. I would not have brought my four children into the world to bear such a brand if I had known the fact that I was a former convict would become known. Heney ruined me. That is why I shot him."

ASSAULTED AND ROBBED.

Toronto Woman Is Victim of Two Thugs Near Woodbine.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—As Mrs. J. Hesson, 82 Beach avenue, was going down Woodbine avenue at 9 o'clock last night she was accosted by a man who struck her a heavy blow. He then dragged her across the road into the Woodbine grounds and into a stable, where another man was waiting. There, while both men held her and muffled her screams, she was brutally treated and criminally assaulted and robbed of a sum of money. She staggered into the street and was found by passers-by.

Patrol Sergeant Lydiatt got two men from the beats and surrounding the stable, secured Reginald M. Harte, 24 years, a horse wiper, living at 1278 East Queen street. He was taken before the woman, who positively identified him as one of the men—the one who had dragged her to the stable.

KINGSTON-OTTAWA LINE.

G.T.R. Plans to Contruct New Route Between Cities.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—William Wainwright, fourth vice-president of the Grand Trunk, said yesterday that the company has in view a direct line from Ottawa to Toronto. This will necessitate the construction of a line to Kingston, where the main line would be tapped.

He denied the report that the Grand Trunk Pacific at the coming session of Parliament will seek legislation bettering the terms of its contract with the Government. He declared that no such thing had been thought of.

Whisky Cases.

Whitby, Nov. 14.—R. W. Toms of Liverpool, near Dunbarton, was on Thursday fined $30 and costs for having on his hotel premises a case of intoxicating liquors. James Gordon of Pickering was charged with keeping whisky for sale or treats in his hotel in Pickering. The defence admitted the presence of a bottle of whisky on the premises on Nov. 7, but convinced the court that it was kept for medicinal purposes.

Two Killed by Falling Tree.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 14.—James Duthuy was killed and Ed. Baker fatally injured on Thursday in an accident at Cardero Channel, a hundred miles north of here.

Twenty workmen were felling a huge stump when it started rolling down hill. All escaped but these two, Duthuy having his back broken.

Secretary Metcalf Resigns.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Secretary of the United States Navy, Victor H. Metcalf, yesterday tendered his resignation to President Roosevelt, to take effect Dec. 1, on account of ill-health.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Truman H. Newberry will be named as Mr. Metcalf's successor.

To Investigate Ill-Treatment.

London, Nov. 14.—(C. A. P.)—Serious complaints have been received at Stockholm regarding Swedish immigrants in Canada working on railways being ill-treated, and the Swedish Government have asked the Dominion Government for an investigation.

Indian Killed on Track.

Brantford, Nov. 14.—An unknown Indian was run down by the Grand Trunk from Tillsonburg, near Mount Vernon, early last evening and instantly killed. His neck was broken. The Indian was on his way to Brantford.

SAYS HE REPRESENTS THE PEOPLE

Von Buelow Will Take a Firm Stand Against Emperor.

RETIREMENT IS POSSIBLE

Members of Imperial Cabinet Are Strongly on the Side of the Chancellor and If He Resigns After Interview on Monday It Will Be Because Kaiser Is Obdurate—Has Often Wanted to Resign.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—Chancellor Von Buelow and his friends are so preparing the political situation that if the chancellor should retire after his audience at Kiel next Monday with Emperor William it will be because His Majesty was not willing to concur in the declaration made in the Reichstag by the chancellor on Tuesday, that it was essential that the Emperor be more reserved in his utterances in the future.

Chancellor Von Buelow has taken the position that he represents the entire people on this question, and because of this he is bound to interpret the national will to the sovereign, standing or falling by his decision.

While it cannot be said that Chancellor Von Buelow has taken counsel with all the Imperial Ministers, he has been in consultation with some of them, and they support him actively. The chancellor submitted the question whether he should reply further to the criticisms of the Emperor and himself to the Prussian Cabinet, which was in session in the Reichstag building during the debate of Wednesday. His colleagues advised him not to do this, but to rest upon his speech of the previous day. Referring to his utterance of Tuesday, the chancellor said privately to a friend: "Those who cannot comprehend what I said are not to be helped."

The impression among the intimates of the chancellor is that he has no great desire to remain in office. His wife, since his illness in 1906, often has urged him to retire to private life, and his physician, Prof. Renvers, is constantly advising him not to work so hard.

There is excellent authority for the statement that the rumors of the chancellor's immediate resignation circulating in Berlin and abroad, together with the use of the names of certain men as his possible successors, are connected with the intrigues against the chancellor and in the interests of his rivals for his position.

British Columbia Elections.

Vancouver, Nov. 14.—Practically complete election returns from Yale-Cariboo give Burrell 1,470 and Ross 1,166. In Kootenay, the totals stand: Goodeve, 2,116; Curtis, 1,493; Davidson, 1,069.

Timoth Davidson, Socialist, had pluralities in such Socialistic centres as Fernie and Michel and other towns in Crow's Nest Pass, he was hopelessly out of it in the cities of West Kootenay. Comparatively he made hardly as good a showing as did his comrade, Hawthornthwaite, in Nanaimo, against Ralph Smith.

The turnover has come as a complete surprise in British Columbia.

Surplus For Gardeners.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—The display of the products of the field and garden by the Ontario Horticultural Association will be a financial success this year. Considering that for several years deficits more or less large have been faced by the directors, the showing is particularly gratifying, placing the annual event as it does upon a substantial footing.

The attendance for the five days has been about 10,000.

Porto Rican Elections.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Nov. 14.—The official election returns for the Island of Porto Rico were made public yesterday.

They show that the Unionist party carried all the seven districts of the island and that the house of delegates will not have a Republican minority.

Murdered by Discharged Employe.

New York, Nov. 14.—In view of hundreds of persons in the Pennsylvania depot in Jersey City yesterday, Walter Ammon was shot three times in the head and body and died on the way to the hospital. The man who did the shooting was Andrew McGrath, who had been employed by Ammon and had been discharged.

Brakeman Cut In Two.

Orillia, Nov. 14.—Falling between two cars which he was coupling together yesterday morning at 12.30, John Campbell of Lindsay, a G.T.R. brakeman, was completely cut in two by the train passing over him. Campbell was a Scotchman, and came to this country about two years ago.

Sectionman Killed.

Tecumseh, Nov. 14.—Sectionman F. Henning was struck and instantly killed here yesterday morning by a Wabash passenger train No. 1 going west. He was standing on the track watching a wayfreight shunting and did not notice the approaching train.

Gimblett Goes For Trial.

Hamilton, Nov. 14.—Robert Gimblett was committed for trial yesterday morning on the charge of robbing the mails. The chief evidence against him was an alleged confession made to Inspector Henderson.

Sues For Breach of Promise.

London, Eng., Nov. 14.—Isabella Nicol Swan, Toronto, claimed £410 damages for breach of promise against Patrick McLaughlin, Parkhead, before the Glasgow sheriff. Judgment was reserved.

Last Empress of the Season.

Quebec, Nov. 14.—The Empress of Ireland sailed for Liverpool yesterday afternoon with 1,410 passengers on board. This is the last Empress steamer from this port this season.

Side-by-Side Comparison

Gone are the days of "just as good."

You want something better—the original, and not the counterfeit.

The "just as good" thing is a nameless ware which means more profit to the seller and less value to the buyer.

The meaningless "much cheaper and just as good" argument has gone down before the plain-marked, one-price guaranteed article which appeals to your good sense.

Side-by-side comparison will show the flaws in the "just as good" thing.

Take a Custom Tailor-made coat and place it alongside of a Semi-ready tailored coat. This is the face-to-face comparison. It will show you how and why the sales of Semi-ready Tailoring have doubled in less than two years.

INQUIRY WINDING UP.

Most of the Testimony Is Now In—More Graft Evidence.

Quebec, Nov. 14.—It is likely that the investigation in the Marine and Fisheries agency of this city will be adjourned to-day, to be resumed again at some future date. Mr. Watson, K.C., intimated the possibility of this to Mr. Justice Cassels last evening before the adjournment at 6.30 p.m. He said that the court had heard the greater part of the testimony prepared, and he hoped to close for the present to-day, leaving open the question as to whether the court would again convene at Quebec. The proceedings yesterday were not quite so interesting as on the previous days, and now that Mr. J. U. Gregory has made his statement the attendance was not so large. Mr. Gregory, in keeping with the declaration he made Thursday in open court, did not put in an appearance yesterday. Nevertheless, he was represented by his legal adviser, Senator Choquette.

Twice In Three Years.

Winnipeg, Nov. 14.—Fire, which broke out at noon yesterday, completely destroyed the big two-storey building, plant and offices of the Prairie City Oil Co. The total loss is about $50,000, with $16,000 insurance, divided as follows: Rimouski, $4,000; Pioneer, $2,500; Standard, $4,000; Equitable, $1,750, and Ontario, $1,750.

A. E. Lewis and G. F. Ham of this city are the principal stockholders. The same company was completely burned out three years ago.

Two Hurt In Explosion.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—Two men were injured and the Savoy Resturant and Candy Store, at Yonge and Adelaide streets, somewhat shaken by the explosion of a 15-gallon water boiler in the basement of the building at 11.35 yesterday morning.

Peter Sims, 73 Nelson street, was struck in the wrist and groin by flying pieces of the bursted boiler. He, with John Lewis, a negro porter, who was struck on the side of the head, was taken to St. Michael's Hospital. Neither is seriously injured.

Found In an Asylum.

New York, Nov. 14.—Prof. W. Herrington, chief of the U. S. Weather Bureau under President Harrison and a well known scientific man, who disappeared from his home in Mount Vernon, N.Y., nearly ten years ago, and for whom his wife and son have been seeking ever since, it was reported yesterday, is an inmate at the New Jersey Asylum. He was found wandering about the streets of Trenton over a year ago, and was unable to give his name or any details about himself.

Carbolic Acid Route.

Coutlee-Penticton Route.

Vancouver, Nov. 14.—Inspection is to be made next week by C.P.R. officials of the route which was surveyed between Coutlee and Penticton. The distance is 180 miles, that Coldwater river will be followed for some distance south of Coutlee, and the line will pass quite close to the Summer Land on Okanagan Lake.

Call Off Old Home Week.

Brantford, Nov. 14.—At a general meeting of citizens it was decided to hold an old home week in July next. It is stated, however, that the officers will call off arrangements until July, 1910, owing to important municipal works which will be in progress next summer.

Brooklyn Theatre Burns.

New York, Nov. 14.—Less than an hour after a large audience had left the Park Theatre, a historic Brooklyn play-house, fire was discovered Thursday night, and an hour later the building was in ruins. The loss will be about $225,000.

RUNNING ATHLETICS HOCKEY

THE CAPITAL IS FOOTBALL CRAZY; 1000 OTTAWANS SAW TO-DAY'S GAME; THE ROUGH RIDERS-EXPECTED TO WIN

Special to The Examiner.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—The capital is football crazy to-day. Two large excursions, one by C. P. R. and the other by G. T. R., left this morning. In one special car were eighteen players of the Ottawa football team, and also all the officers. It is stated that upwards of a hundred of the civil service members, several from the city hall, and scores from stores and factories asked off to take in the big game. The expectation is that Ottawa will win by a few points, and both Ottawa and Montreal money has been laid in this direction to a large extent.

The team had a private signal practice at the Ottawa Athletic Association rooms last night, and King Clancey expressed himself as well satisfied with the results.

The line-up will be about the same as last Saturday.

It is expected here that whichever team wins the final game for the Dominion championship with Queen's in all probability will be at Kingston, as there was some understanding last year that the Dominion championship contest should be held at the town where the winning collegiate team resided.

Very special arrangements are under way here. The papers are issuing extras. Telegraphic instruments have been placed in their offices and also those of the Two Macs, the largest clothing house in the city, and the details of the game as it progresses are being posted there this afternoon.

At time of writing it could not be stated definitely, but it is thought about a thousand Ottawans will go to Kingston to cheer for their team.

"BILL" CROWLEY CAPTAIN OF THE EDMONTON RUGBY TEAM

The Edmonton Bulletin says:

The Edmonton Rugby Team held a very successful signal practice in the Thistle Rink, Thursday from 10 to 11 p.m., and are feeling in good shape for their game with Calgary on Thanksgiving Day. They will hold another practice on Saturday afternoon at Diamond Park at 3 o'clock, chiefly devoted to handling the ball. The team goes south to Calgary on Sunday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, and will play a picked Calgary team for the championship of Alberta on Thanksgiving Day at 3 p.m. Bill Crowley was selected captain of the team and the following was the team selected to play Calgary:—

Full Back — McLean.

Half Backs — Dykes, Burnham and Crow Wilson.

Quarter Back — Stinson.

Scrimmage — Bishopric, Scott and Wiley.

Wings — Poapst, Crowley, Wick Wilson, Singleton, Taylor, A. J. MacDonald and Reid.

This is a strong line-up and should make the Calgary bunch sit up and take notice. McLean is an old Montreal player with surprising speed. Dykes formerly played in English teams and was on last year's Edmonton team. Burnham is a Peterboro man. Crow Wilson played with the Upper Canada College team. Stinson is a T.C.S. man from Port Hope. Bishopric is from St. John's College, Winnipeg. Scott played with the Upper Canada College team. Wiley is an old country player. Poapst played with the Rough Riders of Ottawa. Crowley is an old Peterborough player. Wick Wilson was formerly on the Kingston team. Singleton is from the University of St. Louis and an old Rugby player. Taylor played with the Winnipeg Rowing Club team. McDonald is a Scotch Rugby player. Reid is another T. C. S. player from Port Hope. Little wonder that the bunch looks good to Edmonton Rugby enthusiasts.

"BILL" CROWLEY,

The old Peterborough boy who has been appointed Captain of the Edmonton Rugby Club.

Varsity, Hume, Varsity, Gibson, Queens.

Rev. Father Stanton, coach of the Ottawa College team, selects the above line up as a representative all-Inter-Collegiate team, and makes the daring dictum this all star aggregation would very probably beat an all-Big Four team. Father Stanton further declares the back line could not be improved upon, even with the very pick of the Inter Provincial half backs.

KINGSTON EXCITED OVER TO-DAY'S GAME; BIGGEST CROWD ON RECORD PRESENT

Examiner Special

Kingston, Nov. 14.—Despite the fact that four Kingston Rugby teams are playing out of town to-day, the greatest interest is being taken in this afternoon's game between the Tigers and Ottawa upon which depends the championship of the Inter-Provincial Union. Both teams brought big crowds to the city, and the crowd that will see the match will be the biggest that ever saw a game in this city. The Tigers, with the exception of Wigle, arrived yesterday, and Wigle came down with the rooters on a special train this morning. The Tigers line-up will be much the same as in the last game but Loftus will take Lyon's place at outside wing. It is the intention of the Tigers to use Biggs at centre half during the first half and to substitute Burton in the second half.

HANS HOLMER LOOKS FORWARD TO NEXT OLYMPIC

Montreal, Nov. 13 — Hans Holmer, of Halifax, arrived in the city from the west to-day, and will spend a few days in Quebec before returning to Halifax. Holmer is pretty well pleased over his Hamilton victory, as he considers he met the choice of the country in that race. Holmer declares that he has no intention of joining the professional ranks. According to his present ideas such a step is some years removed. His ambition is now to go in for the Olympic Marathon of 1910. That will be the goal of his athletic life, and he intends to make every effort to keep in shape for that event.

NO GAME IN THE CITY LEAGUE TO-DAY

There was no game in the City Rugby League this afternoon. The Collegiate Institute team and T. A. S. A. C. juniors were to have clashed, but the Collegians were unable to get a team together, owing to a number of men being on the hospital list and the game was off.

DOES ANYBODY KNOW THIS CANADIAN CHAMPION?

Missouri, Mont., Nov. 13 — Al Murphy who claims the middleweight wrestling championship of Canada, was defeated here last night by Joe Tebeange, a local wrestler, in a catch as catch can wrestling bout. The first fall went to Murphy in eleven minutes, but he injured his right wrist severely. Tebeange took the second and third falls rather easily in three minutes and thirty seconds, and three minutes and thirty five seconds respectively.

KINGSTON, November 14th

The first quarter of to-day's game for the Interprovincial Championship between the Ottawa Rough Riders and Hamilton Tigers ended without a score after fifteen minutes desperate playing in which there was little to choose between the teams. The excitement is intense, quarter time score.

OTTAWA 0

Shortly after the beginning of the second quarter Ottawa secured a try which was not converted and there was no more scoring until half time.

TIGERS 0
OTTAWA 5

At end of third quarter the score stood 8-5 in favour of Ottawa.

QUEEN'S AND VARSITY ARE TIE AT FIRST QUARTER

Toronto, Nov. 14.—Queen's and Varsity are playing the most important game of the season in the Inter-Collegiate series at Varsity oval this afternoon. A win for Queen's puts Varsity out of the running while a defeat ties the two teams.

The play throughout the first quarter was hard and even, both teams scoring two singles.

Score at end of first quarter:

Queen's—2.

Varsity—2.

GOTCH AND HACK ARE TO BATTLE ONCE AGAIN

London, Nov. 13 — Frank Gotch, the American wrestler, and George Hackenschmidt, the Russian, met in London this afternoon and agreed upon a match. The exact date has not yet been fixed, but it will not be before March. A committee of representatives of the sporing press was appointed to arrange the details.

ROY'S RAPID WORK IN WAY OF PROMPT WRECK PICTURES

About two o'clock this afternoon, Mr. R. M. Roy left with The Examiner a series of graphic photographic pictures of this morning's wreck from a rear-end collision on the C.P.R. The rapidity of the work and the excellence of the pictures are a tribute to the resources and enterprise of Roy's establishment.

HOCKEY.

Paris will have an intermediate hockey team in the O.H.A. this season.

Captain McDonald, the well known hockey and ball player, left Brantford for Pittsburg yesterday to play in the City Hockey League at the Smoky City.

Pete Green has been appointed manager and coach of the Ottawa hockey team. Green handled the Senators when they held the Stanley Cup. President George P. Murphy and Manager J. P. Dixon have resigned their offices in the club. Martin Rosenthal at present is acting as manager.

The proposed secession of the Quebec Hockey Club from the ranks of the E. C.H.L. to a new amateur league is meeting with a good deal of opposition in the Ancient Capital.

Candidates for the Ingersoll O.H.A. team are already doing some light training work. They have the material, and are expecting to make even a better showing this year than last.

Tommy Smith and Art Thropp have joined the big Ottawa delegation of hockey players in Pittsburg. The two boys will play with Lyceums. Smith and Thropp played together on the old Victorias in 1905-06, and have always been considered two of Ottawa's best forwards.

"Buck" Irving, the manager for the Galt hockey team for the Professional League this winter, announces that "Goldie" Cochrane, of Berlin, will play for his team.

Ingersoll Chronicle: There does not seem to be a great amount of enthusiasm for professional hockey displayed in Guelph this year. This is one of the great objections to the movement. Many of the places where the moneyed brand of hockey has been played, are found opposed to its continuance.

There will be trouble over Pitre, the French Canadian player, when the E. C. H. A. meets in Montreal on Saturday. Montreal only last week fyled with Emmett Quinn, Secretary of the league a contract signing him as a player with Montreal, the date being November 4. On Saturday Wanderers fyled another contract with the same player, as well as the copy of a receipt from Pitre for $50 on account, and the date of this is October 30. Wanderers, therefore, appear to have a prior right to the Frenchman, and the league will have to decide whose property he really is

OVERCOMES ALL DISTRESS IN STOMACH

You Can Eat Your favourite Foods Without Fear of Misery.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will take Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes belching, dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, nausea. Indigestion (like a lump of lead in the stomach), biliousness, heartburn, water brash, pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Page's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking to-day, and by to-morrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the lightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

ROCK FROM BLASTING CRASHES THROUGH A ROSEDALE HOUSE TOP

Rosedale, Nov. 14.—The family of Mr. Goodman of this vicinity, was very much alarmed a few days ago when without any warning a large piece of rock struck the roof of their house with great force and as a result crashed through into a room below. It was hurled into the air by an explosion of dynamite at a new silver mine where two men were blasting. While no one was hurt the women received a bad scare and considerable damage was done to the building.

RUGBY SCORES

The Examiner will bulletin the results of all the big rugby games played in Canada to-day. Those interested may get them about 7 o'clock on the boards.

NAME CHOSEN BY MR. M. PAPPAS FOR HIS NEW THEATRE

It was learned to-day that Mr. M. Pappas has chosen the name of "Royal Theatre for his new venture in the old Times building. A very large number of lights will be used in the front and in the sign. It is expected that it will be ready early in December.

CHECK YOUR FAT.

Hold it where it is, or take off some. You can do either without disturbing your meals or your ease or your digestive organs. You can do it without physical risk, mental effort or danger of a wrinkle. "Sounds well, but these are words only," you say. True, but there is a nation full of indorsers of these words, so your protest, while natural, is feeble. Prove it. Write to the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., inclosing 75 cents, or better still, take that amount over to your druggist and get one of the extra large cases of Marmola Prescription Tablets. You will find it generously filled. Take one after meals and at bedtime, and within thirty days you should be losing a pound of fat a day, without disturbance, as we said, of either your meals, habits or organs. Fact is, these statements are not to be denied, for the tablets are an exact duplicate of the famous fat-reducing Marmola Prescription: One-half ounce Marmola, 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4 3-4 ounces Peppermint Water, which any druggist will tell you is the World's Fair medal winner in its class.

The Japanese and Their Prisoners.

The Japanese have a rather kindly way of treating prisoners who have not yet been convicted. The regulation prison dress is a kind of strawberry red colored kimono, but men on remand wear light blue as a sign that, although under strong suspicion, they have not yet been found guilty. When prisoners in this class have occasion to pass through the public streets curious extinguisher-like baskets are placed upon their heads.—Wide World Magazine.

JUBAL AND TUBAL CAIN.

Jubal sang of the Wrath of God
And the curse of thistle and thorn—
But Tubal got him a pointed rod,
And scrabbled the earth for corn.
Old—old as that early mold,
Young as the sprouting grain—
Yearly green is the strife between
Jubal and Tubal Cain.

Jubal sang of the new-found sea,
And the souls its waves divide—
But Tubal hollowed a fallen tree,
And passed to the farther side.
Black—black as the hurricane wrack.
Salt as the under-main—
Bitter and cold is the hate they hold—
Jubal and Tubal Cain!

Jubal sang of the golden years
When wars and wounds shall cease—
But Tubal fashioned the hand-flung spears
And showed his neighbors peace.
New—new as the Nine point Two,
Older than Lamech's slain—
Roaring and loud is the feud avowed
Twix' Jubal and Tubal Cain.

Jubal sang of the cliffs that bar
And the peaks that none may crown—
But Tubal clambered by jut and scar
And there he builded a town.
High—high as the Passes lie.
Low as the culverts drain—
Wherever they be they can never agree—
Jubal and Tubal Cain!

WELCOMING THE SCROLL

Toronto Hebrews Make Festival of Religious Ceremony.

The cosmopolitan section of Toronto, namely the ward, never witnessed a quainter scene than was enacted recently attending the reception of a Hebrew scroll of the law, which had just arrived from Russia, and a witness of the scene wondered for a few moments whether he was in Toronto or some little village in far off Russia.

The Congregation Havre Lilias Yankor or "the Sons of Jacob," composed of 28 members, had sent to Schedlopka, Russia, for a scroll of the Hebrew law, which was made by Rabbi Schedlopeka, and it arrived in Toronto, where it was received in much the same manner as it would have been in Russia.

A procession was formed headed by a band consisting of six musicians, followed by the president, Mr. M. Sigal, carrying the new scroll, which was wrapped up in one of the praying shawls used by Hebrews and protected by a canopy decorated with Canadian flags held by four members of the congregation. This in turn was followed by about 500 Hebrews, men, women and children, each one of whom carried a lighted candle or Chinese lantern, while a large number of people were setting off firecrackers and roman candles.

One man had a can of kerosene oil, and he would occasionally fill his mouth with the oil and blow it upon his candle, causing a great flare up.

The music was of the same character as that which is played at a wedding exemplifying the delight of the paraders in their possession of the new scroll.

The procession passed through "the ward" stopping at each synagogue in turn, when a halt would be made and the paraders to the inspiring strains of the music would form in groups and dance the Russian Cotzataki, which, when once seen, would never be forgotten.

The procession finally halted at No. 83 Louisa street, where refreshments were served to the paraders and after the procession had been reformed the scroll was taken to the new synagogue at 93 Elizabeth street, its future home.

A Gun and a Boy.

Last year, writes Dr. Grenfell, a friend sent me an old gun—a double-barrel twelve-bore breach-loader—and I was able to give it to a lad of 15, whose mother is a widow, and to whom the gun meant not merely a toy, but a livelihood, if he is successful with it. The only condition attached was that it was to come up for inspection every annual visit I made, and to be confiscated, if it showed neglect. The boy is a splendidly-built little fellow, and he had kept the following diary, which, when I called this summer, he handed me to show what he had killed, though he had to be very sparing with his shot, as I could only spare him sixty cartridge cases:

"Arther Nowell receaved his gun from doucker grendfell the 10 of may and kill 2 parathur (partridges) the 11 I woes veary glad of my gun I kill 30 parathur 1 lone (loon) 1 guse (goose) thir woe no hunt a fue (few) ducks an houngs (hounds)."

Burns Strong in Australia.

Tommy Burns, the Canadian pugilist, has made a tremendous hit in Australia. Immense crowds gather to see him. He is forced to make public speeches and to hold great "receptions" on the lawn at his training quarters.

The Sydney Referee, after printing a column or two describing Tommy's popularity, adds the following note:

"The attention paid to Burns drew a protest from Rev. J. Walker at Ballarat during the course of a sermon at St. Andrew's kirk. Mr. Walker deplored the fact that the famous pugilist cut a greater figure in the public eye than eminent theologians or politicians."

He will also tell of other things he saw in connection with the famous observatory.

Rumour of Smallpox In Lumber Camp

News Brought Down to the City by Lumbermen From the North.

Dr. Bell, of Apsley has telephoned to Dr. Bingham, Medical Health Officer, of a rumour current in the north that small-pox has broken out in one of the Cavendish Lumber Company's camps. Dr. Bell, however, had not seen any of the men supposed to be ill and therefore could not verify the report. Two men arrived in the city last night from the vicinity of the supposedly infected camp and they also tell of the rumour that six or seven men are down with the small-pox in a lumber camp some twenty miles to the north of Apsley.

QUALITY FIRST

In some lines of business price may well be the great talking point. Those who can buy best and sell best have something interesting to say to the public. In the DRUG BUSINESS it's different. Quality, regardless of price, should be the main factor, and it is here. What you buy here in the line of Drugs and Medicines will be of right quality, and price asked will also be right—as low as goods of same quality can ever be bought for anywhere.

SAVED FROM DROWNING BY FORTUNATELY FALLING ON A GIRDER OF THE C.P.R. BRIDGE

Badly bruised and escaping within an inch of his life an employee of the Peterborough Lumber Company was found on Saturday evening about 4.30 o'clock, lying on a girder beneath the C.P.R. bridge across the Otonabee River, by Mr. Jas. Harrie, who happened to be crossing shortly after the accident. The unfortunate man had been walking across the bridge when in some unaccountable manner he fell and was only saved from death by the presence of two girders which happened to catch him on his descent.

Mr. Harrie first observed a hat floating down with the current and instantly pulled off his coat to dive for the person whom he thought to be the victim of a drowning accident. He discovered the man beneath the bridge in a helpless condition, so badly was he injured by the fall and had it not been for the presence of the girder the latter would certainly have been drowned.

In relating the story to an Examiner reporter Mr. Harrie stated the man told him he had been in Malta, in India and in many other portions of the Globe, but he had never had such a close call in his life before.

BRAKEMAN ABBEY RELATIVE OF YOUNG McDERMID WHO LOST BOTH LEGS AT MYRTLE, AFTERWARDS DYING

Mr. Barney Larocque, Regular Conductor of Train That Was Struck, Was With Peterborough Hunting Party.

ABBEY RAPIDLY IMPROVING

A strange coincidence about the C. P.R. wreck was the fact that Thomas Abbey the brakeman, who was injured in the van and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital was a relative of young McDermid who had both legs amputated a few weeks ago by a train running over them at Myrtle, subsequently causing his death. He was a member of the same crew as Abbey, and the two accidents occuring within such a short time has been a matter for some comment among train men who were aware of the circumstance.

Mr. Barney Larocque, the regular conductor of the train that was struck was fortunately away deer shooting with a Peterborough party. He was enjoying the holiday for which he had obtained leave from the company. After the accident early Saturday morning shortly after it occurred, a number of the men from the different trains that were in the yard at the time were standing watching the flames enveloping the van when an Examiner reporter who happened to be close by heard one of the men say to the rest, "That's Barney's old van. By Jove if there is any luck going around he is sure to have a share in it."

Abbey is still confined to the hospital and is making favorable progress. It was expected that he would be able to return to his home in Toronto to-day but this was found impossible.

Wrecking Crew Did Good Work In Clearing Away The Debris

In Emptying the Cars of Their Goods There Were Boots, Tinware, Cutters, Etc., Taken From One Car to Another—Many Watched the Operations.

ENGINE PUT ON THE RAILS

Singly and in groups of various numbers the citizens thronged all day Saturday and Sunday to the scene of the rear-end collision where the operations of the wrecking crew proved of novel interest. The small boy was there all the time, was to be found everywhere and not the least detail escaped him. Sunday afternoon whole families went out to see what had really happened. Even the girls were there and many characteristic expressions were heard, especially on Sunday afternoon when they arrived "en force." The amateur photographer was afforded a good opportunity to secure pictures of the wreck.

While the south siding was being cleaned the men had to take the freight from the cars that had been turned over on their sides or had been damaged. There were four of these and nearly all contained general articles. There was tinware, including pails, coal scuttles, pipes and everything of that sort, there were also boots, soap and enough goods to open a small departmental store. The men had to to hurry the work and often as they slid the crates through the doors they would break and then the contents had to be picked up and put in another car standing farther back on the siding.

Many of the bystanders were heard remarking that they wished they could "get their hands on some of those boots and pails" and in fact they would have taken everything if they had been allowed. But the men were too vigilant for anything like that. They did not, however, prevent the small boys from carrying away cakes of soap, for it was learned that many young lads had their pockets filled, and one had a blouse, whose greater capacity was taxed with the booty he had secured.

Engine on the Rails

The plan that was carried out to clear away the debris, was the same as is generally carried out. The three tracks were obstructed. The men chose the south siding as it was the easiest to work on, and then tumbled the cars into the ditch. This allowed the trains to get through on that siding. The work was then continued to putting the engine back on the main line, a very heavy task, but it was completed this morning when the cars were then attended to and were taken out of the ditch.

Engine Off The Track At C. O. R. Junction Yesterday Caused Delay

Another accident occurred on the C.P.R. on Sunday morning, east of Havelock, at the junction of the C. O.R. The engine of a freight train was reported off the track and the steam crane that was doing work at the Parnell street mix-up was called to open th etrack down east. The early morning passenger trains were delayed four or five hours. The first arrived at the station at 9.15 and the second at 9.30. It was reported that run-off was the result of a broken rail. The crane was not long away and the line was cleared with despatch.

The Calgary Eye Opener Goes To Court of Appeal

Calgary, Alta., Nov. 16.—Special.—The Daily News, in view of Mr. McGillicuddy's appeal to the Supreme Court at the province felt the case to be sub judice, and was therefore not in a position to make a direct editorial comment Saturday.

The fact that the jury added a rider advising the "Eye-Opener" to be suppressed if filthy matter is published in future, combined with Judge Beck's condemnation of the paper, as "debasing, corrupting, and immoral," and the releasing of the defendant from the paying of costs, is regarded by McGillicuddy as a strong moral victory, practically as good as an acquittal so far as the policy of the Daily News is concerned.

Leave to appeal was granted to the court, en blanc, which meets on Dec. 1, which will decide if the jury had power to decided on the plea of justification. Stay of payment of the fine was granted to Dec. 15.

Edwards says nothing. He announces that the next issue of the Eye-Opener will be on Nov. 21.

You're Not Too Late

Now is What Sage of Our Shoe Patrons Say

A LADY came into the store on Saturday and made inquiry as to whether the Shoe Sale was over yet, and was informed that Saturday was the last. She immediately requested us to continue it for a while as she said "There are a great many people hoping they can get a chance to secure some of the rare values in footwear". This was only one request; we have had many— so announce here our intention of continuing the Big Shoe Sale until December 1st. Two weeks more of Great Shoe Values, and greater still for we are adding some extra specials this week, which it was our good fortune to secure.

Peanut Men Gather in Some Money

Examiner Special.

Belleville, Ont., Nov. 16.—The police of this city are looking for two Greek peanut men, Laman Farnacos and Thomas Harrase, who acted as bankers for a fellow Greek, and have skipped out with about $650 of the latter's money. The alleged thieves went West.

OTTAWA MAN A RUGBY PROPHET

Examiner Special

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—M. W. Hutt, of McClenaghan Bros.' clothing store, is a good guesser. Twenty of the firm formed a pool on the Tiger-Ottawa football game. Hutt wrote that "Tigers would win by a score of 11 to 9," which was of course correct in every particular.

MEETINGS TO BE HELD IN CONNECTION WITH Y.W.C.A.

Dr. Greer's class in First Aid and Home Nursing meets to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock, and the following Tuesday evenings.

The opening lecture given last Tuesday was most interesting and instructive.

The Christmas Box Class also meets on Tuesday evening. If you are wishing for new suggestions for Christmas gifts it will pay you to spend this hour with the class. We ask every one coming to bring any little fancy and useful articles they may have that we may exchange ideas.

These are but two of the privileges included in a $1.00 membership ticket. Will you not share them with us?

HAVE YOU A SWEETHEART

A lover or a friend that you are undecided about what you will give him or her for Xmas?

A Signet Ring

We have the massive or heavy gentleman's ring in all grades and latest New York styles from 3.50 to 9.00

In Ladies' Rings, good weight and dainty in a range of prices from 1.50 up to 5.00.

THE WILLIAM HAMILTON COMPANY.

Peterborough as a great manufacturing centre is deeply interested in the fall and rise of industrial establishments in the city. The keen regret with which the intelligence of the suspension of operations of the William Hamilton Company was received, is the measure of the keen satisfaction with which proposals and steps for resumption of operations are regarded. In a statement printed on behalf of a company organized to purchase and which did purchase the property, it is shown that the conditions are favourable to a successful business being established. The company has been fortunate in acquiring the property at a most favourable figure—a little under one-third of the total value of a property said to have cost some $320,000. The purchase includes the entire plant, buildings, machinery, patterns, good-will, name and over $20,000 worth of raw material and stock. What is needed to place this old and important establishment in active and successful operation is working capital. To secure this end $30,000 of 8 per cent. cumulative preference stock has been placed upon the market, with one share of common stock as bonus with each two shares of preference stock.

As shown in the statement mentioned the proposition is a good one. The old company had a wide business clientele, which is regarded as still available, extending from Halifax to Vancouver, for its output of saw mill and mining machinery, turbines, boilers, engines, etc. According to the signed statement of Mr. W R Morris, chartered accountant, who has audited the books of the old company, the average out-put for the six years—1901-1906 — amounted to $258,675 per year. It would, therefore seem that, under the circumstances—with buildings, machinery and equipment, modernized and effective, and with $20,000 worth of raw material and stock to the good—the future operation of the company should be immediately and continuously successful.

Every citizen will recognize the importance to the city of the resumption of work at this establishment. It is stated that, running with a full complement of men, the pay roll amounts to $12,000 per month, approximately $150,000 per year. What the introduction of $150,000 per year into the cash circulation of the city means, our merchants and business men can well appreciate. It seems that the matter of retaining this business in Peterborough rests with the citizens, who are appealed to for co-operation in an enterprise whose re-establishment means not only important indirect and general benefits, but, as is claimed, a paying investment for those with the public spirit to embark capital. The claims to the co-operation involved are set forth at length in an appeal to build up Peterborough which appeared in Saturday's issue of the Examiner and will appear in similar form in subsequent issues. To these the attention of the reader is urgently invited. The subject should be carefully studied, in the light of the interests of the city and citizens at large. Three points seem to be outstanding—that the resumption of the Works will be largely in the interests of Peterborough—that, considering the favourable conditions under which the property has been acquired, there is a very reasonable prospect of successful operation, provided sufficient working capital is available, and that arising out of the latter fact, a responsibility is laid upon the citizens of Peterborough to co-operate in bringing about the desired results.

QUIET TRADE BETTERMENT.

The Chronicle, devoted to Banking and Finance, has the following in regard to the "recovery without noise," of trade conditions in Canada;

Thoughtful observers are inclined to be well content with the gradual trade recovery Canada is now experiencing. There may be those, however, who have read with impatient minds, not untinged by envy, of remarkable revival "stunts" made by the United States. Such should remember that the New York daily press is as prone to feature returning prosperity by eight-inch type, as it was to accentuate panic with screaming scare-lines. The metaphor of the forest tree falling with a sudden crash and being replaced gradually by silent upgrowth, has been applicable in this instance. There is a tendency among some of our neighbours to make present convalescence almost as noisy as the collapse of a year ago. Canada escaped then from some acuteness of suffering and concomitant groanings; not unnaturally is now emerging more quietly from its months of financial and commercial rest-cure.

Also, it must not be overlooked that industrial and financial interests in the United States were holding back until after the Presidential contest. That settled, a certain amount of pent-up energy was suddenly loosed. Very suddenly indeed, judging from the newspapers. These in their early editions of the day following the voting, gave circumstantial details of renewed industrial activity—printed some hours before even the factory whistles could herald the new era of prosperity. Undoubtedly there has been a noticeable picking-up in trade across the border during the past week or two; and the note of jubilation has more of reality in it than had the courage-whistling of some months ago, when "prosperity conventions" tried Christian Science treatment upon the body commercial.

Canada, however, had not to wait for post-election trade recovery. There were distinct signs of gradual business betterment all through September and October. October bank clearings in Canada were 4.2 per cent. greater than in the corresponding month of 1907, while those of leading United States cities averaged 12.1 per cent. less than last year. Even allowing for the fact that Thanksgiving Day shortened the October Canadian showing for 1907, the contrast was marked. Railway earnings also gave similar encouragement. Thus far, United States roads reporting for October show a loss of about 5 per cent. from last year, while Canadian roads as a whole made a considerable gain during the month. And Canadian Pacific earnings of $1,688,000 for the first week of November, again show a substantial gain over last year — mounting to $115,000.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

While the evils in connection with the patronage system have been of long standing, the Liberal Government of the Dominion has been the first to deal with it in a manner that promises effective improvement.

The requests from the various veterans' associations for the opening of more territory so that waiting applicants may receive their land grants will be met by the opening up of several districts for that purpose in a few weeks in the Townships of Nesbitt and Beck.

It may be that the scope of Judge Cassels' commission confines his investigations in the Marine Department to the last few years. But it would be interesting to know, remarks the Ottawa Free Press, just how much J. U. Gregory paid out to contractors before 1890!

The Canadian export grain trade shows a marked increase over last year. In two months 32,000,000 bushels of grain, wheat, oats and barley, have passed through Winnipeg en route to the Old Country, as compared with 15,350,000 last year—more than double. This means so far at least $25,000,000 in the pockets of Northwest farmers this year, out of a total crop value for the Northwest of $125,000,000.

Mr. Justice Beck, by the way, a former Peterborough citizen, in his comments in giving judgment in the McGill-uddy-Eye Opener libel suit in Calgary, said that the Eye-Opener was "a debasing, corrupting and demoralizing paper," and that the man who had chosen to be "grossly impure" in publishing a journal had not "much sympathy coming to him." The Manitoba Free Press says that this "grossly impure" sheet was the organ most widely circulated by the Conservative party managers in the recent general election campaign.

The growth of Canada as compared with that of the United States, is often spoken of despairingly. It must, however, be remembered that the growth of Canada is healthily steady and not spasmodic; and the conditions of citizenship here are satisfactory, especially compared with the polyglot chaos that characterizes the population of our neighbours. Our finances are also on a solider foundation, so that when dull times come the blow falls more lightly and the recovery is more prompt. While the Dominion revenue, as a measure of general commercial prosperity, is still short of that of a year ago, the statement for October is a noteworthy improvement over the first half of the current fiscal year. The total revenue for last month was $7,519,716 as compared with $88,223,071 for October, 1907, the decrease being $704,355, or about 8 1-2 per cent. For the six months ending with September, the revenue receipts were $40,727,523 as against $50,034,749, a falling off of 18 1-2 per cent., October thus showing a gain of 10 per cent. over the preceding nine months of the year. In the United States the revenue for October was 16 1-2 per cent. lower than for the same month in 1907. It is therefore seen, that as was to be expected, the recovery in Canadian trade conditions, is more rapid than in the United States.

MISS WALLIS' WORK EXHIBITED

Notable Display of Her Work and That of Prof. Oscar Waldmann in Art Gallery at Montreal.

ATTRACTING ATTENTION

Examiner Special

Montreal, Nov. 16.—A small exhibition, which is nevertheless very interesting, as it represents the work of a Canadian woman in a field comparatively seldom entered by members of her sex, opened on Saturday afternoon at the Art Gallery, Phillips square.

The collection which Montrealers are now given an opportunity of seeing for the first time consists of a dozen or so of the works of Miss Katherine E. Wallis, sculptor, Peterborough, with whom is associated Prof. Oscar Waldmann, of Paris, who has on exhibition a number of studies and bronzes.

Miss Wallis, who resides in Peterborough, has lived abroad for a number of years, studying in London at the South Kensington School of Art, and subsequently continuing her studies in Paris with Prof. Waldmann; and also in Germany. The work done by Miss Wallis is highly creditable and shows evidence of much industry and careful study. The collection is on exhibition in the New Gallery and makes up in general excellence what it lacks in size.

Miss Wallis has been successful in her profession, having had several of her works accepted by the Salon, and her chief work, "Mercury charmed by his own Invention," and carried out in stone, is now the property of the Ontario Government. It was exhibited in Paris in 1904 at the Salon des Artistes Francais, and was later despatched to Toronto, as Miss Wallis learned that the Provincial Museum wished to secure a work by a Canadian artist, and would give her careful consideration. On arrival there it is stated that someone in authority mistook the stone from which it was hewn for plaster, and dirty plaster at that, and so in kindness of heart carefully painted it white. Since her return from France Miss Wallis is said to have been busy scraping off the paint and restoring "Mercury" to his first condition.

Among the examples of her work on exhibition in Montreal at present that which is likely to command most attention is "Mon Petit Chou," a delightful bronze of a charming straight-backed little baby with an expression at once appealing and characteristic. The modelling in this little figure is excellent and the pose natural and pleasing. Another clever study, and one of the best things submitted by Miss Wallis is a rat in stone, the body so posed that while it escapes being strained, it gives every opportunity for the exercise of skill in its careful modelling.

"The Pied Piper," a bronze statuette, shows Miss Wallis's conception of the musician, who by his magic notes called the children to him. The figure is carefully posed and shows life and motion. At the feet of the Piper lies the figure of a child, while climbing up and over the base of the statuette come the rats which followed his piping. A pleasing little study carried out in "terre cuite" is "The Grandfather," a clever modelling of the bent figure of an old man bearing on his back a child. A thoughtful portrait study of a young woman is also in "terre cuite." Among the bronzes is "Brotherly Love," also the study of a dachshund. A panel portrait of interest is that of "Helen Sarah Roger," in etain; a pleasing bust is that in marble, "Augusta Child."

Prof. Waldmann, who is a Swiss by birth, has long resided in Paris, where he is well known as a sculptor and teacher, and has exhibited at the Salon for the last 20 years. Although noted for his portrait work he is perhaps at his best in his studies of animals. He is not only a sculptor, but a craftsman who, on occasion, casts his own bronze. He is well known for his porcelain and "cire perdue," examples of the latter being in the possession of one or two of Montreal's art collectors.

In the present exhibition at the Art Gallery, one of the most prominent among the bronzes is Prof. Waldmann's "Jeanne d'Arc," showing the great heroine of France prior to the time when she has assumed the work her spirit voices urged her to do. The statuette shows a slight girlish figure dignified and thoughtful, and possessing a sort of nobility which the simple garment of the peasant maid cannot hide. Another very interesting bronze is that of a tigress and snake which shows much cleverness in both modelling and composition. A tiger and a mouse in "gris pince" also attracts and holds the attention. Prof. Waldmann also has on exhibition several studies of lions as well as an oxidized silver figurine intended for a salt cellar. There is a clever study of a bear in "terre cuite" and there is also shown one of Prof. Waldmann's bas relief portraits in biscuit.

Tea will be served this afternoon and the exhibition will remain open until November 28.

THE LITTLE QUAKER SINNER.

Before an ancient mirror stood and viewed her form within.
She wore a gown of sombre grey, a cape demure and prim
With one simple fold of lace, yet dainty, neat and trim.
Her bonnet, too, was grey and stiff, its only line of grace,
Was in the face so wide and soft, shirred round her dainty face.
Quoth she: 'Oh, how I hate this dress I hate this gown and cape!
I do wish my clothes were not made in such outlandish shape!'
The children passing by to school have ribbon in their hair,
The little girls next door wears blue—Oh, dear, if I could dare
I know what I would like to do!"
The words were whispered low
Lest such rebellious murmuring should reach the aunts below;
Calmly reading in the parlour sat the good aunts, Faith and Peace,
Little dreaming how rebellious throbbed the heart of their young neice.
She with trembling heart and finger on a hassock sat her down
And the little Quaker sinner sewed a tuck into her gown.

Mercy Jones and Goodman Elder with his wife have left their home."
'Twas Aunt Faith's sweet voice that called her, and the naughty maid
Gliding down the dark old stairway hoped their notice to evade.
Keeping slyly in their shadows as they went out at the door;
Ah, never a little Quakeress a guiltier conscence bore!
Dear Aunt Faith walked looking upward, all her thoughts were pure and holy,
Aunt Peace walked gazing downward, with a humble mind and lowly.
But "tuck! tuck! tuck!" said the sparrow at the maiden's side
And in passing Farmer Watson's where the barn door opened wide,
Every sound, that issued from it, every grunt and every cluck,
Seem to her affrighted fancy like "A-tuck, a-tuck, a-tuck."

At the meeting Goodman Elder spoke of pride and vanity,
And all the Friends seemed turning 'round that dreadful tuck to see.
How it swelled in its proportions till it seemed to fill the air.
Oh! the glad relief to her when prayer and exhortation ended,
Beside her two old aunties her homeward way she wended.
The pomps and vanities of life she'd seised with eager arms,
Aye, to the dregs had drained them, and only there to find
All is vanity of spirit and vexation of the mind;
So repentant, saddened, humbled, on a hassock sat her down,
And the little Quaker sinner ripped the tuck out of her gown.

KEENE METHODISTS HOLD ANNIVERSARY

Annual Bible Society Meeting — The Scotch Trio Entertain.

Examiner Special

Keene, Nov. 16 — The Annual Bible Society Meeting was held in the basement of the Presbyterian Church, Monday evening, November 9th. Rev. D. D. McDonald, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, acted as chairman, and the principal speaker was Rev. M. French of Fenelon, who gave an address on the work of the Society. Messrs. James McNeil, Andrew Shearer and Rev. W. D. Harrison also spoke briefly. There was a large attendance. Music was furnished by the united choirs of the Presbyterian and Methodist Churches.

Anniversary Services were held in the Methodist Church, Sunday, November 8th. Both morning and evening services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Adams, Norwood. Special music was furnished by the choir, assisted by Miss Margaret Bryce, and Mr. Frany Pratt, Peterborough.

Messrs. C. B. Routley and Herbert Routley, Peterborough, R. McGaw, J. Ten Eyck, E. Pingle and W. Frye, Toronto, were guests at Oak Lodge last week and made some excellent bags of ducks.

The duck shooting has been excellent lately, and some remarkably good bags have been made in the last few days.

A large attendance greeted the Scotch trio, Misses Nannie Strachan and Maud Kerr and Mr. Gavin Spence, who gave a concert in the Town Hall, Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Christian Endeavour Society. Mr. Spence's Scotch stories took particularly well with the audience and all his selections were heartily applauded. They intend re-visiting Keene shortly, and there is no doubt they will have as large or a larger audience next time.

WOMAN'S BACKACHE

The back is the mainspring of woman's organism. It quickly calls attention to trouble by aching. It tells, with other symptoms, such as nervousness, headache, pains in the loins, weight in the lower part of the body, that a woman's feminine organism needs immediate attention.

In such cases the one sure remedy which speedily removes the cause, and restores the feminine organism to a healthy, normal condition is

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. J. A. Laliberte, of 84 Artillerie Street, Quebec, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"For six years I have been doctoring for female weakness, heart and nerves, liver and kidney trouble, but in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I can safely say I have found a cure.

"I was continually bothered with the most distressing backaches, headaches, and bearing down pains, and I kept growing more and more nervous.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of all these distressing symptoms and made me a well woman. I would advise all suffering women, young or old, to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

Dynamite Kills Four and Injures Three at Port Daniel, Que.

CARELESS WORKMEN BLAMED

Crews of Tunnel Workers on Atlantic and Lake Superior Railroad Are Changing Shift When Man Throws Supposedly Empty Box on the Ground—Three of Men Came From Paspebiac, Quebec.

Campbellton, N.B., Nov. 16.—Information was received here Saturday from Paspebiac, Que., of a most disastrous explosion which occurred at Port Daniel, Que., a short distance below Paspebiac, on the line of the Atlantic & Lake Superior road, in which four men were killed outright and three were seriously injured. The names of the victims were not learned. There were three crews working on the new tunnel which is being cut at Port Daniel, and at 12 o'clock on Wednesday night, just as the night crew were coming to work, a blast was being set off. The man in charge had taken some dynamite from a box and made the charge ready. After which he threw the box on the ground, thinking it to be empty. An explosion followed almost instantly, blowing four men who were near at the time to atoms. Three of the men killed are said to have belonged to Paspebiac and one to St. Godfrey.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

The Bishop of Stepney has been appointed Archbishop of York.

The head office of the Corby Distillery Co. has been moved from Belleville.

A bylaw will be submitted in Belleville for the erection of a Collegiate Institute to cost $40,000 to $50,000.

Miss Pearl Campbell, teacher at Belleville, has accepted a position on the staff of the Deaf and Dumb Institute.

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth will leave about Jan. 1 for Vienna to remain as long as may be necessary to restore his hearing, which has been defective for some time.

Daniel Barr, 59 Sussex place, Toronto, a coachman, drank a considerable quantity of soured ink and carbolic acid in his room Sunday morning. It is expected he will recover.

Killed by Buzz-Saw.

Chatham, Nov. 16.—Benson Sterling, aged 34, a young married man, met a horrible death while taking part in a "sawing bee" at the farm of William Stevens at Scotland Saturday. His coat came in contact with a revolving saw, and his right arm was drawn into the spinning circle and severed from the body. The saw also cut terrible gashes in his side and hip. Mr. Sterling staggered about ten feet from the death-dealing machine, when he collapsed and died. His last words were: "I am going home to mother."

A widow and child survive.

Prominent Clergyman Killed.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 16.—Rev. Dr. G. Brinley Morgan, rector of Christ's Episcopal Church, and one of the most prominent clergymen in the diocese of Connecticut, was struck down by an automobile driven by Samuel Campbell Saturday afternoon, and died early yesterday morning. The minister was crossing the street in front of his church at the time.

From Lawyer to Day Laborer.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 16.—Relatives from Stratford, Ont., have claimed the body of John N. Duggan, who collapsed in the plant of the Detroit Copper and Brass Rolling Mills.

Duggan was once a well-known Toronto attorney. He met with reverses and came to Detroit, working in the rolling mills as a day laborer.

Last to Royal Society.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—At a meeting of the president, council and fellows of the Royal Society of Canada, a resolution was passed expressive of the serious loss sustained by the society in the death of Dr. James Fletcher, entomologist and botanist of the Dominion Government.

Grand Duke Alexis Dead.

Paris, Nov. 16.—Grand Duke Alexis of Russia, an uncle of Emperor Nicholas, died in this city on Saturday of pneumonia. The grand duke has lived in Paris almost continuously since his retirement from the position of Russian Minister of Marine, which he held 24 years.

Suicide by Shooting.

Montreal, Aug. 16.—Fred B. Mellor, whose body was found in Mount Royal Saturday with a bullet in his head, is supposed to have represented a Toronto thread firm. Alongside the body was a rifle and a box of cartridges. Mellor has lived in Montreal about a year.

Dead Indian Identified.

Brantford, Nov. 16.—The Indian who was run down and killed by a Grand Trunk train near Mount Vernon Friday night has been identified as David Stanta, aged 70 years, formerly of the local reserve.

Old Man Murdered.

Vineland, N.J., Nov. 16.—William Read, 78 years old, was murdered at his home here Saturday. Railroad bonds, said to be worth $60,000, and about $300 in cash, were taken by the murderer.

Viscount Kills Guide.

Kenora, Nov. 16.—An unfortunate shooting accident, with fatal result, occurred on Friday, the victim being William Prettie, aged 32, a hunter and trapper of this district.

A shooting party consisting of Maj. Hon. Jeffrey Vereker, his nephew, Viscount Gort, with William Prettie and George Gilbert, guides, left on Thursday to go moose hunting. While following the trail, Viscount Gort slipped on a large stone and fell, the rifle going off, the bullet entering Prettie's leg and going right through. He was brought to the Jubilee Hospital here, but died Saturday.

Viscount Gort is the eldest son of Lord Gort, and came to Canada to visit his uncle a few weeks ago and to hunt large game.

Three Killed at Railway Crossing.

London, Nov. 16.—David Lougheed, his wife and little daughter, were killed near Kingscourt Junction yesterday afternoon by Grand Trunk passenger train No. 3, in charge of Conductor Neil. The train left London at 11.23 a.m.

Mr. Lougheed was driving home from church and was crossing the track when the train suddenly came into view. Before he could get the rig over the track the engine struck it.

The three occupants of the buggy and the horse were instantly killed.

Dr. Chappel, coroner of Kingscourt, took charge of the bodies and had them removed to the stricken home. He will hold an inquest to-day.

Made $60,000 Commission.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—A writ for $60,000 has been taken out against A. E. Brunet, supreme controller of L'Union St. Joseph Society of Montreal, by Leon Decoeur of Ottawa, on behalf of the members of the society.

The claim is that as supreme controller of the society, having charge of financial dealings, he bought debentures on the municipalities about Montreal and sold them to the society, with a profit which, with interest, amounted to $60,000.

The action is to prevent A. E. Brunet from holding any office in the society and to compel him to pay $60,000 to the society.

Canada-German Line.

London, Nov. 16.—(C. A. P.)—With reference to the proposed German steamship lines to Canada, it is generally thought Buelow's cleverness has again scored.

It is undoubted that the Canadian Pacific intended putting its own vessels on the route, until threatened by continental competition.

There are rumors of a joint Canard and Grand Trunk Railway service when the latter's system is completed. Meantime it is possible a temporary arrangement may be made.

Miss Elkins Not Engaged.

Washington, Nov. 16.—U. S. Senator Stephen B. Elkins last night made the emphatic announcement that no engagement exists between his daughter, Miss Katherine Elkins, and the Duke de Abruzzi of the Italian navy.

The statement was made with the knowledge of Miss Elkins.

Evanturel Is Dead.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Word was telephoned here yesterday of the death of Hon. F. E. A. Evanturel, clerk of the Canadian Senate, and formerly M.P.P. for Prescott and Speaker of the Ontario Legislature. Death was due to pneumonia.

Mr. Evanturel leaves a son and a daughter. He died at the residence of his son in care of Dr. Lebreque of Alfred, Ont.

Mother Wants to Pay.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—A woman in Colorado has written for the second time to the Bank of Toronto officials asking for particulars concerning the passing by her son on a Toronto bank of a bogus check for $250. She wants to make amends. None of the city banks have any record of the loss, though the offence is said to have occurred last May, in which month the woman's first letter was received.

Indian Church Burned.

Kingston, Nov. 15.—St. Andrew's Church on Tendinaga Indian Reserve, near Deseronto, has been destroyed by fire, entailing serious loss. An insurance of $1,000 was carried. It looks as though the building has been set on fire. The church was built in 1838, and has been served by divinity students of Queen's during the past years.

Two Children Burned.

Lloydminster, Alta., Nov. 16.—Two children, aged five and eight years, of Joseph Hinchcliff, a farmer, fifteen miles northwest of here, were burned to death by the destruction of their home.

Rails For India.

Sydney, Nov. 16.—The steamer Loffstakken sailed Saturday for India with 450 tons of rails from the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. for the Punjab Railway.

"CAN I GET WELL?"

If Your Trouble comes from the Kidneys, or from Kidney Poisons in the Blood,

YES!

And if you have been ailing a long time don't lose your courage. It takes a little time—takes some constitutions longer than others. But Doan's Kidney Pills will gradually drain the poisons out of your system; the pain in your back will stop; the sediment in the urine will cease; there will be no rheumatic pains; you will feel freer and brighter, and when the last of the poisons have gone you will be well.

There is no way of getting the kidney poisons out of the system except through the kidneys, and no medicine so effective in taking them out as Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mr. W. Perkins, South Maitland, N.S., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know of the great cure I have obtained by using Doan's Kidney Pills. For six months I could not obtain a good night's rest, had to get up four or five times to urinate, and the urine was very thick and red. I commenced using Doan's Kidney Pills and in a very short time I was right and fit again. I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure."

Price 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

INDIGESTION IS VERY EASILY CURED

Five Minutes After Taking Some Diapepsin all Distress Will Go

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of indigestion or some form of stomach trouble, why don't you keep a case of Diapepsin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and regulate a sour stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily see why they cure indigestion, sour stomach, heartburn and prevent at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of sour undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from indigestion with the common everyday cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe there is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and stomach poison, which will putrefy in the entire digestive tract and intestines, and, besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Pape's Diapepsin.

One candy-like Triangule, taken after eating, will promptly digest all your food, the same as a strong, healthy stomach would do it.

Music and Drama

ABOUT GOING HOME IN THE DARK

Jerome H. Remick is offering the popular music loving public a new song which it desires to be murdered. It is a successor to that which proved "some" success but has been long since laid on the shelf, there to join thousands of others which have reached the same destination after varying existences. The title of the new one is "I Used to be Afraid to go Home in the Dark." It is written by Williams, VanAlstyne and Ben Hapgood Burt, and coming from this trio it has all the credentials necessary to appeal to popular favour. It is just off the presses and is said to possess every quality that will make it a hit.

Like its predecessor it is a saying which will be used by the public and this fact alone should assure its success. The composers have written many songs that have been immensely popular and the Remick publishing house seldom turns out anything but hits.

Small Boys Had Grand Feast Of Candy At Wreck On Saturday

Chocolate Bars, Chocolates and Popcorn Provided a Feast Which, in Their Wildest Dreams, They Had Never Thought Of—Crates Were Broken Open.

THEY WILL REMEMBER IT

There are a number of small boys somewhere in number between 50 and 100, who will remember all their lives Saturday's wreck on the C.P.R. On arising that morning had someone told them that they were to have as much candy, popcorn and bonbons as they could safely eat they would not have believed it. And yet to their great delight such was the case. But they did not realize what had happened until the afternoon grew grey and dark before the approaching shades of evening, when, as in small groups they reluctantly straggled homeward, it came to them as a dream that they had enjoyed a feast of sweetmeats that they might have expected only Aladdin's lamp to bring.

In one of the cars that was smashed in the collision there was a crate or more of candies which in being removed to clear the south siding was broken open. Like kitchen flies around a honey jar the "small boys" gathered and in spite of the threats of the wrecking crew they were dodging around getting an arm into the good things and then darting away again to enjoy their capture. At times the men would scramble the candies, again they would let the youngsters help themselves from the broken boxes, and the way everything was grabbed up provided great amusement for the older onlookers.

Chocolate bars, fresh and dainty, perfectly clean too, for they had not been loosened from the smaller boxes, pop corn bags, "Evangeline" bonbons and various other varieties of candy were "gobbled" up. It was a taste of fairyland for the boys, and even the Christmas sweets which old Santa leaves on his annual trip were not so plentiful nor delectable. One boy, bigger than the rest went around grabbing bags of pop corn to open them and get the prize that is found in each. Before the afternoon was over he had about thirty or forty of these trinkets.

Anything that they may read henceforth in Grimm's or Anderson's tales will prove tame and commonplace when compared with last Saturday's experience. To them the wreck was a good genius, and it is safe to say that the boys who shared in the fun will bear it in their memory as one of the events of their childhood. Passing a confectioner's window where tempting chocolate bars are profusely piled, or in which chocolates in boxes ornate with a picture of Evangeline and the village of Grand Pere are tastefully displayed, Sammy or Johnny will very likely remark to his companion, "Them's the kind we had out at the wreck that day. They're dandies, too, arn't they?"

OLDER BOYS' CLUB FORMED

Active Work Being Done in Connection With the Y.M.C.A.—Constitution Partly Drawn Up.

THE OFFICERS ELECTED

At a meeting of the older boys of the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night an Older Boys' Club was formed, which promises to be a feature in connection with that institution. Mr. Herbert Johnston was secretary pro tem. and the following officers were elected

Hon. President—Mr. F. G. Hazzard (General Secretary).

Hon. Vice-President—Mr. G. T. Evans (Boys' Secretary).

President—Mr. George Hogan.

The secretary-treasurer will be elected at a subsequent meeting. Part of the organization was completed and a portion of the constitution was drawn up. It is as follows:—

Members must be 15 years or over to be eligible.

The club will meet every other Friday at 7.45 o'clock.

That the object of the club be promotion of Bible study, sociability, athletics and literary work.

That there be four committees formed that will take charge of the different phases of the work.

That the Bible Study Committee have charge of the first half hour of every meeting.

That the other three committees have charge of the latter part of the meeting alternately.

The Athletic Committee will have charge of the next meeting on Nov. 27th, when a talk on athletics will be given.

All older boys, 15 years and over who are members of the association are invited to be present.

THE CANADIAN CROP ESTIMATES

Government Statistics Office Issue Statement Showing Final Estimate of Year's Yields.

The following statement, issued by the government census and statistics office yesterday afternoon, presents final estimates of the yield during the past season in the Dominion of root crops, clover seed, fodder, corn and hay, with market prices:

Potatoes, on 598,600 acres, yield on average of 142 bushels per acre, being a total of 71,511,000 bushels. The average market price is reported at 50 cents per bushel, and the total value of the crop may therefore be put at $35,755,500.

Turnips and other field roots, on 271,448 acres, an average yield of 371 bushels per acre, show a total production of 100,705,358 bushels, which is considerably in excess of the preliminary estimate of a month ago. The market price averages 19 cents per bushel, which indicates a total value for these crops of $19,134,000.

The area in hay and clover is 8,311,000 acres which, at an average yield of 1.52 tons, indicates a proportion of about 12,421,000 tons. At an average price of $10.15, the value of the crop may be put at $126,062,150.

Fodder corn, occupying an area of 259,778 acres, yielded an average of 11.08 tons per acre, and a total production of about 1a7,000 tons. The average market price is $4.05 per ton, and the total value represents therefore $11,644,000.

The yield per acre of clover seed is estimated at 2.23 bushels in 1908, as compared with 3.68 bushels in 1907 and of alsike clover seed at 2.92 bushels in 1908, as compared with 3.31 bushels in 1907.

The market price of red clover seed this year averaged $7.50 per bushel, as compared with $9.77 in 1907, and alsike clover seed this year averaged $9.57, as compared with $9.06 in 1907. It is estimated that the acreage devoted to clover seed this year exceeds that of 1907 by 29 per cent. in the case of red clover, and 5 per cent. in the case of alsike.

Interesting Meeting Of Inthons

Large Attendance Yesterday—Literary Meeting on Friday.

The Inthons are becoming more and more popular every Sunday. Each gathering shows a marked increase. The lesson yesterday was taken up by Assistant Teacher F. C. Moore, Rev. E. A. Pearson not being present.

The lesson was not discussed in the regular way, but was illustrated by Mr. Moore with a Syrian story of how the Twenty-third Psalm was inseparably connected with David, the account of which was very interesting.

How the class is appreciated by strangers can be seen by the following: A young gentleman from Winnipeg paid a visit to the class a few Sundays ago and was made to feel at home. A couple of days later he approached one of the members and said that of all the classes he had ever attended the Inthon Bible Class had made him feel more at home than any other. The friendly handshake helping in a large measure to chase away that feeling of loneliness and bashfulness which one experiences when coming into a crowd of strangers.

Next Friday evening the second literary meeting of the season will be held. Two Normal School boys will act as captains of the spelling match that will be the leading feature of the evening. Be prepared and come along.—Com.

PRIZES FOR TORONTO HORSE SHOW

Will be Held in January at Toronto Junction—Inducements to Exhibitors.

THE JUDGES APPOINTED

The next horse show, under the auspices of the Ontario Horse Breeders' Association, will be held at the Union Stock Yards, West Toronto, (Toronto Junction), on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, January 13th, 14th and 15th, 1909.

During the time of the show a good street car service will be given from the City of Toronto to the Union Stock Yards.

The building in which the show will be held will be specially fitted with a show ring and will be well lighted and heated. All the horses on exhibition will be stabled at the Stock Yards and every opportunity will be given visitors to view the exhibits. Both the C. P. R. and G. T. R. have sidings in the yards and there is every convenience for the easy loading and unloading of the horses.

The different classes of the show with the prize money offered for each are as follows: Clydesdales, $8.20; Canadian Bred Clydesdales and Shires, $440; Shires, $305; Hackneys, $420; Standard Breds, $275; Thoroughbreds, $675; Ponies, $130; Heavy Draught Horses, $305; Championships, $215; total prize money, $3,215.

The judges of heavy horses will be, Hon. Robert Beith, Bowmanville; James Torrance, Markham; Job White, Ashburn; with A. McLaren, Chicago, as reserve judge. The judges for Hackneys will be, Dr. Campbell, Berlin; W. H. Gibson, Beaconsfield, Que.; B. Rothwell, Ottawa; with L. Meredith, London, as reserve judge.

The list of prizes is practically the same as the last show. Copies may be procured on application to the secretary, Ontario Horse Breeders' Exhibition, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

GOOD RAILWAY REPORTS HIT WALL STREET

Examiner Special

New York, Nov. 16.—During the week the stock market was erratic with price movements sharp and sudden. Early in the week there were rumors of Harriman melons. It was said in financial circles that there would be an increase in dividends both on Southern Pacific and Union Pacific. Then it was also reported that an announcement would be made as to the retirement of the Southern Pacific preferred stock at 115. The other rumour which attracted a great deal of attention and was seriously considered was that of a holding company for the Union Pacific's stocks and bonds of the other roads. This rumour was very specific and came from good quarters.

The story was that a 100 per cent. dividend would be declared on the Union Pacific stock. In other words every holder of a share of Union Pacific would receive a share of the new company. This new stock to pay 5 per cent., and the old Union Pacific 7 per cent. When the directors of the Union Pacific and of the Southern Pacific met and declared the regular dividends without making any other announcement the Street was disappointed and prices broke sharply only to recover as sharply under the leadership of United States Steel Common which advanced to 56 3-4 the highest price on record. The Morgan interests are predicting 60 for this stock within a short time and 100 for it within a year and a half. Friday the stock advanced to 58 1-2. In this connection it might be well to call attention to the fact that the improvement in the iron and steel trade has been greatly exaggerated. There has been some improvement but nothing like that reported by the daily press.

Business in stock exchange circles has been immense during the last two weeks and clerks are being overworked. Usually the financial district is dull and deserted after five o'clock, but it now resembles Broadway after dark. Lights gleam from every window and messengers hustling about the streets, make the financial centre of the country a lively place long after the usual time when it is deserted. Many clerks have not left their work until early in the morning.

The public bought millions of shares while the big men and the banks have been selling stocks carried over the panic. This is proved by the heavy decrease in loans by the associated banks last week when ordinarily in view of the heavier business an increase in the loan account should have been looked for. The present market is a dangerous one for the speculator on margins.

Sir,—The Doukhobors are proving themselves to be excellent colonizers. The Hon. W. J. Hanna made a severe attack on these people in Peterborough, and yet I read in the Utica Globe of an article under the above above heading. It states that "with the exception of a few outbreaks of religious mania, due to misguided leadership, they are doing well, raising wheat and cattle, and building up their material prosperity. They are proving the best settlers in the Canadian Northwest. They are industrious and frugal, and possess those moral and physical qualities which are essential to a new land. Their hospitality is unbounded and payment is never taken for food and lodging. In business affairs they are scrupulously honest."

CELEBRATED DIAMOND WEDDING LAST WEEK

Examiner Special

Mount Pleasant, Nov. 16.—The sixtieth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. James McLean, of "The Maples," on Friday night. The guests were the seven children, twenty-one grandchildren and five great grandchildren, who presented their parents with purses of gold and the following address:

Mount Pleasant, Nov. 13, 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. James McLean, Mount Pleasant.

Dear Parents,—Our hearts are vibrant with joy and benediction that a benevolent and loving Providence has marked you for especial honour and distinction in this celebration of the diamond anniversary of your wedding.

Memories of the past flood in upon us and shed halos of fervent gratitude for the blessings and guidance that have been our portion.

Our lives have been materially benefitted by your noble example, your sterling integrity, your high ideals and your loving Christian counsel.

We feel that words are useless to express to you the emotions of our hearts, but we are proud to see you so physically and mentally preserved in the enjoyment of life, which we pray may hold for you many future years of usefulness, pleasure and blessing.

In asking your gracious acceptance of the accompanying purses of gold we do so, not from the standpoint of their intrinsic representation, but for the love that prompts the giving.

We extend our loving congratulations, and our prayers are that when earthly celebrations have passed we may all meet to celebrate around the great white throne.

A sumptuous repast was served. Toasts to the King, to those we honour, and the ladies brought forth many bright speeches and songs.

The floral decorations were chrysanthemums and a very pretty effect was a diamond shaped decoration of sixty candles in the centre of which stood the wedding cake.

SOME NEWS NOTES FROM CANADA'S CAPITAL

Minister of Justice Will Not go to Europe as Reported—Death of Prominent Ontario Statesman—The Quebec Harbour Enquiry—Carleton Conservatives Want to Shake Borden.

Examiner Special

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—The statement that Hon. A B Aylesworth, the Minister of Justice, will leave about Jan. 1st, for Vienna, Austria, to take treatment for the increasing deafness which threatens his usefulness in public life, is not believed to be well founded. Mr. Aylesworth was in Vienna last summer, and was assured that his difficulty was curable, but had to return to Canada to take part in the Dominion elections. Mr. Aylesworth is a figure that could ill be spared from our parliamentary and public life, and his many friends will be glad to learn that by following a home treatment under advice of the Austrian scientists his infirmity is being removed, and that he will be able to perform his accustomed duties during the approaching session of Parliament.

Chas. Godbout, a carpenter, fell from a scaffolding on the Government Museum on Saturday afternoon and sustained injuries which caused his death yesterday.

Advices have been received by the Government that the Governor of British Honduras, Colonel Swayne, will come to Canada shortly in connection with the proposed plan of transporting the Hindu population of British Columbia to British Honduras to work on the sugar plantations.

The news received on Saturday of the death at Alfred, Prescott County, at the residence of his son, of Hon. F E A Eventurel, clerk of the Canadian Senate, caused regret among a large circle of friends. He represented Prescott in the Ontario Legislature for several terms, was twice chosen Speaker, and was for a short time a member of the Ross Government without portfolio. Before removing to Prescott he was a well-known member of the Ottawa civil service. He was eldest son of Hon. Francois Eventurel, who was Minister of Agriculture of the old United Provinces in 1862.

The investigation into the Quebec Agency of the Marine Department closed on Saturday. It is the intention of Justice Cassels to have his report ready for the Government to submit to Parliament on its opening.

It is understood that the friends of Mr. Kidd in Carleton insist that Hon. Mr. Borden shall elect to sit for his Maritime constituency, it being claimed that there was an understanding to that effect. The Carleton Conservatives are strongly insistent upon a local representative, the county having been so often used as a mere party chattel.

Lakefield Wharf Being Built In Three Levels To Accommodate Navigation

The Interests Concerned Are Greatly Pleased With the Change in the Plans and the Public Welfare Will be Promoted.

WORK PROCEEDING RAPIDLY

Work on the new wharf at Lakefield is being energetically prosecuted, under direction of Superintendent McClellan. The wharf is being built of concrete and will be 518 feet in length, and will be built in three stages or levels, to accommodate different classes of vessels and varying water levels. One stage will be 161 feet in length and will be four feet above low water level, thus enabling waggons to be driven upon barges for delivery and receiving of freight. The second stage will be 254 feet in length and will be two and one-half feet above low water level, and will accommodate the steamboat traffic. The third stage will be 103 feet in length and will be one and one-half feet above low water level, and is designed for the accommodation of gasoline launches and small craft.

Originally it was intended to have the wharf all on one level, but representations to the government secured an alteration of the plans as above, by means of which the utility of the structure will be greatly increased, and the convenience and benefit of the various interests concerned, consulted to the best advantage. The government is to be congratulated upon its readiness to consult the local requirements in this case, as in others, and the wharf will be a boon to all interested in river navigation.

Approved by River Interests

A representative of The Examiner today called at the office of the Otonabee Navigation Company, at 141 Hunter street, to enquire how the wharf arrangement at Lakefield would answer the purposes of the company, and the general interests of navigation.

W. H. Robertson, president of the company, said: "I am exceedingly pleased to learn that the plan of construction you have described is to be carried into effect. In fact it was the only method by which the new structure could be made of practical utility to all the interests involved, partly by reason of the variation in the size of the river craft, and partly on account of the wide difference of the water levels at different seasons of the year. Our company made representations both to the department and to Hon. Mr. Stratton, when the announcement of a one level was made, and not only we, but all those practically interested in the navigation of the river, feel deeply indebted to Hon. Mr. Stratton for his energetic and effectual representations which have secured just what the needs of all parties concerned demanded. The Government may be sure that in this case they have consulted both the wishes and interests of the people of this section, and Mr. Stratton has given another and a gratifying proof of his capacity for 'doing things.'"

Viewed at Young's Point

Mr. Pat Young, of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company, when asked over the 'phone for his opinion of the new arrangement being carried out in the Lakefield wharf, said:

"The three-level arrangement will meet the requirements of all the different river craft, as well as provide for different water levels. It will be of great advantage, not only to river navigation, but to all who have to do with it, and will be a benefit to the public as well as to those directly interested in navigation. And we all feel very grateful to Hon. Mr. Stratton for his energetic efforts to have this structure built upon a plan that will best serve the interests that are concerned. We felt that he would succeed, because we have never known him to fail when he went after a public improvement that was to benefit his constituents. When I called Mr. J. R. Stratton up by telephone a couple of weeks ago, he said he would look after it, and I knew he would do so. A mistake had been made in the first plans. Now that the error has been made right all interests will feel satisfied."

ALFRED SHRUBB WILL BE HERE; LITTLE ENGLISHMAN IS COMING TO ROLLER RINK TO RUN RELAY RACE

The Peterborough people will have an opportunity in a short time of seeing in action Alfred Shrubb, the world's greatest distance runner.

The marvellous little Englishman who has no hesitation in challenging the best runners in the world, will appear at the Auditorium Roller Rink here on the evenings of Dec. 1, 2 and 3, and will run relay races against any one whom the management desire to put up against him. Manager Genno has been in communication with Shrubb for months, but was unable to close the deal until to-day when he received a letter from the Englishman from Boston accepting the terms and naming the above dates for his visit. Now, the manager of the Auditorium is anxious to get a number of runners to meet the wonderful little bunch of speed and muscle, who is so anxious to hook up with Tom Longboat. Any local runners who want to get a crack at Shrubb in a relay race are asked to send their names in to the Sporting Editor of the Examiner at once. The distance will be any way from one mile to five, although Shrubb states that he is willing to go twenty, if necessary.

In case no runners materialize to oppose the Englishman he will go on in a handicap race against a squad of local roller skaters.

The visit of this famous runner will no doubt attract a big crowd. No one who has even glanced at the sporting page of any journal these days can fail to have read of Shrubb, and they will all welcome the opportunity of seeing him perform.

BLACK-LISTED MAN PLEADED GUILTY TO HAVING BEEN FOUND DRUNK

A man who is on the blacklist appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning, on a charge of being found drunk yesterday. He pleaded guilty and the case was enlarged for one week.

License Inspector Stewart testified that the man was an habitual drinker, and that he had been served with an order forbidding him to purchase liquor.

P. C. Meagher testified to arresting the defendant on Chambers street yesterday, shortly after six o'clock in the evening. He was intoxicated.

Chief Rossel asked that the man, according to the act, be asked to tell where he had obtained his liquor.

The defendant therefore took the box and stated that as he was going up George street yesterday morning he was stopped by a man who was driving a team, and asked if he wanted employment. The man had wanted him to go to his place, fourteen miles away, the defendant did not know in what direction, to cut wood. He had stated that he had never done any of that kind of work, whereupon the man had asked him if he ever took anything, and handed him a bottle from which he had taken one drink. He could not remember having any more than one drink or of having a drink anywhere else yesterday. He did not know the man and had never seen him before. The defendant informed the magistrate that one drink was sometimes too much for him.

"Did the man look to see if there was anything in the bottom of the bottle when you handed it back to him?" asked the magistrate.

The defendant promised to be on hand when his case is called next week and he was allowed to go.

Ladies Of Y.W.C.A. Are Collecting One Mile Of Coppers, Or $633

The public department of the Y.W.C.A. have commenced a campaign by which they intend to secure one mile of coppers. This will be a total of $633.00. They are asking the citizens to help them realize this amount and a number of the young ladies have tickets by which they mark off all the inches that they receive coppers for. The ladies are anxious to secure the amount they have determined upon and are confident that the men will help them in a substantial manner. This movement is somewhat different from the tag movement. In the latter a tag is given to every donor, in the mile of coppers you may give as much as you like and as often as you have a mind to.

Special Meeting Of City Council

An Effort Will be Made to Settle the Water Front Question To-night.

A special meeting of the city council has been called for to-night in an effort to settle the water front problem, which has been before the council ever since the filling in was commenced. There have been many meetings between the parties concerned and several apparently satisfactory arrangements entered into only to fall through. To-night, however, it is expected that the matter will be settled.

Several other matters of importance are also to come up for discussion.

The Charity Board will also meet this evening.

HEADACHES ARE DANGER SIGNALS

They Tell Us Plainly That Something is Wrong Inside.

There are tablets and powders that will stop a headache promptly—but removing a danger signal does not take away the danger.

In nearly every case a headache—of whatever kind—is a symptom of poisoned blood, due to Bowels, Kidneys and Skin failing to thoroughly remove indigestible food and waste, worn-out tissue from the body. Then digestion is poor, causing sick headaches, or uric acid is formed and deposited on the nerves, causing neuralgia.

Not only the danger signal, but the danger itself as well, is quickly removed by "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" are tablets made of the combined juices of oranges, apples, figs and prunes, containing all their medicinal properties, concentrated and intensified. They cause the liver to secrete more bile, which moves the bowels freely and regularly, and cures the most obstinate cases of Constipation. They stir up kidneys and skin to throw off all the urea, or dead tissue, which has been poisoning the system. They sweeten the stomach, improve digestion and tone up the whole body. The headaches disappear—because the source is removed. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. Trial size, 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Chinese Rulers Both Are Dead

WAS KUANG HSU MURDERED

Rumor Is Circulated That Foul Play Took Place In Cast of Figure-Head Emperor—Three-Year-Old Mounts the Throne — Court Goes Into Mourning For Three Years—Trouble Is Feared In China.

Pekin, Nov. 16.—Tsze Hsi An, Dowager-Empress of China, the autocratic head of the Government, which she directed without successful interference since 1861, died at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The announcement of her death was official, and followed closely upon the announcement that Kuang Hsu, the Emperor, died Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, but it is believed that the deaths of the Emperor and the Dowager Empress occurred considerably before the time set down in the official statements.

An edict issued at 8 o'clock yesterday morning placed upon the throne Prince Pu Yi, the three-year-old son of Prince Chun, the Regent of the Empire, in accordance with a promise given by the Dowager Empress soon after the marriage of Prince Chun in 1903. An edict issued on Friday made Pu Yi heir-presumptive.

The foreign legations were notified yesterday morning by the Foreign Board of the death of the Emperor and the succession of Prince Pu Yi. Troops have been in readiness for several days to quell any disorders that might arise on the death of Kuang Hsu, and the possibility of uprisings was made greater because the death of the Dowager Empress was known to be close at hand. Two divisions of troops have been held in reserve and these are now stationed in various quarters of the city. Twenty rendarmes were despatched to guard the approaches to the legations, but up to the present the duties of the forces have been slight. It was announced that the legation guards were ordered out at "the special call of the legations owing to the Emperor's death."

Prince Chun, the Regent, has ordered the viceroys and governors to take precautions for the continuation of the administration of the provinces as heretofore, and he has ordered a hundred days of mourning. The court will go into mourning for three years.

London, Nov. 16.—A special to The London Times from Pekin says the death of the Empress-Dowager occurred yesterday, and following so closely upon the death of the Emperor on Saturday arouses suspicions of foul play. The new Empress-Dowager, it is added, is a complete nonentity. Neurasthenia was the direct cause of the Emperor's death. His Majesty refused to allow himself, when the end was approaching, to be removed to the Pavilion of Peaceful Longevity, thus violating the precedents which prescribe the place of death of the rulers of China. Eventually he expired without having donned the robes proper to the occasion.

Will Spend $10,000,000.

Pittsburg, Nov. 16.—Arrangements for spending about $10,000,000 on new mills and improvement of old mills in the Pittsburg district were completed by officials of the United States Steel Corporation here Saturday. Before leaving for the east last night President W. Ellis Corey of the Steel Corporation, said:

"We are now working 60 per cent. of our capacity, and I look for a gradual improvement until about the middle of next summer, when business will reach a normal and healthful stage. I do not expect any boom, but only healthful business."

"Tag-Day" Disappointing.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—Nine thousand dollars will be the limit of Saturday's collections, as a result of the Y.W.C. Guild "Tag Day," early in the evening, with the money fairly rolling in it was estimated that upwards of $25,000 would be gathered. This was based upon the assumption that each girl would average $25, and that there were 1,500 girls in the field. The "big" boxes were coming in from the downtown district at that time, and they were coming in fast.

As a matter of fact, the average was less than $19, and there were only about 500 girls at work.

Eczema, Salt Rheum.

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is often called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. It manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat, are almost unbearable.

The pre-eminent success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in permanently curing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

No other remedy has done, or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the horrible torture, as our thousands of testimonials can testify to.

Mrs. John O'Connor, Burlington, N.S., writes:—"For years I suffered with Salt Rheum. I tried a dozen different medicines, but most of them only made it worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and before I had taken half a dozen doses I could see a change so I continued its use and now I am completely cured. I cannot say too much for your wonderful medicine."

Roman Catholics in Convention

Canadians Take Part in Big Chicago Missionary Meeting.

FITZPATRICK AT BANQUET

Chief Justice of Canada, Archbishop McEvay, Rev. Dr. Burke, and Rev. F. Kidd Among the Canadians Who Are Participating In Extension Movement — Objects of Missionary Convention.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—The first Catholic Missionary Congress ever held in America opened here yesterday morning in the Holy Name Cathedral. The Congress, which will continue until the 18th instant, has brought together a very large number of prelates, priests and prominent laymen from all parts of Canada and the United States. Among those taking part are Right Hon. Sir Charles Fitzpatrick Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada; Archbishop McEvay of Toronto and Rev. Dr. Burke, president of the Canadian Church Extension Society. Sir Charles Fitzpatrick was the principal speaker at a banquet tendered the visiting prelates in the Auditorium Hotel in the afternoon by the Four Degree Knights of SIR CHAS. FITZPATRICK, Who Addressed the Roman Catholic Missionary Congress Yesterday.

Columbus of the Northern Illinois jurisdiction. Archbishop McEvay was the preacher at Pontificial Vespers in the cathedral last evening. Rev. Dr. Burke and Rev. F. Kidd, secretary of the archdiocese of Toronto, were the deacons of honor, Dr. Burke read a paper at the session of the congress this morning on mission colleges.

The avowed object of the congress, as set forth in its program, is "to mark the change of the Church in North America from missionary conditions to its full share in the efforts of the church universal by striking the note of the unselfishness clearly and forcefully. To crystallize the missionary sentiment now being awakened in the Catholic clergy and people, to the end that all may realize their common duty of preserving and extending the Church of Jesus Christ. To study missionary conditions, especially in America and the colonies of the United States, and plan for their improvement.

Austrian Cabinet.

Vienna, Nov. 16.—Baron Richard von Bienerth, Minister of the Interior, in accordance with instructions from the Emperor, has formed a new Cabinet, himself taking the office of premier.

The Austrian Cabinet resigned on Nov. 7, on account of dissensions between the German and Czech Ministers, following the recent racial conflicts in Prague and other Bohemian towns.

In the new Cabinet Baron von Haerdtle has been appointed Minister of Interior and Herr F. von Georgi, Minister for National Defence. The other Ministerial offices have been entrusted to the present Departmental chiefs.

Arrested For Assault.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—Word was conveyed to the police yesterday that the companion of Reginald M. Ross in the attack on Mrs. Ruby Henson Friday night was Patrick Connelly, a porter at the Woodbine Hotel. He was immediately arrested and charged with the crime. Mrs. Henson identified him as the second man.

A Common Danger.

London, Nov. 16.—(C. A. P.)—Dr. Ripley, professor of economics at Harvard University, in delivering the Huxley memorial lecture, asserted that Canada was subject to the same physical danger confronting the United States, namely, the actual physical submergence of English stock by the flood of European people.

Transportation of the Hindus.

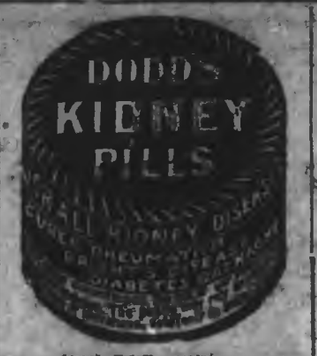
Ottawa, Nov. 16.—Advices have been received by the Government that the Governor of British Honduras, Col. Swayne, will come to Canada, shortly in connection with the proposed plan of transporting the Hindu population of British Columbia to British Honduras to work on the sugar plantations.

Killed by a Fall.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—Charles Godbout, a carpenter, died in St. Luke's Hospital on Sunday as the result of injuries sustained in falling from a scaffold at the Geological Survey Museum on Saturday afternoon. He fractured his skull and both legs.

Twin City Street Railway.

Port Arthur, Nov. 16.—The decision of the Ontario Railway Board regarding the Twin City Street Railway was what was expected. A joint board has been appointed and has engaged a manager and a secretary to take charge to-day.



HANG CONVICTED SLAYER.

Man Who Shot Francis J. Heney Takes Life In Jail.

San Francisco, Nov. 16.—Morris Haas, who on Friday attempted to assassinate Francis J. Heney, committed suicide Saturday night by shooting himself in the head with a pistol he had concealed in his person.

Haas' fellow-prisoners testify to the means which made this possible. After the shot Heney, Haas was searched twice. He went to bed Friday night with his shoes on and again Saturday night, and when asked why he did this he said he would rather sleep with them on. The opinion was expressed that the pistol was passed to Haas after he was taken into custody.

Haas' wife called at the jail Saturday to see him, and two stories are told as to where the interview took place. One says that Haas talked to his wife through his cell door, and the other that they were allowed to go into another room. The conflicting stories would not be reconciled yesterday. A rigid investigation is being made by the authorities.

Heney will recover unless unforeseen complications set in.

The vicinity of the court room will in future be patrolled and a large force of police will be held in reserve.

Mr. Heney and his family were the recipients of many messages of sympathy and cheer during the day. The messages came from all sections of the United States, and some from Europe. One telegram that brought a smile from the pain-drawn face of the prosecutor was a message from President Roosevelt to Mrs. Heney.

PROBERS TAKE A REST.

Marine Inquiry Adjourns Pending Securing of More Evidence.

Quebec, Nov. 16.—Rather unexpectedly and quite suddenly the investigation into the affairs of the Quebec agency of the Department of Marine and Fisheries was adjourned at noon on Saturday.

Prior to the adjournment, a few witnesses were heard, the most interesting piece of evidence having probably been that given by Mr. Mercier, a grocer, who had dealings amounting to about $5,000 with the Department during three years.

He had paid the usual 5 per cent. to Mr. Gregory, solely, he said, because he wanted money. The total amount paid Mr. Gregory was about $300.

Other witnesses had shrugged their shoulders and given no reason for not entering the details of such payments on their books.

This witness, when asked why he had not done so, replied that Mr. Gregory had warned him not to do so. He kept a memo. of the amounts so paid, and at the end of the year included them in the profit and loss item.

Canadian Gets Windfall.

Owen Sound, Nov. 16.—John Milne, a former resident of the Township of Sydenham, now living at Stockton, Man., has been advised that he is one of the heirs of the wealthy Bernie estate in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, worth $8,000,000. His uncle, the head of the Bernie family, died last spring without a will. The estate will probably be divided between the five brothers and sisters of the deceased, and Mr. Milne, who is a son of one of the Bernie sisters, will come in for his share, to be about $600,000.

Gomez Is Victorious.

Havana, Nov. 16.—Practically complete returns of Saturday's election show that the Liberal victory was even more decisive than supposed.

Official returns from 1,800 of a total of 1,498 polling places show that Gen. Jose Miguel Gomez received 183,633 votes against 118,329 for Gen. Marie Menocal, the Conservative candidate.

The Liberals carried every province in the island. Havana Province went Liberal by 15,000 and the city by 13,000.

France-Canadian Treaty.

London, Nov. 16.—The Morning Post thinks Canada might yet abandon the Franco-Canadian treaty if there was an early prospect of obtaining reciprocity here. It emphasizes the strenuous efforts of the German commercial classes to obtain a similar treaty.

The News urges capital, labor and the Board of Trade here to study the Lemieux act as a model.

Wife's Charge Against Husband.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 14.—Alfred Taylor appeared before the police magistrate to be bound over to keep the peace as a result of threats against his wife, was charged by her with seducing her at the age of 15 and with killing a child of their illicit union. Taylor came here from San Francisco ten years ago.

Actor Farnum Divorced.

New York, Nov. 16.—A decree of absolute divorce was granted Saturday by Justice Bischoff to Mrs. A. Johnstone Farnum from Dustin Farnum, the actor. Farnum was named as co-respondent by Howard Gould in his answer to a suit brought against him recently by Katherine C. Gould.

Re-Elected Head of Douma.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 16.—Nikolai Khomykoff was on Saturday re-elected president of the Douma by 316 votes to 34. Vice-Presidents Volkonsky and Megarduff and Secretary Sasonoff also were re-elected.

REBUFF FOR KAISER.

King Edward Calls Off Berlin Trip—Authorship of Interview Divulged.

New York, Nov. 16.—The Herald has the following from London:

The cat is out of the bag at last. It was Sir Rowland Blennerhassett who is the author of the interview with Kaiser Wilhelm which appeared in The Daily Telegraph, and the price paid for it was $2,500.

There are some who have said that King Edward was inclined to be amused at these further indiscretions of his impulsive nephew, but that is far from being the case, for the King was very seriously annoyed, particularly at the part which referred to the plan for the conduct of the South African campaign. His Majesty is showing his displeasure in a very marked way, for all plans for the proposed forthcoming visit of the King and Queen to Berlin have been stopped, much to the surprise of court circles. The King has not given any reasons for this, but while other reasons of a less contentious character will be put forward officially for the abandonment, or at least the postponing, of the visit to the German capital, the real reason is, of course, the recent disclosures.

PLANS TO END DEFICITS.

U. S. Postmaster-General Says Local Rural Routes Will Do It.

Washington, Nov. 16.—In his annual report to Congress Postmaster-General Meyer will say that he is "firmly convinced that the establishment of a special local parcel post confined to rural routes would tend to wipe out the postal deficit, and would finally make the rural delivery self-sustaining, besides being of convenience to the farmer and a boon to the retail country merchant."

There are now in operation more than 39,000 rural routes, he said, serving a population of about eighteen million people, and should an average of fifty-five pounds of merchandise be carried by the rural carrier on each trip throughout the year, it is estimated that $15,000,000 would be realized.

The rate would be five cents for the first pound and two cents for each additional pound up to eleven pounds, the maximum weight of a package.

MAN-EATER ON MENU.

Canadian Camp Finds Lion Good Eating But Very Tough.

New York, Nov. 16.—A man-eating lion from Tsavo (at least so the menu said) was the centrepiece of the dinner on Friday night of the Canadian Camp. Everything played up to the Hon and back again. Those who ate the man-eater declared the flavor was fine, but the meat tough. There were several opinions, expressed that the beast had been too great an athlete in his day, and that a less muscular specimen, after a few years of idleness and travel with a first-class circus, would be preferable. There were also lily bulbs, and potatoes from Moose Camp.

It was the sixth dinner of the camp, and was held at the Hotel Astor. At the guests' table were Will Carleton, Prof. H. C. Burgess, Dr. Geo. L. Foster, John Achorn, Gilbert Evans, Dr. Edmond Worcester, D. W. Huntington, W. I. Carroll and L. F. Brown.

Plotted to Kill Mother.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 16.—Charged with a cold-blooded plot to murder her mother for her life insurance, Miss May L. Otis, 640 East 46th place, was arrested by central office detectives and locked up.

The daughter, who is 36 years old, had contracted with three men for $2,500 to kill her mother some time within the next three or four days, according to the police. The booty was to have been a $6,000 life insurance policy which the mother had taken out in favor of her daughter.

Miss Otis paid $100 down on the murder contract on Friday and finished all preparations for carrying out the deed, it is said. Then she was arrested and discovered that she had been bargaining with two city detectives and the head of a private detective agency who had been detailed to watch her and learn the plot.

Tercentenary Stamps Out.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—Notice has been given by the Postoffice Department that the entire stock of tercentenary stamps issued last summer on the occasion of the celebration in Quebec has been exhausted. There will be no further issue of these stamps.

$100,000 For Collegiate Institute.

Brantford, Nov. 16.—The collegiate board has requested the city council to provide for a vote on a debenture issue of $100,000 for the erection of a collegiate institute.

CHIEFTAINS DECIDE TO ENTER A TEAM IN JUNIOR O.H.A. SERIES; ORGANIZED ON SATURDAY NIGHT

At an enthusiastic and largely attended meeting held in Dr. Wightman's office on Saturday night, the Chieftain Hockey Club was organized for the season and arrangements made to place a team in the junior series of the Ontario Hockey Association. Great enthusiasm was manifest both by players and management and there is every reason to expect that the season will be a successful one. The Chieftains have made a grand showing playing independent hockey, and now that they have decided to go into the big league there is every reason to expect continued success in the faster company they will be called upon to face there.

The following officers were elected:

Patrons and Patronesses: Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mrs. Stratton; Mayor and Mrs. Rush; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Masson; Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Morgan; Mr. T. E. Bradurn, M.P.P., and Mr. H. R. H. Kenner.

Hon. President: Dr. Wightman.

President: F. A. L. Clarke.

Vice-President: R. Denne.

Secy.-Treasurer— E. N. McWilliams.

Captain: Ken Crane.

Manager: J. Thrnbeck.

Dr. A. W. McPherson will be the representative of the Chieftains to the O.H.A., and will look after their interests in regard to anything that may come up in that body.

The players are decicedly optimistic as to the outcome of the season and are already entering into the spirit of the undertaking by turning out for long runs each night.

They will be in good shape by the time the ice comes, and if condition counts for anything, will get off to a good start.

"LONGBOAT" BENNETT EXPLAINS WHY HE DROPPED FROM THE RACE

W. J. Bennett, one of the starters in the Senior Examiner Road Race, and who was unable to finish, sends the following communication explaining his dropping out:

To the Sporting Editor of the Examiner.

Wishing to let you know of my failure in capturing third or second place in the Examiner race, I am sorry to say that I had something of the complaint of Longboat, when nearing home in the London Marathon. Leaving Lakefield, I was rather excited, and it had an effect on me. Grim determination gave me pluck to push along, and leaving Lakefield I was leading nicely and about two miles from Nassau I was going at a good clip. Here my head became dizzy, causing me considerable trouble. I could not control myself at all, and yet I was game. Owing to the sudden pain in my head I gave in a little. When I got started again I tried my best to beat it off, but failed. So giving up all hopes of getting home I thought it best, rather than be defeated, to fall out. I am sure, if it had not been for that I should have had a look in for second or third place, when going for the tape.

I am writing these few lines to let you know that I did all in my power for the Examiner trophy, but failed through ill luck. Hoping that I may be able to run for the Examiner trophy, with a willing heart, next year, if spared.

I am,

Faithfully yours,

W. J. BENNETT.

CHIEFTAINS SHOULD HAVE SUPPORT OF CITIZENS IN JUNIOR O.H.A. RANKS

The decision of the Chieftains Hockey Club to enter the junior ranks of the O. H. A. will be hailed with delight and enthusiasm by those who have the best interests of the game at heart, and the youngsters should have no trouble in enlisting the support of the hockey fans. If Peterborough is to have a team like the famous Os's, who brought so much hockey distinction to this city, it must be built up as they were, from a bunch of youngsters. The Chieftains are the best solution of the problem that has come along in years. They are young and have the advantage of playing together for a couple of years, so that they have developed team work and a knowledge of each others' methods that should be invaluable in the "big league." With encouragement from the citizens they should make a good showing this season, and the best feature about their entrance into the O. H. A. is that the players will all be eligible for the junior series for several years to come, and will have every chance to develop into a championship winning possibility before they are too old for the junior ranks.

Hockey is at a rather low ebb in Peterborough just now, for the sole reason that not enough attention has been paid to the young players. When the seniors were cutting such a swath in the intermediate and senior ranks during the past six or seven years, the juniors were neglected. For some years indeed Peterborough was represented by a junior O. H. A. team, but they were overshadowed by the importance of the seniors and things were allowed to drift along aimlessly. The public did not support the youngsters, they were a source of financial loss to the club and finally they were dropped altogether.

The suicidal nature of that policy can be seen now. With the old seniors retired from the running there is no one to take their places, and there will be no one until the young players, who are coming on now, are developed sufficiently. The players who should have been ready to step in were neglected, and as a result they are City League material, but that is all. Therefore, now that the management of the Chieftains has decided to make an effort to start the resuscitation of hockey in this city on a proper basis, by taking hold of the players at an age when they can be taught something, the support of the citizens should be readily given. It is a far sighted policy and is worthy of encouragement.

HAL BURNHAM WINS FAME ON WESTERN FOOTBALL FIELD

In the report of the Edmonton-Calgary Rugby game played in Calgary on Thanksgiving Day, the Morning Albertan of Calgary pays a glowing tribute to Hal Burnham, a Peterborough boy, who played with the victors. "Bill" Crowley is another Peterborough boy on the line-up who, according to the Albertan, figures prominently in the play. The score ended 7 to 1 in Edmonton's favour. The umpire was Bob Pearson, formerly of Varsity. The Albertan says of Burnham:

Burnham, the half-back of the Edmonton team, is the best player that Calgary has seen in this style of football. He was the better half for the Edmonton team and he saved the day for them. He was everything, as the baseball editor would say. He has a straight and accurate kick, he has the strength to dash through a strong line, he has the coolness and the head to do the right thing at the right time; he has the speed, and he proved to be the hardest man to tackle on the field. Whenever he had half a chance Edmonton gained, and he had many chances, and that is the reason that the story ends as it does.

TEN PIN LEAGUE ORGANIZATION TO BE COMPLETED TO-NIGHT

The organization of the Peterborough Ten Pin League will be completed to-night at the P. B. C., when a meeting will be held for the purpose presided over by Mr. R. M. Glover. It is proposed to adopt the new American idea of reducing the teams to three men affairs, and the proposition has met with general favour, the following teams being already assurred: Lock Works, General Electrics, Belmonts, Munroe Colts, Bankers, Examiners and trios captained by Wm. Lang, Herb Martin, W. McIlroy, B. A. Lillie and Clair Gutterson.

The meeting is called for eight o'clock and a full attendance of those interested is requested. It is proposed to inaugurate the schedule on Wednesday night next, and thereafter one game will be played each night throughout the season.

President of the Chieftain Hockey Club of the Junior O. H. A.

Miss Fidgety To Have Two Successors Next Year

The Toronto Star says: There'll be something doing when the ice begins to melt.

Last season was a lively one in power-boat circles, and this year promises to be even livelier than last, and the famous struggles between Blue Streak and Miss Fidgety, which culminated in a full-speed collision, are not forgotten when the statement is made.

Already the Schofield-Holden people have replaced Miss Fidgety with a boat that already has shown a 26-mile clip, and the Marine Construction Company have plans under way for a flyer that will, they claim, do 28 miles an hour.

Anyway, there will be spray and challenges flying in the early spring, and lots of excitement for those who love aquatic sport.

Miss Fidgety's successor had her trial trip this week. She is a 28-foot boat, with a 4-foot beam, built on the lines of the Smalley boat from the St. Lawrence, which made the flyers thereabouts look slow last fall in a series of impromptu races. In this new hull the Schofield-Holden people have installed Miss Fidgety's old 30-40 engines. On the trial trip she showed over 26 miles an hour. Her engines seemed to be a trifle too far forward, and with her weights adjusted this new craft should make even faster time.

The Blue Streak's successor will not be ready till springtime. She will be a 32-footer, with 4-foot beam. She, too, will have 30-40 engines.

With two such fast ones a crack at the gold cup, emblematic of the American power-boat championship, is not unlikely.

NELSON HAS PUT AWAY 28 MEN

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Advanced proofs of the "Life of Battling Nelson," a book which will chronicle the biography of the lightweight champion, have been received by the Battler.

In the statistical end it shows that Nelson engaged in eighty-one fights or 666 rounds. Forty-six of these battles were victories, twelve of them defeats and twenty-three of them draws. He knocked out opponents twenty-eight times.

"To be truthful about this matter," said Nelson, "these fights have netted me over $100,000, and I have taken down over a third more in theatricals. All this is soundly invested, and when I retire I will be independently rich."

In Nelson's book the champion will tell of his first fight in Hegewisch, Ill. He knocked out the "star" of Wallace circus, who was taking on all-comers. For this he received $1. When he went to look for his coat he found that it was missing, and at the same time a pay envelope containing a week's salary, $5.50, and a Waterbury watch, were gone.

"That $5.50 looked mighty big to me then," says Nelson. "But now it is different. I was paid $1,200 recently by a Chicago theatre for one week's stage work."

"TY" COBB MAY PLAY FIRST BASE IN 1909

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Chicago baseball fans have often noticed that whenever the Tigers played at the South Side grounds "Ty" Cobb generally spent about five minutes of his time working out at first base. It was thought to be merely a trifling pastime of Cobb's just as Addie Joss likes to work out in the infield, but now the report comes from Detroit that "Ty" Cobb may be assigned to first base next year.

With Davy Jones on hand, the outfield would not be materially weakened, while some persons think that the Georgian would have it all over Claude Rossman on the first corner. When asked if he might play Cobb on first, Jennings replied: "Strange things have happened. The fact that such a story bobbed up shows, however, that Detroit is not entirely satisfied with Rossman."

DISAPPOINTMENT IN THE CAPITAL OVER THE DEFEAT

Examiner Special

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—There was considerable disappointment here over Ottawas failing to win out in their game against the Tigers, but residents of the Capital would sooner see the championship go to Hamilton than to Montreal or Toronto. There was the greatest excitement here on Saturday afternoon, and the walks near the bulletins were so crowded that the police had to clear them several times.

COBOURG O. H. A. TEAM ORGANIZED FOR SEASON

Cobourg, Nov. 14.—The annual meeting of the Cobourg Hockey Club was held last evening in the council chamber. Quite a large crowd was present, and from the enthusiasm displayed hockey will probably boom in Cobourg this winter. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Hon. Pres.—E W Hargratt.

Hon. Vice-Presidents—A J Gould, J B McColl, M.P., C E Speer, Jr., C A Munson and C C Arthur.

President—Thos. McIntosh.

Vice-Pres.—A L Jex.

Treasurer.—Percy Clarke.

Secretary—C J Webster.

Executive—Ben Bell, Clarence Doheny, Kent Payne, and Leslie Wilson.

Manager of Junior Team—George Stott.

The intention of the club is to enter one team and possibly two in the O. H. A. this winter.

EDMONTON'S STANLEY CUP TEAM IS READY

Edmonton, Nov. 11.—Fred Whitcroft, captain of the Edmonton professional hockey team, who has been in the east for some time looking after players for Edmonton's team to go after the Stanley Cup, wires that he has already engaged the following players:—Goal, Lindsay, Rentrew; defence, Hugh Ross, Portage, and Roy Brown, Canadian Soo; forwards, McNamara, Montreal Shamrocks; Jimmie Gardner, Shamrocks, and Vair of Rentrew.

Whitcroft and Muir will, of course, be on the line-up, and the club also has lines out for other players whose names will be announced shortly.

ATHLETICS

Saturday's athletics for school boys at the Y. M. C. A. were well contested, the high jump being held. The junior school boys, under thirteen years, made the fine mark of 4 feet 2 inches. Of the eighteen competing the best jump was made as follows:

Morrow, 4 feet 2 inches; D. Johnston, 4 feet; Smith, Phelan, Lang, 3 feet 10 inches; Lees, Outram, Stratton, Matthews, Hill, 3 feet 8 inches.

The Collegiate boys in their high jump made 4 feet 8 inches. Eleven competed and the best marks were made as follows:

Scott, Morgan, 4 feet 6 inches; Howden, Armstrong, 4 feet 4 inches; Brooks, Wallis, Lees, 4 feet.

A medal is given to the winner of the most points, when the contests are all completed.

HOCKEY.

O. H. A. Hockey does not seem to be as lively in Lindsay just now, as usual at this time of the year. Perhaps it was the Midland "touch" last year, that knocked the enthusiasm out of the locals for the Association.—Lindsay Watchman-Warder

RUGBY

The championship of the junior O. R.F.U. it seems will be settled in the neighbourhood of Christmas this year.

The Toronto group have a couple of games to play yet before the championship is decided, and down east Kingston, Brockville and Gananoque are still at it for the district championship.

Meanwhile Lindsay has won the district and is waiting for the championships of the other districts to be decided.—Lindsay Watchman-Warder.

• • • •

Here's to the Hamilton Tigers, once again champions of the Interprovincial Rugby Union. The jungle terrors have richly earned their title and no one will begrudge them the victory, least of all, one would fancy, their gallant opponents, the Rough Riders, who gave them such a hard fight for the honours. The Tigers have a habit of taking their victories in a sportsmanlike manner and of showing the same spirit in defeat that makes friends for themselves, even among their adversaries. They are sportsmen in Hamilton, and on that account their victory will be popular. By the way, Peterborough people will be particularly glad, as Ben Simpson, a local boy, was no small factor in the success of the Tigers. As our country correspondent would say, "Shake, Ben, old boy."

CLEVELAND SWEET ON LAJOIE NOW

Cleveland, Nov. 16.—Whatever next season may have in store for the Naps, the fall of the flag in the American League race of 1908 left the fans of this city, as a whole, much more kindly disposed toward Napoleon Lajoie that they ever before have been.

In the old days with Flick, Bradley, Hickman and Larry following, and all batting away above the .300 mark, there seemed something of reason in the remarks heard in every nook and corner of the land: "The Naps would win the flag if they were properly handled," and "They are the best team in the league."

But this year, without a man on the team hitting the ball as pennant winners are supposed to hit it, without one Nap regular in the coveted .300 class where once there were six or seven, no one picked Larry's boys for a very high position in the race.

With Turner and Flick out of the game, and with shifts continually being made in the outfield and infield, no one thought of repeating the old story about the Naps being "the best team in the league," and about their ability to "win the flag were they properly handled."

Indeed, it would have been a most jealous Clevelander who, at many stages of the race this year, would have claimed that the Naps were the best team in the league.

The Naps' splendid position in the race this year was due in a very large degree to the manner in which Larry and his men get along together, on and off the field, and to the gritty, determined fight they made—under their great manager—despite conditions that would have worked disaster on anything but a harmonious team.

A CARNIVAL OF BIG SAVINGS AT TURNBULL'S
What is claimed will be the biggest price saving event ever offered in Peterborough will be started on Thursday next, the 19th of November, at the Turnbull Company's Departmental Store. This aggressive firm has been demonstrating in various ways the power of money in securing surplus stock of manufacturers for the benefit of their patrons at bed-rock prices. What it will do for Peterborough buyers, and what it has done for the Turnbull Company, will be still more wonderfully developed by the big, bustling swing sale, which is billed to last for fifteen days.
Once in a while, only, is it possible for such immensely good things to come the way of economical buyers, especially ladies and housekeepers. The why and the wherefore of this lucky stroke of economy by the Turnbull Company is soon to be known in all corners of the city. In addition to the bold and effective full page advertisement in another part of this issue, every house in the city is to be tagged with red tags, giving a brief statement of the facts.
It seems that a Toronto wholesale house, affected by the recent financial stringency, was compelled to go into liquidation, and the stock turned over to an assignee; through him the Turnbull Company secured the cream of it at a big discount on the wholesalers' cost. These goods are all new, many of them having just passed the customs.
The goods consist of tapestry and Brussels carpets, linoleums, oilcloths, tapestry velvets and tapestry squares, tapestry curtains, art muslins, damasks, tablings, cloths and napkins, women's underwear, dress goods, etc., as well as many Christmas lines. These goods were bought at a good deal less than they are worth—the saving estimated to be about 33 1-3 per cent off the wholesalers' cost. And they are going to be sold to Peterborough shoppers that way. They were bought for the same reason that the public will buy them—away below value. It was a rare chance for the Turnbull Company, and it should prove a rare chance for the customers of this firm. It isn't often that a store can offer the newest of fall and winter styles at about one-third off regular value, just at this time of year. Here is an opportunity worth waiting for—an opportunity for everyone within reach of this store, to supply themselves with articles of most up-to-date requirements, (almost every need of the home, every known staple at most substantial and decidedly marked money saving on every purchase.

PETERBOROUGH LUMBER COMPANY CLOSE DOWN

Their Mill Ceased Work Saturday Evening—The Season's Cut.

The Peterborough Lumber Co. shut down their mill Saturday night, after running steadily since the ice broke up last Spring. Roughly estimated they turned out about eight million feet of lumber and have had a very busy season. Their men have also been back in the woods during the past four months and the cutting of the logs is being actively pushed forward.

C.G.E. Anglers' Last Trip

Have Closed up Cottage for the Winter After Enjoyable Season.

The C.G.E. Anglers made their last trip of the season to their cottage on Saturday afternoon, returning Sunday evening. The place has been closed up after one of the best seasons that the club has yet enjoyed. The doors and windows have been locked and boarded up, awaiting the return of spring and the south winds. The Anglers went down in Allen's steam yacht the "Tootsie." Mr. Fred Marsden, of New York, was a guest of the party.

Woman In A Serious Runaway

Last Friday evening a rather serious accident occurred on the boundary, near Mr. J Marvin's residence. Mrs. Spilsbury and her son were driving when their horse took fright at an approaching bicycle. The animal bolted into the ditch and throwing the occupants out with such force that Mrs. Spilsbury was rendered unconscious for some time. She was carried into Mr. Marvin's, and Dr. Greer summoned, and in a short time was able to be moved to her mother's, where she is confined to bed. Her son escaped with a few bruises. The buggy was pretty well demolished.

Larocque Party Had Success

Got Give Deer and Four Ducks and Had Great Fun.

The Larocque party has returned from the head of Deer Lake, where they had a fine time and got away with a good share of the game. Those who composed the party were Messrs. J B Larocque, J Meharry, Robt. Shepherd, Louis Houedry and Barney Larocque. They report having secured four moose and five deer and also having trashed five deer. Honours were about equal. A feature of the trip was a special dish that Mr. Barney Larocque served at times. Although it was not much to look at, resembling stale paste, still it was good to eat and this made up for all the deficiencies in appearance.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHNSON GREER

Death came very suddenly on Saturday, 14th instant, to Mrs. Margaret J. Greer, wife of Mr. Johnson Greer, electrician, of Hillard street, this city. Just one week previous to her death, the deceased was attacked with quinsy, a trouble which she had been occasionally subject to. The usual remedies were resorted to during the week, and it was only on Thursday last that she was compelled to take to her bed. On Saturday, after her husband had administered a soothing stimulant, strangulation set in and death came through suffocation, in a very short time. The afflicted husband, so suddenly bereft of his life companion, sustains a very great loss, and his many friends will sympathize with him and his family in their bereavement.

The deceased was forty-six years of age, and was married to her husband twenty-five years ago. Six children are left to mourn the loss of a beloved mother—five daughters and one son. The three youngest children are at home, with the son, who is seventeen years old, the daughters being married and residing in Albany, N. Y., Cobourg and Coldsprings. Mrs. Greer was a consistant member of the George Street Methodist Church, and was so well respected that it can be truly said of her that she does not leave an enemy behind her.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 9 Hillard street, on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

MRS. MAYNARD

The death of Mrs. Maynard, of Toronto, aunt of Mrs. E A Peck, East City, occurred on Saturday rather suddenly, from heart failure. The funeral was held to-day from Toronto to Woodstock. Mrs. Maynard resided in Toronto with her two daughters and is known to many Peterborough people, being a sister of the late Mr. Robert Revell, formerly of this city.

MRS. GEO. ATCHINSON

A well known and respected resident of South Monaghan in the person of Mrs. Geo. Atchinson, passed away last night. She was a resident of North Monaghan until last spring. She leaves to mourn her loss five children, Mrs. Fairbairn, Lakefield; William and Albert and two daughters at home. The funeral arrangements have not been learned.

CHRISTOPHER LOWES.

One of the most widely known men of this county passed away yesterday in Emily in the person of Mr. Christopher Lawes, at the family homestead, lot 27, con. 7. The deceased underwent an operation several years ago and since then has not enjoyed good health. The deceased was 74 years of age and for 30 years was postmaster at Thornhill. During his long years service in this capacity, as well as in a social sphere, he was held in the highest regard for the splendid characteristics which won him so many friends. He was a member of the Bethel Methodist Church, and in politics a Conservative. He is survived by two sons, Joseph, of Enniskmore, and John, at home. The funeral will be held to-morrow at two o'clock to the Emily cemetery.

YOUNG BOY HAD HIS LEG BROKEN SATURDAY

Willie Adams, a young boy residing on Chamberlain street, was painfully injured on Saturday afternoon while playing in the ruins which mark the spot where the wreck occurred on the C. P. R. The little fellow had gone to the scene with a number of other boys of the same age, and was playing around one of the box cars, when in some manner the heavy door was allowed to fall upon him, breaking his leg. He was picked up by some men who were present and carried over to his home on a door. His condition to-day is as favourable as could be expected under the circumstances.

QUALITY FIRST

In some lines of business price may well be the great talking point. Those who can buy best and sell least have something interesting to say to the public. In the DRUG BUSINESS it's different. Quality, regardless of price, should be the main factor, and it is here. What you buy here in the line of Drugs and Medicines will be of right quality, and price asked will also be right—as low as goods of same quality can ever be bought for anywhere.

WIFE IN MOVING PICTURE.

Kenora, Ont., Nov. 17.—While sitting as a spectator in the Arcade Theatre Saturday afternoon a man who claims to be John Lundstrom of Pueblo, Col., rushed to the manager of the theatre and said that the figure of the woman on the screen was that of his wife, who left her home five years ago, in a most mysterious manner, and for whom he has been searching without success.

Just after her departure an uncle died, leaving her the sum of $5,000, which now lies idle in a Colorado bank. Mr. Lundstrom begged Manager Burton to tell him the name of the photographer that he might find out where his wife is now located. The favor was granted and it transpired that the missing lady, who is beautiful of face and figure, was posing for a Philadelphia film manufacturer.

Lundstrom stated that he had been married but six months when he awoke one morning to find a note on the table saying that his wife had gone, because she was tired of the monotony.

MAY PROBE CIVIL SERVICE.

Government Department May All Be Inquired Into.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—As a result of the revelations of graft in the Marine Department at Quebec, the Government has under consideration the opening of all of the Departments to a commission of enquiry.

It is probable that the commissioner will be Judge Cassals and the enquiry may begin after the report on the Marine enquiry has been made, which it is expected will be completed by Christmas.

Shoots the Judge.

Leipzig, Nov. 17.—A defeated litigant in the supreme tribunal of Leipsig yesterday drew a revolver and opened fire on Herr Maenner, the presiding judge, and the court clerk. The clerk was shot dead and the judge was dangerously wounded.

The assassin, a man named Groeser, succeeded in firing ten shots before he was overpowered. Grosser was the plaintiff in a suit concerning the validity of a will, and the decision of Judge Maenner was in favor of the defence.

As soon as Grosser heard the ruling he drew a revolver and began firing.

No Answer.

Washington, Nov. 17.—No comment was made yesterday at the White House on the letter to President Roosevelt from the New York Synodical Conference of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of America, asking him to recant his denunciation as "unwarranted bigotry" and refusal to vote for a candidate for high office because of membership in the Roman Catholic Church.

It was intimated that the President would have nothing to say in regard to the letter, although it was added that he had not had time to give it full consideration.

Best Regimental Shot.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—The following list of winners of best shot badges for 1908, is published in militia orders: G.G.B.G., Sergt. J. White; 9th Mins. Horse, Corp. J. R. Jupp; 12th Regt., Pte. C. Denison; 20th, Pte. G. Dade; 23rd, Pte. Kennedy; 31st, Pte. H. Cameron; 34th, Pte. G. Swade; 35th, Col.-Sergt. Mohan; 36th, Corpl. Granger; 37th, Pte. H. Owens; 39th, Pte. H. Clarkson; 44th, Corpl. Wright; 77th, Pte. J. Smith.

Western Bank Absorbed.

Toronto, Nov. 17.—The trend of events in the financial world was again witnessed yesterday when it was announced that one of the large Toronto banks, the Standard Bank of Canada, was about to absorb one of the smaller sister institutions, the Western Bank of Canada, with headquarters at Oshawa, and which has carried on business for upwards of 25 years.

Standard Oil Dividends.

New York, Nov. 17.—Directors of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, which is the parent or holding company of the oil combine, yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of $10 per share. This was unchanged from the dividend paid in the corresponding quarter of last year, and makes a total of $40 in dividends to be paid this year.

Crisis Follows Death Of Empress Dowager Of China

Pekin, Nov. 17.—China is beginning to realize that the Emperor and the Dowager Empress are dead.

The Chinese had been so accustomed to look upon the dowager as the one person dominating all, that the announcement of her death caused but little change in their uhemotional natures and easy going ways during the early hours of the ceremonies attending her passing, but to-day there has come a marked change.

Prince Chun, the regent of the empire, in fear of the increasing excitement and revolutionary movements, has taken a firm grip on affairs, and has adopted stringent measures that will result in the maintaining of peace for a time at least.

At noon yesterday 2,000 gendarmes guarded the street, and other military forces were held in readiness for an eventuality. The foreign legations are under guard, special detachments of Chinese troops keeping watch at the approaches and in some cases the regular legation guard was augmented by reinforcements from other places. Fifty Highlanders were added to the British forces.

Serious runs on banks occurred Sunday and yesterday, and fourteen native banks closed. The crowds were wild with excitement, and towards the close of the day the police intervened and drove them back. It is probable that to-day a number of banks will be closed, and it is believed west the government will step in and endeavor to stop the financial panic among the poorer classes.

As yet the cause of death in the case of the Emperor and Dowager Empress has not been made public. A number of lengthy reports have been written with reference to this, but they are unintelligible to the foreigners here, who have not yet recovered from the shock of the suspicion of foul play which was widespread. There is no reasonable evidence, however, to show that death in either case was the result of anything other than natural causes.

It is understood that many reforms will be instituted in the palace by Prince Chun, embracing eventually the abolition of Manichs and the introduction of a modern system for the conduction of affairs.

The Chinese Government seemingly has no fear that the conditions now prevailing will be utilized for greater reforms, if precautions now taken at Pekin against a sudden insurrection can be made to over-awe the disaffected. Last night a large number of the gendarmes were withdrawn, and the streets presented a deserted appearance. The police tore the remaining shreds of color from the shops and vehicles before sundown. The people have adopted a dress of mourning, and all officers are attired in white. The buildings are draped in blue and black.

Chicago Forger Confesses Getting More Than $700,000

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Peter Van Vlissingen, a real estate dealer, for years classed among the first of Chicago's prosperous and reputable business men, yesterday confessed to having obtained through forged deeds and notes more than $700,000, and a few hours after his arrest, on his own urgent appeal to be punished, was sentenced to the penitentiary.

The arrest, the indictment, the confession and the sentence were work of less than four hours.

Taken in the midst of business from his office desk at 179 Washington street, shortly after the noon hour, Van Vlissingen appeared before the court and in tears confessed that for from 18 to 20 years he had been securing money through the sale of forged documents and that though he had bought back many of these spurious instruments without detection, at least 25 people would lose an aggregate of more than $700,000 through the paper which he has not yet redeemed.

In forging the notes he declared he used parchment of unique texture. This consisted of a plate glass desk top, so arranged that by an electric light through from beneath he could readily trace from originals forged signatures on to worthless paper.

Throughout his arrest and sentence the prisoner made no effort to defend himself, but only asked that his punishment be speedy. Asked if he had anything to say before sentence was imposed, Van Vlissengen replied, bowing his head, "Only that I believe in my punishment at once."

His term in the penitentiary was fixed as indeterminate, from one to 14 years.

Van Vlissengen, who is about 40 years old, was married Feb. 14, 1907, to Mrs. Roosevelt Blend, who was described at the time as a distant relative of President Roosevelt. The bride was a daughter of Wilson C. Blond. Van Vlissengen had been a bachelor, living at the Calumet Club. He was known as being of philanthropic disposition, giving special attention to the welfare of boys.

Former Quebec Premier Passes Away At Age Of 79

Montreal, Nov. 17.—Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, Premier of the Province of Quebec in 1878 and 1879, died at his home at Quebec yesterday morning.

Sir Henri was born in France in 1829, was educated in Paris, and came to Canada in 1855. He entered public life in 1871, and, in spite of his being a French-Protestant, he succeeded in gaining much power and honors.

In 1894 the late Queen knighted him for his public services, he being created a K.C.M.G.

He twice declined a seat in the Senate and in 1906 he was called to the Dominion Cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as Minister of Inland Revenue.

In 1900 he was appointed Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia.

NEW COLLIERIES TO BE OPENED IN THE CROW'S NEST DISTRICT

The Beaver Collieries Will Rival the Famous Crow's Nest Coal Company's Collieries at Fernie and Michel.

Pincher Creek, Alta., Nov. 17.—The citizens of this town and the adjoining neighbourhood have for several years been using, when they could obtain them, the coals from a mine, about ten miles west of here, known formerly as the Mill Creek mine, now more generally known as the Beaver Collieries. The coals from this property are peculiarly adapted for domestic purposes, and are very much sought after by our people, as they burn with a clear flame, giving out very little smoke, producing no soot in the pipes and chimneys, and lasting very much longer than any of the other coals produced in this district. So much were the coals from what are now known as the Beaver Collieries preferred, that the coals from the Crow's Nest Coal mines and the Lethbridge coal mines could not be sold in competition against them, even though they were sold at 50 cents less per ton. The property referred to has fallen into the hands of the Western Oil and Coal Consolidated, a concern that has been operating very largely in the oil fields south of here. They have acquired about 7,000 acres of these coal lands and are now opening up the collieries to put them on a basis of one thousand or twelve hundred tons per day. The property is situated about six miles immediately south of Crowley, and about ten miles southeast from the Crow's Nest Pass. In a report made last February, Frank B. Smith, E. M. and B. Sc., Inspector of Coal Mines for the Dominion Government, estimates that the Beaver collieries will produce over 72,000,000 of tons of marketable coal. The Company recently secured the services of Professor John Bonsall Porter, C.E., and D. Sc., Principal of the Mining Department of McGill University, Montreal, who is reputed to be the best coal expert in Eastern Canada. Prof. Porter has just completed his investigation and it is learned that his report is in every way satisfactory and practically confirms the report made by Mr. Frank B. Smith, who is probably the best informed coal man in the West. These experts estimate the minimum tonnage of coal to be over seventy millions of tons, and the facilities for cheap mining are exceptional. The present total output of all the Crow's Nest collieries is a little over ten thousand tons per day. Some idea may be gathered of the enormous deposits of coal on the Beaver Collieries when it is shown that there is sufficient coal on these lands to produce as much as the present total tonnage of the whole Crow's Nest district, for the next twenty-seven years, and Prof. Porter estimates that the tonnage might exceed the present estimates by more than a third. The coal is of the highest grade of bituminous coals, and is most eagerly sought after by the railway companies for steaming purposes, but it is possible that when its qualities are more generally known it will be greatly in demand for domestic purposes. The development of this very valuable property in the vicinity of Pincher Creek adds one other element to the progress of the town, as all the supplies for the new collieries will, undoubtedly, be purchased at this point, and it is expected that the company will make railway connection with Pincher Creek Town. There is a continually increasing demand for the coals of this district on the American side, in Colorado, Idaho and Montana, which are dependent at present on Pennsylvania and Ohio, three times as far distant, for coal and coke, and which, up to the present, none of the colliery companies have attempted to supply, for the reason that they are about on their orders for the local demand. All the colliery companies at the present time in the Crow's Nest district are running double time, and most of them have their total output sold for twelve months ahead. The rapidly growing population of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the development of the mines and smelters of British Columbia, the remarkable railway extension and development of the Great West, and the opening up of varied manufacturing industries in the Middle West and Far West of Canada and the United States, have created and are making a demand for fuel which will tax all the colliery companies to their utmost limit of production for a good number of years to come. The wealth of Alberta as a province is scarcely appreciated by the people of the East. This town is in the centre of one of the finest agricultural districts of Western Canada. It has for many years held a prominent position as a ranching centre, the oil industry is attracting attention from all parts of the continent, the coal is of the very highest grade of bituminous coal, suitable for steaming, domestic and cooking purposes, and lying adjacent to the coal fields are some of the richest deposits of iron ore to be found anywhere in the West. Alberta, particularly the southern part, will in a few years be one great hive of varied industries.

The One Condition.

By MARTHA COBB SANFORD.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Beth was reading the bargain sales announced in the Sunday paper.

"We can get a morris chair, Neil, for five-eighty-nine!" she cried enthusiastically. "It's the opportunity of a lifetime!"

"Any bargains in lace waists?" Neil asked irrelevantly.

Beth laid down the paper in disgust.

"You're changing, Neil Stafford," she said sternly, "and not for the better. You used to be crazy over fixing up this little flat. Now all you think of is clothes, and you know we agreed that clothes shouldn't count until we got everything we wanted in the way of household furnishings."

"But there's no end to it, Beth," Neil pleaded. "The flat looks well enough. In fact, it's beginning to look better than we do. It's time we began to live up to our surroundings."

"I suppose you mean Dick Wheeler," Beth interpreted. "I notice he constitutes your surroundings most of the time."

Neil ignored the innuendo.

"Everything I possess is old fashioned and unbecoming," she continued. "I've been awfully patient, Beth; really I have. I just love pretty clothes, and I'm going to have some if we never have a morris chair, so there!"

As Neil grew excited Beth became calmer.

"Considering what close friends we are, Neil," she said quietly, "I think you might tell me the truth."

Whereupon Neil, breaking into tears, confessed her engagement.

"It wasn't that I didn't want you to know," she sobbed, "but I couldn't bear to break up the little home, Beth."

Beth pulled herself together heroically.

"It isn't going to be broken up," she said, with determination. "Of course, it won't be the same without you, Neil, but if you've got courage enough to commit matrimony after all we've said against it, why, then I guess I've got courage enough to carry out my convictions alone. Was it lace waists you asked the price of?"

This being the way Beth took the news, it was characteristic that she pursued her original intention of visiting the furniture sale during her Monday noon hour.

She had just settled down with an air of relaxation in a green cushioned morris chair, "sale price $5.89," when she was rudely startled out of it.

"This is the only one we have with green cushions, sir," a salesman declared pompously to some one on his right, bringing his hand down by way of emphasis upon the crown of Beth's hat.

Apologies, greetings and explanations followed, during which the offending salesman tactfully disappeared. It was obvious that three made no party to this chance meeting.

"Will business keep you in the city long?" inquired Beth. The question indicated more courtesy than interest.

Gilbert Taylor's eyes twinkled.

"It has kept me two years so far."

ne answered soberly.

"I hadn't heard," Beth said rather coldly.

"And you?" he asked. There was no doubt that his interest was genuine.

"Ah, I'm an established householder," Beth informed him with no little show of pride. "A business chum and I have a little flat together. That explains my monopoly of this morris chair. We need one, or, rather, we want one. But I've just about decided to wait until I can afford leather cushions. They're so much more aristocratic. Don't you think so?"

Gilbert agreed.

"But I'm awfully interested in this housekeeping experiment of yours, Elizabeth," he said earnestly. "I'm thinking of trying something of the sort myself. You can give me a lot of pointers. Take lunch with me, won't you?"

Elizabeth hesitated. She saw complications ahead. Nevertheless, because there was no time to analyze possible consequences, she accepted.

"The lace waists," she explained to Neil that night, "were such wonderful bargains that I got two of them."

"Two!" exclaimed Neil. "What on earth did you think I wanted with two of them?"

"One is for myself," Beth enlightened her.

Neil looked such volumes of astonishment that Beth felt obliged to make further explanation.

"The five-eighty-nine morris chair looked common," she said loftily. "I shan't get one till I can afford leather cushions. And, anyway, I've been thinking about what you said yesterday—about the flat looking better than we do. There's some truth in it."

Neil could hardly believe her ears—Beth, who took life so seriously and spelled Career with a capital letter, yielding to the temptations of personal vanity. There must be some compelling reason for it.

Beth's next remark supplied it.

"I think I'll put my waist on tonight, Neil, if you'll help me. Gilbert Taylor's coming to call."

"Not the man you refused on account of your career?" gasped Neil.

"Did I ever mention refusing any one else?" Beth retorted, a bit impatiently.

* * * * * * *

"It's as cozy as it can be," Gilbert exclaimed, looking around the artistic living room. "And it's so—so homelike." He hesitated for the proper word to express his feelings. "But I can see where a leather cushioned morris chair would be the crowning touch," he added laughingly. "Only what will you do with it, Beth, without a man in the family?"

Beth flashed a look of defiance at him. It reminded Gilbert of the old days when she had held out so persistently that she had as much right as he to an independent life of her own and meant to claim it.

"I suppose you have a notion," she answered him, with a fine show of superiority, "that morris chairs, like all other creature comforts, were invented for masculine monopoly."

"The average man is a selfish beast," he admitted good naturedly, "but I'm not. You shall sit in the morris chair every night, Beth. I won't say a word—if you'll"—

Beth introduced Gilbert.

"I was just complimenting Elizabeth on your attractive little place here, Miss Stafford" he said easily. "She thinks it needs a morris chair to make it complete, and I had the stupidity to ask what she'd do with one without a man to occupy it. You've come just in time to settle the question."

"I'm afraid I'm what you might call prejudiced, Mr. Taylor," Neil answered lightly. "I really believe in both, if you can get them. When it comes to choice—well, Beth knows my sentiments. Dick's downstairs," she added, turning to Beth, "and I mustn't keep him waiting. Good night."

She gave Gilbert an encouraging smile as she closed the hall door, but Beth was unaware of it.

"I take it Miss Stafford has matrimonial intentions," Gilbert remarked when they were alone again. "That's going to upset your little menage, isn't it, Elizabeth? What are you going to do?"

It was a brutal mistake. He knew it as soon as the question had escaped him.

But there was no audacious reply from Beth as he expected. Instead, her eyes filled, and she buried her face in the cushions, sobbing as if her heart would break.

Gilbert had never before seen Beth unequal to a situation. Her helplessness touched him deeply.

"Beth," he said gently, "I have an idea. Suppose I buy out Neil's domestic interest?"

No answer, only fewer sobs.

"You shall sit on a cushion and"—

"No; I won't sew a fine seam. I hate sewing," came a muffled reply from the pillow depths.

At that Gilbert gathered her to him, laughing joyously.

"She shall just eat strawberries, sugar and cream, then," he amended, with indulgent tenderness. "All that I insist upon is"—

He paused, and Beth, flushed and disheveled, flashed him a challenging look.

"That she shall love me," he finished softly.

And Beth accepted the one condition.

New York's Working Girls.

Before the great arc lights have begun to flare and glow processions of work girls, of shopgirls, of professional girls, have passed up and down this great avenue of the city, which in variety of interest and in claims to one's attention forms a strong rival to the Paris boulevards.

These young women are typical of New York and indeed of the whole American continent. In independence, in fearlessness, in ability to act and think for themselves, they are clearly daughters of the new world, but in the taste and elegance of their clothes there is something of the Parisian spirit, of that peculiar faculty for combining colors and blending effects which is certainly the heritage of the "ouvriere" and yet seems by some mysterious means to have become wafted across the broad bosom of the Atlantic. You feel an atmosphere of well being, of solid contentment, prosperity and self esteem about the common people in the States. This is typified by these well gowned, bright and pleasing young women who carry out so large a part of the daily routine of Uncle Sam. You see no dejected countenances. Why be dejected when you have the chance or at least the sweet illusion of being one day called to the highest destinies of the country?—Cor. Pall Mall Gazette.

The "Father" of the Congress.

A prominent layman at the recent Church Congress in England was Earl Nelson whose constant attendance at the congress over a long period of years makes him one of the fathers of that institution. In spite of his 84 years Lord Nelson is extremely active, and takes a keen interest in religious and philanthropic enterprises. He enjoys the distinction of having held his title in three different reigns. In fact, Lord Nelson came into the title so long ago that he is frequently confused with the hero of Trafalgar. A poor old woman was once taken to church to see the present earl, and the friend who was with her was at great pains to describe his lordship's appearance beforehand. "Oh," exclaimed the old lady, "you needn't tell me all that. I shall know him directly I set eyes on him." "Indeed!" said the other. "And pray how will you recognize him?" "Why, by his one eye an' one arm, of course," replied the dame.

The Best He Could Do.

There used to be an eccentric individual in Maine who was never known to express an opinion on any subject. Being called as a witness in a lawsuit to testify concerning the reputation of the defendant, the lawyers on both sides failed to obtain a direct answer to any of the questions and finally appealed to the court.

Regarding the man sternly, the judge said in his most impressive tones: "Witness, I am going to ask you a question, and I want you to give me a direct answer. Is the defendant a good man?"

"Them that likes him says he is; them that don't says he ain't," was the reply.

Still Useful.

A small girl, lost at Coney Island, was kindly cared for at the police station until her parents should be found. The matron, endeavoring to keep the child contented, had given her a candy cat, with which she played happily all day.

At night the cat had disappeared, and the matron inquired if it had been lost.

"No," said the little maid. "I kep' it most all day. But then it got so dirty I was 'shamed to look at it, so I et it."

More Than a Hint.

As a gentleman was having his luncheon in the coffee room of a small hotel he was much annoyed by another visitor, who during the whole meal stood with his back to the fire, warming himself and watching him partake of his repast.

At length, unable to endure it any longer, he rang the bell and said: "Waiter, kindly turn that gentleman round. I think he is done on that side."

The hint was taken.

JEWS TAKE UP FARMING

CANADA HAS MANY SETTLEMENTS IN EAST AND WEST.

Baron De Hirsch Institute Planted First Group of Hebrew Agriculturists at Hirsch, Sask., in 1892-91—More at Lipton Have Reclaimed Lands and Are Thriving — Some Came From South Africa.

It will probably be a surprise to many people to learn that there are many Jewish farming settlements scattered all over Eastern and Western Canada. In the provinces of Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan alone there are about 500 Jewish farmers, and there are well-established communities also in Ontario and Quebec.

One of the first of these colonies on the prairies was established by the association in 1889 and 1891 at Hirsch, near Estevan, Saskatchewan. The Baron de Hirsch Institute supervised the settlement, and now there are two thriving little communities there.

There is another settlement near Lipton, north of Qu'Appelle, in Saskatchewan. These settlers, who are Roumanian Jews, were sent out in 1901, and now between 200 and 250 of them are working on the farms which they have reclaimed from the wilderness. Considering the time they have been there they are doing remarkably well, and are making satisfactory progress in paying off the advances made them by the society.

Fifty-six miles north of Winnipeg there is another Jewish agricultural community, known as the Bender Colony, and consisting of about 25 farmers and their families. Most of these are Jews who formerly lived in England. They went there about three years ago. With the true spirit of pioneers they tramped 26 miles through swamp and bush after leaving the railway, and founded their colony far from other settlements. They are already beginning to reap the advantage, for it is expected the railway will be running through their settlement in a few weeks.

Mr. A. Pierce, fur dealer, of St. Paul street, Montreal, had a good deal to do with the founding of another Jewish colony at Oxbow, 25 miles east of Hirsch, in Saskatchewan. The farmers in this colony went there in 1892 without any means whatever, and some of them are now worth from $8,000 to $10,000.

The most prosperous Jewish colony in Canada, however, is at Wapella, 235 miles west of Winnipeg, on the main line of the C.P.R. The first farmer to take up land there was John Heppner, who is a Russian Jew, and who came from London, England, in 1886. There are now about fifteen Jewish farmers in this settlement. Starting without any means whatever they are now worth from $30,000 to $40,000 each, while John Heppner himself has retired, and is living in Winnipeg.

A number of Russian Jews who came from South Africa, where they had been four or five years, started a colony at Melford, Sask., on the C.N.R.'s Dufferin and Prince Albert line, about two years ago, and are reported to be doing well at mixed farming. They all have from four to ten cows each, together with horses, oxen and farming machinery. The colony numbers 22 families.

About 45 miles east from Olds, in Alberta, there is a colony of about 10 Jewish farmers, many of whom went into farming there with some capital at their back, and are consequently doing well. Another colony of seven farms has just been started about 56 miles south-west of Moose Jaw.

As regards Eastern Canada, quite a number of Jewish farmers have taken up land to the north of Montreal, the most important settlement being at Ste. Sophie de Terrebonne, near St. Jerome, in which neighborhood there are in all between 50 and 60 Jewish farmers. Further north, and particularly in the neighborhood of Labelle Lake, Jewish farmers may be seen hewing out farms for themselves from the forest, and many of them using the timber which they cut down to reclaim the land, in the making of charcoal.

Another of the most important Jewish farming settlements in Eastern Canada, is at Englehart, in New Ontario, 70 miles north of Lake Temagaming. Here the Jews are taking their place in pioneer work side by side with a cosmopolitan population who are developing the lumbering and farming resources of the district.

Long before the railway reached the place, and before the Government roads were cut, Jewish feet led the way to this place. Laden with grips and not suitably attired for the winter trail, these Jewish pioneers tramped from New Liskeard, some forty miles or more, to reach the parcels of land assigned them by the Crown Land Agent. After taking up their 160 acres each, it took them each on an average nearly four years to partially clear sixteen acres each, and replace the original shack by a log house, one of two stories high, built either upon Russian or Canadian models.

These Jewish farmers are now well on the road to prosperity, and their little families are free and happy. They declare that the only enemies they have had to encounter in Canada are the black flies and the mosquitoes. These are so troublesome in the bush lands that they have taken up that in the summer the children are to be seen playing about with kerchiefs tied around their heads, and their faces smeared with tar oil—the only adequate protection against the flies. The women, too, are often to be seen working in a cloud of smoke coming from a pail filled with burning bark and rags. This forms by no means a comfortable environment but it is more bearable than a cloud of mosquitoes.

Englehart has its Jewish synagogue, and it also has its Jewish cemetery, in which five wooden slabs mark the last resting place of five pioneers.

The difference between a man's handshake and the wag of a dog's tail is that the wag is always sincere.—Marion (Ga.) Patriot.

DID YOU EVER FIGURE THE COST of a single day's baking—the material, fuel, time and labour—and consider that it is all wasted if the baking is a failure?

Results are usually satisfactory or otherwise according to the flour you use. Is it economy, then, to use a flour of uncertain quality when a few cents more will buy a flour that you can depend upon to produce light, crisp and wholesome bread or pastry?

Royal Household flour does not vary in quality—does not disappoint. It is made from selected hard wheat, milled by a most modern process which guarantees absolute purity. And purity in flour is a matter of the very greatest importance.

Stanfield's Underwear

Before Shrinking

After Shrinking

A Talk by the Maker to the Wearer

(Chapter 2)

Shrinking The Wool

In its natural state, wool consists of long, curly, silky fibres, dotted with tiny prongs or branches. These prongs, when wet, interlock with the long strands and pull together, to protect the sheep from rain and dampness.

When wool is woven, the same thing would happen, were it not for the Stanfield process, which makes the prongs on each strand of wool lie down until the knitting is finished.

Stanfield's Unshrinkable Underwear is made absolutely unshrinkable by this special process, invented and perfected by the Stanfields. It is the only method of treating wool, which renders it unshrinkable and uninjured.

One way of getting rid of the prongs, is to burn them off by plunging the wool into a tank containing lime. As the prongs are a part of the wool, naturally the lime will "eat" the wool as well as the prongs. This is why some imported, and some Canadian-made "Unshrinkable," Underwear won't wear. It has been treated with lime in the effort to make it unshrinkable.

The illustrations above, show wool under the microscope both before and after going through the Stanfield process. They show that all the prongs that make it shrink are made harmless, BEFORE the Underwear is woven. And as there is no "shrink" in the wool, there can be no "shrink" in the Underwear.

Every garment, bearing the Stanfield label, is sold with our standard guarantee of "Money Back If It Shrinks."

All sizes from 22 to 70 chest measure. The label tells the weight—RED label for light—BLUE label for medium—BLACK label for heavy weight.

TASMANIAN RICHES.

Mineral Deposits Are Money-Producing and Varied.

The mining industry of Tasmania is exceedingly important. From seven shillings to ten shillings a day are the usual wages earned by working miners on the mining fields, and boundless opportunities lie within the reach of the persevering prospector. For its size, the island may claim to be the richest country in the world in regard to mineral wealth. Within the space of about thirty years Tasmania, with the population of an English provincial town, has actually produced minerals to the value, according to the latest official figures, of twenty-six million, two hundred and thirty-five thousand, two hundred and thirty pounds, and more than half the quantity has been obtained within the last ten years. The total for the year 1906-7 has been two million, three hundred and thirty-eight thousand, two hundred and fifty-two pounds. The list of minerals worked includes gold, silver, tin, copper, lead, zinc, wolfram, bismuth, iron, coal and asbestos—practically all of the most commercially valuable minerals that the world requires. In tin and copper the island is particularly rich, and the Tasmanian production of the former metal will most likely within the next twenty-five years equal that of the Straits Settlements. Large coal fields and enormous bodies of first-class iron ore are known to exist, but difficulties of transport prevent their utilization. If but a fraction of the British capital invested in Argentina and on the Rand were directed here both shareholders at home and colonies abroad would be equally benefited.

Curious Case of Mirage.

M. Flammarion, the French astronomer, has written much on mirages and has actually photographed the bridges over the Seine, with the river and the buildings in the immediate vicinity, seen from Paris, inverted in the sky. He also records a curious case of mirage experienced by French troops in Algiers. What appeared to be a number of Arab horsemen were suddenly seen moving toward the French camp from the horizon, and scouts on horseback were at once sent forward to reconnoiter, but when they had gone about a mile they became curiously distorted and seemed to be giant horsemen riding horses several yards high. On their return they reported that the Arabs proved to be a flock of flamingoes moving by the side of a lake, which at a certain distance, owing to the curious state of the air, were changed out of all resemblance to themselves and assumed the exact appearance of the Arab horsemen they were at first believed to be.

A Family of 60,000,000.

According to the scientific authorities, the average female oyster deposits at least 16,000,000 eggs during a single spawning season, and it is said to be no uncommon occurrence for an individual oyster to have 50,000,000 and even 60,000,000 to her credit. Comparatively few of these eggs, however, reach the fertilization stage, and of those that do few survive it, for many and fatal are the dangers that threaten. Sudden changes of temperature, cold rains, greedy fish—all contribute to further the ends of nature. An oyster egg has less than one chance in two millions of reaching maturity.

Her Lost Piano.

"I just left a young woman friend of mine weeping over her lost piano," said the man. "It was like this. She was engaged to a chap who was awfully fond of her. He sent her up a piano as a birthday present, also for their flat later on. After awhile the engagement was broken off for some reason or other. You know how those things are. Well, any way, my friend thought she had her piano.

"But that was just what she didn't have. In about a week some piano people called for it and took it away with them. The chap had made one payment on it only."

An Awakener.

An Irishman, more patriotic than clever, enlisted in a dragoon regiment with the intention of becoming a gallant soldier. The fencing instructor had experienced rather a difficult job in the matter of explaining to him the various ways of using the sword.

"Now," he said, "how would you use the sword if your opponent feinted."

"Bedad," said Pat, with gleaming eyes, "I'd tickle him with the point to see if he was shamming."

All the Requisites.

"You want to marry my daughter, eh? May I ask what chance you have for getting on in the world?"

"I have an automobile, a yacht and an airship."

"Well, you seem to have every means for getting on. She's your's, my boy."

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP.

There is many a man and woman tossing night after night upon a sleepless bed. Their eyes do not close in the sweet and refreshing repose that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right. Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system, that it cannot be quieted.

Or again, you have a sinking sensation, a feeling you are going to die; or perhaps, you wake in your sleep feeling as though you were about to choke or smother, and rest leaves you for the night. If you allow these conditions to continue for a short period even, you will begin to feel your health declining. It is the nerves and heart not acting rightly, and they can only be set right by the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They soon induce healthful, refreshing sleep, not by deadening the nerves, but by restoring them to healthy action.

Mrs. E. Nutt, St. Mary's, Ont., writes:—"I can gladly recommend your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as I was greatly troubled with my nerves. I was so bad I could not sleep at night without the lamp burning, but after taking four boxes of the pills I became all right again."

PERSIAN CATS.

How They Are Classified—Points of a Fine Animal.

Long haired Persian cats may be classified as blacks, blues, whites, silvers, oranges, cream or fawn, tortoise shell, tortoise shell and white, brown tabbies, any other color.

The silvers are subdivided into minor classes as follows: Chinchillas, shaded silvers, silver tabbies, masked silvers, smokes.

The coat of the long haired Persian cat should be long and thick, its texture fine and soft. There should be tufts of hair projecting from the inside of the ears; also around the jaws.

There should be a frill of long hair around the throat, extending back to the shoulders and down the chest to where the front legs join the body. There should be tufts of hair growing upward from between the toes.

The head should be massive, but round, with great width of skull between the ears, says Country Life In America. The ears should be small and set low. From the forehead to the nose the line should be slightly concave, the nose itself being short.

The back should be broad and level, but not too short; the legs short, paws round, brush or tail of medium length, wide and carried low. The eyes should be large, round, luminous and set level. The expression of the face, taken as a whole, should be gentle and sweet. The general appearance of the animal should be cobby and its movements easy and graceful.

In disposition Persian cats are naturally inclined to be loving and gentle, but as they are very high strung it is an easy matter to spoil their dispositions entirely by rough or unkind treatment.

MAKING BOOK PLATES.

An Invention That Was Long After Printing Press.

It was within half a century from the invention of printing that book plates were introduced as identifying marks to indicate the ownership of the volume.

Germany, the fatherland of printing from movable type and of wood cutting for making impressions in ink on paper, is likewise the home land of the book plate.

The earliest dated wood cut of accepted authenticity is the well known "St. Christopher of 1423," which was discovered in the Carthusian monastery of Buxheim in Suabia.

It was to insure the right of ownership in a book that the owner had it marked with the coat-of-arms of the family or some other heraldic device. Libraries were kept intact and passed from generation to generation, bearing the emblem of the family.

The first book plate in France is dated 1574; in Sweden, 1575; Switzerland, 1607, and Italy, 1623. The earliest English book plate is found in a folio volume once the property of Cardinal Wolsey and afterward belonging to his royal master.

The earliest mention of the book plate in English literature is by Pepys, July 16, 1668. The first known book plate in America belonged to Gov. Dudley. Paul Revere, the patriot, was one of the first American engravers of the book plates and a designer of great ability.

Toothsome Pains.

A strange case has just occurred at Porthcawl, showing the effect of the imagination in causing disease and cure. A professional man on a visit there took out his four false teeth while shaving, but, forgetting the fact and failing to find them later, suddenly concluded that he must have swallowed them accidentally. At once he began to suffer pains. A doctor was sent for, to whom he described his agonies. Emetics were administered, but in vain, and the tortures made him twist his body convulsively. Then a maid brought the teeth, which had dropped behind the dressing table, and instantly the pains ceased.

Some Names.

"Alligator" is merely another form of the Spanish "el lagarto," the lizard. Shakespeare classed the alligator as a fish, to judge from Romeo's description of the contents of the apothecary's shop, "An alligator stuff'd and other skins of ill shaped fishes," somewhat like "alligator," the lizard, the "hyena," which merely means sow, and "ostrich," which comes from the Latin word for bird and a Greek word that means either a sparrow or an ostrich, as the case might be—any bird in fact. The ostrich is just the "bird bird," according to etymology.

BATTLE WITH SHARKS.

Exciting Adventure With a School of Man Eaters.

Lighthouse keepers and those living on the beach of the gulf coast see many queer sights in the way of battles between turtles, sharks and swordfish, exciting at times and always illustrating the terrible power possessed by the monsters of the deep.

Two fishermen coming in from Lake Worth, Florida, on a lumber sloop saw a commotion in the water and presently became witnesses of an all around combat between six or seven sharks.

In a few minutes the combatants were fighting and plunging almost under the sloop's bow, and the men, being afraid of some damage to the boat, seized their rifles and fired into the mass. After a few shots the fighting sea tigers fell apart and seemed to be intent on finding their new antagonists.

Then, as if by preconcerted action, several plunged directly at the boat and hit it a resounding blow with force sufficient to knock both men flat on the deck.

A second rush was made, and then the entire school of sharks began pounding against the sloop's sides. Backing off a dozen rods or more, they would come on with lightning swiftness, hitting the boat squarely, making it quiver from stem to stern, and soon there were two sharks floating on the waves, stunned by their own mad rushes, but the others kept up the fight.

Presently one shark aimed too high, skimmed over the sloop's rail and fell on the deck with a sounding whack.

The two men were badly frightened by this time and fired two shots at random. Then they each seized an axe and dealt the monster a terrible blow.

Up went the shark's tail and, striking one of the men, sent him flying into the water. He swam to the rail with the energy of despair, and his comrade ran to his assistance, but before he could be hauled in a shark took a piece out of his heel.

The blood that flowed from his wounded foot dyed the water for a yard or more and seemed to excite the sharks to greater ferocity. The shark on deck was killed with a united blow, but something must be done for the others. Suddenly the unwounded man dived down into the cabin and emerged with a can of powder and a coil of fuse. Swiftly fastening a piece of pork around the can, he attached a short fuse, lighted it and, going to the stern, threw the can into the mass of sharks.

Before it had hardly touched the water a big fellow swallowed it at a gulp, and in a second there were pieces of shark flying in every direction. The effect was magical. The sharks fairly fell over each other in their flight, and the two plucky seamen were saved from a terrible death.

Legend of St. Winifred's Well.

The following legend is supposed to have given its name to St. Winifred's well, once the most celebrated holy well in Great Britain: Winifred, a noble British maiden of the seventh century, was beloved by a certain Prince Cradocus. She repulsed his suit, and he in revenge cut off her head. The prince was immediately struck dead, and the earth, opening, swallowed him. Winifred's head rolled down the hill, and from the spot where it rested a spring gushed forth. St. Bueno picked up the head and reunited it to the body, so that Winifred lived for many years a life of great sanctity, and the spring to which her name was given became famous for its curative powers. The well was located in Holywell, County Flint, England, and was regarded with great veneration during the middle ages, being visited by thousands that believed implicitly in the healing virtues of the water. It is now in a state of neglect. A court-house was constructed over the famous well by the Countess of Richmond, mother of Henry VII.

The Dangerous Palo de Leche.

In Mexico there is a plant known by the name of palo de leche. It belongs to the family of euphorbia. The Indians throw the leaves into the water, and the fish become stupefied and rise to the surface and are then caught by the natives. In this case the effect of the narcotic soon passes off. The milk of this plant thrown upon the fire gives out fumes that produce nausea and headache. The milk taken internally is a deadly poison. It will produce death or insanity, according to the size of the dose.

Dodging the Rules.

After being conducted through an old church by the verger, a visitor was so pleased with the official's courtesy and information that he insisted on giving him half a crown. The man shook his head sadly. "Thank you, sir," he said, "but it's quite against the rules." "I'm sorry for that, said the visitor, about to return the half crown to his pocket. "But," added the verger, "if I were to find a coin lying on the floor it would not be against the rules for me to pick it up!"

A Sarcastic Caddie.

Caddie (who can contain no longer his disgust at the indifferent display) —And ye say that ye hae dune this hole in twa?

Golfer (reminiscently) — Aye; I mind it fine. It was a gran' drive richt oot o' sicht ye ken. And, man, whan I cam' up I lay deid on the green!

He Guessed Right.

A crowd of small boys was gathered about the entrance of a circus tent in one of the small cities in New Hampshire one day, trying to get a glimpse of the interior. A man standing near watched them for a few moments; then, walking up to the ticket taker, he said:

"Let all these boys in and count them as they pass."

The man did as requested, and when the last one had gone he turned and said, "Twenty-eight."

"Good!" said the man. "I guessed just right," and walked off.

Needed No Hens For That.

At a country fete a conjurer was performing the old trick of producing eggs from a hat when he remarked to a little boy:

"Your mother can't get eggs without hens, can she?"

"Of course she can," replied the lad.

"Why, how is that?" asked the conjurer.

"Why, she keeps ducks!" replied the boy amid roars of laughter.

"Is that you, Frank?" asked Mrs. Tippins in a nervous voice as she heard some one moving about in the next room in the darkness.

"It is," replied Mr. Tippins.

"You gave me such a shock. I thought at first there was a man in the house."

Not Arithmetic at All.

Teacher—So you can't do a simple sum in arithmetic? Now let me explain to you. Suppose eight of you have together forty-eight apples, thirty-two peaches and sixteen melons. What would each one of you get?

"Cholera morbus," replied Johnny.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or sister of intending homesteader.

DUTIES—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

NO HONING-NO GRINDING

Steel is iron free from dirt, air or foreign substance fused with carbon. Carbon gives toughness, strength, keenness and life.

Thirty year's study of the razor situation has shown a way to add the highest per cent of carbon to a Carbo Magnetic razor blade through a secret process of ELECTRIC TEMPERING giving it a uniform diamond like hardness—something absolutely impossible with fire tempered razors, and they are Hamburg ground.

But Test this UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED razor at home—or have your barber use it on you—for thirty days WITHOUT OBLIGATION TO PURCHASE.

OLD TIME PRICES.

Glimpse of the Days When Living Was Cheap in England.

Old time hotel rates in England were low. For instance, in the days of Queen Elizabeth the charge at the George inn for a feather bed per night was a penny. Dinner cost sixpence (12 cents) and offered choice of "beef, mutton or pigge or fish." In Stuart times each room owned a name instead of a number, chiefly those of inn signs, such as the Cross Keys room, the Bell chamber, the Adam and Eve room, and so forth.

Formerly the custom in important cities during festival times was to limit the price of food and lodging by statute. In Cauterbury during the celebration of the bicentenary of Becket's translation (1372) the price of bread was fixed at two loaves for a penny (2 cents), a fairly high figure considering the comparative value of money then and now, and wine brought 16 cents a gallon.

A century or so later the scale of prices in Edinburgh all the year round was equally moderate, sheep being sold at prices ranging from 12 cents to 20 cents, according to quality, "best hens" at 1 cent each and Rochelle wine at 1 cent a pint. Any vender departing from these prices ran the risk of forfeiture of his goods.

QUEER CRABS.

The Ingenious Manner in Which They Disguise Themselves.

Some species of crabs disguise themselves in an ingenious manner. They deliberately bite up seaweeds and plant them on their backs, very soon establishing a growth which harmonises perfectly with the surroundings and deceives many an enemy. Should the weeds grow too vigorously the crab industriously prunes them with his claws and every now and then scrapes the whole lot off and starts a fresh garden on his roof, so to speak.

The sponge crab behaves in a similar manner, nipping off little bits of living sponge and sticking them on his back, where they grow vigorously. The same end is served as in the other case. It is very amusing to keep crabs of one or other of these kinds in an aquarium and deprive them of the usual means of concealment.

They get very nervous and agitated and try to cover themselves with bits of paper or anything else that may be provided. One such captive is said to have had a little greatcoat made for him, which he put on in a hurry as soon as it was handed to him.—London Sphere.

Queer Talismans in Malta.

There are still to be found in Malta a number of small stones shaped and colored like the eyes, tongues and other parts of serpents. The superstitious among the Maltese connect these with the tradition that St. Paul when shipwrecked was cast on their island, and it was there that while lighting a bundle of sticks for a fire a viper fastened on the apostle's hand. St. Paul calmly shook the reptile off into the flames, and no harm followed. The natives wear these stones as talismans, in which character they suppose them serviceable in warding off dangers from snake bites and poisons. They are found in St. Paul's cave, imbedded in clay, and are set in rings and bracelets and when found to be in the shape of a tongue or liver or heart are hung around the neck. They are also taken internally, dissolved in wine, which method is attended, according to some people, by more immediate results.

Islands in New York City.

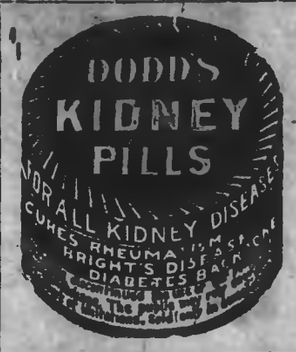
"I was showing an Englishman our city a week or two ago," said a New Yorker, "and was surprised to hear him express astonishment at the number of islands within our municipal boundaries. 'Is this entire island a part of New York city?' he asked as I took him on several trolley rides over on Staten Island. 'And all these islands, too, are they New York city?' he inquired another day as he went up the East river. His remarks put me to thinking, and I've discovered that not one of the really great cities of the world has so many islands within its boundaries as New York. Staten Island in itself would make a good sized city. Some of the other islands, of course, are hardly more than specks, but they belong to New York city just the same."

"Its Only a Cold, A Trifling Cough."

Thousands have said this when they caught cold. Thousands have neglected to cure the cold. Thousands have filled a Consumptive grave through neglect. Never neglect a cough or cold. It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It strikes at the very foundation of all throat or lung complaints, relieving or curing Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Sore Throat, and preventing Pneumonia and Consumption.

It has stood the test for many years, and is now more generally used than ever. It contains all the lung healing virtues of the pine tree combined with Wild Cherry Bark and other pectoral remedies. It stimulates the weakened bronchial organs, allays irritation and subdues inflammation, soothes and heals the irritated parts, loosens the phlegm and mucous, and aids nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulations. Don't be humbugged into accepting an imitation of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cents.

"Mrs. J. Brewster, Grafton, N.S., writes:—"Two winters ago I suffered severely with a very bad cold and asthma. I was so bad I could not get my breath, and very often thought I would choke. My husband became very much frightened, and got me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and it gave me almost instant relief. I can recommend it to anyone having the least kind of a cold."



THE DEVILFISH.

How These Monsters Are Caught in the Gulf of Mexico.

There is no more thrilling sport than harpooning the devilfish, the giant ray or manta, which has its home in the gulf of Mexico. Some of these fish, which are very grewsome to behold, measure from twelve to eighteen feet and weigh more than 1,500 pounds. It requires tremendous skill to harpoon them and infinite tact to land them once they are struck. It is not unusual for the fish to run for three hours or more, and they can tow a ten ton sloop.

The fish is wily and will often go to the bottom to rest, to prevent which he has to be kept in a constant state of panic by hauling the tow in close to him. At a moment of weakening another harpoon and a rifle shot will dispatch him.

During a recent run it was three hours before the cable could be fastened to the boat's windlass in order to pull the devilfish under the bow, where another lily iron was secured in him, and then followed a rush of extraordinary impetuosity. Following this method and only after there were three harpoons in his back and a shark boop attached to one flipper was it felt that he was secure. Half an hour later his struggles were finally stilled by a lucky rifle shot in the head.

As night came on the sharks began to come in and long after dark could be heard fighting over the stranded carcass.—Illustrated London News.

MOST EXCLUSIVE CLUB.

English Joy That There is One Door Riches Won't Unlock.

The Royal Yacht squadron is probably the most exclusive club in existence, says the London Gentlewoman, and, wonderful to relate in this plutocratic age, money is quite powerless to unlock the charmed portals of the castle.

One or two millionaires with splendid yachts have tried in vain to pass the ordeal of the periodical ballot, while men of no fortune or only just enough to defray the upkeep of a small yacht have been elected without an idea of a black ball.

The only apparent qualification is that the candidate must possess a yacht of his own, but there are other qualifications much more difficult of attainment by the man of money, and it is just here that the question of blackballing comes in, it must be owned, rather refreshingly.

For really one had almost said that there is no social "holy of holies" into which he who is rich cannot penetrate until one recalls the pleasant circle of gentlemen who go to make up the Royal Yacht squadron. There is, one remembers gratefully, just one institution left to which the mystic words "I am rich" do not have the effect of an "open sesame."

The Deep Breathing Cure.

A boy who was consumptive and was rapidly going along the road to the grave was taken in hand by one who understood deep breathing and the importance of proper mastication of food, etc. He was made to understand precisely why deep breathing was of such vital importance, and he took a lively interest in his own cure. He was fourteen years old. In a very few weeks the change was remarkable. He began to get firm flesh on his poor little limbs, his chest developed well and a healthy color came into his cheeks. His eyes, which were always covered with sties, became perfectly free from them, and in three months or less there was no sign of consumption in him. I may say he was only treated once a week for half an hour.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Truly Rustic Bridge.

A rustic bridge at Beach Haven, Ga., contains fifty-six kinds of wood and vines grown on the fifty acres of Beach Haven park. Following is a list of the woods and vines: Short leaf pine, long leaf pine, post oak, white oak, Spanish oak, water oak, red oak, poplar, sweet gum, black gum, red haw, black haw, red bud, prickly ash, chinquapin, wild plum, persimmon, cedar, wild sloe, wahoo, sumac, red elm, pig hickory, scalybark hickory, hock or sugar berry, willow, china, black alder, crab apple, wild mulberry, wild cherry, dogwood, sourwood, winter whortleberry, black locust, sassafras, cottonwood, buckeye, laurel, beech, holly, ash, ironwood, birch, magnolia, sycamore, walnut, sweet bay, evergreen, spruce; vines—grape, muscadine bellflower, rattan, bamboo.

Poisonous Nettles of the Tropics.

In tropical regions there are nettles far more powerful than that of our own country.

The one called Urtica stimulans, which is found in Java, and that called Laportea crenulata, found in Hindustan, when bruised emit an effluvium which poisonously affects the eyes and mouth and if handled produce convulsions and serious swelling and pain in the arms, which may last for three or four weeks and in some cases cause death.—London Telegraph.

A FEROCIOUS EARL.

Alexander of Buchan, Known as the "Wolf of Badenoch."

During the restoration of Dunkeld cathedral the workmen unearthed the remains of Bishop Sinclair, one of those who assisted in the building of the cathedral, and of the notorious Alexander, earl of Buchan, whose ferocity won for him the significant title of the "wolf of Badenoch." A memorial marks the spot where the "wolf" was buried, and it has often been a subject of remark by visitors that a man who plundered churches and in various ways showed his hatred of the clergy should have been laid to rest side by side with bishops and other high ecclesiastics.

Alexander, earl of Buchan, was a younger son of Robert II. of Scotland. During the closing years of the latter's reign the chief powers in the state were delegated to his sons, the earls of Fife and Buchan, and, after the accession of Robert III., an amiable but weak prince, this unfortunate delegation was allowed to be continued. The Earl of Buchan ruled over the northern part of Scotland with an authority little less than regal. He has been described as scarcely better than a savage—cruel, ferocious and relentless. Among his exploits was the destruction of the magnificent cathedral of Elgin. He carried off the chalices and vestments, polluted the shrines with blood and finally set fire to the noble edifice, the houses of the canons and the town itself. He also laid waste a large part of the country.—Pall Mall Gazette.

LEGAL VERBIAGE.

A Kick From a Layman Against Its Solemn Senselessness.

"As fond as I am of reading," said a merchant, "I never peruse a legal document without feeling irritable over my inability to grasp the real meaning of such a paper at a glance. Like many other persons not engaged in the legal profession, I sometimes have to read contracts and other agreements drawn up by lawyers, and I often wonder why in this age of common sense the 'whereases,' 'aforesaids' and 'parties of the first part' are not relegated to oblivion. The technical verbiage employed is a relic of the age when that which was mysterious and could not be understood was esteemed to be beyond the comprehension of the common herd. The use of uncommon English in purely business circles would not be endured. Why, then, should the transfer of a piece of property be a process so labyrinthian and so mysterious that a man of sound sense cannot fathom it? It has been estimated that the clipping of the letter 'u' from such words as humour, labour and the like has added to the world each year what is equivalent to the productive capacity of 500 ablebodied men. What would we not gain if from every legal paper and from every legal suit there should be removed that vast mass of superfluity, that antique verbiage, that bulk of repetition and solemn senselessness that now inwraps them as the shell inwraps the clam?"

He Knew His Business.

An open moving van, piled high with furniture, was proceeding slowly up Third avenue in the Harlem section. The driver, whose face denoted contentment and an inclination to doze, sat cross kneed, holding the reins loosely. The driver had arranged a comfortable support for his back. This was nothing less than a framed oil painting about 3 by 4 feet in size, uncovered, and with the painting unprotected from the coatless, warm weathered shoulder blades. A citizen hailed him from the curb.

"Hey! Don't ruin that picture leaning against it that way!"

"Ah, g'wan!" said the driver. "Dis ain't de first time I drove furniture. I know me business."

And the van passed on.

Her Version of It.

She was a wee scrap of a thing just three years old, but with a soul of a heroine shining out of her great brown eyes. It was her first visit to the zoo, and the babel of queer noises and rows of strange big beasts might well have daunted her baby heart. But she scorned to seem afraid. Only when they approached the towering form of the elephant did she draw back.

"I'm not goin' too close, papa," she whispered; "I might scare him!".

"Seeing" Plants.

Professor Darwin is right. Plants can see—some plants. Take corn and rye, for instance. With proper treatment these plants sometimes see double, and frequently they see things that aren't there.

End of Mankind.

"Now, boys," queried the teacher of the juvenile class, "can any of you tell me the final end of all mankind?"

"Yes, ma'am, I can," promptly answered the boy at the foot—"the letter 'd.'"—Exchange.

His Hearing to Come.

FIRST WOMAN IN NORTH.

Agnes Deane Cameron Returns From Sensational Trip.

"What sort of a woolly outfit is that?" a newcomer asked as the mud-spattered Athabasca mail stage drew up at the Alberta hotel, and a red coated member of the R.N.W.M.P. dismounted, leaving behind him a motley collection of Stetson-hatted passengers.

One of the passengers in Stetson hat and khaki outing coat turned out to be Agnes Deans Cameron, who is now returning to Chicago from a most interesting trip clear up to the mouth of the Mackenzie river and across the broad Peace river valley. Miss Cameron left Edmonton, it will be remembered, early last June, accompanied by her neice, Miss Brown. Both ladies returned bronzed, healthier, heavier, and to a reporter said they would how heartily recommend the Arctic trip to anyone looking for a pleasant tourist route off the beaten paths.

Miss Cameron engaged last spring to write a series of articles upon the magnificent country lying undeveloped between Edmonton and the Arctic ocean. These will appear in the Saturday Evening Post, and other publications. But in addition to this Miss Camaron intends giving a series of illustrated lectures on the fertile hinterland in various cities of Canada and the United States. To this end she has secured over five hundred views. Additional interest will be lent these by the fact that these photographs were taken by herself and that at many points visited she was the first white woman to penetrate so far into the silent places of the north.

The trip down the Mackenzie was made in the Hudson Bay Company's steamer, and Miss Cameron and her companion express their delightful surprise at the comforts enjoyed by them en route. But not all of the three months' trip was accomplished so comfortably, though it was in every phase enjoyable. Canoes and pony-trains and democrats were among the conveyances used. Stops were made at Fort Chipewyan, Fort Smith, Fond du Lac, Fort Simpson, Fort Providence, Fort Good Hope, Fort McPherson—and when returning by way of the Peace river the party visited Fort Vermillion, Peace River Landing and Lesser Slave Lake.

In all Miss Cameron on her return to Chicago will have covered 10,000 miles, and has collected a great deal of valuable material for her literary work.

The two most vivid impressions brought back by Miss Cameron from the north is that of the superb country, rich in natural resources, lying between us and the Arctic Pole, and also of the indescribable and delightful hospitality and cordiality of the people of the Northland—the Hudson Bay traders and factors, and the missionaries of the various posts as well as the settlers met with.—Edmonton Bulletin.

A Lucky Stowaway.

When the steamer Den of Ruthven, left Vancouver, B.C., on her last voyage to Auckland she took five stowaways from British Columbia who were anxious to beat their way to New Zealand. They were put to work when discovered, and one of them turned out a very decent man. He was a cornet player, formerly with a crack British regimental band. He had his cornet with him and showed that he had an unusual mastery over the instrument.

While the Den of Ruthven was lying at Suva the stowaway-musician sat on the forecastle head one evening and played. People ashore heard the music and made inquiries, and as a result the stowaway was given a Government job at three pounds a week and a place on the Suva band, which is being organized to tour Australia and New Zealand next year. The officers of the Den of Ruthven did everything they could to help the man to his new position as he was a genuine victim of misfortune.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

Look out, look out, there are shadows about;
The forest is donning its doublet of brown,
The willow-tree sways with a gloomier flout,
Like a beautiful face with a gathering frown!
'Tis true we all know that summer must go,
That the swallows will never stay long in the eaves,
Yet we'd rather be watching the wild rose blow
Than to be counting the colors of autumn leaves.

Look high, look high, there's the lace-winged fly,
Thinking he's king of the fairy realm,
As he swings with delight on the gossamer tie
That is linked 'mid the boughs of the sun-tipped elm.
Alas, poor thing, the first rustle will bring
The pillars to dust where your pleasure clew weaves,
And many a spirit, like thine will cling
To hopes that depend upon autumn leaves.

Look low, look low, the night gusts blow,
And the restless forms in hectic red
Come whirling and sporting wherever we go,
Lighter in dancing as nearer the dead!
Oh! who has not seen rare hearts that have been Painted and painting in garbs that deceive
Dashing gaily along in their fluttering sheen
With despair at the core, like autumn leaves.

Merrily pours, as it sings and soars,
The west wind over the land and seas,
Till it plays in the forest and moans and roars,
Seeing no longer a mirthful breeze.
So music is blest, till it meeteth a breast
That is probed by the strain while memory grieves
To think it was sung by a loved one at rest,—
Then it comes in the sweet wind in autumn leaves.

Nor in an hour are leaf and flower
Stricken in freshness and swept to decay;
By gentle approaches the frost and the shower
Make ready the sap-veins for falling away,
And so is man made to as peacefully fade,
By the tears that he sheds and the sighs that he heaves;
For he's loosened from earth by each trial-cloud's shade
Till he's willing to go as the autumn leaves.

SMOOTH GYPSIES.

Worked Short Change on People In and Around Lindsay.

A commercial traveler who was in Lindsay recently narrates the tale of how "a wily Chinee" outwitted a band of romantic gypsies who had short-changed him to the amount of $5.

The gypsies were encamped outside the town for two days, and being well supplied with money flashed big bills whenever they made a purchase. They worked in pairs, and about half a dozen merchants were flim-flammed out of money in making change.

One night two of them had a meal at the Chinese restaurant, and produced a big bill in payment. The restauranteur changed it, but when the gypsies counted it they claimed he was $5 short. To prevent a mix-up the Chinaman gave them another five. Then he went for the police. A visit was paid to the camp, and the two slick gentlemen picked out of the band. They were arrested and brought to jail. They wanted bail, but it was refused. Next morning they admitted they had received the correct pay, returned the five-spot, and were allowed to go.

The story got noised about town, and by night about half a dozen merchants were found who had been similarly victimized. The gypsies were looked for but by that time they had moved on to the next town.

Fifteen-Year-Old Organist.

Ernest McMillan, who is only 15 years old, has been selected as the organist of the splendid new Knox Presbyterian Church, Toronto. He will begin his new duties on November 1.

The young man is a son of a musical father—Rev. Alex. McMillan, pastor of Mimico Presbyterian Church. When the boy showed early signs of musical genius his father encouraged him, and sent him to Oxford and Edinburgh University. Already the boy is an associate of the Royal College of Organists, and after he passes his last examination next May he will be a Bachelor of Music at Oxford. While in Edinburgh he successfully prepared one of the largest church choirs in Britain for the Christmas festival.

Where Rates Are Rare.

Ratepayers may like to know of a place where a rate is a rarity. Its name is Sturminster Marshall, in Dorsetshire, England. The total expenditure for the past year amounted to £3 15s., of which £3 was for painting the village maypole. The parish council have, after much discussion, decided to levy a halfpenny rate, the first for several years.

MAKE A CHANGE

A New Back for an Old One—How it is Done in Peterboro

The back aches at times with a dull feeling, making you worry and restless, sharp pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, it is agony to bend, stoop or lift. The rubbing of liniments or application of plasters does no good in these cases, they do not reach the cause. To get rid of these symptoms and exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one, follow the example of this Peterborough citizen:

Mrs. John Barclay, 583 Water street, Peterborough, Ont., says: "My back was weak and tender, and a dull, grinding pain had settled in the small of it. I could not stoop to lift anything and could scarcely turn in bed. Rheumatism had settled in my hands and shoulders. I was in constant suffering and could find no relief. The urine plainly told the disordered, inactive state of the kidneys, as it was thick and highly coloured and contained a quantity of brick dust sediment. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at the Market Drug Store, and I tried them. I found more relief in one box of Booth's Kidney Pills than in all else put together. My back strengthened and the pains left it. Rheumatism disappeared and has not since returned. The urine cleared, I am strong and well and feel like a new person." Sold by dealers. Price, 50 cents. AN INSOLENT DOCTOR.

Instances of the Rudeness of the Famous Abernathy.

The Duke of Wellington, having insisted on seeing Dr. Abernethy out of his usual hours and abruptly entering his room, was asked by the doctor how he got in. "By that door," was the reply. "Then," said Abernethy, "I recommend you to make your exit by the same way." He refused to attend George IV. until he had delivered his lecture at the hospital, in consequence of which he lost a naval appointment. To a lady who complained that on holding her arm over her head she felt pain he said, "Then what a fool you must be to hold it up!" He was fond of calling people "fools. A countess consulted him, and he offered her some pills, when she said she could never take a pill. "Not take a pill. What a fool you must be!" was the courteous reply.

A farmer of immense bulk came from a distance to consult him, and, having given an account of his daily meals, which showed an immense amount of animal food, Abernethy said: "Go away, sir! I won't attempt to prescribe for such a hog!" A loquacious lady he silenced by telling her to put out her tongue. She having done so, "Now keep it there till I have done talking," said Abernethy. A lady having brought her daughter, he refused to prescribe for her, but told the mother to let the girl take exercise. Having received his guinea, he gave the shilling to the mother and said, "Buy the girl a skipping rope as you go along."

When the Duke of York consulted him he stood whistling, with his hands in his pockets, and the duke said, "I suppose you know who I am?" "Suppose I do," was the uncourtly reply. "What of that?" To a gentleman who consulted him for an ulcerated throat and wanted him to look at it he said, "How dare you suppose that I would allow you to blow your stinking, foul breath in my face?" But sometimes he met a Tartar.

A gentleman who could not succeed in getting the doctor to listen to his case suddenly locked the door, put the key in his pocket and took out a loaded pistol. Abernethy, alarmed, asked if he meant to murder him. No. He only wanted him to listen to his case and meant to keep him a prisoner till he did. The patient and surgeon afterward became great friends.

Is Child Like Express Parcel?

The interesting question whether a railway company is responsible for the safe delivery at his destination of a passenger who has purchased a ticket, as it is for express or freight parcels consigned to its care for transportation, has arisen in connection with the suit against the Canadian Pacific Railway arising out of the puzzling disappearance of little Olive Duprau from a train in the course of a journey between Winnipeg and Fort William some time ago. The father of the girl, Augustus Duprau, claims damages for the non-delivery of the child at the destination for which the ticket was purchased, as though she were a parcel consigned in care of the company. The Master said that the case could not go before the court with such a claim, and that it must be amended.

A Race for Wealth.

An interesting race to stake a claim at Larder Lake occurred recently. The time for the owner of claim L. N. 29 to do his work expired on a Saturday at midnight. It being illegal to stake on Sunday, it was practically not open for staking until after midnight on Sunday, Sept. 13. The claim in question is situated a quarter of a mile north of the Harris-Maxwell mine. At midnight Sunday, sixteen separate parties were on the ground and started to stake, including the original owner. As a result four applications for the claim have been made to Mining Recorder Hough, and three disputes are in his hands.

No Rash Promises.

The London Standard has received a number of letters from towns in Canada complaining that the Dominion is overcrowded and attacking the transportation companies. "On inquiry," says The Standard, "we have no hesitation in saying that the Canadian Government and the various transportation companies are acting squarely by the British emigrant and holding out no rash inducements."

ORIGIN OF NAMES.

Meaning of "Canada" Will Probably Always Be a Riddle for Scholars.

It is singular that no one can say with any certainty what is the origin of the word Canada. There is an old explanation, recently revived, which says the Spaniards, in speaking of the then little known country, said "Aca Nada," meaning thereby "nothing here." To this there seems to be two objections. One of them is that an ejaculation would hardly become the name of a country, unless someone wrote it on a map, and there is no reason to suppose that any one did, and the other is that Aca is not the Spanish for "here," but means "hither." Another explanation is that it is a corruption of the Indian word "Kannatha," meaning a collection of houses, and was applied by the Indians to Quebec, not as a name but for purposes of description. Indian names are usually, perhaps always, only descriptions. If Kannatha means a collection of houses, there were probably many kannathas, but it would be quite natural for the first explorers to connect it with the place to which they first heard it applied. Another explanation is now offered, namely that in old Spanish Canada (accented on the second syllable) means a gorge or valley, and hence that the expression "Tiera de la Canada," appearing on some Spanish maps, means "land of the valley," quite a national appellation to be given to the valley of the St. Lawrence, which is par emphasis, the great valley of the Atlantic coast.

Let us take another familiar name, Esquimalt. There are residents of Victoria who pronounce this name as though it were a form of the word Eskimo, and Mr. Phillips-Wolley in his poem "The Sea Queen Wakes," gives it this value by robbing the second syllable of its accent. This sort of thing is allowable to poets. The master of them all, Shakespeare, in his play "Coriolanus," compels his readers to accent the name at one time on the first and at another on the second syllable, if they would observe the metre. The earliest reference we have seen to Esquimalt, as we call it now, is in a paper by Sir James Douglas, and the name is there written Isthoymalt. Clearly Governor Douglas intended to write a word accented on the second syllable. The transition from "th" to "q" would be easy and natural, and possibly may be more nearly correct in sound than the governor's spelling. It must be remembered that we cannot exactly reproduce Indian sounds with English letters. If you want any proof on that score, get some one who speaks Tsimpsean to tell you the name of Kaien Island, and see how near you can come to spelling it. Kaien is a shot at it, but it is a long way from the bull's eye.

A Canadian Heroine.

It is well over half a century now since Abigail Beacker, the heroine of Long Point, performed the act that put her on Canada's roll of honor.

Abigail Becker was born in the Township of Portland, County of Frontenac, Ontario, on March 14, 1830. Her maiden name was Jackson, and she was married twice, her second husband's name being Bohrer. She saved no less than twelve lives off Long Point Island in Lake Erie, at different times. During a terrific storm in November, 1854, a schooner, the Conductor, foundered and she waded into the surging waters, on which no boat could have kept afloat, and guided the half-drowned men to shore, where she had built a bonfire. In appreciation of her act the American Humane Association presented her with a medal, and the merchants subscribed to a sum with which her home was built. She lived for many years at Walsingham Centre until her death, which occurred only a few months ago.

Taking Weaker Tea.

"Very weak, please," is becoming a familiar phrase to the pourer of tea. Are Canadians developing into a race of nervous wrecks, or are we so much more sensible than our forbears? Men and women alike are forsaking the "good cup of tea" and taking to the wishy-washy. In fact some people declare they dislike the taste of strong tea. One remembers that when the Chinese beverage was still somewhat of a novelty and luxury quite good housewives used to put a handful or so of tea leaves in the pot, give it a thorough boil and then dispense it. We certainly owe them a grudge, dear simple souls, if that awful concoction is responsible for the nerves of the present day, and for the request, unwelcome to the good tea-maker's ear, "Very weak, please!" Besides, Gellett Burgess would say the remark was a bromidism, and therefore to be suppressed by any society with any pretensions to wits in good working order—Toronto Globe.

Bear Resented Camera.

While out shooting bear with a camera recently, a Vancouver man had a narrow escape. He was busy training his camera on the bear, but modest bruin refused to pose. Instead the glint of the moonlight on the lens alarmed him and he started an animated dispute with the amateur photographer. The snapshotter landed first, however, and his companion hearing the answering howl brought his rifle to bear with fatal effect to his bearship. The bears happened to be out in force. The vicinity has always been a favorite retreat for bears. The camera suffered to the extent of a ten-spot.

A Learned Mill Boy.

Dr. Joseph Wright, who, since 1899, has been receiving a Civil List pension of £200 a year, in consideration of his services to Philology, toiled in his boyhood in Sir Titus Salt's mills, and did not know even his alphabet until he was well advanced towards manhood. The rent of the cottage in which the parents of Dr. Wright lived was only 10 1-2d. per week, and at seven years of age he began work as a half-timer in the mill. On and off for twenty years Dr. Wright was in the mill, and yet he managed to support himself and pay for his education.

Envious Inference.

"What a happy, good natured, jolly girl Maud is! She's always smiling and laughing."

"Yes; she has pretty teeth and dimples."

PROVED A POET.

A Youthful Experience of John Greenleaf Whittier.

John Greenleaf Whittier used to declare that at a very early age he knew himself to be a real poet and would often relate, writes Mrs. Abby J. Woodman in her "Reminiscences of Whittier's Life at Oak Knoll," an amusing experience when he was a student at the Haverhill academy. Mrs. Woodman gives it in Mr. Whittier's own words:

There is but little doubt that at the age of twenty I felt myself to be a real poet, somewhat unknown to fame, but sufficiently acknowledged as such by the committee directing the dedication of the new academy for them to invite me to read an original poem on that occasion.

Robert Dinsmore, an old Scotch farmer in Windham and a writer of rhyme and doggerel verse, was also invited to do the same. The honor of leading the procession which marched through the streets of Haverhill to the new academy was given to the two poets.

I often laugh when I recall the scene to memory. The hale old Scotchman, short and plethoric, his uncertain step and bearing slightly exhilarated by a generous draft of old Scotch whisky before we started, was somewhat of a contrast to me, a rather tall and slender Quaker lad in Quaker hat and coat and half frightened out of my wits by the honor heaped upon me.

However, we delivered our poems all right, and I am thinking that must have been the time when I was dubbed "the Quaker poet."

A STRANGE LAKE.

Sulphur Island's Acid Waters Will Eat Up Boats.

A strange lake exists in the center of Sulphur island, off New Zealand. It is fifty acres in extent, about twelve feet in depth and fifteen feet above the level of the sea.

The most remarkable characteristic of this lake is that the water contains vast quantities of hydrochloric and sulphuric acids hissing and bubbling at a temperature of 110 degrees F.

The dark green colored water looks particularly uninviting. Dense clouds of sulphuric fumes constantly roll off this boiling caldron, and care has to be exercised in approaching this lake to avoid the risk of suffocation. On the opposite side of the lake may be seen the tremendous blowholes, which when in full blast present an awe inspiring sight.

The roar of the steam as it rushes forth into the air is deafening, and often huge bowlders and stones are hurled out to a height of several hundred feet by the various internal forces of nature.

A boat can be launched on the lake and if proper care be observed the very edges of the blowholes may be safely explored.

Some idea of the strength of the acid saturated water of this lake may be gathered from the fact that a boat almost dropped to pieces after all the passengers had been landed, as the rivets had corroded under the influence of the acids.

Strange Race of Ancient Britons.

Among the races of humankind which away back of history's records passed like clouds over various parts of the earth one of the most puzzling to ethnologists is that of the early bronze age men who dwelt in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and are supposed to have constructed the special forms of stone circles whose remains are now found there. These men differed significantly, says J. Gray, from all the prehistoric racial types previously determined in Britain. They were remarkably broad headed, and their average stature was only five feet three inches, as shown by skeletons. The British neolithic race was markedly long headed, and the bronze age race, which built the round tumuli, was also long headed and tall.

Man and Woman.

Father Vaughan of London, preaching on marriage, remarked that a woman said to him: "When you have seen one man you have seen them all in their moods and tenses. They are all alike." His reply was: "It may be so, but woman is like an irregular French verb, and unless a man studies her in all her peculiar moods and tenses he will misconstrue and misinterpret her, much to his disadvantage."

An Overdressed Drama.

It is only in the last fifty years that the true purpose of the theater, the decent interpretation of the drama, has been utterly obscured. Today carpenters, costumers and wigmakers throw the humble playwright into the shade.

Painful Memories.

Mr. Jorkins—I wish he wouldn't sing that song about "Failing Dew." Mrs Jorkins—Why not? Mr. Jorkins—It reminds me too much of the house rent.—Baltimore American.

The Salt in the Sea.

A scientist has calculated, after extensive tests of the density and saltness of the ocean in all parts of the world, that there is the equivalent of 3,051,342 cubic geographical miles of common salt in all the known seas. This is more than five times the mass of the mountains in the entire Alpine range.

The Resemblance.

"The buckwheat cakes at my boarding house always remind me of a baseball game."

"How so?"

"The batter doesn't always make a hit."—Puck.

For the noblest man that lives there still remains a conflict.—Garfield.

THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. and T. C. Windsor, of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and curing all animals, which to them means money.

Scientific Meetings will be organized by Messrs. Windsor and held through out the Dominion of Canada, when farmers desirous of improving their knowledge of stock will have an opportunity of doing so and to be instructed on the life of stock from birth to death, free of any charge.

ENGINEERS GET INCREASE.

Conciliation Board Gives C.N.A. Men Sixteen Per Cent. More.

Toronto, Nov. 17.—After weeks of intermittent work, the conciliation board appointed by the Labor Department to arrange a more satisfactory working schedule between the Canadian Northern Railway engineers and the company has at last presented its finding.

J. Harvey Hall, representative of the engineers, says it means an increase in wages of 16 per cent. all round, and that the working schedule will be one of the best in existence on any road in Canada.

The settlement has been accepted by the company, but the men have not been heard from. Mr. Hall has no doubt that it will be satisfactory.

The board was composed of F. H. Richardson for the C.N.R.; J. Harvey Hall for the men, and Judge Gunn of Ottawa as the third man. Its finding was unanimous, and affects directly eighty-one and indirectly two hundred and sixty-one engineers.

Cars Piled 30 Feet In the Air.

Woodstock, Nov. 17.—An eastbound freight train running down grade at 45 miles an hour, came to grief at Gobin's Station on the G.T.R. Sunday night. The rear one of the train apparently broke a rail in passing, as every car after the engine left the track and piled up in a heap some heavy cars being erected 30 feet in the air.

The van, containing the brakeman and conductor, turned over and rolled down the embankment.

The occupants crawled out of the windows uninjured.

Ovation For Togo.

Kobe, Nov. 17.—Admiral Togo drove through the streets of this city yesterday amid scenes of tremendous enthusiasm.

The Emperor sent an imperial message to the fleet, which consisted of 124 vessels anchored three miles from the shore. In his message the Emperor exhorted the officers and men of the Japanese navy to work assiduously to maintain it in a satisfactory condition.

Will Ask Legislation.

London, Nov. 17.—A resolution asking the Ontario Government to pass legislation making valid the contract of this city with the Hydro-Electric Commission was passed at a meeting of the council last night by a vote of 8 to 4.

It has also resolved to oppose the granting of a fiat making the commission a co-defendant with the city in any action which might be brought.

Wants the Ring or the Cash.

Windsor, Nov. 17.—A suit to be tried on Nov. 26, between Fred Bellmore, a drug clerk, and Luck Whitley, has some interesting features. The suit is for the recovery of a diamond engagement ring. Miss Whitley declares that she no longer has the ring, and flatly refuses to pay the $100 that the plaintiff demands.

H. S. Holt President.

Montreal, Nov. 17.—H. S. Holt was elected president of the Royal Bank at a meeting of directors at noon yesterday. Mr. Holt, who was formerly vice-president, succeeds the late T. E. Kenny of Halifax.

E. L. Peas was elected vice-president, and the vacancy on the board was not filled.

Auto Over Precipice.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 17.—An automobile in which were seven persons plunged over a precipice overlooking the Spokane river on Sunday night, and Miss Mary Nichols was killed. The automobile turned over while descending the grade, and landed partly buried beneath flying boulders fifty feet below.

Six Lives Lost.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 17.—Just six lives were lost in accidents on the freight and passenger vessels on the lakes during the year 1908, all during the past 30 days.

Quiet In Muskogee.

Okmulgee, Okla., Nov. 17.—Quiet prevails in Muskogee following Sunday's fight between officers and negroes in which five persons were shot to death.

WILL EMPEROR YIELD.

Kaiser Meets His Chancellor at Potsdam To-day.

Berlin, Nov. 17.—There is a wave of confidence that to-day's conference between the Kaiser and Prince Von Buelow will result in the former's acceptance of the nation's terms. If the Emperor remains obdurate and sends a soldier into the chancellorship there is not the slightest shadow of doubt that the country will be brought to the verge of a political revolution. The meeting will take place in the morning at the new palace at Potsdam.

The Welt am Montag, a weekly journal, professes to have received absolutely reliable information from America that the sum of $60,000 was paid by the German Government for the suppression of the Kaiser's interview in The Century Magazine. It is stated that negotiations were carried on directly between the German Foreign Office and the writer of the interview.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Bennett's Vaudeville Theatre at London will close, owing to unprofitable business.

Superintendent George Ross of the postal service is now in Nova Scotia mapping out rural delivery routes.

The Brantford City Council last night by a vote of 8 to 7 decided to submit a local option bylaw next January.

Five thousand more cars for the month of October than were ever handled before in one month is the record for the Canadian Pacific terminals at Fort William.

At Chicago, an automobile driven by M. F. Wilson ran into a group of small boys playing football and killed one of the players, John Armstrong, eight years old.

It is denied at Ottawa that Hon. A. B. Aylesworth is returning to Vienna for treatment. He is now preparing the Government bills for the next session of the House.

The late Col. T. D. B. Evans, D.O.C., in Winnipeg district, left an estate valued at $35,950, of which $5,685 is in Ontario and the rest in Manitoba. He left no will.

At Rumford, Maine, between 800 and 900 employes of the Oxford Paper Co. have struck and closed the paper mill because two union officers lost their positions by a change in hours.

At Wilmington, Del., Geo. Sprague, aged 45 years, was asphyxiated, and his wife and three children overcome. The gas meter had in some manner become detached from the service pipe and the house filled with gas.

At Rochester, the gravel bank on the west side of the Erie Canal, on the one-mile level just at the city line, gave away yesterday afternoon, and the level drained into Park and East avenues and Colby street in that city. Traffic on the canal is entirely stopped.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Frederick Borden yesterday promised careful consideration of the request of Mayor Oliver, W. H. George and Dr. J. O. Orr of Toronto, that the Government complete the execution of the deed for the making over of Garrison commons to the city, as per terms of purchase some years ago, and that car lines be allowed through the property.

A Western Murder.

Payton, Sask., Nov. 17.—Frank Naden, Frenchman, 40 years old, was fatally stabbed early Monday morning by A. Tretault, another Frenchman, who came here with his wife a fortnight ago from Bridgeport, Nebraska, and built a house, taking Naden into his employ.

Tretault's story is that for the past week Naden had been coming in after midnight, and Sunday night they refused him admittance, saying he was too late. Finally Mrs. Naden let him in, when he attacked Tretault with a butcher knife. A fight ensued.

Sent Out False News.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—Grossly exaggerated reports of the weather conditions in the Canadian west having recently been sent out to the American press from Winnipeg and Medicine Hat, the Government will take action to punish the culprits. For a similar offence last year a correspondent in Alberta was fined $200.

The recent exaggerations made it appear that through mythical terrific storms the country was completely tied up and the transportation facilities utterly demoralized.

Swedish Royalty at Windsor.

Portsmouth, Eng., Nov. 17.—The King and Queen of Sweden, who have come to England as the guests of King Edward, landed here yesterday afternoon and shortly afterwards boarded a train for Windsor.

An imposing fleet of 26 warships assembled in the bay fired a royal salute.

Slays Children and Self.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 17.—Lying in pools of blood, with their throats cut from ear to ear, Mrs. Agnes Lidner and her two children, aged five and three years respectively, were found in their home on Sunday by neighbors, who were attracted by the cries of the children.

A razor was found in the clenched hand of the mother.

Title For Lemieux.

Montreal, Nov. 17.—There is a rumor here than Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Postmaster-General, will be knighted New Year's for services rendered the Dominion and the Empire while at Tokio some months ago, and for his efforts to establish favorable postage rates between Canada and the Motherland.

Laurier to Rest In Florida.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier has made arrangements for a brief holiday before the meeting of Parliament, and leaves accordingly at the end of the present week for Florida.

Gunner Eludes the Police.

Kingston, Nov. 17.—Gunner Pique, deserter from the R.C.H.A., was sentenced to six months' hard labor, but yesterday broke jail and eluded the mounted police.

The Marine Enquiry.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—The Cassels' commission will resume its public sittings at St. John, N.B., on Nov. 30.

The commission will visit Toronto

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged—Cattle and Hogs Steady at Buffalo.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—London cables for cattle are steady at 11¾c to 12c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 11c to 11½c per lb.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Nov. 16.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were larger than for some time past, 85 carloads, composed of 1790 cattle, 5 hogs, 622 sheep and lambs, 31 calves and 75 horses.

Exporters.

Export steers sold from $4.60 to $5, and one selected load was sold by Corbett & Hall at $5.15 per cwt. Bulls sold from $3.75 to $4.60, the latter price being obtained by Dunn & Levack for one choice 2250 lb. bull.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots of butcher cattle sold about as high as the best exporters, at $4.75 to $5; loads of good, $4.30 to $4.60; medium, $4 to $4.25; common, $3.50 to $3.75; cows, $3.50 to $3.75; canners, $1 to $2.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report a slight trade in feeders and stockers. Should there be a heavy delivery it looks as tho every class excepting the best of feeders, might go lower in price. Messrs. Murby report prices same as last week, as follows: Best feeders, 950 to 1050 lbs. each, at $3.60 to $4; best feeders, 900 to 950 lbs. each, at $3.40 to $3.75; best stockers, 650 to 800 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.40; common and medium stockers, $2 to $2.75.

Milkers and Springers.

About 30 milkers and springers sold at $30 to $65 each. All good to choice milkers and forward springers found ready sale, but late springers and light common inferior quality cows were slow sale.

Veal Calves.

Only a very limited number of veal calves was offered and prices were unchanged at $3 to $6.25 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The trade in sheep and lambs is steadily growing larger at this market, over 600 finding ready sale to-day. Besides the abattoirs, Messrs. Dunn and Levack are always on hand to take all offered. Trade in sheep and lambs was steady. Export ewes sold at $3.25 to $3.40; rams, $3 to $3.50 per cwt; lambs, $4 to $4.50, or an average of $4.40 per cwt.

Hogs.

As predicted by The World on Friday last prices were a little stronger. Gunns, Limited, reported selects, fed and watered at market, $6.25 and $6 f.o.b. cars, to drovers at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 14 were 5400 cattle, 4300 sheep and lambs, 3200 hogs and 400 calves. The offerings for local consumption this morning consisted of 1300 cattle, 1500 sheep and lambs and 200 calves. There was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle since this day week, prices being firmly maintained for good to choice stock on account of the continued limited supply coming forward and the good demand for the same local buyers. There was also a good enquiry from exporters, but they found it difficult to fill their wants of choice and were obliged to buy several lots of light weights in order to complete their shipments. But supplies of medium and common cattle were ample, for which the demand was good, and on the whole an active trade was done. Cable advices from Liverpool on Saturday stated that trade was very slow and the market weak with prices ½c to 1½c per lb. lower than a week ago; sales of a few choice heavies here were made at 5c; good, at 4¾c to 4¾c; fair, at 4¼c to 4c; common, at 3½c to 3¾c, and inferior at 1½c to 2¼c per lb.

A firm feeling prevailed in the market for lambs and prices show no change from a week ago. Supplies were fairly large, for which the demand from local buyers was good and an active trade was done. Choice lots sold at 6c to 6¼c, and good, at 5¾c to 6c per lb., the trade in sheep was fair and prices were unchanged at 3½c to 4c for good to choice lots, and at 3c to 3½c for culls per lb. The demand for calves was rather slow at 3½c to 5c per lb., as to quality and size. There were about 2000 hogs on the market this morning, but in spite of this fact and the continued weak advices from European sources, as Canadian hogs, which noted a further decline in prices of 1s to 6s per cwt., a firmer feeling developed in the market and values show an advance of 5c to 10c per cwt., as compared with those of a week ago. The demand was good from local packers and dealers and sales of selected lots were made at $6.20 to $6.40 per cwt., weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 16.—Cattle—Receipts, 2000 head; fairly active and steady; prime steers, $4.25 to $5.50; shipping, $5.25 to $5; butchering, $4.50 to $5.05; heifers, $3.50 to $5.20; cows and bulls, $3 to $4.50; stockers and feeders, $2.25 to $4.50; stock heifers, $2.25 to $3.25; fresh cows and springers, steady, $30 to $65.

Hogs—Receipts, 25,000 head; slow and steady; heavy, $6.30 to $6.40; mixed, $6.25 to $6.35; yorkers, $6 to $6.05; pigs, $4 to $5; roughs, $5.25 to $5.50; stags, $4 to $4.50; dairies, $5.75 to $6.30.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 12,000 head; active; sheep, steady; lambs, 25c higher; lambs, $4 to $6.25; yearlings, $4 to $4.75; wethers, $4 to $4.50; ewes, $3 to $4.25; sheep, mixed, $1.00 to $4.25; Canada lambs, $5.75 to $6.10.

Life Sentence Worse Than Death.

Washington, Nov. 17.—The petition of Albert T. Patrick, the New York lawyer serving a life sentence at Sing Sing, N.Y., on the charge of having murdered Millionaire Wm. M. Rice, for a writ of habeas corpus was denied by the Supreme Court of the United States yesterday. Patrick charged that the case against him was a conspiracy, and urged that in commuting the sentence of death, which the court imposed to one of life imprisonment, Governor Higgens had resorted to a more cruel method of punishment.

Belgian Canadian Land Co.

London, Nov. 17.—(C. A. P.)—The Belgo-Canadian Fruits Lands Co. has been formed in Antwerp with a capital of 1,500,000 francs, to do business in British Columbia.

PETERBORO' CHEESE BOARD RECOGNIZED AS ONTARIO'S BEST

Standard of Cheese Rising Year by Year—Patrons are Taking Greater Interest in the Quality of Milk Sent to Factories.

MOST CREDITABLE SHOWING

With this closing of the cheese-making season in the Peterborough district, it is gratifying to learn that the standard of the cheese made in this county and sold on the Peterborough Board has been raised during the past year. In conversation with Mr. Geo. A Gillespie this morning the Examiner learned that such was the case. He attributed the cause to the greater enlightenment of the patrons of the various factories as to how the milk should be attended to, prior to its being sent to the factories, to the quality of dairy cows that should be kept and to the feeding system.

This, he claims, has been due directly to the educative lectures which have been given by competent men sent out from the Dairy Commissioner's department at Ottawa. The farmers have come to the conclusion that the better the quality of the milk and the better it is cooled, the higher will be the standard of the cheese and the remunerative conditions enhanced.

The Peterborough Board ranks among the leading Boards in Ontario which include Belleville, Picton and Brockville.

"But," said Mr. Gillespie, "my opinion is that the Peterborough Board leads all the rest, and I believe the Montreal wholesale men are of the same opinion if they chose to speak what they think."

DIFFICULTIES MET IN ASSESSMENT OF RAILWAY PROPERTY

Assessor McGrath Now Engaged in This Work in the City—Some Peculiarities of the System Met With.

THE RATE CHANGES OFTEN

Mr. T. B. McGrath, one of the city assessors, is now engaged in one of the most difficult tasks of the work—that of assessing the steam railway property in Peterborough. The system of assessing demands so many changes in valuating that the assessor has his work cut out for him.

Assessment of railway property is only made once in five years so that practically they have a fixed assessment during that time. On streets where the railway runs the assessor has to figure on the value of rails, ties, bolts, switches, etc., taking into account the various weights of the rails. In places where the railway runs through lots the assessment has to be based on the rate of assessment of adjoining properties. This of course changes when a new lot is reached. A considerable amount of figuring is therefore necessary.

THE PASSING OF WELL KNOWN FIGURE IN CANADIAN POLITICS

THE LATE SIR HENRI JOLY, Former Premier of Quebec, Who Died Yesterday.

COUNCIL'S WORK

Have Accomplished Much When They Satisfactorily Settled the Question of the Rogers Waterfront Claim.

HAS BEEN TWO YEARS UNDER DISCUSSION

A question that has been before the attention of Mayor Rush during the past year and almost equally before the whole council, was the Rogers' waterfront question. Now, however, the Mayor and council have washed their hands of the matter, in other words they have dealt with it and settled it in a manner which, by all those closely associated with civic affairs, is considered most satisfactory. It was a claim by Mrs. J. X. Rogers against the city for damages to her property caused by the city filling in that low land on the west side of the river betwen Hunter street bridge and the C.P.R. bridge. Mrs. Rogers was entitled to water front privileges, and by filling in the city's land it stopped the flow of water past her premises. She, therefore, put in a demand for a large pipe to be put through the city property from the C.P.R. north trestle south to the property, so that the water might continue to flow. The estimated cost of this was $1,000 to be borne by the city, the C.P.R., and the Peterborough Cereal Co. These three interested parties agreed upon the sums they were to pay, and decided to offer Mrs. Rogers the cash instead of putting in the drain.

The question has been on the city's books for several years, and the councillors are pleased that they have thus disposed of it.

Mr. R. E. Wood, solicitor for Mrs. Rogers, was present at the council meeting last night regarding the filling in of the embankment, a matter about which nothing had been done. To do this the earth from the Government excavation could be used. Mrs. Rogers will look after the earth after it is placed there. Then if there is not enough earth from the Government work the city is to fill up the rest. The filling desired is between the C.P.R. tracks and the neck of land thrown up by the Government works a few feet east of the railway.

Who Pays for it?

The aldermen stated that this was the first time they had heard of this proposition, and did not understand it. It was understood that when the city paid Mrs. Rogers $1,600 and $150 as damages that would clear them of all further expense.

Mr. Wood explained that it would cost the city nothing. All that was wanted was for the city to ask the Government to fill in that land after the city's own land had been all filled up. This met with the favour of the aldermen, and a motion was passed to the effect that the city ask the Government to do as Mrs. Rogers requests.

It was moved by Aldermen McIntyre and Elliott that the city now carry out the settlement with Mrs. Rogers for $1750.—Carried.

The city will pay $675. The C.P.R. will contribute $525, and the Peterborough Cereal Co., $350. When a release is given by Mrs. Rogers the city treasurer has been authorized to issue a cheque.

ASSESSMENT THIS YEAR INCREASED, BUT TO THE RATEPAYERS' ADVANTAGE

Business and Income Tax Increased Slightly to Make up the Decrease—A Comparison of the Statements for the Two Years.

VERY FEW APPEALS IN 1908

The assessors' returns for the year show figures that are of considerable interest to the ratepayers when a comparison is made with last year. In 1907 the assessment sheet was as follows:

Taxable lands and buildings	$7,952,305 00
Business assessment	902,683 00
Income assessment	122,969 00
Total	8,977,957 00

This Year's Figures

Taxable lands and buildings	$7,721,856 00
Business assessment	1,050,951 00
Income assessment	167,801 00
Total	$8,940,408 00
Reduction made by Court of Revision	20,000 00
Revised assessment for this year	8,920,408 00
Revised assessment for last year	8,552,105 00
This year's increase	$ 368,303 00

Looking over these figures it will be seen that the assessment of lands and building was appreciably decreased but the total amount was increased by the changes made in the business and income assessments. The average ratepayer reading these figures will understand how they affect him.

Only tender, budding leaves grown at an elevation of 5,000 feet are used in "Salada." The rest of the preparations is done by ingenious, cleanly machines; hence the purity and strength of "Salada" Tea. 30

BLACKSMITHING BUSINESS CHANGE IN BRIDGENORTH

Mr. Alex. Walker has leased the blacksmith shop of Mr. R. O. Heard, Bridgenorth, and will begin work about November 23rd. Mr. Walker has had more than seven years' experience with Mr. Ben Yelland, Peterborough, and during that time has gained a splendid reputation as a blacksmith.

THE WEATHER.

This morning the thermometer was down to the lowest point it has reached this fall, the mercury standing at 15 degrees. This is about the usual date for the first foretaste of winter, but we should have several weeks of fine fall weather yet before winter sets in in earnest. The appearance of snow is about the usual date also. The present covering will probably disappear before many days.

"FRUITLETS," THE CANDY GUM, WILL BE OFFERED THE PUBLIC NEXT WEEK

Peterborough Company Has Made a Success of "Spearmint" and are Turning Out With it the New Candy-Coated Gum Which Will Surely Appeal.

HAVE DOUBLED THEIR STAFF

The manufacturers of Peterborough's popular gum, "Spearmint," have announced that beginning next week they will put upon the market another of their products known as "Fruitlets." These local men are meeting with success in their enterprise due to the quality of all the ingredients used in the manufacture, by the excellence of the finished products and the dainty manner in which they are presented to the public.

"Fruitlets" as a gum is vastly different from Spearmint. It is called the candy gum and the dainty candy coating of lavender colour is the first thing that appeals to the user. It is produced in three flavours, blood orange, wintergreen and pineapple. As stated some time ago in a first reference made to the company, when it was remarked that it would undoubtedly gain a place in popular favour, emphasis was placed upon the fact that the very choicest ingredients were used and that the fruit extracts were the best that were offered on the market. The same care in catering to the public's demand for the "best" has been followed in the production of "Fruitlets." They are sold in packages, ten in each. In shape they are square and bulky, but—there, everybody will know all about them and appreciate them when they appear for sale next week.

The little factory on Park street has proved rather small for the business that has so rapidly forged ahead. Every available space is now in use and to meet the large orders that have recently been received the work will be carried on, nights and day. This practically means that the staff is being doubled, and with this new force the shop will be very busy putting out the orders that are now in the books.

DISSOLUTION SALE

Mr. F. J. Metheral Severs His Connection With W. A. Sanderson & Co. and Mr. W. E. Wasson Will Carry on the Business.

AUCTION SALE OF THE STOCK

A change has been made in the management of W. A. Sanderson & Co.'s jewelry establishment, which has been carried on by Messrs. F. J. Metheral and W. E. Wasson. The partnership between the two has been dissolved. Mr. Metheral who is likely to go west, having retired. Mr. Wasson will in future carry on the business himself and will make every effort to please the public by carrying a large and up-to-date stock.

The change in the management will be marked by a dissolution sale of all the stock, which will commence to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Everything in the store will be sold by auction and a capital chance is offered for those who wish to purchase Christmas presents to secure them at a tremendous saving in cost by taking advantage of this gigantic sale. It is desired to clear the stock out quickly, so that the scheme of selling by auction has been decided upon. Jewelry, china ware, porcelain, everything in the store, in fact, from an eight day clock to a gold toothpick will be disposed of, if possible, during the sale, which will be in charge of Auctioneer Lamb, who will commence operations sharp at 2.30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. Those who desire to get the best of the stock should not fail to call early, as the articles are bound to go quickly.

It is the intention of Mr. Wasson to install a complete new stock after the sale.

ANNUAL MEETING OF PETERBOROUGH BIBLE SOCIETY

Next Tuesday evening the annual meeting of the Bible Society of Peterborough, will be held in St. Paul's church. Rev. Jesse Gibson, agent of the Bible Society, Toronto, will give a stereopticon lecture on the work of the society.

PUBLIC LIBRARY WILL BE WORTHY OF PETERBOROUGH

It is evident that those who are interested in the selection of a site and the architecture for the new Public Library are determined upon securing a building of which the citizens will be proud and also a location that will meet with everybody's approval. They are busy with the introductory deliberations and will have something ready for the public in a short time.

CITY CHARITY BOARD DEALS WITH VARIOUS ITEMS AT THE FIRST WINTER MEETING

The Charity Board met in regular session last night for probably the first winter meeting of the season. Relief Agent Miller presented a report of the cases that have been under his attention.

One of particular interest is that of a woman whose children are suffering from typhoid fever. First one of the older daughters acted as nurse. Now she has been taken down and the family is in a bad way, as the lady herself has to go out to work in order to support her family. It was suggested that a nurse be sent to the woman's home, but the Board decided to leave the matter in the hands of the Relief Officer.

The Mayor received and read a letter from Mr. A. A. Anderson offering to sell the Charity Board 100 cords of first class cord wood at $5.50 per cord. The Board got the wood last year from Mr. Anderson at $5.30 per cord, and it proved to be very satisfactory. The price quoted this year is a little higher, but it is doubtful if the board will be able to get wood any cheaper. However, the Mayor and Alderman Buller will look after the matter.

Relief Agent Miller took the opportunity of notifying the several aldermen present that he has been unable to secure the use of the city teams as had been the custom previously. The cost the past month for teaming hardwood for the Charity Board had been $12. They paid 40 cents per half cord, and if they had to continue to pay for teaming they would either have to have a larger grant or do less work.

The aldermen present stated that they would see the Board of Works, and thought that the matter could be fixed up all right.

Buildings Encroaching On Streets To Receive Special Attention

There are a number of houses in this city that are partly built on city property, by that is meant that they encroach on the streets and to avoid all future entanglements that might result the present council have decided to investigate the matter and to clear up all possibilities of trouble in order to make clear the city's title.

In many parts of the city there were buildings over the street line, and one business block on George street had encroached four or five feet into the street, Mr. Bradburn stated.

As it requires only 60 years' possession to entitle a party to the ownership of property, and as some of the buildings refereed to have been erected nearly that length of time, the Property Committee was instructed to consider the entire question.

House Of Providence Likely To Receive Allowance From City

A special meeting of the Council was held last night with the City Fathers represented as follows:—Mayor (Rush, Ald. Gillespie, Tovey, Bradburn, Elliott, Morgan, McIntyre, Johnston, Phelan and Buller.

A letter was read from the House of Providence which Mayor Rush received some time ago. It read as follows:

To the Mayor and Council of the City of Peterborough.

We are at present caring for a large number of the poor of this city for which we are receiving no remuneration.

In other cities, we understand, it is the custom for such institutions to receive a yearly grant from the city, and we wish to ask that the same be done in Peterborough; also that we be granted free city water, instead of being charged a high rate for use of same.

In consideration of the services rendered the city, in caring for the poor of all denominations, particularly during the past winter, we hope that our request will receive favourable consideration.

Yours respectfully,
St. Joseph's House of Providence.
per "M. K."

A list of those inmates for whose maintenance no remuneration was received, gave the number of adults fourteen and of children five. Mayor Rush explained that the Charity Board pays to the Protestant Home $1.50 per week for each inmate who is dependent on charity for their maintenance.

Ald. Johnston stated that he did not think the city desired to have any of its poor kept by the House of Providence without it receiving an allowance for the same. Mayor Rush remarked that the council had not the power to act in regard to the water rate.

It was moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that Mayor Rush, Ald. Morgan, Phelan and Bradburn be a committee to confer with Rev. Father McColl in regard to a grant for the House of Providence, the committee to report back to the Council.—Carried.

POLICE WILL WATCH BOYS WHO INDULGE IN PRACTICE OF COASTING DOWN CITY SIDEWALKS

Complaints about boys coasting on sleighs on the sidewalks are already reaching Chief of Police Hamel and he has decided to put a stop to the practice. The boys are out both in East City and on the west side of the river and they use the sidewalks on the hills, making it very dangerous for pedestrians. The Chief states that any boy caught in the future at this practice will be prosecuted. It is a menace, he says, to the safety of the citizens and any offenders will be looked after by the law.

TO GIVE LECTURE ON FOUR MONTHS IN THE ORIENT

On Thursday, Dec. 3rd, the Rev. Norman McLeod, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Brockville, will give a stereopticon lecture in Murray street Baptist church on the subject "Four Months in the Orient." Dr. McLeod was one of the party with which Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews, the Misses Morrow and Miss Davidson, of Peterborough, went to the East last year. This lecture will be one of the finest of its nature ever heard in Peterborough. Rev. Mr. McLeod has 150 excellent slides and the illustrations will be intensely interesting.

AN EXHIBIT OF TENTS BY MESSRS TURNER AND SONS

Mr. A. Turner left last night for Montreal where he will superintend the exhibit of J. J. Turner & Sons, in connection with the big tuberculosis exhibition there. The local firm have hospital tents that have been very much admired and these will be shown in Montreal.

YOUNG ACTRESS COMES FROM NEW YORK TO JOIN COMPANY HERE—WAS MUCH DISAPPOINTED

That theatrical life is not exactly a bed of roses is demonstrated by the case of a young lady from New York not unknown to the glare of the foot lights who made a journey all the way from Gotham to Peterborough to accept a billet in a show, only to find when she reached here, that things were not as she supposed them to be, with the result that she went back to New York a badly disappointed and highly indignant young lady. Miss Marie Propp was the stage favourite in question, and she arrived here on Saturday to accept a position with the Grace Cameron Opera Company. On reaching here, however, she discovered that the position was in the chorus and as she had expected a more important role she declined to accompany the show. Accordingly she was left here without any too much money, but she wired to New York for funds and left for her home last night.

Goes Back To Visit Scenes Of His Youth In The Classic City

This morning Mr. Louis Yeates, proprietor of the Greek Shoe Shine Parlour, left on a trip to his old home in Athens, Greece. He went via Toronto, Buffalo and New York from where he sails across the Atlantic. Mr. Yeates left home five years ago, three of which he has spent in Peterborough, one in Montreal, and one in Kingston, and he goes back to visit his parents whom he has not seen during that time.

He will spend three or four months in Athens and surrounding coutry where he spent his early days, and will return to Peterborough about April 1st.

Expression Of Appreciation Of Sheffield Choir Visit

As an appreciation of the visit of the Sheffield Choir to this city, the council passed the following resolution last night: Moved by Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Johnston, "That this Council of the City of Peterborough, Ont., Canada, takes this, the earliest opportunity, to emphatically express on behalf of the citizens, its appreciation of the honour of a visit from the great Choir of Sheffield Musical Union; which presented a musical entertainment of the highest possible character of excellence; aroused a new interest in and created a new conception of the possibilities of concerted music; gave a new impulse to musical culture, and, at the same time, by personal contact and intercourse, strengthened the bonds of loyal devotion and attachment to the centre of the Empire of which it is our pride, as well as privilege to form a part."

ROAD RACE RUNNERS MAY RECEIVE THEATRE TICKETS BY APPLYING AT THE EXAMINER OFFICE

All the competitors in the Examiner Road Race of Thanksgiving Day are invited to see "All the Comforts of Home" at the Grand Opera House on Friday night. If they apply at the Examiner office they will be given complimentary tickets. Those who are to receive prizes will be given seats in the boxes. The Examiner has decided, in view of the splendid race of Harry Nellist, the miniature youth who finished sixth, to present him with a prize also.

The presentations as announced yesterday will be made by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate Institute.

SPECIAL DAIRY MEETINGS

Three Prominent Speakers Arranged for by Chief Dairy Commissioner Ruddick—Opening Meeting in Ennismore Hall.

LADIES ARE INVITED TO ATTEND

The special dairy meetings to be held in the various cheese factories and town halls of the Peterborough district promise this year to be better patronized than ever before. They are being held under the auspices of the Peterborough Cheese Board, and will be addressed by Messrs. Geo. H. Barr and C. F. Whitley of the Dairy Commissioner's staff at Ottawa, and Mr. Robert Ward, Dairy Instructor.

The subjects to be discussed include, "The Importance of Low Temperature in the Dairy Industry," "The Testing of Dairy Cows," etc. The addresses will be illustrated with lantern views, and will enable the speakers to introduce some new features. Every person interested in dairying is cordially invited, and a special invitation is extended to the ladies.

THE MARINE DEPARTMENT.

It is announced from Ottawa, that Hon. Mr. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, has announced his intention of using every means of investigation available by law, that may be necessary to penalise officials of the Department found to be guilty of using their positions to improperly secure pecuniary advantage for themselves. It is the duty of the Minister to take the steps indicated. The Government of which he is a member inaugurated civil service investigation of which the investigation by Judge Cassels, which has revealed "grafting" on the part of officials, is the result. The Minister shows a determination to get at the bottom of the wrong-doing and he will be given credit for dealing with the condition with a strong hand; and no milder course will satisfy public opinion. It seems that the conditions prevailing have lasted too long. It is not sufficient answer as some claim, that this state of affairs, this "system" was a legacy from the days of Conservative rule. It is not a sufficient answer, either, to say that the same system is a general application in other cases. It has been known to be used in connection with municipal expenditures; it has been known to be applied in private contracts; but its existence in these relations forms no justification. It there have been in connection with the Marine Department unsatisfactory conditions of long continuance, that constitutes the greater reason for their prompt discontinuance. The Minister has recognized this as his duty. The revelations made before Judge Cassels justify his action in suspending the official who represented the Government in the Quebec district. He has taken other steps to remedy the unsatisfactory conditions existing. If before any investigation was held, before any revelations were made, the Minister had taken steps to place his department upon a better basis, he will certainly alter revelations have been made, not refrain from continuing the work and making the reform complete.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

The society and those interested in the promotion of its beneficent work are to be congratulated upon the good fortune that has recently come to it. The gift of $1,000, which came to it from the distribution of the residue of the Nicholls Estate, put it on its feet in the matter of a shelter. The money was used in fitting up the new shelter on the Hilliard Farm. Up to the present about $800 has been spent in providing heating, lavatories, etc., with some outstanding bills which will pretty well exhaust the balance of the $1,000. The society therefore, found itself at a rather low ebb in the matter of finances necessary to carry on its work. Then came the Sheffield Choir concert which netted $316.34, a welcome addition to the society's treasury, and a sum that will place it in a comfortable financial position for some little time. While this amount is due to the action of the committee and the liberality of the citizens a great amount of credit is due to the Sheffield Choir. It would seem that it made some sacrifice to assist in the contribution made to the funds of the society, for it is doubtful if this tour in Canada paid expenses. Our thanks are, therefore, due on behalf of the society to those who brought the choir here, to the choir itself, and in lesser degree perhaps, to the citizen who patronized the concert, for they got full value in the splendid musical entertainment provided for their share in the contribution to the funds of the Children's Aid Society. While this is for the moment satisfactory, it is to be borne in mind that there are continual draughts upon its funds; and it seems that there should be some more permanent form of endowment than the precarious contributions of chance. This charity is endowed with large possibilities of good service, and it should be more largely endowed with the means for carrying on its work.

CANADA AND THE STATES.

In comment upon the result of the Dominion elections, which it regards as an assurance that the policy of the Liberal Government will be continued, the New York Journal of Commerce finds cause for regret in the stubborn attitude of the United States towards the Dominion in international trade matters. The obstinacy of Congress, it says, has given impetus to the preferential trade policy. The paper further says:

"The first move was made in 1897, when a reduction of 12 1-2 per cent. was made in the duties upon various imports from Great Britain, which was increased to 25 per cent. the next year and 33 1-3 per cent. in 1900. Our exports to Canada have continued to increase in the large growth of that country's trade, in spite of the preference, but much of the increased share that we might have had in that trade has undoubtedly been diverted to Great Britain. This has been an advantage to the self-governing colony, but not so great an advantage as a liberal scheme of reciprocity with the United States would have been, while this country has lost the advantage it might have had and been put to a certain degree of disadvantage for the benefit of the United Kingdom."

What, to the Journal, makes matters worse is the fact that the direction of the firmly-settled Canadian policy, largely the result of the shortsightedness of United States politicians, points to a continued and increasing diversion of trade from the neighbouring republic to the mother country. The Journal says:

"As part of the Laurier policy of developing the resources, industries and trade of the Dominion on independent national lines, the Government has devoted itself to improving the St. Lawrence waterways and planning others, and aiding transcontinental railways, in such a way as to direct trade across the country to Montreal and its own ports on the Atlantic, instead of having it overflow into and through the States, which, with shortsighted selfishness, a selfishness that hurt itself, would not let it come this way, and Canada had to seek its main outlet elsewhere, although at great expense."

The paper regretfully refers to the opportunity which the United States lost years ago, when Canada's overtures for more neighbourly trade relations were contemptuously rejected. That the blunder then made can ever be retrieved it does not believe; the United States can never recover the advantage Great Britain has gained. It is convinced, however, that the United States have much to gain by freer trade with Canada. "Will our statesmen," it asks, "persist in being obstinately blind to the opportunity of extending some part of the acknowledged benefit of unrestricted intercourse between the States to territory of like character adjoining them on the north?"

Evidently the press and people of the United States are awakening to the fact that the Laurier policy is the settled trade policy of Canada and that we on this side of the international boundary are determined to carry it out, no matter what the views of our neighbours may be. We are enabled to do that because, having directed our trade into British channels we are becomingly increasingly independent of the United States in commercial matters, though the trade between the two countries is bound to grow, from natural causes, in spite of tariff obstructions.—Brockville Recorder.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A new "Chinese puzzle" is represented by the simultaneous death of an old Empress and a new Emperor in the Celestial Kingdom.

The Liberal Government is the first and only one, says the London Advertiser, to strike a blow at the patronage system. The fact must be placed to its credit.

The late Hon. Mr. A. Evanturel was a clever platform orator. As Speaker of the Ontario Legislative Assembly he will be remembered as occupying the chair with impressiveness and dignity.

The editors of three religious publications have all died within a few months—the editor of the Presbyterian, of the Christian Guardian and the editor of the Methodist Sunday School publications. This is of course a mere coincidence, but it is a sad one.

The delay of the French Senate in ratifying the Franco-Canadian trade treaty of last summer, is a tribute to the Canadian Government in this sense, that they drove so hard a bargain in the interest of Canada that our trans-Atlantic French cousins hesitate to confirm it.

The Mail and Empire is distressed because the morale of Parliament is to be lowered as a result of the election. On the question of morale, however, remarks the Montreal Herald, the principal change is the elimination of Mr. Fowler, so Parliament will try to struggle along.

The successful electrification of the Sarnia Tunnel, says much in favour of electricity as a medium of heavy traction. Heavy trains are now taken through the tunnel with very stiff grades without trouble. In this case the source of electrical supply is at hand and the short distance of transmission of the current affects the problem, in a financial sense at least, of applying the electric current to general traction purposes.

British Columbia is "again the Government" the standing in respect of the general elections being five Conservatives and two Liberals. The reason for this is one of two. The statesman-like attitude of the Government in dealing with the Oriental immigration question may have had some effect, but it is not much a matter of doubt that the wholesale bribe offered by Mr. Borden, in expressing himself in favour of increasing the provincial subsidy to British Columbia, had its effect.

There were 3,764 persons killed and 68,989 injured in railway casualties in the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30 last, according to the annual statement of the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington. This is a decrease of 1,236 killed and 3,297 injured as compared with the previous year; but it does not appear whether the decrease was the result of improved methods for the protection of life, or of the decrease in traffic, the result of hard times. In any event the casualty list is far too high.

The Hamilton Times points out that notwithstanding the existence of sixty-eight licensed hotels in that city the members of the Sheffield Choir found it impossible to get sufficient hotel accommodation. It asks how many of the so-called hotels are mere groggeries. The question is a pertinent one. Under the present regime we were given to understand that the policy of making hotelkeepers "keep hotel" would be rigorously enforced, and the hotelkeepers themselves were given to understand that something more was involved in the keeping of hotel than the mere furnishing of accommodation for the sale of liquor.

The Peterborough Review, under the heading of "A Crime," quotes a London, Eng., despatch of Nov. 5th, which relates the sale of a wife by a husband. And upon the incident described in the despatch it makes the following editorial comment:

"Some effort ought to be made to perpetuate this man's suitability to utilitarian surroundings. We are all said to be the product of our environment. What sort of environment produced this?"

The first suggestion to the reader of this literary chef d'oeuvre is to repeat the enquiry, "What sort of environment produced this?" We really think that our neighbour ought to take something for it.

THE SLEEPING SICKNESS WHICH MEANS DEATH

How many readers have heard of this terrible disease? It prevails in that far-away country—Africa—especially the Congo district. It is caused by the bite of the tsetse fly. When it bites a person, the sleeping symptoms begin and finally the sufferer sleeps until death occurs. Contrast this with the peaceful balmy sleep of health. Is there anything more wearing than to lie awake at night, tossing about, nervous, with cold feet, hot head, and mercy knows what else? Short of letting the tsetse fly bite us we would do almost anything for relief. How can we prevent it? Mr. George Hayes, of Union City, Pa., writes: "I had lost my appetite, was all run-down, could not sleep nights. I had tried everything without relief. Vinol was recommended, and to my surprise, it helped me at once; gave me a splendid appetite, and now I sleep soundly."

What Vinol did for Mr. Hayes, it will do for every run-down, nervous and overworked person who cannot sleep.

Vinol is sold in Peterborough by McDermid & Jury.

FOOTBALL HERO IN SPIRIT.

We'd like to be a football man
Whose service was required
To win a game and be pledged—
Prodigiously admired.

And then we would be taken sick
And spill a bunch of gloom;
And then be taken off to rest
In one nice private room.

Where nurses and chirurgeons came
And looked askance at us,
And said: "Now isn't it a shame
That he's not in the muss."

We'd like to loll upon our back
And hear them talk of how—
How we would crumple up the line
If we were in the row.

We'd like to sip the grape juice food
With ice packs on our head,
And hear them say what might occur
If we were not in bed.

We love the glory of the fray,
But when it goes awry
It does not hold a candle to
The sickbed alibi.

LINDSAY MAY PLAY OFF HERE AGAINST KINGSTON

After having a wait of about ten days the Rugby team will, it is expected, meet the Kingston strong team on Saturday next in a sudden death game at Peterborough.

The game should prove very interesting as both teams are standing now as champions of their own districts. The Kingston team this year is spoken of as being one of the strongest junior teams ever held by that city. The local Greys are well prepared for them, and will keep them hustling for the winning points with the pigskin.

It the game takes place at Peterborough, Saturday next the Lindsay team will run a special G.T.R. train down to the Quaker town at 2 o'clock.—Lindsay Free Press.

Hotelmen Fined.

Orillia, Nov. 17.—N. B. Irish, proprietor of the Simcoe House, was fined $20 and costs for allowing liquor to be kept on the premises. The cider was found to contain nearly 4 per cent. alcohol. John Butterfield, proprietor of the Victoria Hotel, was fined $40 and costs for keeping liquor for sale on the premises, and Charles Harrington, proprietor of the Hotel at Washago, was fined $100 and costs for supplying liquor to an Indian. The Indian was drowned.

Victimized Merchants.

Kingston, Nov. 17.—J. Rosen, proprietor of a ladies' tailoring establishment, closed up shop yesterday and left for parts unknown, taking with him over $1,000 collected from leading merchants by bogus checks. Over a score of merchants were nipped by Rosen. Before leaving Rosen drew all his savings in the Standard Bank and at a number of stores, where he secured goods he gave checks for which there were no funds.

Robbed and Shot.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—Herbert Price, a young Port Du Fort man, was robbed Saturday evening while returning to his home from business. In a scuffle with two assailants he was shot in the thigh and then relieved of $140.

Poisoning From Operation.

Brantford, Nov. 17.—Dr. Pearson, medical health officer, is lying dangerously ill here with blood-poisoning, which he contracted from performing an abdominal operation Saturday. He pricked his finger with a needle and septic poisoning followed. His arm has been operated upon, but it is feared another operation will be necessary.

Ex-Boss Croker Sails.

Queenstown, Nov. 17.—Richard Croker, the former Tammany Hall leader, was among the passengers who boarded the steamship Lusitania on Sunday. He will make a six months' visit to the United States.

Red Fox With White Feet.

Winsted, Conn., Nov. 17.—A big red fox with four white feet was trapped by John Hall of Sherman yesterday. Hall, an experienced trapper, says a fox with white feet is rarer than a white blackbird.

OUR READERS ARE APPRECIATIVE

The "Vegetable Prescription" for Kidney Trouble Filled Many Times.

DID YOU MIX SOME OF IT?

That the readers of this paper appreciate advice when given in good faith is plainly demonstrated by the fact that one well-known local pharmacy supplied the ingredients for the "vegetable prescription" many times within the past two weeks. The announcement of this simple, harmless mixture has certainly accomplished much in reducing the great many cases of kidney complaint and rheumatism here, relieving pain and misery, especially among the older population, who are always suffering more or less with bladder and urinary troubles, headache and particularly rheumatism.

Another well-known druggist asks us to continue the announcement of the prescription. It is doing so much real good here, he continues, that it would be a crime not to do so. It can not be repeated too often, and further states many cases of remarkable cures wrought.

The following is the prescription, of simple ingredients, making a harmless, inexpensive compound, which any person can prepare by shaking well in a bottle: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Any first-class drugstore will sell this small amount of each ingredient, and the dose for adults is one teaspoonful to be taken after each meal and again at bedtime. There is enough here to last for one week, if taken according to directions. Good results will be apparent from the first few doses.

Called Pope Fanatic.

During the recent federal campaign, a special edition of this paper was circulated amongst the French-Canadians of Compton County. "Why should Mr. Pope be defeated?" was the question asked, and it answered the question as follows: "Because he is an Orange fanatic," and this is why Mr. Pope is bringing the action.

Arrested For Murder.

Toronto, Nov. 17.—Joseph E. Hallatt, single, 20 years of age, was arrested at his mother's home at 427 Church street at 11.30 last night. The arrest was made at the request of Chief Constable J. C. McRae of Winnipeg, whose brief wire to the local police merely named the charge as murder.

From other advices it appears that the charge arises out of the death of a Miss Polson at Winnipeg two weeks ago. The girl was run over by a man driving a light wagon.

Electrocuted.

Auburn, N.Y., Nov. 17.—Andrew Del Vermo, convicted on Jan. 28, 1907, of the murder of Antonio Page at Rome on June 30, 1906, was successfully electrocuted in Auburn Prison yesterday morning at 8.11.

Must Die For Crimes.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—The Cabinet yesterday decided not to interfere with the sentences on Crooked Neck Smith and an Italian named Nicoli, two Montreal murderers condemned to death.

Murderer Suicides.

Windsor, Nov. 17.—Timothy Linehan, who married Margaret Moynahan, a Windsor girl and murdered her in Detroit, committed suicide in Jackson, Mich., where he was serving a life sentence for his crime.

Dies From Injured Knee.

St. Thomas, Nov. 17.—Fred Gidley, Jr., aged 16, met with an accident at Webb's carriage shop last Friday, injuring his knee. He was taken to the hospital, where he died at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Aged Nun's Hard Journey.

Mother Filatriault, Mother General of Gray Nuns in Canada, has reached Winnipeg on her way to the Mackenzie river district for the purpose of inspecting the missions in the far North. Although she is sixty-nine years old, she is setting out on a journey involving a trip of 2,000 miles beyond Edmonton, through a country where dog trains and canoes are the sole means of transportation. She will be accompanied by several Gray Nuns.

Lions May Live a While.

Sentence of death has not yet been pronounced on the large lion and two lion cubs in Riverdale Zoo, Toronto, which are doomed to die before long, but it is probable this will be done after the Humane Society has seen the sick animals. The society will visit the Zoo for the purpose of inspecting the animals.

The Darkest Hour.

The proverb which tells us that "the darkest hour is that before dawn" is inaccurate, for light increases in the morning as gradually as it decreases in the evening. The saying should be "the coldest hour," etc., which is perfectly true and is owing to causes connected with the deposit of dew. Hoarfrosts, too, usually take place just before daylight and are an additional cause of the peculiar chilliness of this time.—London Scraps.

Discarded Papers.

In Belgium the railroads have a systematic method of collection of newspapers left in the cars, and the papers are afterward turned to account. The year's collection, it is said, amounts to 100,000 kilograms or about 100 tons. After being reduced to pulp the paper is remanufactured into rough paper for waybills of the state lines, and the tickets are also said to be obtained from the old newspapers.

The Girl of the Period.

Having greater liberty, greater self reliance, better health, larger opportunities, the girl of the period, with all her drawbacks, is a finer and a better creature than either her mother or her grandmother.—T. P. O'Connor in London M. A. P.

CITY LEAGUE'S SUCCESSFUL CAREER; BRIEF HISTORY OF THE ORGANIZATION SINCE ITS INCEPTION FIVE YEARS AGO

The annual meeting of the Peterborough City Hockey League will be held on Tuesday evening of next week at the Y. M. C. A., when reports will be received, officers elected and other business relative to the commencement of the season, transacted.

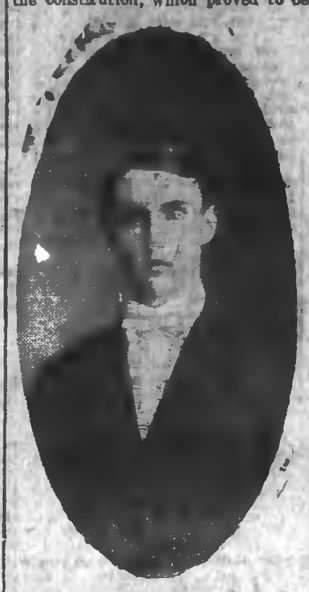
Notices have been sent to the different clubs asking them to be represented at the meeting.

The City League, since its inception in 1904 has been a most successful organization. Every year has added to the prestige of the league. The hockey has grown steadily better and the interest in the games correspondingly greater, year by year, so that the fans have come to look upon the City League with confidence.

The City League was organized at a meeting held in the Y. M. C. A., on Dec. 7th, 1904, when officers were elected and some efforts made to form a constitution. M. J. Hutchinson, formerly city editor of the Examiner, was the first president, and Harry Kingscote, now in Rochester, the first secretary. The teams represented at the first meeting were the Karnots, T. A. S., Farriers, Auburns and High Lifes. However, the league consisted in that season of six teams, the Colonials, Verniers, Earl Greys, T. A. S., Farriers and Karnots. The T. A. S. succeeded in winning out the league after a hard fight, their chief adversaries being the Karnots and the Farriers.

At the first meeting of the league in the season of 1905-06, Mr. Fred A. Clarke was elected president and G. L. Maine, secretary. The latter soon left the city and I. D. Moore was elected in his stead. The personnel of the league was greatly changed over that of the year before, and there were alterations made in the constitution, which proved to be wisely planned. All the teams in the league were new, except the T. A. S. The Lakefield team, known as the Suburbs, were admitted, and the other teams were the Charlotte Street Guild team, the High Lifes, Bankers and Suicides. After a most successful and interesting season the Charlotte Street team captured the league honours and annexed the Examiner trophy for the year. The T. A. S. withdrew, leaving the fight between the other five and the standing was as follows:

Charlotte Street.
High Lifes and Suburbs tied.
Suicides.
Bankers.



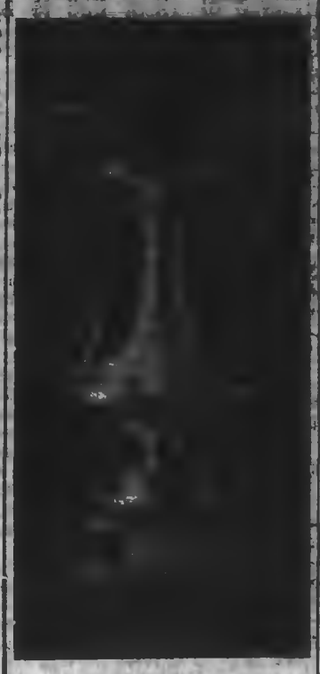
W. J. METHERAL,
Manager of the Strathconas, winners of the City Hockey League Championships in 1906-07 and 1907-08, who will be in line again this season

In 1906-07 Mr. Clarke was again elected president and Mr. Moore re-elected to the position of secretary-treasurer. There were six clubs in the league, the Strathconas, Charlotte Street, Lakefield, Auburns, High Lifes and Orphans. After playing through a single schedule three extra games had to be played to decide the championship, the Strathconas managing to win the championship from Charlotte Street, the cup holders from the year before. Good hockey was played and the games were well patronized, with the result that financially the season was a good one.

Last year, for the third time, Mr. Clarke was president, while B. T. Huston was secretary. The Strathconas managed to repeat their exploit of the year before by not only winning the championship, but by going through the league season without a defeat, making the second year without the loss of a league game. Last year the league broadened out widely in the district covered by taking in Norwood, and Lakefield, the other teams being Lakefield, Strathconas and High Lifes.

This year the prospects before the league are of the brightest. The Strathconas and High Lifes will be found in line again this season and Lakefield and Bridgenorth are almost certainties, while the Rough Riders, who played independent hockey last year, will be found in the league this season. Rumour has it that the West Ends will also place a team in the league and other teams are mentioned as possibilities, so that there will be no lack of teams.

President Fred A. Clarke, who has been at the head of the league for the past three seasons, has announced his intention of retiring from the position, but it is to be hoped that he may be induced to accept the office again. The league has already lost one good officer in the person of vice-president, Jos. Maher, who has removed to Lindsay, and this would make Mr. Clarke's withdrawal even more severely felt.



THE EXAMINER CUP.
Emblematic of the City Hockey League Championship, which becomes the property of the Strathconas if won by them again this season.

YOUNG HACKENSCHMIDT, the New York Wrestler, who will undertake to throw five Peterboro grapplers in connection with the Burridge—Fitzpatrick bout at the Roller Rink Next Tuesday.

JUNIOR CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE IS TO BE ORGANIZED AT MEETING ON THURDSAY

There will be a meeting of the junior hockey clubs of the city on Thursday night at 7.30 o'clock in the Examiner office for the purpose of taking steps to form a junior City Hockey League. It is hoped that every team desiring to enter such an organization will have a representative present as it is highly important if a league is to be formed that preparations should be gotten under way as soon as possible. A large number of teams have signified their intention of joining the league if it is organized and it is said that at least six teams will be found in the running. The youngsters are decidedly enthusiastic over the prospects. It is proposed to conduct the league along the same lines as the Senior City League, but with an age limit.

THREE-MEN BOWLING TEAMS ORGANIZED AT P. B. C. ALLEYS

The meeting called last night at the P.B.C. alleys for th epurpose of organizing a Ten Pin League was well attended, and the proposal to form a league consisting of three men teams was enthusiastically endorsed by those present. The ten teams who originally signified their intention of joining the new body were represented and all expressed a desire for an early opening of the schedule. There is also a possibility of teams being entered by the T.A.S. and Lew McCarroll.

It was decided to limit the number of men to be carried to five, thus allowing two substitutes for each team. The foul line rule will be strictly enforced and in every way the league will be modelled so as to conform with the regulations of the National Bowling Congress.

The schedule will be arranged at a meeting of the Executive on Wednesday night and th eintention is to start the series with two games on Monday night next. Each team will play one game each week, and with twelve teams in the league this will give one game each night.

The standing of the teams will be The standing of the various teams will be decided by the number of games lost and won during the season, and valuable individual prizes will be given to the winning team, the bowler holding the high single, the one with the high average, and the holder of the three consecutive game record.

A strong list of officers was elected as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Hon. J. R. Stratton,
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.,
President—R. M. Glover.
Vice-Pres.—C. W. Gutterson.
Sec'y-Treas.—H. Martin.
Executive Committee — Messrs. Lang, Hemstead, McIlroy, G. Lacheur and Wareham.
Schedule Committee—Messrs. Dela Fosse, Lang and Martin.
Official scorer and foul line judge—Mr. Adams.

Teams which have not yet entered and intended doing so must have their application in the hands of the secretary by Wednesday night when the schedule will be drawn up and other necessary details arranged. Teams are asked to register their players by Friday night.

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST BOYS TO ORGANIZE CLUB TO-NIGHT

To-night there will be a meeting of the boys of the congregation of the Murray Street Baptist Church, to organize a Boys' Club. The committee in charge is R. Harding, T. F. Matthews, Wm. Cooknape, J. P. Cunningham, W. J. Dunlop and Jos. Showalter.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE RUGBY CLUB ON MONDAY

All Rugby enthusiasts of the city are asked to bear in mind the fact that the annual meeting of the Peterborough Rugby Club will be held in the Y. M. C. A. next Monday night at eight o'clock. It is expected that all those interested in the game will be on hand, as it is desired to get things in shape for next season, so that when the autumn of 1909 comes around the club will be ready for the fray. It is the custom in the colleges to organize their team at the end of the season, so that they will be ready for the next. It is the intention of the local enthusiasts to elect officers and make other arrangements for next season's work. It is felt by those interested in the movement that there is an abundance of Rugby material in the city, which will result in big things if properly handled.

RUGBY

The Canadian championship Rugby games will clearly demonstrate the class of Rugby that is played in the different unions. There was only one team in the Interprovincial Union of anything like equal calibre with the Tigers and the Rough Riders on their games in Ottawa and Kingston proved that they had a real good team. The Tigers have not been beaten on their own grounds this year, and lost their only game of the season at Ottawa by an eyelash. They will play their first game for the Canadian championship at Hamilton next Saturday with Toronto A.A.C. On form the Tigers should win just as they have won from all comers at Hamilton this year, but the Toronto team can be depended upon to give the Tigers one of their hardest battles of the season. The locals are quite optimistic, and if the Tigers are a bit careless in their training this week they may be treated to the surprise of their lives when they run up against the T.A.A.C. on Saturday. The winners will play off in the finals with the winners of the Intercollegiate championship, either 'Varsity or Queen's, on college grounds; that is to say if 'Varsity wins, the game will be played in Toronto, but if Queen's wins, the game will be played in Kingston. If Tigers win all through the piece they will be entitled to all the glory that goes with the Canadian championship.—Toronto Star.

DR. McPHERSON RETIRES FROM OFFICE IN THE O.H.A.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—Nominations for office in the Ontario Hockey Association closed on Saturday.

President Dwight J Turner was re-elected by acclamation, as were Louis Blake Duff, 1st Vice-President; H E Wettlaufer, 2nd Vice-President, and Secretary W A Hewitt.

A new face appears in the Treasurership, R E A Moody, of Toronto, replacing Dr. A W McPherson, who has voluntarily retired from office. Mr. Moody is well known in hockey circles, having been for years connected with the St. George's. At present he is president of the new Victoria Hockey Club. Mr. Moody was elected without opposition.

The officers of the Association, and those to be elected, are as follows:

President—Dwight J Turner, Toronto, re-elected.
Past President—D L Darroch, Calgary.
Life Member—J Ross Robertson, Toronto.
C.A.A.U. Representative — Francis Nelson, Toronto, re-elected.
First Vice-President—Louis Blake Duff, Welland, re-elected.
Second Vice-President—H E Wettlaufer, Berlin, re-elected.
Secretary—W A Hewitt, Daily Star Office, Toronto, re-elected.
Treasurer—R E A Moody, Toronto, elected by acclamation.
Executive Committee—four to be elected:
Chas. Farquharson, Stratford.
W P Irving, London.
Norman Rule, Collingwood.
John Hanley, Midland.
John Dyment, Barrie.
Bert Short, Toronto.

G. L. MAINE,
Who was one of the first Secretaries of the City Hockey League.

McCAUGHEY TO TRY THE RUN TO NEW YORK ONCE MORE

"On to New York!" is again the slogan of T J McCaughey, the long-distance plugger, who last July ran from Toronto to New York by a route 572 miles long in 11 days and 20 hours. He will start next Monday, and travel afoot again, but will go it by a shorter route, and expects to cut a full day off the record. He will likely follow the Erie Canal towpath. William Potts of Toronto will start out with him on a wheel.

"What are you going down this time for?"

"Just to cut the record down," replied McCaughey. "When I get there I will be in grand shape to take on Dorando, the Italian. I can get on any amount of races in New York. They take a big interest in this run in New York. I'm in great shape now. I weigh 135 pounds. I started out last time at 128, so you see I have seven pounds more to burn up on the run. I was down to 106 when I reached New York. At one time I was under 100 pounds, I was only eating one meal a day for several days. Say, if anybody wants to come along with me for any portion of the journey I will be delighted to have their company. I will start at 10 o'clock Monday from City Hall."

McCaughey will wear heavy woollen tights and a sweater, instead of the usual light knickers and jersey of the track athlete.—Toronto Star.

BEN SIMPSON HURT IN THE GAME AT KINGSTON

Kingston, Nov. 16.—Doctors who examined "Ben" Simpson, the Tiger's half-back, are of the opinion that his chest bone was splintered during the game here and if this is the case, he is likely to be out of the game for the rest of the season. He was tackled pretty roughly during the engagement. The pain in his chest caused him much concern after the game was over.

SPLENDID PICTURE OF A LOCAL SPRINTER

Mr. N. A. Howard-Moore, one of the city amateur photographers, has secured a splendid photograph of Edgar LeBar, a local sprinter. LeBar was also one of the starters in The Examiner road race. The picture is now in the window of the Tate-Taylor Optical Company.

BOTTLE LAKE CLUB GOT THEIR SHARE

Had Excellent Time and Returned to the City With Ten Deer.

The Bottle Lake Hunt Club is just as jolly a bunch as ever shouldered their guns or vied with one another in trying to make a yarn bear a semblance of possibility. They have just returned from their annual trip with ten deer, five bucks and five does. The members were:—Dr. Amys, Gus Cochrane, M. O'Brien, A. Head, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, G. M. Brewett, Jas. Stabler, and W. Westlake. Mr. Fitzgerald did the feature trick, getting a big buck after a spirited chase.

Camp 1908 was a good one, and all the members are looking ahead to 1909 for the same old songs, stories and the fine Autumn weather in the northern woods.

AMALGAMATION OF SOAP COMPANIES

Royal Crown and Royal Companies Absorbing the Standard of Calgary

The Manitoba Free Press says:—In a news item from Calgary it is stated that the Royal Crown, Limited, of Winnipeg, the Royal Soap Co., Limited, of Vancouver, and the Standard Soap Co., Limited, of Calgary, were amalgamating. This, it appears, is not correct. In an interview with M. Bull, who is president of both the Royal Crown, Limited, of Winnipeg, and the Royal Soap Co., Limited, of Vancouver, he states positively that his company are buying the assets of the Standard Soap Co., Limited, of Calgary, and that the business will be under his management. Mr. Weir, the late manager of the Standard Soap Co., Limited, will have no connection whatever with the new company. P. Burns, the well known cattle man of Calgary, who was president of the Standard Soap Co., Limited, will be vice-president of the new company, and will have considerable interest in it.

The new company will comprise such well known men as A. M. Nanton, G. R. Crowe, W. R. Allan, W. A. Black, M. Bull, and others of Winnipeg; J. A. Mitchell, of Victoria; F. T. Schooley, of Vancouver; and P. Burns, of Calgary.

The Mr. Weir referred to in the above is Mr. Fred Weir, formerly of Otonabee, who has been in the West a number of years.

A VOICE OF APPROVAL FROM AFAR

Iowa Man's Expression of Satisfaction in Result of Election Here.

James H. Scanlon, of Wauken, Allamakee County, Iowa, on Nov. 11th, remits his subscription to the Examiner to Hon. J. R. Stratton and recalls his old acquaintances here, saying: "It is a great many years ago that I got acquainted with you in Norwood. . . .Well, Jim, I must congratulate you on your election to Ottawa House. If I was in Canada I would be a Liberal to the core, because Canada was never known, only as a small British colony somewhere around the North Pole, until Sir Wilfrid Laurier took hold of the reigns of government, and now she can stand up and maintain her privileges with the proudest of nations, more especially her neighbour to the south of her. It is a fact that when I came here in 1868 a great many that I met and talked with didn't know where Canada lay or what part of the Western Hemisphere it was in. I hope the Liberal party may long remain in power to carry out its progressive ideas. Long may you represent West Peterborough."

How British Suffragists Badgered A Patient Premier

Eleven of Them Had to be Cast Out Struggling From Highbury (London) Athenæum Where Premier Asquith Was Opening a Bazaar.

The Suffragette craze in England is not a passing acute attack, but has apparently become chronic and the peculiarity is the chronic form continues to be exceedingly acute, as Mr. Asquith, Premier, knows to his cost. We see a good deal in the despatches of the doings of the Suffragettes but a recent incident needs to be presented in order to give an idea of the persistent energy with which the ladies yearning for ballot-box enfranchisement enter upon and conduct their campaign;

An example is appended of what Mr. Asquith describes as "turbulent proceedings," which took place one afternoon recently at Highbury, London, Athenaeum, where the Prime Minister, had attended for the purpose of opening a bazaar in aid of the restoration of Union Chapel, a neighbouring place of Nonconformist worship.

The police, as well as the organizers of the bazaar, had got wind of the intention of the Suffragettes to use the presence of the Prime Minister as a pretext for a demonstration, and such proved to be the case.

As soon as Mr. Asquith had entered the hall, which was a production of scenes in "Old Islington," a hymn was sung, a prayer read, and several speeches of welcome delivered.

On rising to reply Mr. Asquith had not said half a dozen words when he was interrupted by a shouting Suffragette, who was immediately greeted by the audience with groans and hisses and forcibly ejected. During the opening of Mr. Asquith's speech a similar interruption was made by no fewer than eight women, one after another. The following dialogue will give some idea of the scenes that took place;—

Mr. Asquith; Ladies and gentlemen, you owe me no thanks for coming here to-day, for—

First Suffragette; You don't deserve any thanks from women! (Commotion, hisses, ejection, loud cheers.

Mr. Asquith; For it is a great pleasure for me to be here this—

Second Suffragette; No taxation without representation. (Commotion hisses.) What about Mrs. Pankhurst in prison, and that brilliant girl Christabel Pank— (Ejection, loud cheers.)

The Chairman; Ladies, I must remind you we are here for a religious purpose, and I ask you not to interrupt any more. (Loud cheers.)

Mr. Asquith; It is a great pleasure for me to renew acquaintance with my friends of Union Chapel, for as you know I used to worship there years ago. I—

Third Suffragette; Is it consistent with justice that—(Commotion, hisses, ejection, loud cheers.)

Mr. Asquith; I wish you all possible success in the efforts you are making to extend the beneficent work of—

Fourth Suffragette; How dare you call yourself a Liberal! You—(Commotion, hisses, ejection, loud cheers

Mr. Asquith; . . . of your church. It has in many respects a peculiar and unique history. It is not necessary for me to remind you that—

Fifth Suffragette; Will you define your Liberal principles? (Commotion, hisses, ejection, loud cheers.

Mr. Asquith; Your church founded as it was at the beginning of the last century, in the early days of evangelical revival was a centre of religious work and the meeting ground—

Sixth Suffragette; Down with all hypocrites and tyranny. (Commotion, hisses, ejection, loud cheers.)

Mr. Asquith; In course of time, under the process of ecclesiastical crystallization, it became definitely Nonconformist, but never lost the comprehensive spirit breathed into it by—

Seventh Suffragette (in the gallery); Why, were British subjects seeking their rights put into prison? (Commotion, hisses, ejection, loud cheers)

Mr. Asquith; During the best part of a hundred years, Union Chapel was served by but two ministers, Dr. Henry Allen—

Eighth Suffragette; Votes for women! Votes for women! (Commotion, hisses, ejection, loud cheers.)

After this the Prime Minister was allowed to proceed without interruption for a time, until towards the end of his speech three more women had to be turned out, struggling and shouting.

ATTENDED BY FIVE DOCTORS

But Got No Relief Until He Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Wonderful Cure of A. F. Richard, Who Was Tortured by Rheumatism and Kindred Pains, Sets Kent County Talking.

St. Ignace, Kent Co., N.B., Nov. 16. —Special.—After being tortured for four years with Backache, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints and Pains in the Loins, and getting no relief from five doctors whom he called in, Mr. Antoine F Richard, a well-known farmer living near here, is spreading the good news that he is once more a well man, and that he owes his cure to Dodd's Kidney Pills. Speaking of his wonderful cure Mr. Richard says:

"I was a helpless man in July, 1907. For four years I had endured the greatest torture from Backache, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints and Pains in the Loins. I had dark circles under my eyes, my head ached and I was often dizzy. I was attended by five doctors, but not one of them could help me.

"Then I began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and after the first few doses I began to improve. I used four boxes in all and now I am working every day on the farm a well man. I owe my wonderful cure to Dodd's Kidney Pills and nothing else."

There is no case or kind of Kidney Disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JAS. McGEOUGH

Ald. M. H. McGeough received a telegram this morning apprising him of the death of his sister-in-law, Mrs. James McGeough, at Beaverton. The deceased lady, who had been seriously ill for some time, was very highly respected by a wide circle of friends in Beaverton and vicinity. Ald. McGeough will attend the funeral on Tuesday.—Lindsay Free Press.

Mr. P. J. Fitzsimmons, city, is a nephew of the deceased.

MISS MARY ANN FRASER.

A very sad death occurred at the Nicholls Hospital last night when Mary Ann Fraser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fraser, of Bridgenorth, passed away after a brief illness. The deceased lady was 46 years of age and had lived with her parents at Bridgenorth. She was well known in that vicinity and was very highly thought of. Her many friends will regret very much to hear of her death, and will extend to the bereaved family sincere sympathy. The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and interment will take place in the Bridgenorth cemetery.

How to choose good Gloves

Kid, Suede, Knit

All Lengths, All Shades

How many times have you purchased a new pair of Gloves, only to find, a week later that your investment was disappointing? :-:

The Glove Problem is a puzzling one, and can best be solved in one way. :-: :-: :-:

Here is our best advice:---

¶ Buy of a store you can trust; if not of us, of some firm which has earned an enviable reputation for selling honest gloves---selling only those produced by the most reliable makers.

¶ We place our glove buying in the hands of an expert---we reduce the liability of "glove disappointment" to a minimum, by satisfying ourselves before we try to satisfy you.

¶ Just now our Glove Department is at its best--- Knit, Kid and Suede, Gloves in wrist, three quarter and elbow length in all shades. We shall be glad to supply the gloves you need, carefully and quickly. You will find our prices the lowest.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY SALE
In the BARGAIN ANNEX To-morrow

Three Years—156 Weekly Bargain Annex Events and Not a Single Failure—Wednesday the People's Day

BARGAIN ANNEX FACTS

1.—The "Bargain Annex" is a Purely Bargain Department.
2.—The "Bargain Annex" is open one day each week—Wednesday.
3.—The "Bargain Annex" is covered by Government Patent.
4.—The "Bargain Annex" this week Celebrates its Third Anniversary.
5.—The "Bargain Annex" Never had a Failure.

Three years ago Wednesday, Nov. 18th, a new feature was inaugurated, in the form of an Exclusive Bargain Department—a department in which nothing but goods of rare value was to be offered for sale. Prices were to prevail in this section lower than in any other part of the store or any other store in the city. The idea was to make Wednesday the city people's SATURDAY, and also to draw outside people to the mid-week market and thus equalize business throughout the week. The success of this department—"Cressman's Bargain Annex"—was phenomenal from the start. Then the ANNEX was comparatively small. To-day it is the Largest and Most Widely Known Purely Bargain Department carried on in any city in Canada of anything like the size of Peterborough. It has its own organization, BUYERS and SALESPEOPLE. Hundreds of customers visit the ANNEX each Wednesday and are given perfect satisfaction. We insist on as efficient service here as in the other departments. We guarantee satisfaction and try to uphold our claim that ours is THE STORE THAT NEVER DISAPPOINTS.

NEW PRESIDENT OF ROYAL BANK

Mr. Herbert S. Holt Succeeds the Late Mr. Thos. E. Kenny.

Montreal, Nov. 16 (Special) — Mr. Herbert S. Holt, of Montreal, was elected president of the Royal Bank of Canada at noon to-day. Mr. Holt replaces the late Mr. Thomas E. Kenny, of Halifax.

Mr. E. L. Pease was also elected vice-president of the bank, and now becomes vice-president and general manager.

The vacancy on the directorate was not filled.

Mr. Holt is already president of the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Company; president of the Kaministiquia Power Company, and a director of the Ogilvie Milling Company and the Dominion Textile Company. He was born in Dublin in 1855, a younger son of Mr. William R. G. Holt, and belonging to a well known King's County family. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and was trained for the profession of a civil engineer. He came to Canada in early manhood and engaged in railway construction in Ontario. Mr. Holt collaborated with Mr. James Ross in building some of the lines in this province that were subsequently incorporated in the Canadian Pacific Railway System.

Mr. Holt soon after became interested in the production of gas for metropolitan consumption and made himself familiar with the gas systems of such cities as Chicago and Philadelphia. At this period many gas companies were successfully launched in Montreal, but all were eventually merged into what is now known as the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Company, with an aggregate capitalization of $27,000,000. The merger was successfully effected through the efforts of Senator Forget and Mr. Holt.

In proof of the quality and food value of Orange Meat the manufacturers quote a digestion experiment carried on by Professor Harcourt, of the Guelph Agricultural College. Note results as heat producer compared to different kinds of bread.

Percentage of the constituents digested:—

	Organic matter.	Calories per gram.
Orange Meat...	93.6	3.733
White Bread	90.1	3.403
Entire Wheat Bread...	94.8	3.959
Graham Bread.....	91.5	3.903

This table proves that according to his determination Orange Meat is 50 per cent. more valuable as a food than bread.

An additional reward to persistent users of Orange Meat is offered.

Death of Sir Henri E. Joly, Seigneur of Lotbiniere—Premier Laurier off to Florida to Recuperate—Board of Conciliation Work—Government to Pursue Slanderers of the Country's Western Climate.

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—The news of the death yesterday at Quebec of Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, ex-Governor of British Columbia, and ex-Premier of Quebec, was received with deep regret at the capital. The late Sir Henri Joly was a picturesque and popular figure in the political and social life of Ottawa, and was a true type of the old "grand seigneurs" of Quebec, whose personality may be said to have disappeared with him. He was knighted in 1895, was Controller of Inland Revenue in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's original Cabinet, and was governor of British Columbia from 1900 to 1906. It is to Mr. Joly that the Liberal party owes Quebec, for it was he who in 1878, when Governor Letellier de St. Just dismissed his ministers, assumed the difficult task of forming a Liberal Cabinet in the face of an overwhelming Tory Assembly. His successful handling of the situation paved the way for permanent Liberal control of the province.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier will leave at the end of the week for Florida for a brief vacation, to aid in enabling him to overcome the effects of his strenuous political campaign. He has pretty well recovered his usual health but thinks the trip south will put him in better shape to meet the exacting work of the approaching session of Parliament.

A rumour is in circulation that Hon. R. Lemieux, Postmaster-General, will be knighted at New Years for his services in connection with a cheaper cable service.

The Board of Conciliation under the Lemieux act, which has for two months been investigating a complaint by the locomotive engineers of the Canadian Northern eastern lines as to wages and hours of work, has at last reached an agreement, the terms of which are known to be satisfactory to both the men and the company. The award is signed by Mr. D. B. Hanna, Vice-President and General Manager of the C. N. R., and by Mr. H. F. Best, of Winnipeg, on behalf of the men. The terms of the award will be accepted by the engineers of all the western roads.

A year ago, in Alberta, a mendacious correspondent was fined $200, under the act which makes the sending of false and defamatory despatches a criminal offence. Recently sensational despatches have been sent to American newspapers from Winnipeg and Medicine Hat, grossly libelling the climate of the Canadian west by representing that the recent snowstorms had completely tied up traffic in the whole western country, the object being to check the stream of American immigration into the Northwest. It is understood that these correspondents will be prosecuted by the government and the limit of the law applied to them.

THE Y.M.C.A. BOWLING LEAGUE

The Y. M. C. A. will commence a bowling league for its members, and all men wishing to form a team will kindly leave their names at the "Y." office at once.

Also a prize will be given monthly to the bowler making the highest score.

FITZPATRICK AND BURRIDGE ARE TO CLASH ONE WEEK FROM TO-NIGHT; SHOULD BE SPLENDID EXHIBITION

All arrangements have been made for the big wrestling bout between Ned Fitzpatrick and Harry Burridge, which will be pulled off at the Auditorium Roller Rink a week from to-night, on Nov. 24th. The roller rink should prove an ideal place for the match, as it is capable of seating a large crowd within convenient distance of the wrestlers and will be heated, so that spectators will be able to enjoy the bout in comfort.

The match should be one of the best that has been seen in these parts for some time. Both men are heady, clever wrestlers, with the science of the game at their finger tips, and they will both be in the pink of condition, as they are working out daily. Those who have seen both men at work hesitate when they are asked for an opinion as to the outcome of the match. "I would not like to bet a dollar on it," said one local man, who is well posted in the wrestling game. "As far as I can see they are both strong, well conditioned and clever. Fitz may have a little the advantage in speed, but Burridge looks to be stronger, and there you are."

Another big feature of the bill for Tuesday night will be a handicap bout between Young Hackensohmidt, and as many Peterborough wrestlers outside of Gene Hurtubise who desire to go up against him. Hack, who is in training here for his next bout, will undertake to throw five local grapplers in ten minutes or ten in twenty minutes. A forfeit will be put up and the wrestlers will be paid according to the time they last out against the clever New Yorker.

Arrangements are also being made to put on a six round boxing bout as a preliminary.

NEW SCIENTIFIC PROCESS

A Preparation Discovered That Will Destroy the Dandruff Germ.

For some time it has been known that dandruff is caused by a germ that digs up the scalp into little white flakes, and by sapping the vitality of the hair at the root, causes falling hair, and, of course, finally baldness. For years there have been all kinds of hair stimulants and scalp tonics on the market, but there has been no permanent cure for dandruff until the discovery of a preparation called Newbro's Herpicide, which destroys the dandruff germ. Destroy the cause, the effect will cease to exist. Kill the dandruff germ and you'll have no dandruff, no itching scalp, no falling hair. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. McDermid & Jury, and Payne Drug Stores, Special Agents.

HOCKEY.

It is almost an assured thing that Lindsay will have an intermediate team in the O. H. A. this year, and it is just possible that a junior team will be entered in the O.H.A.—Lindsay Warder.

VERY ENJOYABLE EVENING WAS SPENT

George Street Methodist Church Epworth League Hold a Social.

The social evening held by the Epworth League of the George street Methodist Church last night was a most successful and enjoyable affair in every way. There was a large attendance and a most pleasant time was spent. Mr. McCann, president of the League, occupied the chair, and the following programme was listened to with much pleasure:

Solo—Miss Josie Callander.

Instrumental selection—Mr. Harold Brown.

Dialogue, by Miss Hall, Miss Deyell, the Misses Allen and Messrs Fred Allen and Lawrence, all of Fairview.

During the evening some time was spent with connundrums and in other ways a social time enjoyed. Refreshments consisting of apples, nuts, etc., were served.

To Mr. Norman Allison and Miss Ethel Goodfellow, who were instrumental in arranging the evening, much credict is due for the great success achieved.

WEDDING BELLS

SAYLES—DOXSEE

A very quiet, though pleasant, event took place last evening, Nov. 16, at the home of Mrs. J. W. Doxsee, 283 Townsend street, when her daughter, Edith, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. G. W. Sayles, of Millbrook, by the Rev. W. H. Manning, pastor of the St. James' Methodist Church, South City.

The bride was attired in a travelling suit of navy blue chiffon broadcloth, and was given away by her brother, Mr. W. E. Doxsee. The bride and groom were unattended.

A very dainty lunch was served after the ceremony to a few of their most intimate friends and relatives.

The happy couple left on the 11.45 G. T. R. train to-day for their home in Millbrook. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, among them being some cheques.

HOLLIHAN—ANGLESEY

The wedding was quietly solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral this morning of Miss Mary Loretta Anglesy, daughter of Mr. Richard Anglesy, Rubidge street, to Mr. Thomas F. Hollihan, of this city. Nuptiadl mass was said by Rev. Dr. O'Brien, in the presence of a number of friends. Miss Nora Anglesy, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Mr. Jas. Hollihan, the groom's brother, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Hollihan left on the 11.45 G. T. R. train for Toronto, Buffalo, Pittsburg and other points. They will reside in Peterborough. Both parties are well known in the city and their many friends will wish them every success.

Chained-Up Books.

The customs of old times are brought to mind when one visits Breadsall Parish Church, near Derby, England. In this church is a set of old oak desk at the eastern end of the north aisle. The desk is a double one, with hinged lids, which can be locked. One recess contains Burnett's "History of the Reformation," published in 1679 and 1681, and the "Works of Josephus," printed in 1703. On the other side of the desk are "Works of John Jewell,' Bishop of Salisbury," 1685; "Discourses of some London Divines,55 1694; "History of the Early Martyrs," 1687, by Wm. Cave, B.D.; "History of the Fathers to the Fourth Century," 1688, by Dr. Cave; and "History of the Apostles," 1684, by Dr. Cave. Each book is attached to the desk by a light chain, two feet long, so as to prevent any unauthorized person from removing it.

Wit at the Bar.

The recent death of Mr. Oswald, K.C., London, recalls the fact that he possessed a fund of ready wit and humor, and figured in a number of amusing incidents. "You are," said an angry judge to him on one occasion, "openly showing your contempt of the court." "I am very sorry, my lord," was the meek reply; "I was doing my best to conceal it." The following Mr. Oswald often told against himself. In opening a case about a bill of sale he began a new point with, "Now, my lord, I shall address myself to the furniture." "You have been doing that for some time, Mr. Oswald," was the cruel reply. On another occasion he told the Court of Appeal that he intended to set forth an argument which he would have used in the court below had not the vice-chancellor prevented him. "Pray, how did he manage that, Mr. Oswald?" lisingly inquired the judge.

PATTED CAINE ON THE HEAD.

Grand Old Man Almost Altered Novelist's Career.

Readers of Hall Caine's novels, who are also familiar with Gladstone's literary tastes, may be surprised to learn that the great statesman once patted the novelist on the head. It happened, however, before the Manxman became a story-writer. He was a small boy of fifteen, a surveyor, and the head-patting lead to an offer that would have interfered with his literary career, a result which the Grand Old Man might not have regretted. But it was not to be. Mr. Caine writes in Appleton's Magazine for October:

I saw Gladstone again a little later, when he was spending a few days on his property at Seaforth, which my master had been required to survey. The surveyor-in-chief had not appeared one morning, and I, the smallest of boys of fifteen, acting as his deputy, was ordering about two or three big hulking indolent chainmen, when the statesman, now Prime Minister, and paler and graver than ever, came out of the vicarage to look on. I could see that he was more amused than I was, and then he came up to me and asked to see my maps and the figures in my survey book, and I remember that I gave him a large explanation of the peculiarities of his estate with its hedges that ought to be straightened and is byroads that were bad. He listened quite attentively for a considerable time, and then, not having made any other remark, he patted me on the top of my head—it was easy to do so—and said I would do something some day.

I did not expect him to remember me, but I think he must have done so, for quite two years afterward, without any intervening incident or other point of touch, I had a letter from the office in Union Court saying that his brother wished to make me the steward of the Gladstone estates in Lancashire. I was sorely tempted to accept the offer, for Gladstone was still my demigod, and I suppose if I had done so the whole current of my life might have been different; but my friends advised me to decline, having by this time conceived an idea that I had the makings of an architect, and that business, the inevitable adjunct of politics, would break my career.

Their expectations were, however, in no way of being fulfilled, for, already, books had called off the devotion that ought to have been given to the drawing-board and T-square, and I was consuming every kind of literature that came my way. The Free Library at Liverpool was my great hunting-ground in those days, and surely no young reader ever ran so wild in a wilderness of books. I read everything without guidance of any kind — poetry, history, drama, romance, metaphysics, theology—galloping through all at equal pace, a fresh book about every other day, until I had more miscellaneous literature on the top of my head than any boy I have ever known or ever wish to know.

Mr. Marshall Hall's "Lucky" Number

From tea-merchant's office to K.C. seems a rather long cry. Yet Mr. Marshall Hall, who recently celebrated his fiftieth birthday, has found the path from Mincing Lane to the Law Courts a fairly easy one. It is not every office-boy, however, who possesses Mr. Hall's abilities. His brilliancy at the Bar is said to be due to the fact that early in his legal career he recognized that the best defence lay in attack. Defence with him is a forward attack all along, just as when he is playing cricket at Lords—he is a member of the M.C.C.—he defends his wicket mostly by forward play. Mr. Hall, by the way, believes that there is luck in the number eleven.

but this paper received [illegible] ing some time ago. He was staying at a certain hotel, and the fur-lined overcoat which he wore aroused the cupidity of a thief, who followed him to the railway station, and, when his back was turned, made off with the K.C.'s bag, in which there was a scarf-pin representing the number 11. This had been given him by a friend who had discovered that eleven was his lucky number. Since that event, it is said, Mr. Hall has started another lucky number—which he, however, keeps to himself.

Worshipped as a God.

The recent death of Mr. Cuthbert Shields, the great Oriental scholar, has deprived the world of a remarkable man. He was a linguist of vast learning, and when he traveled in the east is understood to have been worshipped as a god by the Druses. But he had some most peculiar beliefs. He was originally known as Robert Laing, but while traveling in the east he claimed to have discovered his second ego, and his first life came to a close. He made a will leaving his property to his second self, arranged for his biography to be written, and, returning to England, took the name of Cuthbert Shields. This was chosen because he was born at South Shields upon St. Cuthbert's Day, and also because the former contained the letters I.H.S. backwards. In his second existence Mr. Shields devoted himself to the study of Oriental witchcraft. It was his habit to give excellent dinners to a select party of friends, and afterwards to take the floor and talk of black magic until each hearer's flesh began to creep.

"Buckets of Sovereigns" Recovered.

Six years ago a lady passenger by an outgoing German mail steamer from Port Melbourne railway pier had the misfortune to slip on the vessel's gangway, and let fall overboard a handbag containing seventy-six sovereigns. Efforts to recover the treasure were then made, but without result. During some dredging operations recently, a boy informed the engineer in charge that "buckets of sovereigns were being pumped into the dwamp," at the same time holding out two he had grabbed. Instantly all hands rushed to the flume, and a mad scramble resulted in fourteen golden pieces of 1896 minting being recovered. The boy who gave the alarm first had his attention attracted by the remnants of a handbag being washed past him.

Air and Water "Cures."

It is a remarkable fact that, as with various natural so called "mineral waters" so with various "airs" which people find beneficial, no one has yet clearly and decisively shown, in the first place, whether they exert any chemical effect of a special kind on the people who seem to benefit by drinking the one or breathing the other. Still less has any one shown what is the particular chemical ingredient of the air or of the water of any given resort which exerts the beneficial effect attributed to that air or that water.—Sir E. Ray Lankester in London Telegraph.

A Habit He Won't Contract.

A man who signs himself "A Son of Rest" sends us the following:

"Several people have asked me why I never work. I take this means of replying to all.

"The habit of working is like a habit of taking dope. If a man is a dope fiend and stops it he dies. Now, if a man gets the habit of working and then stops he starves to death. Same thing. I shall never contract such a habit."

COMMISSIONER OF PRESS.

Lord Minto to Revive the Office in India.

Lord Minto, in his capacity of viceroy of India, is about to revive the office of commissioner of the press at Calcutta, which was created by the late Lord Lytton in 1877, with a salary of $20,000 a year, and suppressed [illegible] years afterwards, according to [illegible] from the Marquis de Dufferin.

Lord Lytton's aim in calling the office into life was to furnish the native press with constant, [illegible] and accurate information in order to minimise its ignorant and unintentioned criticism of the Government and of the latter's measures.

The press commissioner was, as long as he lasted, the recognized intermediary between the Government and the press, the editors being informed that he was authorised to address them on behalf of the Government and also to receive any reply to enquiries and complaints.

Since the suppression of the commissionership, the native editor has been placed in a position of much difficulty, and has suffered from many disabilities.

Rarely possessed of any personal acquaintance with the high officials of the land, he has been ignorant of the real opinions and of the modes of thought of the ruling class. If a rumor reached him there has been absolutely no means by which he could assure himself of its truth or falsity. If he misunderstood or misinterpreted the meaning or motive of any public measure there has been no one to give him even a hint of his mistake, or from whom he could derive the slightest aid to a better understanding.

For in India there is no Parliament from the debates of which he might learn some of the curious bearings of public questions, no right of interpellation, from which to obtain even the shadowy outline of truth representing a fact or measure.

Since the days of Lord Lytton the organs of the native press have enormously increased in number throughout India, and at their doors lies the principal native unrest and discontent.

Lord Minto and his advisers at Calcutta have come to the conclusion that while some of the antagonism of the vernacular press of India is attributable to race hatred and to sedition, a still greater part of it may be ascribed to ignorance, which a revival of the office of press commissioner would be calculated to dispel.

Camels and Campbells.

An Irishman and a Scotchman were discussing the horrors of living in a prohibition state, when the Irishman remarked:

"Sure, an' ye might get used to it after awhile. Ye know they say a camel can go eight days without drinkin'."

"Hoot, man!" retorted the other. "The little ye know about the Campbells when ye say that. There is no one of them could go eight hours wi'out a drap o' somethin'!"

Which ended the discussion.

Golfthalmia.

Golfthalmia is a poisonous and insidious bacterium which, in my dreams under the powerful lens of my microscope imagination, assumes the shape of something between a niblick, a gutty, a heath and a caddie's smile—my caddie's. A strange, unsightly, grewsome, hideous, slimy, slithering thing.

QUALITY FIRST

In some lines of business price may well be the great talking point. Those who can buy best and sell least have something interesting to say to the public. In the DRUG BUSINESS it's different. Quality, regardless of price, should be the main factor, and it is here. What you buy here in the line of Drugs and Medicines will be of right quality, and price asked will also be right—as low as goods of same quality can ever be bought for anywhere.

FIRST WIFE GETS NOTHING.

Chief Justice Falconbridge Holds the Warnock Will Valid.

Brockville, Nov. 18.—The Warnock will case came to an abrupt ending last night. At the conclusion of the evidence Chief Justice Falconbridge declared the last will and testament of the dead horseman, J. G. Warnock, to be valid. In other words the four daughters of the deceased by Mrs. Agnes Warnock, whom he repudiated as his legal wife, receive the $5,000 each allotted them and the remainder of the estate, valued at $32,000, goes to Mrs. Eva Warnock, whom he married shortly after casting adrift the woman with whom he had lived for about sixteen years.

The judge stated that the question whether Mrs. Agnes Warnock was really married or not did not enter into the action. It was generally admitted that she made out a strong case in establishing her marriage, but the will not being set aside and Warnock having the privilege of bequeathing his property to whom he pleased, she remains disinherited without the satisfaction even of proving to the world that she was the lawful wife of James Gregory Warnock.

WRECK COSTS $30,000.

Victims of Caledon Disaster on C.P.R. Get Heavy Damages.

Orangeville, Nov. 18.—M. E. Stewart at the Assize Court yesterday was awarded a verdict of $11,500 as damages against the C.P.R. for injuries received in the Caledon railway wreck on Sept. 3, 1907.

The jury were out about four hours and a half. Chief Justice Mulock's charge to the jury was decidedly in favor of the plaintiff.

Jas. Russell of Dundalk, who sued the company for rupture received in the wreck got a settlement before the case went to trial, receiving as damages $2,250.

To settle the six cases brought against them at this court the C.P.R. will pay probably in the neighborhood of $30,000.

Hallatt Before Court.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—Joseph E. Hallatt faced the far-fetched charge of murder in the Police Court yesterday. He is a good-looking young man of respectable appearance.

Just how the Winnipeg police arrived at the murder charges does not appear, as from the facts known here the offence appears to have been no greater than criminal negligence, and even of this Hallatt declares he is innocent.

He was held, however, by Magistrate Denison till Friday to allow an officer to come from Winnipeg.

Hallatt declares that his horse was in the stable when the girl whose death he is charged with causing was run over.

Women's Suffrage Bill.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—The greatest victory in the history of forty years agitation for equal suffrage in Illinois has been won. The charter committee by a vote of 6 to 4 has adopted a resolution declaring for a bill giving women the right to vote for all municipal officers and on all questions of policy which have to do with the municipality. The bill will be submitted to the Chicago charter convention, and, if approved, will go to the Legislature. It will be subjected to adoption by popular vote before going into effect.

Boy Dies From Assault.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—Robbie Lant, aged 8, of 64 Gwynne avenue, is dead as the result of an assault by an unknown youth seven weeks ago. The latter in gathering dead leaves interfered with the little fellow's playhouse and when protest was made, he struck him in the stomach, causing a rupture, as well as shaking his head violently. From the latter, paralysis and blindness resulted.

Robbie's playmates being unable to identify the man, no attempt has been made to find him.

Want Laurier to Speak.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's callers yesterday included a delegation representing the Merchants' Association of Boston, which presented compliments of the merchants of Boston and the New England States and intimated that they would be pleased to have the Canadian Premier visit them at an early date.

Discovery of Skeleton Points To Recent Murder; Theory Explains Mystery

North Bay, Nov. 18.—Farmers engaged in clearing land near Callandar made the gruesome discovery of a human skeleton, and incidents which have come to light since, including the identification of the remains, strongly point to murder. Coroner McMurchy held an inquest at Callandar Saturday and the jury gave it as their opinion that deceased had met death through foul play.

The body was found in a bush where fire had passed over. Watch and chain, lady's ring, a small sum of money in silver, knife, corkscrew and keys were found with the body, and an aluminum trinket with the following inscription: "Lizzie Dalton, souvenir from your friends, Joseph Ryan, 1906."

Among the bones was a piece of lead resembling a bullet.

A man named Hicks testified at the inquest to seeing a buggy standing opposite the bush where the body was found one night about a year ago.

William Ryan, employed at Cook & Armstrong's livery stable, North Bay, states that his brother, Joseph Ryan, came to North Bay in 1907, with considerable money in his possession, having worked as cook on a railroad survey north of Latchford. He had a chum with him, and after staying in town about two months, he announced his intention of leaving for the United States, saying that he would take his savings, amounting to $1,200, with him. That evening Jos. Ryan hired a rig from his brother to drive to Callandar, where he intended to take a train. Another man, whom the brother is positive was the chum of the missing man, got in the buggy from the sidewalk, but did not come into the livery stable. About 6 o'clock the next morning the rig was found tied in an outside shed, but none of the stable employes saw who brought it back. This was about a year ago, and although no word of Ryan reached his relatives since, no suspicion was aroused, as he frequently absented himself for long intervals without apprising anyone of his whereabouts.

The brother of the missing man states that the man is known who was with Ryan the night of the drive to Callandar, and an effort is being made to locate him.

An incident which may have bearing on the mystery occurred some months ago, when the rumor spread through town that a man had been murdered for his money in the vicinity of the Red Light district. This story was credited to a woman in one of the dives, but nothing further was heard of it, although considerable excitement was caused at the time. It is significant that the skeleton was found in the locality of the rumor.

Szweryda On Trial Charged With Slaying Young Pole

Brampton, Nov. 18.—The pitiful story of how 18-year-old Olak Loutick, a stranger in Canada from Poland, fairly well educated, but friendless in Toronto, was murdered in a lonely spot near Erindale last April on the day before Good Friday, was the sensation in this town yesterday, when Mr. Justice Riddell opened the Criminal Assizes for Peel county in the Court House yesterday afternoon. A broad-faced, dark-eyed Ruthenian named Stephen Szweryda sat in the prisoner's dock facing the charge of murder, sustained on a true bill brought in by the Grand Jury. He pleaded not guilty.

County Crown Attorney McFadden, addressing the jury, outlined the evidence. The prisoner was living in Toronto on April 14 last, at 99 Teraulay street, a boarding-house. On that date the deceased was brought to this boarding-house by the prisoner. He remained there two days, and on April 16 the prisoner and the deceased left the house together. Evidence would be forthcoming to prove that while further evidence would be produced, showing that these two men were seen on the Toronto and York Radial Railway on the night of April 17. The prisoner returned alone to the boarding-house a day later and there gave different accounts as to what had become of the deceased. First he said he had left him on a farm, and then he said he had gone to Hamilton. Nothing more was heard of the deceased until May 3, when two boys playing on the farm of Samuel Faskin, near Erindale, found the body in a wood, partly covered with leaves.

The medical examination showed that death had been caused by deceased having been struck on the head by some blunt instrument, and a club on which was found stains supposed to be blood, was found near the body. An empty flask was also found and several other articles which were afterwards identified as the property of the deceased, among them a suitcase which had undeniably belonged to him, and the two halves of which would be produced in court.

The first witness called was Mrs. Adalya of 99 Teraulay street, Toronto, where prisoner was boarding at the time of his arrest. He came to her home on March 11 last and remained until April 16. He said he had no money. She remembered the deceased coming to her house on April 14. He had been brought there by the prisoner. He had a valise with him and a bundle. He appeared to be a boy of good education, wrote very well and spoke more than one language. The prisoner told her that he had found the boy on the street, that he was crying and did not know where to go.

At this point the prisoner stood up in the dock and became somewhat excited, leaning over the bar and listening most attentively to the witness as she gave her evidence. Mrs. Adayla described the departure of the prisoner and the deceased on April 16, adding that she had never seen him alive since that date. When the prisoner returned on Good Friday afternoon she asked him what he had done with Loutick. He said he had got him a job on a farm at $7 a month, but did not say where the farm was. At the same time the prisoner paid her some money from a pocketbook, and while he did so she saw the figure 5 on one of the bills which was in the book. She knew the prisoner had a wife living in Rochester, who came to Toronto on April 19.

The witness was cross-examined but her evidence was not shaken.

The Emperor Promises To Consider Will Of The People

Berlin, Nov. 18.—Forced by the angry tide of popular feeling that swept the empire from end to end, Emperor William yesterday yielded to the nation, and promised henceforth to conform himself to constitutional methods of conducting the policies of Germany.

The climax to the public utterances of the Emperor was reached in an interview which he gave to an Englishman and which was published in The London Daily Telegraph on Oct. 28. As the outcome of this the whole country was aroused, the Reichstag endorsed the attitude of many of its most prominent members when they denounced the sovereign, and Chancellor Von Buelow, while he attempted to smooth away the affair, undertook to communicate to His Majesty a straight-forward and unvarnished statement of how the German people viewed his intervention in affairs of state.

The interview between the Emperor and the Imperial Chancellor took place at the new palace in Potsdam yesterday morning, and at its conclusion the Emperor made formal promise to his people that he would not in the future act except through the chancellor and his associate Ministers. This promise was made public in The Reichsanzeiger, the official gazette of the empire. It was in the form of a note, printed on the front page, where decrees, the texts of treaties and the promulgation of new laws usually appear. It was as follows:

"During to-day's audience, granted to the Imperial Chancellor, His Majesty, the Emperor and King, listened for several hours to a report by Prince Von Buelow. The Imperial Chancellor described the feeling and its causes among the German people in connection with the article published in The Daily Telegraph. He also examined the position he had taken during the course of the debates and interpellations on this subject in the Reichstag. His Majesty, the Emperor, received the statements and explanations with great earnestness and then expressed his will as follows:

"Heedless of the agitations of public criticism which are regarded by him as incorrect, His Majesty, perceives that his principal imperial task is to ensure the stability of the policies of constitutional responsibilities. In conformity therewith His Majesty, the Emperor, approves the chancellor's utterances in the Reichstag and assures Prince Von Buelow his continued confidence."

Prince Von Buelow had determined upon handing in his resignation if the Emperor had not met the country's demands, but as such a situation did not arise, the audience ended with the Emperor saying to the Imperial Chancellor that he reposed full confidence in his wisdow.

It is certain now in the minds of the German people that a great step has been taken towards freer government.

Within half an hour after the chancellor's return to Berlin, bulletins, issued gratis by the evening newspapers, reporting a favorable issue at the meeting between the Emperor and prince, were eagerly snatched by an anxious public, who, in the first moment of joyful surprise, scarcely conceived the importance of the announcement to themselves and the empire. The whole nation had awaited with breathless suspense the word from the palace which would decide whether Prince Von Buelow would quit his office and the reign of personal policy continue, or whether the chancellor would remain and the desire of the people be fulfilled, that the nation as well as the Emperor would have a word in directing the policies of the country.

Death Sentences Commuted.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—There will be no double hanging in Montreal on Dec. 17 as was expected. The Cabinet Council yesterday afternoon decided to commute the death sentences passed on "Crooked Neck" Smith and Nicolla, an Italian, to imprisonment for life.

The fact that in both cases clemency was recommended by the trial judge, influenced the Minister of Justice in his recommendations, aside from the plea that both men had committed manslaughter in defending their own lives. Crooked Neck Smith shot a pal named Mulloy, while the crime for which Nicolla was sentenced was the killing of a fellow countryman in a stabbing affray.

Passed Worthless Checks.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 18.—Harry Fields, alias J. Morgengeser, was in the Police Court yesterday for trial following his arrest at the boundary line, after obtaining $1,600 worth of diamonds in Vancouver on worthless checks. Fields was turned over by the American police at Seattle to Vancouver officers. He entered a plea of guilty to nine charges of theft and false pretences. Sentence was reserved until to-day.

Bands to Tour.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—The proposal of the 43rd and Governor-General's Foot-guards bands of Ottawa to make an extended tour of the British Islands and the United States next summer bids fair to come to a head.

The band will leave Canada in June and the tour will extend over six weeks.

Roosevelt's Labor Dinner.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Members of the Cabinet and justices of the Supreme Court of the United States sat down last night with labor leaders from various sections of the United States at a dinner given by President Roosevelt at the White House.

One Hundred and Fifty Homeless.

Wheeling, W.Va., Nov. 18.—Yorkville, a mining town of 500 population, near here, was almost destroyed by fire which started early yesterday. One hundred and fifty persons were made homeless.

North Bay Hotel Scorched.

North Bay, Nov. 18.—New Cecil Hotel narrowly escaped destruction by fire yesterday. Much damage was done to the building by smoke and water. Damage about two thousand dollars.

Town Too Dry For Cat.

Winsted, Conn., Nov. 18.—Fannie, a cat owned by Barreuther Bros., had a liking for lager beer. When the town recently voted "dry" her owners went out of business and Fannie missed her drink. For some days she went to her saucer and cried for beer, but as none was forthcoming she disappeared. It is suspected she has gone to the nearest license town.

Year For Trying to Escape.

St. Thomas, Nov. 18.—Clarence Pangburn pleaded guilty yesterday to carrying an iron bar into his cell a week ago Saturday, and was sentenced to a year in the Central. Thomas Tully and C. I. Hunt, two more of the quartette who attempted to escape, pleaded guilty and were committed for trial. Harry, the fourth man, is now in Kingston.

More proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures sick women.

Miss M. R. Morin, 335 Ontario St., Montreal, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was in very poor health and doctored for months, receiving very little benefit. I had lost all ambition, was nervous, and subject to dizzy spells and painful periods each month.

"A friend suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as the proper medicine for me. I procured a bottle of this remedy and began taking, and before it was finished, I felt so much better that I continued its use and gave it a thorough test, with the result I am to-day well and a much healthier girl than I was three years ago. I have no more painful periods, dizziness or nervous troubles."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

ROBERT DI BARNARDO

Under the Apple Tree

By JANE LUDLUM LEE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Come along, Patsy; let's away from this piazza crowd and hie ourselves to the hills," suggested Belinda Bowers, stooping close to the little terrier snuggling against her freshly laundered frock.

Patsy wagged his abbreviated tail and set his ears up very straight in reply.

"The piazza crowd," according to Belinda's light, was the aggregation of somewhat colorless and uncertainly aged summer boarders, whose fingers could barely keep pace with their tongues as they embroidered and talked on the wide veranda of the Cedarvale inn.

Belinda and Patsy strolled down the village street and stopped in front of the dilapidated postoffice for mail. The gray haired postmaster peered through the small opening, his eyes shining above the gold rims of his glasses.

"There's a letter here for 'B. Bowers.' Be that you?"

"Yes, Miss B. Bowers," affirmed Belinda.

"Well, there ain't no 'Miss' on it, but reckon it's yours, all right," and he handed her the letter.

Belinda was too happy day dreaming to open the uninteresting looking legal envelope. It might be a bill, so she thrust it between the leaves of her magazine. When she and Patsy reached a shady apple orchard, surrounded by a low stone wall, Belinda settled herself comfortably and opened the missive.

"Dear B.," it ran, "hope this finds you wide awake and that you've discovered something doing in Cedarvale. I understand there's nothing doing in Cedarville. I understand there's nothing in the line of females up there under sixty, except one queen, named Belinda Bowers. I met her last winter at Mrs. Alston's. Stop painting fool pictures and see if you can't get next to her royal highness. Ta, ta.

"BUZZ."

Belinda's eyes were beaming with the humor of the mistake. She looked again at the envelope. It certainly bore her name, yet the letter was evidently meant for other eyes. Who was "Buzz?"

"Patsy, old doggie," said Belinda as she patted him affectionately on the head. "There's something in Cedarvale at last, and methinks we're it."

Patsy barked with delight at the sudden turn of affairs. Then something on the other side of the wall attracted his attention, and he bounded over, barking incessantly. Belinda followed him with her glance and discovered that an artist was sketching about fifty feet away. The dog paid no attention to her recalling whistle, and she followed him.

"Come here this minute, young man," she called in a stern voice.

The artist rose.

"At your service," he murmured as he bowed before her.

"I was calling the dog," explained Belinda, much embarrassed.

"I realize that," parried the man, "but since the dog refuses I thought I might do."

Inwardly Belinda told herself that decidedly he would do, but for answer she gave him an irresistible laugh.

"Won't you sit down under the shade of my apple tree, Miss Bowers?" suggested the man, suddenly turning host.

Belinda made herself comfortable, and the man dropped down beside her.

"How did you know that I was Miss Bowers?" inquired Belinda finally.

"How did I know?" echoed her companion. "Cedarvale is a small place, and when a beautiful girl lands in our midst the whole town talks of nothing else." He laughed aloud at the thought, and then, with more seriousness, he added, "May I go on?"

Belinda was interested and gave her consent.

"Well, to be frank with you, I saw you the night you and your mother arrived, and I've been hankering for an introduction ever since. Why, I've even hung about dark lanes hoping to rescue you. I've gone to dances where I've been the only man present in hopes that some of the antediluvians might introduce me. But all efforts were futile until this disobedient pup has made me his everlasting debtor."

"In case Patsy wants to send in a bill for services rendered," coyly demanded Belinda, "what's the debtor's name?"

"My name's Hazzard — Bellington Forbes Hazzard. Never heard of me, did you?"

"Well, I once read a short article about you," acknowledged Belinda, her eyes snapping with delight. "That's an awfully long name of yours, though," she continued. "What do your friends call you when they are in a hurry?"

"Just 'B.,'" he informed her, and Belinda actually giggled.

Two hours later the trio were back on the hotel piazza, and Belinda had not mentioned the letter. The next day and every day thereafter found the three companions taking long walks, and Belinda realized that she was doing very little reading, while Hazzard left his canvas in a most unfinished condition.

The season at Cedarvale was almost at an end, and the trees in the orchard were laden with gorgeous red fruit. Patsy was chasing birds, while Belinda was curled up at the foot of a favorite tree, and Hazzard was beside her. This morning there seemed to be long, unaccountable pauses in the conversation, and for some reason Belinda felt a premonition of what was forthcoming.

"Did you ever read what people thought about you?" asked Belinda.

"Yes, I read a short article about myself once written by one of my dearest friends, Buzz Murray," he acknowledged. "But I must say in defense of my friend that it was never intended for my eyes."

"Do you mean Mr. B. Z. Murray—Mrs. Alston's friend?" inquired Belinda.

"That's the man. We nicknamed him Buzz at college." Then, fumbling in his pockets, Hazzard produced a well worn letter. "Here's the article," he announced as he handed her an envelope addressed to himself.

Belinda read aloud:

My Dear Miss Bowers—I hear you are in Cedarville, and I wish you would send a card to my old friend Hazzard. His people have a cottage there. He's the dearest old slob in the world. There is only one thing against him—insanity has developed in him, taking the form of painting, but it is a harmless type. His other endearing qualities will quite outweigh this, however, and I fancy you two would find each other most congenial. Sincerely yours, B. Z. MURRAY.

"But this letter was intended for me," cried Belinda. "Why didn't you give it to me?"

"For the same reason that you did not return the one intended for me," announced Hazzard. "Of course, Buzz got his envelopes mixed, but I for one am willing to forgive him."

"But"—

"And I want you to forgive him, too, Belinda," interrupted Hazzard as he looked long into her eyes. "These past few weeks have been heaven on earth to me, and—and may I hope—just a little hope—that you, too, have been happy?"

Patsy rushed around the tree, barking and dancing on his tiny feet.

"At least Patsy is happy," parried Belinda.

Bellington picked the terrier up in his arms and held him tightly for a moment. But Patsy saw a stray cat and was anxious to be off again.

"What did my letter say of you?" asked Hazzard.

"Oh, some awfully silly things," answered Belinda.

"Well, may I hope, Belinda—here under the old apple tree that has lent us its friendly shade all these happy weeks—may I have my answer here and now?"

"Answer to what?" she almost whispered.

"Will you be my wife, Belinda?" he murmured as he drew her closely to him. And, lingering in his embrace, she gave her answer.

DOCTORS SAID "CUT OFF!"

"The only thing I can do now is to take the finger completely off. It cannot otherwise be cured." So said one of the leading doctors of Toronto to Mr. W. C. Edwards, P.D.C.R.A.O.F., P.G.M.I.O.O.F., the well-known Friendly Society leader, of Peter Street, Toronto. Almost a year before, Mr. Edwards cut the middle finger of his left hand very badly and blood poison ensued. For two months the doctor had been treating him, but no good had resulted, and this was the final decision. A fifty-cent box of Zam-Buk saved Mr. Edwards from life-long mutilation which $500 would not have compensated him for. He says: "The blood poison from the finger spread up my hand and arm and caused me terrible agony. After months' treatment the doctor said there was no cure, and amputation would have to take place if I intended to save the arm. My hand, at that time, was all swollen up and discolored, and I had to carry it in a sling. I left that doctor and consulted another.

After a few weeks' treatment he also told me that operation would be necessary, and the finger would have to be opened so that the bone could be scraped.

I went away to consider when I would have the operation performed, and met a friend who advised me to try Zam-Buk. That night I bathed the wound and put on some Zam-Buk. I got a little sleep for the first time for many nights. In the morning the wound began to bleed instead of the foul discharging as in the past. This was a healthy sign so I went on with the Zam-Buk. Well, to cut a long story short, in a few days I put away the sling and in a few weeks the finger was healed completely. To-day that finger is as sound as a bell and I owe it to Zam-Buk."

A WORD TO WIVES

Wives and mothers should know that Zam-Buk is the finest, safest and surest healer yet known. It is a herbal balm which acts like magic in healing sores, cuts, poisoned wounds, cracked hands, chapped places, cold sores, eczema, ulcers, festering sores and all skin diseases. So pure is it that it can be applied to the delicate skin of babes, and yet so powerful that chronic wounds are closed and cured by it. It soothes the pain of piles and stops the bleeding. It is highly antiseptic. A box of Zam-Buk is as good as a medicine chest, so many uses it fulfils. All druggists and stores sell at 50c a box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

HIS MISTAKE.

It Was Costly, but Cured Him of an Irritating Habit.

Bunsen was always a great kidder. He isn't any more.

Bunsen is a lawyer, although, of course, he is known by a different name. Don't ever get the idea, though, that this didn't really happen just because Bunsen's real nomination isn't mentioned.

As we were saying, Bunsen used to be pretty much of a kidder. He would even kid his own patient little wife. Those who care to read on down a little farther will learn why he ceased to be a kidder.

One evening last week when Bunsen got home his wife had a new hat to show him. It was some hat. Anybody could have seen that it was the final phrase in female headgear.

But Bunsen started in to make fun of it. He said it looked as if it had been trimmed by a cross eyed milliner on an empty stomach. And he made a lot of other disparaging remarks that were extremely harassing to poor Mrs. Bunsen.

"D'je buy it sight unseen?" he inquired. "Say, how much do they pay the girl that sold you that? She ought to have a raise. Any girl who could put that one over a customer must be something of a smooth saleslady, I'm here to remark."

Mrs. Bunsen was almost in tears. Bunsen had to go into the other room to have a quiet laugh at her expense. Oh, he was the great kidder, all right.

The next day, though, he had forgotten all about the hat.

The day after that he was reminded of his little jokefest. Mrs. Bunsen handed him a slip of paper when he came home to get his victuals that evening. It was a bill for retrimming that hat; $18.34 it came to.

Bunsen paid it without a murmur and said the revised edition of the hat was just exactly right. He isn't making fun of hats any more.

Ingenious Transmutation of Names of Well Known Persons.

Anagrams that transmute the names of well known men and women are often startlingly appropriate. What could be better in this way than these announcements, evolved from two great statesmen's names when the reins of power changed hands: Gladstone, "Glad leads not!" Disraeli, "I lead, sir!" Quite as happy is the comment on the devoted nursing of Florence Nightingale, whose name yields "Flit on, cheering angel." Among those that are most often quoted we may mention Horatio Nelson. "Honor est a Nilo;" Charles James Stuart, "Claims Arthur's seat;" Pilate's question, "Quid est veritas?" ("What is truth?"), answered by "Est vir qui adest" ("It is the man here present"); Swedish nightingale, "Sing high, sweet Linda;" David Livingstone, "D. V., go and visit Nile;" the Marquiss of Ripon (who resigned the grand mastership of Freemasons when he became a Romanist), "R. I. P., quoth Freemasons;" Charles, prince of Wales, "All France calls, Oh, help!" Sir Roger Charles Doughty Tichborne, baronet, "You horrid butcher Orton, biggest rascal here," and many shorter specimens, such as telegraph, "great help;" astronomers, "no more stars" and "moon starers;" one hug, "enough;" editors, "so tired;" tournament, "to run at men;" penitentiary, "nay, I repent;" old England, "golden land;" revolution, "to love ruin;" fashionable, "one-half bias;" lawyers, "sly ware;" midshipman, "mind his nap;" poorhouse, "Oh, sour hope;" Presbyterian, "best in prayer;" sweetheart, "there we sat;" matrimony, "into my arm."—Chambers' Journal.

Moral of the Garden.

Nothing teaches patience like a garden. You may go round and watch the opening bud from day to day, but it takes its own time, and you cannot urge it on faster than it will. If forced it is only torn to pieces. All the best results of a garden, like those of life, are slowly but regularly progressive.—Exchange.

Experience.

"Experience would be a wonderful asset but for one thing."

"What's that?"

"You never can sell it for what it cost you."

"BLIND" LETTER-SORTERS.

English Officials Are Employed Especially to Read Hard Addresses.

There are so many letters and parcels received at postoffices insufficiently addressed that a special staff of expert sorters is engaged in the British Postal Department—known as "blind" men—who duty it is to decipher the addresses.

It is really surprising what a large number of people there are who still seem unable to address an envelope correctly. This adds greatly to the terrors of the "blind" men. Here is a specimen which was sent from a town in the west of England by an English correspondent: "Mary H., a widow with two children." Such letters, of course, cannot be delivered, unless the persons for whom they are intended are discovered by accident.

There are other more puzzling styles of addresses even than this, however, which, to the credit of the "blind" men, are delivered with little or no delay. A correspondent who wrote to a lunatic in Colney Hatch addressed his letter to "Coneyach lunentick A Siliam." "Oiley Wite" was correctly deciphered as Isle of Wight; and a letter marked "Obern Yenon" was delivered at the Holborn Union without delay.

A few years ago the spelling of Ashby-de-la-Zouch was the source of constant worry to illiterate correspondents. There are fifty recognised methods in vogue for spelling the name of this one place, but the most common way is "Has be dellar such." Perhaps the most curiously-addressed communication that ever reached this town, however, was "Ash Beldes in Such for John Horsel Grinder in the County of Lestysheer."

The English peasants are not the only offenders, however. Some of the peasantry in the outlying parts of Ireland add considerably to the difficulties of the "blind" sorters. Here is an address which is by no means uncommon in the Irish mail: "To my sister Bridget, care of the Preste, who lives in the Parish of Balcumbury, in Cork."

Working the Public.

The subway express stopped at Seventy-second street. Passengers got off and on. Just as the guard on one car rang the bell to go ahead a gray haired woman neatly dressed rushed to the door, crying: "Let me off! Let me off! She's got my pocketbook!" The guard refused to open the door, as the train was already pulling out of the station. A few more words and she ended by saying, "Well, you will have to lend me a nickel car fare to get home," but neither this guard nor his companions in the cars ahead or behind had the money.

A gentleman who had observed all offered the lady 10 cents, which she accepted, seemingly reluctantly. At Fourteenth street she got off. The guard shook his head knowingly and when some one remarked on the happening said: "She couldn't fool me. I know her of old. That's a game of hers, and she gets many a nickel by that trick."—New York Sun.

A WOMAN'S BACK WAS NOT MADE TO ACHE.

Thousands of Women Suffer Untold Misery Every Day With Aching Backs That Really Have No Business To Ache.

Under ordinary conditions it ought to be strong and ready to bear the burdens of life.

It is hard to do housework with an aching back. Backaches come from sick kidneys, and what a lot of trouble sick kidneys cause.

But they can't help it. If more work is put on them than they can stand it is not to be wondered that they get out of order.

Backache is simply a warning from the kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney troubles.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you in the same way as they have cured thousands of others.

SEVERE PAINS IN BACK.

Mrs. O. Warren, Radisson, Sask., writes: "I was troubled with very severe pains in my back for years. I tried everything I could think of but they did me no good. A friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and after taking two boxes, I have not been troubled since."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25, all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering specify "Doan's."

VARICOCELE CURED.

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the scaling would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $27 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

GIRL COLONISTS.

Servants and Wives For Australia Sail From London.

A short time ago about 50 servant girls left London on the steamship Geelong, of the Blue Anchor line, for Sydney and other parts of Australia. Every month nearly 100 young women leave England for New South Wales, being assisted for their passages by the Government; but, apart from these parties, many others leave England for happier lives in Australia. There are many reasons why New South Wales proves so attractive to these strong and healthy British lasses. The first is undoubtedly that, owing to the greater number of males there, the prospects of marriage are distinctly good. Secondly, there is a dearth of domestic servants, and substantial wages are offered. It is stated at the agent-general's office the conditions of life for servant girls in New South Wales are much easier. Less restriction is imposed on them; they have considerably more liberty than in England, and are much better treated. Then, again, they are paid higher wages. An ordinary general servants receives $2.50 to $3.50, and in some cases as much at $4.25, a week, in addition to board and lodging. Cooks get in hotels from $5 to $6.25 a week, and in private houses from $3.75 to $5, cook-laundresses earn from $3.75 to $5 weekly, and laundresses received $4.25 to $5. Not infrequently these girls receive proposals of marriage from young farmers of good position, and the life-story of many a British servant girl who has ventured out to Australia would reveal, if it were told, a romantic union which has led to fame or prosperity. The passage costs them only $15, and generally situations are found for them as soon as they arrive.

Has Hopes For Montreal.

There is a monthly journal called Mazdaznan, published at Chicago, in connection with the "sun worship" cult. It contains brief articles dealing with oriental and occidental philosophy, religion, science, cultivation of the higher senses and the development of the body. In the number for last April the following reference is made to "sun worship" in Montreal:

The light has crossed the northern borders and has become focussed in two northern stars—the Mallets of Montreal—and the good work they are doing is gratifying to their friends. At no distant date they are destined to surprise the "wise ones of earth with the bountiful harvest they shall gather.

Mr. Balfour as a Musician.

The ex-Prime Minister has long been known as a keen lover of music, and he has one of the most perfect editions of Wagner's operas in existence. This was compiled and bound to his own taste in pure white morocco, the pages being of thick, rough-edged paper, charmingly illuminated in rich and artistic coloring throughout from designs selected by Mr. Balfour himself. Although Mr. Balfour is rarely induced to play for his friends, they are well aware he performs on the organ with more than ordinary skill.

The General and His Double.

Gen. Wodehouse, late Governor of Bermuda, who has returned home from New York, would, if he were asked say that all persons have their "doubles." He met his when he passed into Woolwich in 1870, in the personage of the French Prince Imperial. A warm friendship sprung up between the two young fellows so marvelously alike, and lasted until the unfortunate prince's death in Zululand in 1879.

Litigious South Africans.

The Diamond Fields Advertiser, referring to the litigious nature of the natives of South Africa, gives the following as an instance: "A native had fought and lost an action in the magistrate's court in one of the small towns in Griqualand East, the articles in dispute being a slate and an alphabetical primer of the total value of sixpence. He, immediately after the judgment was given against him, started on a journey on foot to the chief town, about thirty miles distant, in order to instruct an attorney there to appeal from the judgment given. The attorney laughed at the man and told him he should desist, as he would only be wasting his money over a trivial matter, but he tendered the costs of the appeal to the attorney and insisted; otherwise he would consult another lawyer. After a long consultation and endeavor to advise his client to act as was thought best the attorney complied with the native's wishes. The native won his appeal."

Boils and Pimples

Are caused entirely by the blood being in an impure condition, and the quickest and simplest way to get rid of them is to take a few bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This purely vegetable remedy has cured thousands of cases of these painful and unsightly troubles during the past thirty years.

BOILS.

Mr. S. J. Weir, Riverview, Ont., writes:—"Last summer I had nineteen boils on my neck and back. I was off work for over two weeks. I took everything I could think of but to no effect. I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and before I had used half the bottle the boils were gone. I took the rest of it, however, and I have not had a boil since."

PIMPLES.

Mrs. W. J. Crandon, St. Mary's, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with pimples on my face for a couple of years and tried a good deal of patent medicine, but they were not of much use. Finally I used four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters and am now entirely cured."

YOUR DYSPEPSIA WILL VANISH PROMPTLY

There Will be No Stomach Distress Follow the Heartiest Meal

Why not start now—today, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and Indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cts for a large case at any drug store here and will relieve the most obstinate case of indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from the stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and, besides, one triangule will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapepsin works, your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of Indigestion.

DYING PEERAGES.

Many of the New Families Will Disappear In a Few Years.

There are nearly a dozen ladies in Great Britain who are peeresses in their own right, most of them without male heirs, while two more ladies will be added to the number when Lord Wolseley and Lord Roberts die. The former has no son, but his viscounty was conferred with special remainder to his daughter, and with remainder again to her male issue, so that in that way the title may be perpetuated, while in the case of Lord Roberts, who lost his only son in the South African war, the earldom has also been conferred with special remainder to his daughter.

Amongst the peers whose titles will, under present circumstances, cease with their death might be mentioned Lord Milner, who has no heir, and Lord Llandaff, who, as Mr. Henry Matthews, filled the office of Home Secretary from 1886 to 1892.

Lord James of Hereford, an Attorney-General of the seventies, has no relative who can succeed to his title, neither had Lord Shand, a Scotch judge of great eminence, who died four years ago. Another famous light of the legal world whose title lapsed with his death was Lord Brampton, who, as Sir Henry Hawkins, established the reputation of being the finest criminal lawyer of his day.

Lord Northcliffe, formerly Sir Alfred Harmsworth, has no heir to succeed him. Lord Kitchener remains a bachelor, and his brother is therefore heir to the title, while Lord Welby, who was Permanent Secretary of the Treasury from 1885 to 1894, has no heir to the title conferred for conspicuous service to the state.

The Canadian Girl.

The following extract is from an article on "The Canadian Girl," which appears in the current number of "The Lady," published in London, England:

"The Canadian girl seems to be a medium between the English and the American. She is brought up with English traditions, having learned from our wistful mothers to call Old England "home," and even the freer, less conventional life of a new country cannot destroy feelings and customs and ideas so deeply rooted. She is less independent and assertive than the American girl, and she leavens the attitude of the American towards men with a little touch of English reserve. It is a very small touch, it must be confessed, for as a rule the Canadian girl regards all men as comrades and brothers, and is not troubled with much self-consciousness concerning them. Newly-arrived Englishmen sometimes misunderstand this attitude, unaccustomed to the idea that attentions do not necessarily imply intentions, and it is not till he finds that the men of her acquaintance are to a Canadian girl her companions in games and sports and walks, and that there is little sentiment about the matter, that an Englishman is able to accept the new point of view and fall in line with the prevailing custom.

Apples Baked In Transit.

"Exporters of apples have suffered for various reasons so far this season," said a large shipper recently. "At times some improvement has been noted, but the early season was disastrous.

"For days the ocean-going boats were detained in the St. Lawrence river on account of fog and storms were encountered, so that the hatches had to be battened down, and by the time the fruit reached England it was literally baked. Then the English crop has been very large, and while our shipments were being held back, the English farmers were selling their apples to advantage.

"There will doubtless be a reaction when we begin to ship the winter stock. Soft apples like the "Snow" never arrive in good shape, but the harder winter apple is little affected."

A Big Potato Crop.

According to estimates furnished by the largest potato shippers of Fredericton, N.B., there have been upwards of 15,000 barrels of potatoes shipped from that city this season already. Of this amount about 12,000 barrels have been shipped by the C.P.R. to Upper Canadian markets, largely to points in the Province of Quebec, while about 3,000 barrels have been shipped by water to St. John for shipment from there to Cuba. In all at least sixty cars of potatoes have left here for Upper Canadian markets. These shipments by far eclipse all records for former years. The yield of potatoes in this vicinity so far this year has averaged about 100 barrels to the acre, and the price paid by shippers has ranged from 60c. to $1 per barrel.

CHIPPENDALE CHAIRS

Examples of This Artist In a Number of Types.

THE CHINESE INFLUENCE.

Chippendale Is Thought by Many Experts to Be at His Best In the Simple Distinct Pattern—Modern Furniture.

The uninitiated in the ways of old furniture are apt to think of the chairs made by Chippendale as being of one type. As a matter of fact, Chippendale chairs are of a number of styles. There are the clawfoot models, beloved of our colonial ancestors and many of their descendants; the cabriole leg design and a more ornate affair boasting a back elaborated with ribbon-like splats. This last chair is not in the master's best style. The Chinese tendency did not creep in until rather late in the career of the great Thomas Chippendale. He was somewhat famous as early as 1735, though not until 1753 did he remove from a bystreet off Long Acre to St. Martin's lane.

He died in 1799, as you no doubt know.

The Chippendale chairs, above all, were famous. Few of his other pieces attained the instant approval usually given his chairs by the greatest experts. Naturally his most elaborate efforts were his least artistic.

One of the most interesting features of these chairs is that not only examples of his Gothic, French, Dutch and Chinese manners exist, but also models in which the different styles are blended.

His devotion to the Chinese style dates from 1757. One example combines the Franco-Dutch top rail with the Chinese lattice back. Some consider the side chair with this back quite as typical. The lattice back was also made in Gothic form.

The ribbon back Chippendale has a fussy back, of which the great Thomas did not approve.

He made a stuffed chair in the French type, too, which is now said to be exceedingly rare in the original state. One of the Gothic styles with a splat back has a hollowed out seat.

Chippendale is thought by many experts to be at his best in the simple distinct pattern, with the gadroon edging to the seat rail.

It is interesting to know that designs for modern furniture made from the old models are all first drawn and then executed in plaster. Blocks of wood similar to this cast in shape are then cut and put into the hands of skilled workmen at machines. The machines, some of them, seem scarcely less human than the workmen, so nicely do they chisel here and there under the guidance of the machinist's hand. They are nearly all manipulated partly by hand, and even the least costly bit of carved furniture receives a great deal more "hand" work than is ordinarily supposed. After being roughly shaped by machine all the carved furniture is finished by hand. At the rows of benches one sees old men and boys side by side, working away with chisels and saws and tiny polished tools at sofa heads and chair arms, which are very much nearer real art than many an ambitious student gets with brush and paint.

"Adaptation" is the keynote of the designer for the American trade Americans do not want utility sacrificed to grace and to "gingerbread" ornamentation.

La Grippe Arrested and Consumption Prevented

Mr. G. D. Colwell of Walkerville, Ont., and employed by the Canadian Bridge Co., Walkerville, says: "When I began using PSYCHINE in October, 1906, I was all run down and bordering on consumption. I could not sleep nights. I had night sweats frequently and coughed the greater part of the night. I was very weak and nervous. Psychine worked marvels and made a new man of me and I have been in good health since. Since then I have used PSYCHINE each winter for La Grippe, and it has put me right in no time. I am now in the best of health, although my work is hard, and I take every opportunity of putting in a good word for PSYCHINE."

AFTER EFFECTS OF LA GRIPPE.

The after effects of LaGrippe are often worse than the disease itself. PSYCHINE banishes the weakness, that is one of the worst effects after LaGrippe, and replaces it with bounding health all over the body. PSYCHINE is sold by all druggists and dealers at 50c and $1.00 bottle. See special Free Trial offer.

THE NEW EMPIRE.

Explorers Tell of Flora and Fauna of Fort Churchill Country.

A short list follows of some of the flora and fauna of Fort Churchill and vicinity, as supplied by those who have explored the new country to be opened by the Hudson Bay Railway: Cranberries, blueberries (both round and oval), yellow or swamp berries, eye berries, partridge berries, poisonous snake berries (both white and crimson), weed berries (i.e., Kenókanuk), ground juniper, huskie or barren land berries, strawberries, gooseberries, Pembina or high bush cranberries, saskatoon or La Poire, with several other species. These all ripen in early July.

Fruit and flowers (wild): Rosse (wild) pale and red; tulips, violets, (both white and blue), lords' and ladies' Arctic snowdrops, daisies, anemones (several varieties), hyacinths or moose flowers, besides at least fifty other varieties, water lilies (both yellow and white), water violets and water daisies, forgetmenots, wild onions, wild rheubarb and celery, canomite, heather, wild cherries etc., mosses and ferns and grasses.

Trees: Jackpine, stunted and barren land; swamp jackpine with branches stretching out close to the ground, at times 10 to 12 feet long, beginning at 2 inches thick. The height of the tree runs from 4 to 5 feet. It has a very hard wood, but is brittle and full of gum; it has a pleasant smell and needles like jackpine or cypress. Spruce, larch or red pine (both swamp, small, and upland, large), poplar (three kinds), willow several varieties; birch, scrub and ordinary.

Fish: Whitefish, 1 to 6 pounds, three varieties; trout, lake, 2 to 30 pounds, large; river, 1-2 to 3 pounds, medium; tidal water jackfish, 1 to 20 pounds; suckers 1 to 3 pounds; la Loche or Mari-Boch, 1 to 2 pounds; dories, 1 to 2 pounds; sturgeon, 1 to 50 pounds; herring, 1-4 to 3-4 pound; eels, large and small; crabs, fresh and salt water; lobsters, small turtles, shellfish and clams, various.

Ants of many varieties also are found here. There houses at times 20 feet in circumference and several feet high. The carcase of an animal, say a fox, wolf, mink or even small deer if placed near an ant heap will in a few days be picked clean.

The coast is noted for owls. In spring (April 16 to 25) migratory birds arrive, going north, and they pass south Aug. 20 to 30, and leave the coast before the end of October.

Snow birds are the first to arrive; fall duck, cranes and plover the last to go away. Pelican and northern divers have been reported as having wintered at some of the cascade open water tunnels.

Snakes, lizards, leeches, and frogs are noticed in several varieties, but are not poisonous.

The aurora shooting stars, constellations, plants and stars are generally very bright and beautiful.

The mirage is at times very wonderful, as many as 3 and 4 strata of hills and lake, ridges known to be over 50 miles distant will appear in every shape in vicinity—almost supernatural in appearance.

The Black Hawk War.

The Black Hawk war was fought on the Mississippi river frontier in 1832 between 900 whites and 500 Indians. Chief Black Hawk was captured, and 263 warriors were killed. The Indians were driven west of the Mississippi. White loss, twenty-two.

The Vatican.

The Vatican is the largest palace in the world, and within its inclosure is a park of thirteen acres.

Buried With Her Dog.

The will of a lady who died in Melbourne contained the following clause: "And in the event of my favorite dog Prin living at the time of my decease I direct that he be destroyed by poison and his body be buried in the same coffin with me."

Bison and Buffalo.

Bison is an American animal and buffalo an old world animal. Bison more closely resembles common ox.

Bedouins.

Bedouins are wandering tribes of Arabs that live on plunder of travelers whom they attack. They profess a form of Mohammedanism and are governed by sheiks.

WHERE SAVAGES BEAT US

The rude, uncultured savage did not sit most of the day in a padded office chair, a carriage or car. His food was not prepared by a chef. He had to hunt for something to eat. And dinner, when he got it, was none too rich.

But the rude, uncultured savage did not suffer from indigestion, constipation, biliousness, headaches, as we civilized beings do. Exercise and the amount of fruit and fresh vegetables in his diet, kept liver, bowels and kidneys working right.

None of us want to go back to the days of wigwams and tomahawks but a lot of us certainly would like to have the digestion of the savages

We can, by taking "Fruit-a-tives." "Fruit-a-tives" act directly on the stomach, liver, kidneys and skin, and keep these organs in perfect condition. "Fruit-a-tives" bring back lost appetite and sound digestion to the Dyspeptic—regulate the bowels of those who suffer from Constipation — and build up the whole system. Trial size 25c. Regular size 50c, or 6 for $2.50.

The Prophecy of Carolyn.

By ELLIOT WALKER.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"This is the sweetest, most lovely spot imaginable," said Ara Barr, speaking audibly, as the stream singing below the rock on which she stood gleamed ruddy in the sunset.

"Isn't it? The setting, the—merciful heavens!" A deep, unfamiliar voice rose to a horrified cry of consternation.

In her sudden, startled turn the girl's slender foot had slipped. It caught in a crevice. A wrench for release, and she sat down, jarringly, uttering a low shriek.

The man skipped nimbly to her assistance. His face was even more distressed than hers.

"You are hurt!" he exclaimed.

"I certainly am very uncomfortable, sir. My ankle is sprained, I think. Why did you speak to me?"

The stranger's eyes widened.

"I thought you spoke to me. I supposed you saw me. I'm Mr. Elder, Delos Elder, you know. Miss Barr, I'm mighty sorry."

For a moment Ara forgot the pain. She laughed half hysterically. Delos Elder, the man she had long wished to meet—Carolyn Seely's friend, who was coming to Bonnyview, and she, Ara, had begged Carolyn to send him over. Her intention had been to impress Mr. Elder. What would Carolyn say?

A twinge of the ensnared foot brought tears to her eyes. She held out a hand, stammering: "Oh, yes, I—I might have suspected. I left word that if any one called to say I'd gone up the road. I never thought of you."

Elder had dropped her fingers and was working at the imprisoned shoe.

"Brace, now," he said firmly. "It's going to hurt."

It did hurt. The girl tried to smile, but her cheeks went white. She strove against the black dizziness. No, she simply would not faint. She would—not! The man heard her grit her teeth.

"As plucky as she is pretty," he thought. "Poor child. I'll bet that was agony, but I had to pull. How will I get her home?"

He leaped down and presently was back with a dripping handkerchief. Already twilight had darkened about them. Mosquitoes buzzed; a whippoorwill sounded the call of the night; the brook gurgled melancholy murmurs; a bat swooped—and no helpful sounds came from the lonely highway.

"I guess my countennnce is sufficiently sopped," uttered Ara meekly. "I didn't quite faint, did I? I'm much obliged for your arm and shoulder, but, really, I'm all right now. Please take me home, Mr. Elder."

"Directly, Miss Barr." He passed a hand over a wilted shirt front. His bright tie had shed its color on his white vest. Where was his hat? He rubbed his knees; they had ground painfully against the stone, even to sad laceration of cloth.

"I'm thinking of the best way," he added cheerfully. "I can't carry you. Neither can you walk nor hop on one foot. No dwelling is in sight. No team is apt to come along. We must not wait here, and I'm afraid to leave you in this lonesome spot."

"We'll crawl," cried the girl. "My people never worry about my being late."

"No; I might shout for help."

"Oh, anything but that. Besides, who will hear you? I'm going to get up."

"You're going to sit still, Miss Barr. I'll find a way. Wait a minute."

The pair sat in dismal silence. Ara dodged a bat with a shudder. Her injured foot ached. It was growing grewsomely dark in the shadows.

"I have it!" exclaimed Elder, rising. "The wheelbarrow!"

"Where?"

"By the roadside, just beyond the bridge. It was full of stones for walling up a spring. I'll dump the rocks and bring it to the nearest point."

"You'll dump me."

"No, I won't."

In an instant he was gone. The girl pressed his damp handkerchief to her lips.

"It was all his fault," she whispered "but I'm sort of glad it happened Carolyn said—pshaw! What am I doing?"

"The thing squeaks frightfully and is dirty, but I've spread my coat in it," informed Mr. Elder, returning. "Come. I'll lift you down. Hang on! Don't mind my lugging you, Miss Barr. It's a case of necessity."

"I'll be good," said Ara.

Cautiously picking his way, Delos Elder did not notice the confiding clasp of her arms or her soft cheek pressed against his neck. He was only conscious of her behaving beautifully on a rather perilous journey and that sure footing was the imperative need.

As he trundled his delicate burden home in the dusty barrow all his thoughts were apparently bent on smooth wheeling, lest a jolt should bring her additional pain.

Hatless, coatless, perspiring, on trudged the concerted Delos and up to Judge Barr's summer cottage at last, to halt panting, weary and thankful.

"There!" he gasped. "I hope you weren't much joggled. Call some one. I'm going back to find my hat. You have been very brave. Tomorrow, when I am presentable, I shall inquire for you. Let us hope nothing serious will result from this experience. It was entirely my fault, Miss Barr."

"I'll forgive you," said the girl. It was too dark for him to see her eyes, else, disheveled as he was, he might have stayed.

Bearing his dusty coat over an arm, he backed away with a hasty word of farewell, and a portly man strode out to the piazza.

"What's going on here?" demanded a thunderous voice. "Ara, child, why, is anything wrong?"

Delos, in the darkness, heard the girl's laugh and a calm reply. He appreciated the effort.

"Oh, I twisted my ankle, father. A man was kind enough to wheel me home. He wouldn't stop to be thanked. I guess you'll have to carry me in, father."

* * * * * * *

A fortnight later Miss Seely had a call from the judge.

"Carolyn," said he, "what can you tell me of young Elder? He is visiting here, I believe."

Oh! Delos?" replied his hostess, smiling. "Yes, he's still with us. Well, Mr. Elder is an old friend of mine, judge. He has some brains, plenty of money, an excellent character, belongs to a good family and is extremely particular regarding his clothes. Lately I haven't seen much of Delos. He has taken to out of door exercise; goes tramping and meandering about. He must have lost himself one evening awhile ago, for he came in greatly exhausted and a sight to behold. It was the next day he called at your house, I think. I remember he told me that Ara had strained her foot. How is it?"

"That didn't amount to much," said the old gentleman thoughtfully. "She was walking on it in a couple of days."

"Oh, so soon! I didn't know. I wrote her a note, but got no reply, so feared she was badly laid up. I've felt sorry for Delos, for I wanted Ara to see a good deal of him. Once I told her, and not so much in a joke, either, that they were the very ones to fall in love with each other."

The look of disappointment faded from her face as she saw a twinkle in her visitor's eye.

"No?" she exclaimed.

"That's it, Carolyn," observed the judge, bursting into a laugh. "They have!"

Fresh Water From the Ocean.

Manama, the principal port of the Bahrein islands, the center of the pearl fisheries, gets its fresh water from the ocean. Visitors often note boats anchored a few hundred yards from the shore, the boatmen engaged in drawing fresh water from springs at the bottom of the sea. These springs well up strongly at a considerable depth, and the entire water supply of the town is obtained from them. The fresh water is procured in two ways—either in a goatskin water bag, which a diver takes down with him and carefully closes before bringing it to the surface, or by letting down long hollow pipes of bamboo, weighted at the lower end, through which the water rises up uncontaminated to the surface.—Argonaut.

The Mere Formality Won.

"Yes, sir," said the pale, youthful suitor; "I have come to ask you for your daughter's hand. She is fair as lilies, charming"—

"Is that Mary you're talking about?" asked papa.

"Yes, sir. It is a mere formality, I know, this asking for your daughter's hand, but we—thought it would be pleasing to you if it were observed."

Mary's papa stiffened.

"And may I inquire," he asked, "who suggested that asking my consent to Mary's marriage was a mere formality?"

"You may, sir," replied the young man simply, "It was Mary's mother."

THE VALUE OF COD LIVER OIL

No physician would dispute the value of COD LIVER OIL in nervous and pulmonary diseases, if the nauseous grease did not so derange digestion as to more than counteract the good done by the therapeutic principles of the oil.

In "BRICE'S TASTELESS" there is no grease. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, invigorates the nerves by nourishing them, and CURES Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis. Its timely use is an insurance against serious consequences, as the weakened system is a prey to germ diseases, such as Tuberculosis, Typhoid and Typhus Fevers, and Diphtheria.

"BRICE'S TASTELESS" is put up in eight (8 ounce bottles, retail price fifty (50) cents, and in twenty (20) ounce bottles, retail price one (1) dollar.

WAS VAN HORNE MEANT?

Incident In Life of Railway Magnate Paralleled In Barrie Play.

Did Mr. J. M. Barrie have in his eye Sir William Van Horne, the Canadian railway king, when he made John Shand the railway porter hero in What Every Woman Knows break into the Wylies' house to study the books in their library?

The question is prompted by the printing in the Canadian Magazine of an incident in the life of Sir William which is an almost exact parallel of John Shand's housebreaking feat.

If Mr. Barrie had no knowledge of Sir William's youthful escapade, the coincidence is wonderful, for both men broke into libraries to improve their minds, both succeeded in after life, and both were connected with railways.

In order to place the coincidence clearly before the reader, the deadly parallel may be usefully employed. To the left is an account of John Shand's adventure as described by a dramatic critic, and to the right is the Canadian Magazine's account of the railway king's library breaking:

This is the incident of John Shand: Lacking money to buy the necessary books, and knowing that these are lying idle in the Wylies' bookcase, John Shand formed the desperate scheme of housebreaking in order to pursue his studies.

"The picture presented by this (the first) act is . . . from first to last the most delicate, humorous, and whimsical of Barrieisms . . .

"It (the play) becomes (as it proceeds) a little too far removed from the realities and possibilities of life. But 'fable' is not Mr. Barrie's strong point."

Here is the story of Sir W. Van Horne:

"Of more interest are the incidents in the early career of this man of exhaustless energy and indomitable will.

"In his boyhood he broke into the library of his native town in Illinois on a Sunday and copied a book he wanted from cover to cover, illustrations and all.

"'I was not able to buy books in those days,' he explained. 'I was employed as a messenger at $6 a month, which I took home intact to my mother.'

"How picturesque is that incident in the life of one who later became unrivalled in the planning of railway systems and the handling of millions."

THE FIRE MONTH.

October the Season When the Trees Afford Fuel For the Flames.

October is the fire month in Northern Ontario.

From the branches of deciduous trees the leaves have fluttered to the ground weeks ago. Even the evergreens have assumed a paler tint, while the scroggy cedars clinging to the crevices in the rocks are turning brown in patches.

The dry marsh grass has bent and broken at its lowest joints and fallen on the earth in thick undulating masses. After a summer's parching heat the moss on the rocks and on the fallen tree trunks is crumbling through lack of moisture.

The wild things of the woods walk softly because the dry branches crack like pistols and the dry grass rustles like the waves churning on a gravelly beach.

The hunters are in the woods, and though their hearing is dull, the ears of the Indian guides are keen.

Soon the sportsman will drop a lighted match or knock the ashes from his pipe and go on his way. Or, instead of putting half a dozen pails of water on the embers of his camp fire, he will put only two, and one little coal will escape the deluge.

Two hours after he leaves, if he looks back, he may notice a thin pale column of smoke rising like a silver thread. If he were on the spot he would see an ever-widening, smoking circle.

That night he has to run for the nearest lake, and swim to an island, where he passes an uneasy night, walled in by shores aflame with the dreaded forest fire.

Problem For a Builder.

There lives a man in the northwest end of the city of Toronto, north and west of what is called Brockton, who owns a piece of property on a street which runs over to the northern track, and upon which he has erected a house.

To the east, a carpenter owns the land, and he has built a roughcast dwelling. The land was no bigger than necessary, so to make the house as large as possible, he built right up to the line between him and his neighbor.

All went well till it was time to lathe and plaster the western wall. To do so, the workmen would have to use the side entrance of the neighbor, and this he absolutely refused to allow. All the rest of the house is complete but the wall. How to do the plastering without trespassing on the neighbor's land is a question the perplexed builder would like some one to solve.

An Intelligent Dog.

A very wise and intelligent fox terrier not only broke a bylaw but cheated the Toronto Street Railway out of a fare a few days ago. In the first place, he was traveling unattended, which under the existing code is a capital offence for a dog, and also rode on Belt Line car No. 1284 eastbound, from the King Edward Hotel to Sherbourne street without paying the usual. He boarded the car at the first stop east of Yonge, courteously waiting until everyone had climbed into the car, then taking the twenty-four inch step in one leap; he remained on the back platform regardless of the gaze of the passengers. When the car reached the turn, he quietly jumped off and continued on his way along King street, as if it was a matter of custom with him.

Canadian Railways.

The Canadian railways had a total length of 22,452 miles on June 30, 1907, 27,611 miles, including double tracks, sidings and spurs.

Paraguay's Sweet Plant.

A herb called by the natives caa ehe, but botanically Eupatorium rebaudianum, grows wild in Paraguay. It is remarkable for its sweetness. Indeed, the native name means the "sugar plant." It grows along the borders of the river Amambahi and attains a height of only about five inches. The smallest bit of this plant when placed upon the tongue produces a surprisingly sweet flavor, which, it is said, lasts for hours. The saccharine power is much greater than that of sugar.—Youth's Companion.

The Sleepless Seven.

"There were seven of the twelve," said one of the discharged jurors in speaking of the matter next morning, "who didn't want to sleep themselves and wouldn't let the rest of us sleep. Whenever we dropped into a doze they came around and shook us till we were wide awake again."

"And you had to submit, I suppose, for they constituted the majority?"

"Yes. They were a rousing majority," said the hollow eyed juror, with a pensive attempt to be facetious.—Chicago Tribune.

THE ELECTRIC CHAIR.

Its Shocks, a Doctor Declares, Do Not Kill the Condemned.

The attitude of Coroner George F. Shrady, son of the most distinguished surgeon of his time, toward the killing of criminals by electricity is one that should have been taken long before this time by men whose opinions would carry weight.

Dr. Shrady pronounces the present method of executing murderers in this and several other states as the most brutal conceivable by human mind. He goes much further and declares that a clause in the bill ordering an immediate autopsy is intended to make death sure.

That is to say, he asserts that the attendant surgeons who carve up the still-warm body are the real executioners.

Could any charge be more terrible? It is in effect a dreadful humiliation to the profession of surgery to compel some of its members to destroy signs of returning life by taking out the heart and the brain of the supposed dead man within ten minutes of the removal of the body from the electric chair. Indeed, Dr. Shrady makes the definite charge that one murderer named by him was in a fair way to revive and was given a poisonous drug that finished him.

Nothing more startling has been uttered by a responsible man in many years. His words would indicate that we are returning to the days of Socrates, when the death penalty was inflicted by compelling the condemned to drink hemlock.

After a long experience as reporter and special correspondent, during which many executions have been witnessed, the writer would vote for the guillotine if he were asked how he had to die as a condemned man. It is complete! There isn't any doubt about the infliction of the death penalty. When a man's head is off he is dead. That for the man who wants life to end beyond a doubt! An acquaintance of the writer, Edmund Yates, left £100 in an envelope for a friendly surgeon who would sever his jugular vein after his death. He had a terrible fear of being buried alive.

In the cases of criminals, especially in New York state, Dr. Shrady says the compulsory autopsy guards against that. Most of us expect or hope to escape the electric chair. Therefore we are not especially concerned to know whether the unfortunate chaps who have to die as condemned men really expire by the shock or by the knife.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Cement House Critic.

"The Edison monolithic house is not a success. Of course we all take off our hats to Edison as an inventor, but I believe that in this instance he has not introduced a practicable thing."

This is the declaration of Alfred Tracy, national president of the American Brotherhood of Cement Workers. "He may be able to 'pour a house' in twelve hours, as he says, with his system of forms, but he would be unable to remove the forms in twelve hours, for the cement would not set in that time. Moreover, he casts a solid wall, and every one knows that a solid wall admits moisture and makes a home unhealthful. He will have to devise some scheme for providing a hollow wall before the invention will ever work out satisfactorily."—New York Tribune.

Like Poetry.

A reporter asked John J. Hayes, the winner of the Marathon race, if long distance running was difficult.

"Running," said the young man, "is a good deal like writing poetry. And you know what Victor Hugo said about that."

"No. What did he say?" asked the reporter.

"A visitor," said Mr. Hayes, "asked Hugo if it was hard to make good poetry.

"'Hard?' said Hugo, with a laugh. 'Hard? Bless me, no. It is either quite easy or—impossible.'"—Exchange.

BLACK FOX PELTS.

Only About Five Skins Are Secured Each Year.

In the estimation of trappers of the Canadian northland as well as in the eyes of the nobility of Russia there is only one king of beasts, the highly prized black fox. On an average five perfect pelts of this rare fur bearer are brought down from the northland each year and in rare years as many as ten or twelve, though each year thousands of men make a living trapping and the yearly catch of foxskins amounts to over 100,000 from Canada alone.

In no way except in color does the black fox differ from the red fox, whose pelt sells for about $2, or from the gray fox, whose winter coat is valued at from $150 to $400, but whenever a hunter can secure a black fox and remove its skin without marring the fur he is sure of receiving from $800 to $1,500 for his trophy. Not only is every black fox pelt bought as soon as taken, but a dozen Russian noblemen have paid agents traveling in North America all through the winter seeking out remote hillside farms and abandoned logging camps where it is possible that a shy and elusive black fox may have been seen.

Within the last twenty years a number of wealthy men who have owned fenced game preserves have spent vast sums of money in buying foxes alive and turning them loose within private inclosures. By and by it may be that some skilled or fortunate breeder will produce a black pup or perhaps a pair of black foxes may be captured alive, and from these a new breed of black foxes will arise and cause a great panic among the men who hunt for black foxes. He who can wrest the secret of breeding black foxes from nature is assured of riches past counting and can command the worshipful homage of the Russian nobility and aristocracy, who seem willing to sacrifice untold wealth for the pleasure of wearing overcoats made from the pelts of American black foxes.—Edmonton Cor. Toronto Globe.

GROWTH OF CARICATURE.

John Law's Wild Schemes Gave It a Tremendous Impetus.

Caricature is nowadays one of the principal methods of criticism. No movement can overreach the mark without eliciting dozens of works of art from caricaturists all over this and all other countries.

This branch of criticism and attack dates far back, but the greatest impulse it ever felt came from the age of tremendous speculation, when, in 1719 and 1730, John Law was manipulating things financial in France. Never before had the financial world been so carried off its feet as it was at that time. Members of the nobility were waiting for a chance to purchase shares in Law's schemes. Duchesses and ladies of high renown tried their most persuasive charms on Law in the attempt to get hold of shares. Men hired out their backs for writing desks, so great was the press of business in making contracts, and one hunchback is reputed to have made 100,000 francs in this way in a few weeks. The French went veritably mad over the schemes to become wealthy. Naturally the papers of the time, especially those of Holland, caricatured the state of affairs. There were pictures of all sorts caricaturing Law, the nobility, the schemes and everything connected with them.

It was this tremendous amount of pictorial work that first directed the energies of William Hogarth in London in this direction. Caricaturing began to be used more and more in the political field, and soon afterward it caused the shelving of Robert Walpole from the English ministry. Ever since then has caricaturing been one of the bitterest and most effectual methods of checking public men and their schemes.

Another Knock.

"Hotel clerks are cold hearted," sighed the shabby tragedian, who was traveling with a toothbrush and a compass.

"Speaking from experience, pal?" asked his barnstorming chum.

"Sure! I approached the clerk of the Red Dog inn and told him actors deserved special terms."

"Ah, indeed! And what did he say?"

"He said yes, they deserved six month terms in the county workhouse."—Chicago News.

No Fiction.

It was a clerk in a Detroit bookstore of whom a prim matron demanded a book for her son. "No fiction, please," she explained, "but absolute, literal truth, without unnecessary verbiage or absurdly fanciful pictures."

"Well, madam"— The bookseller paused, his eye running over his shelves; then, with a flash of inspiration, he took down a volume. "I should think this might meet your requirements," he said, and he handed her a popular geometry.

LEGAL WORD SPECIALISTS.

Have to Know Exact Shade of Meaning in Words and Phrases.

"Some people seem to think that an important legal document can be drawn up by a lawyer in the time it takes his client to smoke a cigar," remarked a gray haired law clerk the other day. "It takes time and the most scrupulous care to get things just right. If lawyers were not careful the Lord only knows where the clients would land.

"Why, I know a man in one of the great law offices who is a specialist in the exact shade of meaning of each word or phrase used in a legal document. Nothing goes out of that office without being submitted first to him to pass upon. Sometimes he will give a week to the study of but one short but very important paper, theorizing as to the possibilities of its meaning being construed this way and that. When he gets through with a document, however, and has submitted every word of it to the acid test there is practically no chance of its not being exactly right, as to its verbiage at least. In some cases, too, it is deemed desirable by clients to becloud the meaning of a contract so that there is a loophole for its being construed in another way in the event of certain contingencies occurring. That is where the services of an expert word juggler are indispensable.

"The biggest case that I ever heard of in this line was when one of the great corporations wished to issue some mortgage bonds against its property. A long contract had to be drawn, and the wording on the back of the bond had to be decided upon. The matter was so important that, after the attorneys themselves had decided on the forms to be used, it was turned over to two of these experts in verbiage.

"They looked up the dictionary meaning of practically every word used in the two documents and made innumerable changes and suggestions. Before the papers were finished thirty different drafts of each of the two documents had been made, and there was not a word used in the final form of the papers that had not been considered carefully, not only as to its individual meaning, but also as to its individual relation to the other words of the phrase or sentence containing it. It is safe to say that these two documents are never likely to be assailed successfully in a court of law and that they mean exactly what the corporation and its counsel wished them to mean."

ABOVE THE LAW.

Courts Have No Jurisdiction Over Foreign Ambassadors.

The chief of an embassy is an august being and one who boasts some remarkable privileges. It may be mentioned to begin with that in the land in which he is officiating an ambassador ranks immediately after the princes of the blood royal.

The ground on which an embassy stands is in theory as well as in practice the territory of the nation to which its principal occupant belongs. Even if a criminal were harbored in an embassy the police could not enter the premises without permission.

An ambassador is above the law of the country to which he is accredited. The courts have no jurisdiction over him, and, strangely enough, his subordinates and even his domestic servants are also inviolate. The humblest employee in the embassy if he commitied a punishable offense could not be arrested without the consent of his master, nor can an embassy official be imprisoned for debt.

Ambassadors are to be envied most of all perhaps for their freedom from the burden of taxation. They disburse not one penny in taxes, either directly or indirectly, and, as for the custom house, it is nonexistent so far as they are concerned. No duty whatever is charged in respect of wines, cigars, cigarettes, etc., that are consigned to them.

Again, their excellencies need not bother about taxes unless they please. That they do so is purely an act of grace on their part. They are not legally exempt from these tantalising demands on the purse, but if they declined to meet them there would be no means of enforcing payment.—Cassell's Journal.

If All Candidates Were White.

The word "candidate" is from the Latin "candidatus." Literally it means white robed, and it was thus called because in Rome those who sought office wore a glittering white toga. Fancy, if you can, all our modern Americans dressed in accordance with their political ambitions. In some sections there would be no such thing as a dark suit of clothes. Washington would simply be one shining center of universal whiteness.

Costs Sometimes.

"Politeness costs nothing," said the man of ready made wisdom.

"I guess," answered Mr. Cumrox, "that you never had any experiences with these cafe waiters who regulate their politeness by the size of the tip."

ROYAL RAGE.

A Story of Emperor William II. and His Mother.

In a character sketch of Emperor William II. in the American Magazine Octave Mirbeau tells an interesting story of the kaiser's relations with his royal mother. The incident was related by Prince Bismarck one night when he had been drinking too much. "And no one," remarks M. Mirbeau, "was more brutally sincere than Bismarck was under the influence of wine." Here is a part of the story:

"The relations between William and his mother, the Empress Frederick, became at last so bitter that William placed spies about her, even in the bedroom of his invalid father.

"Through one of these spies William learned of the existence of a journal which his father had kept for some years. Frederick had a taste for writing, and the fact that there was coldness between him and his son led William to fear that this secret journal might contain some criticism of his conduct.

"The empress, however, was clever enough to conceal the diary before her husband's death. Eluding the surveillance of her son, she sent the papers to her mother, Queen Victoria, or to her brother, then Prince of Wales, I don't remember which.

"Hardly had his father drawn his last breath when William over the dead body performed his first official act.

"It was to demand of his widowed mother the journal, which he termed a 'memorial.'

"The empress feigned ignorance. William insisted. He spoke as master, giving his mother the order to obey. She persisted in declaring that she knew nothing of the papers.

"'Well,' he commanded, purple with wrath, 'you will remain under close arrest until you have obeyed me!'

"Bismarck, arriving at Potsdam two hours after this, found the palace surrounded by squadrons of armed cavalry.

"The emperor, whom he found still exalted, told the old chancellor how he had met the disobedience of his mother.

"'And she need not expect pity or consideration until she has obeyed me,' he declared. 'You understand that, Mr. Chancellor? Until she has obeyed me!'

"The pupil had gone much too far. Bismarck saw at once that the buffoonery continued might mar the whole of William's reign. Later in life, he said, he used to wonder how he kept from laughing in his sovereign's face.

"What he did was to receive William's news with deferential silence and later, when the emperor was calmer, show him that his course was sure to meet with general disapproval. There was a way, he thought, of proceeding much more vigorously and at the same time efficaciously. Why not rather cut down the income of the empress, suspend her appanages?

"'I know her majesty,' said the good Bismarck. 'She has pride. Forced arrest she can brave out, accepting it as a sort of martyrdom, but the money, sire, the money! Who can resist money?'

"Further, he laid tactful stress upon the probable representations of England. 'Is it really the moment, sire?'

"The kaiser, becoming appeased, listened to Bismarck's counsel. The arrest of the empress was removed. The officers led their cavalry back to quarters, and William turned his attention to the details of his father's obsequies, which he wished to be most fastidious."

The Garrote.

The garrote is a thing that no man of nervous temperament should look at. Once seen it never can be forgotten. Just to think of it months afterward brings up a choking sensation which makes one long to tear away his collar and breathe the free air as deeply as he can. It rests upon a raised platform, an ordinary straight backed chair, with thin iron clasps on the elbows and legs of the chair. These are for the arms and ankles of the condemned criminal. At the top of the back of the chair is a band of iron, one end of which swings out so as to admit of a neck being inserted. This band snaps around in place, and all is ready. A twirl of a crank in back and as the band crushes the neck back a pin pierces the medulla oblongata.

Feminine Fortitude.

Comparisons of the relative fortitude of men and women are idle as odious. Parallel lines never meet, as we all know. Still, no man ever yet smiled with the toothache, while women have been known to manifest continued gayety under the trying combination of new shoes, a violent headache and a pin sticking straight into the shivering spine.—Exchange.

ALMSGIVING.

The Law In Europe at One Time Made It a Crime.

The secretary of the London Mendicity society reports that street begging is on the increase. He has statistics to prove his words, of course, but he claims that indiscriminate almsgiving is a crime.

It is interesting to recall that a code of European law in force for centuries did actually make almsgiving a crime, always punished severely, with death in certain cases. But this was 1,000 years ago, before the dawn of our happy civilization. It must be confessed, however, that there was an appearance of common sense about the famous Grajas code, which ruled Norway, Iceland and much of England doubtless in its time.

It began by laying down strict rules to make each family support its own indigent members or to show sufficient cause for the failure. This is the essential principle of a sound system of poor relief, which we have suffered to lapse under the direction of progress. Having thus provided for the respectable class of paupers, as it may be put briefly, the legislator could deal firmly, with roving mendicants and their abettors. And he did.

It is worth while to observe, however, that the family pauper had a guardian or trustee, appointed by the district council, who was responsible for his decent subsistence. If this man did not fulfill his duty or tried to escape it he incurred the terrible penalty called exclusion—confinement in his house for three years. Any one who found him outside was free to kill him.

They stood no nonsense in those days. An ablebodied person who begged was outlawed—equivalent to a sentence of death. And any one proved to have been wandering for fifteen days without visible means of subsistence was held to be a beggar "within the meaning of the act" and treated accordingly. But the clause most interesting to us was that which decreed that any man, whatever his station, who gave money or money's worth to a vagrant, at the district assembly or on his way thither, should be punished with exclusion. The crime of almsgiving was well understood in those days. Perhaps I should add that the Grajas code was officially promulgated in 1116. But it had been in force, as the preamble declares, for centuries.

What We Eat.

The Hollander eats decayed shark, but turns with disgust from bread and butter.

The Chinese are fond of stewed dog, but consider beef unhealthy.

The Turk deems dried grasshoppers a delicacy, but an oyster fills him with abhorrence.

The English eat periwinkles, a kind of sea snail, but will have none of the French escargot—a land snail fattened on vine leaves and strawberries.

The West Indian native adores a supper of baked snake and palm worms fried in their own fat, but the very thought of stewed rabbit makes him sudder.

The African bushman eats caterpillars, but scorns limburger cheese.

Savages eat all eggs, barring none. They eat lizards' eggs, alligators' eggs, turtles' eggs, ants' eggs, snakes' eggs. But savages consider crab meat unholy.

Seaweed as Food.

Is seaweed as a food likely to become popular in this country?

A seaweed banquet, at which nothing but dehydrated seaweed was allowed to appear on the table, has just taken place at Wisconsin, U.S.A., and inquiries made in London show that the article is by no means unknown to English epicures.

Messrs. Fortnum, Mason & Co. procure for their customers a delicacy known as "laver," which is seaweed picked up on the shores of Devon and Cornwall, and highly esteemed as an accompaniment to roast mutton and red currant jelly.

Another kind of seaweed, known as "wrack," is obtained on the Irish coast, and is similarly used.

Legend of a Church Steeple.

The most notable thing about East Bergholt is the way in which its worshipers are called to prayer. In the churchyard there is a quaint looking affair which has the appearance of a huge cage, for, though of wood, it is wickerlike in construction. Inside this building are the church bells, mounted as in the ordinary way, but without ropes. Each bell is in charge of a ringer, who lays hold of the bell wheel and swings it over. There is a legend that when the church steeple was about to be built the devil came during the night and demolished the work of the previous day. This unfinished tower is dated 1525.

Slander.

A clergyman of a country village in New Jersey desired his clerk to give notice that there would be no service in the afternoon, as he was going to officiate with another clergyman. The clerk announced at the close of the service, "I am desired to give notice that there will be no service this afternoon, as our minister is going a-fishing with another clergyman."

To Cure Hay Fever.

Take one pound of ragweed leaves (with stems, flower and seeds indiscriminately or without them), boil in two quarts of water down to one quart and strain. Divide this one quart into three parts—viz, one pint and two half pints. On the first day take one-twelfth of the one pint every hour—twelve doses. The second day take one-twelfth of one half pint every hour, and on the third day take the same quantity—viz, one-twelfth of one-half pint.

Fish and Salt.

And the mystery still lingers—why is it necessary to salt a fish caught in the salt ocean? A sea bass caught off Seabright requires just as much salt in the seasoning as a black bass caught in the saltless waters of Lake Erie.

A Tuxedo Coat—

Is quite a necessity these days, if you want to be smartly dressed.

For a stag party, a theatre party etc. where no ladies accompany you. For banquets and all functions attended by males only.

We are particularly proud of this garment. Nothing has been spared to make this coat a feature of our well assorted stock of men's clothes.

Tuxedoes are silk lined. The lapels are square and modestly wide with silk to the edge. You are invited to come in and try one of these. Prices run from $18.00.

WANTS HER CHILD.

Montreal Woman Says Woman is Teaching Her Boy Spiritualism.

Montreal, Nov. 18.—There is a very strange case now before the Montreal courts and one that is being followed not only by the public at large, but by the colony of spiritualists in the city.

It appears that one Madame Dickson, who when she thought she was going to die gave her little son Jos. over to a woman named Madame Cleophas Mercier, a well-known French spirit medium. Madame Dickson recovered, however, and has applied for a writ of habeas corpus to recover the child. She alleges that her boy is being brought up in the religion of the spirits and she objects to all this, Madame Dickson claims that her son is being taught that he is the child of Madame Mercier, the head of the spirit band in her locality.

It appears that the boy is told that he died and that his soul entered Mrs. Mercier's body, and she transmitted it to him again, all of which is abhorrent to the real mother and to the people generally of the Catholic faith.

MAY CHANGE FISCAL YEAR.

Premier Says Legislature Cannot Meet Till Accounts Are Closed.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—Premier Whitney stated yesterday that there was no basis for the idea that the Legislature would be called earlier than usual. It will be two months yet before the new House will begin to think of assembling.

Sir James also stated that the question of the public accounts was one which bore directly on the meeting of the Legislature. Nothing can be done until they are ready. At present the fiscal year closes on Dec. 31. The books, however, remain open for some weeks, and the result is delay in public business which cannot be avoided.

The only remedy is a change of the date of closing the fiscal year, and Sir James said that this was being considered at present, but in the absence of the Provincial Treasurer nothing could be determined.

BANK CLERK TAKES LIFE.

Montreal Youth's Body Found In Lake—Mortified by Blow.

Montreal, Nov. 18.—On the 26th of August Leon Renaud, a clerk in the City and District Savings Bank, disappeared after having an altercation with one of the seniors of the institution.

A blow was struck and Young Renaud was never seen or heard of after until his body was fished out of the St. Lawrence yesterday at Pierreville, Lake St. Pierre.

It is supposed he was mortified at the indignity, and committed suicide.

Voodoo Test Succeeded.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 18.—Sam Haywood, a prominent farmer near Monticello, was called to his door on Sunday night and assassinated by a man standing at the door, who emptied a charge of buckshot into his body.

Louis Hursch, arrested on suspicion Monday night that he was the slayer, committed suicide in a dramatic manner. He was taken before a coroner's jury and denied his guilt. A negro juryman demanded the "voodoo" test, calling for Hursch's gun, saying that if it was discharged and Hursch was guilt, it would "sweat blood at the muzzle." The gun was discharged and Hursch mistaking the rust on the barrel for blood, plunged a knife into his throat, expiring before the jury without uttering a word.

Bids Jews Marry Outsiders.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Intermarriage with other races, in violation of accepted Scriptural injunctions and years of custom, was boldly advocated as a solution of the Jewish problem by Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch, in a sermon before the Sinai Congregation. As the alternatives to intermarriage Dr. Hirsch offered emigration and segregation, and the ultimate decline of the Jewish people in the world's civilization and progress.

In declaring in favor of intermarriage, Dr. Hirsch attacked the "racial purity" argument of orthodox Jewish leaders who oppose intermarriage, declaring that no such thing as a distinctive Jewish race existed.

Liverpool Grain and Produce.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 17.—Wheat—Spot, firm; No. 2 red western winter, 7s 11¾d; futures, quiet; Dec., 7s 11¾d; March, 7s 9¼d; May, 7s 8¼d.

Corn—Spot, quiet; old American, mixed, 6s 10½d; futures, quiet; Jan., 6s 6d. March, 6s 5½d.

Hams—Short cut, quiet, 48s.

Bacon—Long clear middles, light, quiet, 51s 6d; do., heavy, quiet, 48s.

Lard—Prime western, in tierces, dull, 47s 9d; American refined, in pails, quiet, 48s 3d.

New York Dairy Market.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Butter—Firm; unchanged; receipts, 11,673.

Cheese—Steady; unchanged; receipts, 4824.

Eggs—Firm; unchanged; receipts, 2877.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Are Steady—Hogs and Cattle Are Lower at Chicago.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—London cables for cattle are steady at 11½c to 12c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 11c to 11½c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market were large, 114 carloads being reported by the railways, composed of 1970 cattle, 904 hogs, 2043 sheep and lambs, with 66 calves.

Exporters.

None were offered and none were wanted, as there is little or no shipping space available. A few bulls were on sale, but even the best of these were not bought for export purposes. Two choice bulls, 1700 lbs. each, sold at $4.50 per cwt.

Butchers.

Prime picked cattle were scarce, and worth as much as export cattle, ranging from $4.75 to $5; but $5 per cwt. was refused for two very choice animals, good enough for the Christmas or any other market. The best loads of butchers' cattle sold all the way from $4.25 to $4.60, but there were very few brought the latter figure, as will be seen by sales given below. Medium butchers' sold from $3.75 to $4 per cwt.; common, at $3.25 to $3.50; cows, $2.25 to $3.60; canners, $1 to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report the run of stockers not as large as was expected, but with the exception of the good to choice feeders, trade was on the draggy side. There were many farmers and dealers looking for good quality feeders, which remained firm in price. The Messrs. Murby report prices as follows: Best feeders, 950 to 1050 lbs. each, at $3.60 to $4; best feeders, 850 to 950 lbs. each, at $3.40 to $3.75; best stockers, 650 to 800 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.40; common and medium stockers, $2 to $2.75.

Milkers and Springers.

Good to choice milkers met a strong market, but common light cows and late springers were not in demand. Buyers were here from Montreal, as it seems to be hard to satisfy their demands. Medium to good cows sold from $45 to $65 each, and extra choice quality cows brought $70.

Veal Calves.

Calves sold at $3 to $6.25 per cwt. Those sold at $3 are a disgrace to any market, and especially to the farmer that raised them. But they all find a market.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were large and prices easy. Export ewes, $4.25 to $4.40; rams, $3 to $3.50. lambs, $4 to $4.60 per cwt.

Hogs.

Receipts were not large, only 904 from all sources. Mr. Harris quotes selects at $6.25, fed and watered, and lights at $6 per cwt.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 17.—Cattle—Receipts, 1200 head, fairly active and 10c lower; prime steers, $6.25 to $6.50; butcher, $4.25 to $5.25; heifers, $3.50 to $5.40; bulls, $3 to $4.40.

Veals—Receipts, 200 head; slow and 50c lower; $5.50 to $6.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 15,200 head; slow and steady; heavy, $5.50 to $6; mixed, $5.75 to $5.90; yorkers, $5 to $5.50; pigs, $4 to $4.90; roughs, $5 to $5.50; dairies, $5.25 to $5.75.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 8000 head; slow; sheep, steady; lambs, 15c lower; lambs, $4 to $4.10; yearlings, $4 to $4.65.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Beeves—Receipts, 1044; no trading in live cattle; feeling weak. Exports to-day, 721 cattle, and 513 sheep; to-morrow, 4200 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 771; veals, quiet, but about steady; barnyard calves, dull; grassers, steady; veals, $5 to $8; barnyard calves, $3.25; light weights, $6 to $6.75.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 5139; sheep, steady, at $3.50 to $4.12½; culls, $2.50 to $3.25; lambs, $4.50 to $6.12½; culls, $3.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 6600; feeling steady; state hogs, $6.90.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Cattle—Receipts, 7000; market was barely steady; steers, $4.60 to $7.80; cows, $3 to $5.25; heifers, $3.50 to $4.60; bulls, $2.75 to $4.50; calves, $3 to $7.50; stockers and feeders, $3.50 to $4.35.

Hogs—Receipts estimated at 25,000; market 5c to 10c lower; choice heavy shipping, $5.80 to $6.20; butchers, $5.75 to $6.25; light mixed, $5.40 to $5.65; packing, $5.50 to $5.75; pigs, $4.25 to $5.35; bulk of sales, $5.60 to $5.75.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts estimated at 20,000; market 10c to 15c higher; sheep, $4.25 to $5; lambs, $4.75 to $6.10; yearlings, $4 to $5.50.

Cheese Markets.

CAMPBELLFORD, Ont., Nov. 17.—There were 434 boxes boarded; 216 sold at 11⅜c; balance at 11⅝c.

Made $20,000 by Begging.

Detroit, Nov. 18.—On information that Nikola George, an Italian, who formerly lived in Chicago, accumulated a fortune of $20,000, largely by professional begging, United States immigration officials barred the man as an undesirable when he attempted to return to the United States side after a two years' residence in Ottawa, Ont., and he is staying now in Windsor, with his wife and seven children, in the hope of getting across the border later on.

He was also turned back at Niagara Falls.

Died In London.

London, Nov. 18.—David B. Murray, who at one time chief of police of Winnipeg and prominent in the west in its early days, died here yesterday, aged 69.

Death Was Natural.

Pekin, Nov. 18.—Nothing has developed in Pekin to substantiate the reports that the Emperor of China or the Dowager Empress was poisoned, or otherwise the victims of foul play. All the foreign legations here agree that the Emperor met a natural death. Opinion varies, however, regarding the end of the Dowager Empress.

Two Die In B.C. Wreck.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 18.—Two were killed and one badly injured yesterday morning in a wreck of a Canadian Pacific freight train, which ran into a washout near Lyton.

MUSKRATS HOMES PLENTIFUL ON THE RIVER

Are High Above the Water From Park Street to Rice Lake—More Numerous Than for Many Years.

THEIR HOUSES FOUND IN THE WEEDS AND MARSHES

A genuine surprise awaits those acquainted with the Otonabee River, who have not been on its waters since the last of summer. In practically all the weed beds and marshes the muskrats are plentiful, and their queer, oddly shaped houses, unusually high above water at this season, are plainly seen along the shores like so many trussed of hay. They almost resemble bee hives, except that they are roughly finished on the exterior with protruding ends of rushes and marsh weeds.

A gentleman, who has recently been down to the lake, states that he was surprised when he saw them. At first he did not know what they were, not having seen them before, but he was soon informed by a companion that they were the homes of muskrats. The first is seen on the south side of the river, below the foot of Park street, and then opposite Crawford's Grove, there is a whole colony in the weeds. Going on down the river they are even more numerous, and in some of the low-lying places they are found in whole "cities." Mink trappers say that they get into their traps and are a nuisance in that respect. They should be very plentiful next spring when the season opens for their capture.

Now that the water is exceedingly low these houses are more prominent than ever before. They are rounded on the top, the rats gaining entrance from underneath. They are well made and warmly lined. In these the rats live through the winter, feeding on what they find under the water.

MONARCH TAKES LOAD OF WOOD DOWN RIVER ON HER FINAL TRIP

The steamer Monarch came into port yesterday and will be employed for a day or two on local work, and on her return home will pick up a load of wood along the river. This is a reversal from past days when wood was brought into the city in large quantities.

SPECIAL RATES GIVEN TO COLLEGIATE AND THE NORMAL STUDENTS

The pupils of the Collegiate Institute and the Normal School of Peterborough will doubtless turn out in large numbers to see "All the Comforts of Home," and the presentation of the Examiner Road Race prizes at the Grand Opera House, on Friday night of this week, as they will occupy the best seats in the house at half price. This will be a very enjoyable evening for the pupils as the critics who saw it on its last presentation pronounced it genuinely artistic, and one of the finest productions ever seen here.

NEW CORRESPONDENT IS APPOINTED FOR THE LABOUR GAZETTE

Mr. Arthur Sharp, president of the Pattern-makers' Union, of Peterborough, has been appointed correspondent of the Labour Gazette from Peterborough and district, in the stead of Alderman W. J. Johnston, who recently resigned the position.

TICKETS READY FOR ALL THE STARTERS IN EXAMINER ROAD RACES

The theatre tickets for all the juniors and seniors who entered and started in the Examiner Road Races on Thanksgiving Day, are now at the Examiner office and those who are entitled to them may get them on application. The prizes will be presented at the production of "All the Comforts of Home" on Friday night by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding, or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50 cents.

REPUDIATES HIS FRIENDS

In a leaded article, under the heading "Editorial Notes," the Peterborough Review has the following:

> "It is, as we have said, to be regretted that we have in our Dominion such men as Mr. Hocken, and such associations as the Orange Order. They do not make for the peace and happiness of the community. They are the apostles of strife, the breeders of bad blood, the enemies of that Canadian fellowship and friendship which we would like to see grow strong and vigorous in the upbuilding of our nation. When the history of our time is written the name of Mr. Hocken, editor of the Orange Sentinel, and the name of Dr. Sproule, Grand Sovereign of the Orange Order and President of the Orange Sentinel Printing and Publishing Company, will not appear amongst those to whom Canada is indebted for anything worthy of remembrance. They will be merely referred to as men who in their day were the champions of an association whose history both at home and abroad has been written in blood.—The Catholic Record."

The Examiner, which has never known nor expressed religious prejudice, is not called upon to pass an opinion upon the situation here set forth in the editorial columns of the Review, which adopts the Catholic Record's views as its own, but we will venture to suggest that certain gentlemen of Peterborough, when they read this expression of the Review's sentiments, will be tempted to exclaim, in the language of the old London coster song:

> "When I thinks on what I am
> And what I used to was,
> I thinks I throwed myself away
> Without sufficient cos."

Self Inflicted Death Of Mr. R. P. Davidson, Manager Of Traders Bank At Lakefield

The citizens of Lakefield were greatly shocked last night by the report which rapidly spread through the village that Mr. Robert P. Davidson, manager of the Traders Bank, had committed suicide by shooting himself through the head with a revolver.

The shooting took place probably about 7.30. At this time Mr. Davidson, who had been at the office conversing with Mr. R. P. Sherris, inspector of the agencies of the bank, and Mr. Harry Simpson, accountant in the Lakefield branch, retired to the rear of the bank premises. On his failure to rejoin these gentlemen after the lapse of over half an hour, they proceeded to the rear premises and at 8.05 o'clock Mr. Davidson was found lying in the lavatory in an unconscious condition with a bullet wound in the head in the neighbourhood of the temple. Medical assistance was at once secured, and Dr. Fraser and Dr. Baker were promptly in attendance, but in spite of the most unremitting efforts, the patient sank and, without any return of consciousness, died at three o'clock this morning.

The cause for Mr. Davidson's self-violence was probably temporary insanity, for it was from some cause entirely unconnected with the condition of the affairs of this branch of the bank in his charge. There was no shortage or anything associated with any wrongdoing on the part of Mr. Davidson and his staff. There was possibly the usual worry but probably no more than usual over the accounts of the customers.

The arrangements for the funeral are not known as the relatives of the deceased have not yet arrived in the village as they are expected to do.

Mr. Davidson's home was in Toronto. He joined the Bank 18 years ago, and was regarded as a first-class officer, coming to take charge of Lakefield agency in 1902, where he made a host of personal and business friends by virtue of his genial and obliging disposition.

He was about 33 years of age. He was married about four years ago to Miss Beasley, of Windsor, who with one child, a little girl, survives him.

Twenty-seven Launches Are Being Stored In Rye's Boat House

Like the hammock under the old, shady apple tree, the lawn mower and garden hose, the back kitchen screen door and all the other accompaniments of summer, the launches which have provided so much pleasure for their owners on the Otonabee, are now being dragged up the slide to be stored away in Mr. Rye's boat-house, there to remain in inactivity until the blue bird whistle again from the telegraph wires and the little gray birds trills its welcome call from the budding lilac bush.

Twenty-seven launches will find accommodation in the boat house, and Mr. Rye has already stored away six. Practically all the boats that were moored along Rye's wharf are being taken into the boat house, the canoes that were formerly on the first floor having been taken up stairs, leaving room for the launches which are replacing them.

New Reinforced Concrete Bridge Is Now Completed

The completion of the new bridge at Buckhorn has been reached and with it one of the most serviceable structures of the county of Peterborough. It is constructed entirely from reinforced concrete and made to stand the wear and tear of traffic no matter whether it be traction engines or stone crushers.

The bridge is 397 feet in length and in width is 14 feet clear. The dam beneath it is also completed. It has been built of concrete also with reinforced girders. The contractors, in this work were Mr. David Conroy & Sons.

The Poultry Association Prepare For Coming Show

The Peterborough Poultry Association is now in the midst of its preparations for its first annual show, which takes place on Jan. 5th, 6th and 7th. The officers and directors state that the show will be a great success and if the manner in which they are working is any criterion it certainly will be successful. The prize lists are now being printed and will be ready in a few days. As soon as they are issued they will be distributed among the poultry fanciers of the province.

It is expected that prominent exhibitors will be here for the occasion and those who attend will be rewarded by seeing some of the best birds in Ontario.

ABNORMAL INFLUX OF SETTLERS TO THE WEST

Homestead Entries for Two Months Equal Whole of Last Year—Quebec Marine Office Embroglio—Closure of Debate Proposed.

THE EXAMINER'S DAILY OTTAWA NEWS LETTER

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—Ottawa society received a distinct shock this week in the death of two of its most admired members, Alfred Evanturel and Sir Henri Joly, the knight "sans peur et sans reproche."

I am informed that much interest continues to be taken in the new rural mail system. Mr. George Rose, General Superintendent, is at present in Nova Scotia, laying out routes there, and will take up Ontario applications on his return. Those interested should consult their parliamentary representative, as it is impossible for the Government to be acquainted with the details of local needs.

The revelations in connection with the Quebec Marine Office have astonished nobody here, the only wonder being that the old Conservative appointees should have been allowed for so long to pursue the old Conservative methods. Those "good old times" have long passed away at the capital, but there are many of us who recall how Sir John Macdonald's graceless nephew, Cumberland Clarke, used to charge $1,000 a year in the public accounts for "cab hire," for his own uses, while Sir John as a rule preferred to walk, and how Bob Kilally and his coterie were allowed to run up a long bill at "Teapot" Robinson's for "ink," the said ink being usually marked with three X.X.X.'s, and bearing the name of "Hennessey," and adding greatly to the enjoyment of their supposed duties by the favoured clerks. All this sort of thing passed away here years ago, but it seems to have clung to Quebec. It is the general opinion here that if Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on coming into office, had made a clean sweep of these old Conservative appointees, he would not now be called upon to punish them, or be held up in Conservative organs as answerable for their iniquities.

It is remarked how few of the members elect have yet visited Ottawa. Usually, after a general election, we are accustomed to see the new members flocking in to "get their bearings," and to make acquaintance with the department. With the few who have been here there seems to be little idea of what the work of the coming session may consist of, but it is believed there will be a very general "house-cleaning," in regard to the outside civil service, and that statutory regulations will be provided that will prevent in the future the abuse of the confidence of the Government by its remote subordinates.

It is also hinted that the coming session may witness the introduction of the "closure." A gentleman from one of the New Brunswick country districts informed me that if he thought George E. Foster would be permitted to talk a session out to the extent of six months, as he did last year, he would resign his seat, as he couldn't afford to spare the time from his business, and there are many others who feel the same way.

During the past two months a total of 23,391 homesteads were taken up in the Western Provinces, which is a larger number than during the whole of last year. The figures indicate the growing confidence in the future of these provinces, which is felt abroad and particularly in the United States, whence a very large proportion of these new settlers come. It is a splendid result growing out of the wise and progressive policy of the Government, and in particular, establishes beyond question the great usefulness to the future of the country of the new Transcontinental Railway. It goes a long way to show that when last year Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that as the Nineteenth Century had belonged to the United States, so the Twentieth Century would belong to Canada, he voiced a prophetic vision, which is fast being realized.

RUNAWAY RESULTS IN THE BREAKING OF A DOCTOR'S VEHICLE

This morning about 10.30 o'clock Dr. Leach's horse became frightened at a car near the corner of Dublin and George streets and ran away. The buggy struck an electric light pole and the wheels were badly smashed. The horse was recaptured farther up George street.

Chandos Lumberman Travels Six Miles On Horseback While Suffering From Broken Leg

Six miles on horseback with a broken leg was the painful experience on Monday of Mr. Jack Phillips, a young lumberman, employed in the McDonald Estate lumber camp in Burleigh. Phillips, unfortunately, had his leg broken below the knee by the falling of a log on it, near the lumber camp. This occurred about noon on Monday and in order to get to his home in Chandos, Phillips had to ride on horseback a distance of six miles to Mr. McIlmoyle's residence, on the Burleigh-Apsley road. Despite the intense pain he pluckily finished his journey from where he was driven by Mr. Bert McIlmoyl through Apsley to his home.

Dr. Bell, of Apsley, was summoned and found that his leg had swollen so badly by hanging downwards that it was almost impossible to set the fracture.

This circumstance goes to show the trials that a lumberman meets with in the northern woods, and should gain for these heroic men more sympathy than they are now being tendered by their more fortunate brethren of the city, where transportation facilities are of more modern type.

Will Build New Mat Factory; Wants Site On The Hilliard Farm

Mr. Wm. Weatherstone, proprietor of the mat manufacturing establishment, at the corner of Water and Simcoe streets, waited upon the Manufacturers Committee of the City Council, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon, to apply for the privilege of purchasing an acre of ground on the Hilliard Farm for the purpose of erecting thereon a new factory, which, at the start, will be 30 by 100 feet. He stated that he had been looking over the farm and would like to secure a location on Hilliard street, or the site of the old grist mill at the north end of Water street. He explained he did not want any fixed assessment or reduction in taxes.

The Manufacturers' Committee approved of the proposition, and while they did not definitely decide to grant the acre of land, they looked over a number of sites with Mr. Weatherstone to-day and it is likely that the matter will be arranged.

Since Mr. Weatherstone commenced operations in his present premises the business has grown to such an extent that it has been found necessary to provide more room, hence the request to the committee. He manufactures door mats and other articles of a similar nature.

Meetings Held In The County By The Sunday School Association

During last week a series of meetings were held throughout the county under the auspices of the Sunday School Association. These began with a meeting at Bridgenorth on Monday night, which was followed by meetings afternoon and evening at Bethel Church, Otonabee, on Tuesday, the Methodist Church, Warsaw, on Wednesday, Norwood on Thursday and Havelock on Friday.

These meetings were addressed by Mr. H. N. Brown, B.A., of Toronto, Teacher Training Secretary of the Provincial Association, who spoke at all the meetings. The subjects discussed being "The Organized Adult Bible Class," "The Average Sunday School," and "The Training of Teachers." At most of the meetings addresses were also given by local workers, and Mr. R. Lees, Public School Inspector, spoke at some of them on "The Teaching of Temperance in the Sunday School."

Minor Accident On G. T. R. This Morning On Siding At Hastings

Hastings, Nov. 18.—Two cars jumped the rails on one of the sidings here this morning, due to some mishap to the mechanism of one of the cars. No delay was caused to any of the other trains as the main line was not obstructed. The auxiliary from Lindsay arrived on the scene shortly after dinner time and the work was nearly completed an hour afterward. The cars were a part of a way freight that was going through to Belleville. Just the exact cause of the accident would not be ascertained.

Peterborough Lumber Co. Camps In Good Condition

Dr. Bell, of Apsley, has this week visited the lumber camps of the Peterborough Lumber Company in Anstruther, and reports that his trip of inspection has found most satisfactory conditions prevailing. The camps are situated on Eel's Lake and two of them contain some 120 men.

Trent Canal Steamers Still Busily Engaged With Work

The Government Steamer Empire is still busily engaged in the Trent Canal. This morning she made a trip from Lakefield with a boiler and small engine, which she brought from Buckhorn for use at the Lift Lock. She has been working with the dredge above the Lakefield wharf, which finished its work yesterday. It has been moved down to the proposed new wharf in front of the Cement Works and will be attended by the Empire.

The Beaver Butler is engaged at work between Lakefield and Young's Point, taking out the water-soaked boom timbers and replacing them with new ones.

YOUNG C. P. R. WORKMAN BROUGHT TO TORONTO ON MORNING TRAIN

Thos. Abbey, the young C. P. R. brakeman who was injured in last Saturday's rear-end collision, was taken to Toronto this morning on the local. His father and sister had come down from the city on Saturday and were relieved to find that his injuries were not likely to prove fatal. He was conveyed from St. Joseph's Hospital to the station in the Dan Spence Ambulance. His injuries are confined to his head and legs, but he is expected to soon recover

ANNUAL MEETING OF CANADIAN CLUB TO-MORROW NIGHT

The annual meeting of the Canadian Club will be held in the Council chambers to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock for the election of officers and the transaction of other important business. Rev. Canon Davidson will address the Club on his recent trip to the Old Country.

FORMAL OPENING OF NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

Some Prominent Men in Education to be Here on Nov. 27th—Ceremony to Take Place at 3 o'clock—Chairman Robert Fair to Preside.

ORCHESTRA PRESENT FOR AN EVENING PROMENADE

The Reception Committee of the Board of Education held a meeting last night to consider plans for the formal opening of the new Collegiate Institute, on Nov. 27th. Men prominent in educational circles will be here, including Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education; Mr. J. Seath, M.A., LL.D., Superintendent of Education; Dr. Pakenham, of the Technical School, Toronto, and A. H. U. Colquhoun, B.A., L.L.D., Deputy Minister of Education. In addition to these speakers Mayor Rush will also give an address.

The visitors will be met at the train by the Chairman of the Board and others, and will be taken to the Oriental, where dinner will be served. At 1.30 they go to the Normal School and at three o'clock the ceremony at the Collegiate Institute will take place in the reception room.

At eight o'clock the building will be thrown open to the public for promenading. An orchestra will be in attendance.

Mr. Robt. Fair, Chairman of the Board, will be the chairman for the opening ceremonies.

BUT FEW FARM HELPERS WILL BE WITHOUT WORK

Many of the farm hands who have been employed throughout the county, are now finding themselves out of work and with no chance of obtaining other in the city. This is not the case in every instance, for not a few of the men are being kept on through the winter. Others will find new places, and while there are those who will be idle as far as their former work is concerned, the situation is better than was expected last spring when they were engaged.

INDIANS CAMPING ALONG THE C.P.R. FOR TRAPPING

A number of Indians from Hiawatha are encamped at a point about five miles east of the city, where they are engaged in trapping mink and any other animals that are in season. The men who have formerly had good catches at this point state that the Indians are getting all the game. Mink skins are worth something these days and the Indians will stay in their teepees until they have caught everything in sight.

THE PIE SOCIAL A GRAND SUCCESS

Enjoyable Programme at George Street Church Last Evening Under Auspices of the Ladies' Aid.

A most successful and enjoyable "Pie Social" was held last night in the Sunday School room of the George Street Methodist Church, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. There was a large attendance and the evening was most pleasantly spent. The principal feature of the refreshments served was pie of all varieties. A candy table, presided over by Mesdames Lindsay, Little and Davies, was well patronized during the evening. Rev. E. A. Pearson made a most acceptable chairman, and the following enjoyable programme was rendered:

Instrumental duet — Mrs. Gumpricht and Miss Wilhelmina Gumpricht.
Reading—Mr. John Nugent.
Solo—Mrs. Seward.
Solo—Mr. Skitch.
Instrumental selection—Miss Gumpricht.
Solo—Mrs. D. McGregor.

AN HONOURED NAME.

With the passing of Sir Henry Joly de Lotbiniere, there is removed a prominent figure in the public and social life of the country—in both senses he was a knightly man, sans peur et sans reproche. Politicaly his high character left a lasting impress upon the public life of Quebec, and in all his public relations, as a member of the Laurier Government, and as Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, he made the most of his responsibilities, not for himself—for in this regard he did not greatly succeed—but for the interests he so faithfully served. He was a high type of a man and statesman and though there was little in his life of the atir, which makes a commotion in the world, yet he did his duty faithfully in all the relations of life, and leaves behind him an honoured name, the grandest legacy a man can leave to his posterity and the world.

INTENSIVE FARMING.

Mr. C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, is an authority on agriculture. When he talks on farming and farming methods he knows what he is talking about. In an address delivered before the Canadian Club, Toronto, he says that if the farmers of Ontario would put into practice the improved farming and produce raising methods already known, they could double the value of the annual products of their farm. Admitting this statement to be correct, its importance can be estimated in the light of the fact that there are 175,000 farms in Ontario, representing a value of twelve hundred million dollars in the matter of investment alone. The annual crop output amounts to two hundred millions of dollars. If improved methods should result in doubling this enormous figure the benefit to the country would be proportionately enlarged. The dictum of Mr. James on this subject, can readily and safely be accepted, but apart from that there can be shown concrete proof of the approximate, if not absolute correctness of his estimate. A local farmer was speaking to The Examiner yesterday, and his conversation illustrated how advanced methods including foresight had tended to greatly improve the profits of his branch of farming—milk production. He says that during the season, in spite of the dryness of the weather, he has had a fair flow of milk from his herd. By taking thought he has had a supply of green feed for his stock up to the present, so that even now and for some time yet during the winter he has and will have a supply of green feed. He procured some seed of cabbage Kail, a new soiling crop which he sowed and now has green for his milking cows. It makes a splendid flow of milk and his cows now yield as fine a flow of milk as at other times of the year when green feed is abundant. The new green crop is not affected by frost, and by the grower mentioned, is considered a valuable addition to the available fodder crops. This is not mentioned as proof of the complete correctness of Mr. James' estimate, that by improved methods the farmer can double the crop production of his farm; it is cited to show that care and foresight can be made to very largely increase the profit of farm operations. It is well known, that in the dairying industry with cheese as the product the adoption of improved methods in this county has improved the quality of stock, increased its milk productivity, improved the quality of cheese, and consequently its price to the great material advantage of the patron. Even though improved methods might not exactly double product or profit, there is no doubt that the improvement will be sufficiently great to very amply compensate for the extra trouble and possible expense involved. No great advance is made without some extra trouble. Slipshod methods in farming or anything else are easy methods in practice and also light in results. Improved methods in any sphere of industry involve more care and concentration of mind and effort, but the results give full compensation in the way of satisfaction and profit. What is worth doing is worth doing well, is a proverb particularly applicable to the farming industry in any of its many branches. The fact seems to be that farmers work too much land with its attendant temptation to scamp cultivation or get results per area rather than from depth. In older countries, Great Britain and notably Japan, where land is scarce, the returns produced from limited areas are astonishing to the Canadian farmer, who counts on spread of areas rather than thoroughness of culture. Concentration of culture gives better results than superficial and wide spread surface scratching of the soil.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The elections in Newfoundland may be regarded as a cod-fell to the popular will. Premier Bond appealed, among other things, on the score of his ability to maintain the price of codfish. The price fell and the Premier fell too—his working majority in the last Legislature having been cut down to zero.

The city council of Brantford at its meeting on Monday night, decided to submit a local option bylaw to the ratepayers in January next. It is stated that there is some doubt as to the legality of the bylaw, but it is probable that this question will be dealt with and settled before the vote is taken.

According to the claims of the Government party in Newfoundland, the recent general elections which resulted in a tie—the return of an equal number of Government and Opposition members—the contest turned on the question of annexation to Canada. The result would seem to indicate a very considerable revolution in sentiment, upon the question of the islanders casting in their lot with Canada. We have been taught to believe that the Newfoundlanders were irreconcilably hostile to the idea of uniting with the Canadian Confederation. It this hostility has been as greatly mitigated as the election results show there is some hope that the time will not be long coming when it will disappear altogether.

The success of the Grand Trunk Railway in the electrification of the Sarnia Tunnel and the shops at Stratford and Battle Creek has given such pracical proof of the advantages of electricity as a motive power that the electrification is decided upon of the great shops at Point St. Charles, Montreal, to which are to be added buildings equipped with a plant of the most modern type for the construction as well as repair of locomotives. The required power will be produced by the company's own turbo-generators from coal hauled from the mines by the company's own trains. The uses of electricity are bound to receive more extensive practical application as time advances, with resulting benefit to the agencies that supply the means for their application.

DOWNEYVILLE ITEMS OF INTEREST

Some Visitors in the Community—Other News Notes

Examiner Special.

Downeyville, Nov. 17.—Mrs. Paul of Montana, is at present visiting her sister, Mrs. H. Matthews.

The Misses Flossie O'Brien, Mary and Ethel Harrington, of St. Joseph's Academy, Lindsay, spent Sunday and Thanksgiving at their homes here.

Miss Lottie Fitzpatrick and Miss Delphine Raggott spent Sunday under the parental roof.

A number of our people attended the sale of Mr. John Jackson, ex-Reeve of Ops, which was a huge success.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Callaghan left on Tuesday for their new home in Lindsay. Mr. Jos. H. Lucas and Michael Dorgan will take up Mr. Callaghan's business in the blacksmith shop.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Brien spent Saturday in Peterborough.

The Rev. Fathers Bearman and Johnson, of Chicago, will open a mission in Lindsay on Sunday, which will last two weeks.

Miss Numa Matthews entertained a large number of her little friends at the home of her uncle, Mr. A. Morrissey, on Thanksgiving.

Miss Lena Carroll and Miss B. McGuire spent Thanksgiving at the former's home in Trenton.

The Carat.

This tiny standard of weight, although not one person in a million ever makes practical use of it, possesses great prestige because of its connection with diamonds and other precious stones. But how many readers have any clear idea of the weight represented by a carat? In England it is customary to reckon 151½ carats to the ounce troy. This makes the carat equivalent to 205.3 milligrams, or 3.1683 grains. An attempt is now being made to secure general recognition in all countries of a metric standard carat of 200 milligrams.

An Oklahoma Curiosity.

Oklahoma presents a citizen who for weight and breadth probably has no equal in the country. At a little town called Binger there is a living curiosity in the person of See-kous-i-to, an American Caddo Indian, who is wider than he is long. He measures seven feet and four inches around the waist and is less than six feet tall. He is twenty-six years of age and weighs 606 pounds. For obesity he is conceded to be a world beater and is considering an offer to tour the world.—Utica Press.

Doom of the Doubloon.

The doubloon is doomed, as its fellow, the "piece of eight," long has been. A few weeks ago it was proclaimed by the common crier from the steps of the Royal Exchange of London that the doubloon is no longer legal tender in the West Indies and British Guiana. Thus these magical names, which recall Robinson Crusoe and pirate stories without number, are relegated forever to romance.—Argonaut.

Image Cures Hiccoughs.

New York, Nov. 18.—When science had failed to cure a case of hiccoughs that had endured for 124 hours and two eminent physicians sat helpless, a little image of "Billikins" was thrust before the patient's eyes, and he has not hiccoughed since.

The person for whom the little god of luck did such wonders is Charles T. E. Miller, the theatrical man, who had been operated on for a kidney trouble only a few days before and whose life had been despaired of.

Father's Life For Daughter.

New York, Nov. 18.—Slipping from the gangplank of the freight boat captained by her father as she was boarding the craft Mrs. Helen Bloch was drowned in the North river. Her father, Henry Rice, although 78 years of age, bravely plunged overboard in the darkness, and was also lost.

Closing of Navigation.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—On the lakes the aids to navigation will not be disturbed until Dec. 10, the date of closing last year.

On the St. Lawrence the work of removing the gas buoys will commence on the 22nd of this month. This will give time for all the steamers now in port to get out on schedule time.

Twelve Dead In Mine Fire.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 18.—The dead bodies of five convicts were yesterday taken out of Mine No. 3 of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co. at Pratt City, near here. Officials of the company say that seven others are dead. The loss of life was due to a fire started, it is believed, by convicts.

Racing Autoist Killed.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 18.—While making more than 60 miles an hour in an effort to lower the 24-hour automobile record, Emile Stricker, a native of Alsace-Lorraine, was almost instantly killed, and Leon Barrows of Birmingham seriously injured. Two tires exploded while rounding a curve.

Whiskey Candy Sticks.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 18.—Whiskey in tablets and in the form of stick candy to be dissolved in water or chewed made its appearance at North Yakima, Wash., west of Spokane, a few days ago as a way to get around the local option law.

To Mend Broken China.

The most successful way to mend broken china is the following formula: Powder a small quantity of lime and take the white of one egg and mix together to a paste. Apply this quickly to the china to be mended, place the broken pieces together firmly, and they will become set and strong. It is unusual when china breaks in the same place again after being mended with this paste.

Chirp of the Cricket.

The chirp of the cricket, it is said, is regulated by the temperature. At 69 degrees F. the rate is 80 chirps a minute, at 70 degrees 120 per minute, the rate increasing four chirps to the minute with a change of a degree. Below the temperature of 50 degrees F. the cricket is not likely to make any sound.

Neglected Teeth.

An English medical officer says neglected teeth cause a large percentage of disease of the digestive organs, and men are most offenders of the sanitary rule of cleaning teeth daily.

His Only Conundrum.

The old pilot of the little steamer Maid of the Mist, which used to carry passengers quite up to the foot of the falls of Niagara until the mist from the falling waters drenched the clothing of every one on board, used to perpetrate one solitary conundrum each trip. It always commenced and ended the same.

Moving his hand along the sides of the pilothouse and examining the woodwork minutely, he would look up mysteriously and remark:

"I say, stranger, do you know what this boat is made of?"

"Made of? Why, pine and oak, isn't she?"

"No, sir."

"Hemlock?"

"No."

"'Tisn't cedar, is it?"

"Oh, no!"

And then the old pilot's eyes twinkled and his mouth whistled a crazy tune.

"Well, iron perhaps?"

"No."

"What in thunder is she made of, then?"

"She's Maid of the Mist, stranger; Maid of the Mist."

Then the pilot accepted his morning cigar.

Carrie's Maneuver.

Miss Hurryup—Ah, George, you cannot tell what troubles a girl has who is receiving the attentions of a gentleman.

Mr. Holdoff—Troubles, Carrie? Of what nature, pray?

Miss H.—Well, one's little brothers are always making fun of one, and relatives are always saying, "When is it to come off?" as if marriage were a prizefight. But that is not the worst. There is the inquisitiveness of one's parents. They want to know everything. There's pa, now; he is constantly asking such questions as: "Carrie, what are Mr. Holdoff's intentions? What does he call upon you so regularly for and stay so late when he does call?" And he sometimes looks so angry when he asks these questions that I actually tremble.

Mr. H.—And what answer do you make to his questions, Carrie, dearest?

Miss H.—I can't make any answer at all, for, you see, you haven't said anything to me, and—and—of course, I—I—

Then Mr. Holdoff whispered something in Carrie's ear, and next time her father questions her she will be ready with a satisfactory reply.—Boston Transcript.

Insomnia and Alarm Clocks.

"You must get an alarm clock at once," said the physician.

The patient stared.

"I mean it. What time do you waken usually in the night?"

"Two o'clock lately."

"Set the alarm for fifteen minutes before 2. As soon as it strikes, get up, dress for the day and take a walk of not less than two miles. Do not go to bed again that day under any circumstances, nor take a nap, even sitting in your chair.

"The next night set the alarm at a quarter past 2. You will sleep until it wakens you. Get up as before and take another two mile walk.

"The third night you can venture to set your alarm at 3. Repeat the walk. If you are not cured by that time, you will be a more difficult case than any I have had heretofore, but if the habit of lying awake is not broken begin back at 2 o'clock again and repeat."—New York Press.

Wonderful.

Two sailors noticed that a shark was following their ship. Not knowing how to get rid of it, they threw a chair overboard.

The shark swallowed this, but still followed.

The sailors then threw a box of oranges overboard to it.

The shark swallowed this and still followed.

The men seemed completely beaten for a moment what to do until one of them said that those on board should draw lots for who had to satisfy the shark.

It fell to an old woman. So the sailors tossed her overboard, and the shark ate her at one bite.

This did not content the fish, which still followed. So the sailors harpooned it and dragged it on board.

On opening it they found to their surprise the old woman sitting on the chair selling oranges "three a penny."—Pearson's Weekly.

Money Worry.

"Dey ain't no use," said Brother Williams, "ter try ter git money w'en you ain't at de gittin' place, an' de trouble is—de jingle er it is so confusin'! Hit's lak' de rattle er a rattlesnake—you dunno whar an' what time to jump! Hit's trouble er git money an' trouble ter keep it. New to the Game.

"Waiter, is this supposed to be coffee?" inquired the diner in the Rapidity cafe.

"I couldn't say," replied the waiter. "I only started here this morning."

Drinking Contests.

Alexander the Great used to hold drinking contests. He who could drink and carry off the most wine won. Promachus, the skilled Promachus, won a gold cup from Alexander by drinking fourteen quarts of wine. Fourteen quarts!

Newspapers.

The newspaper was invented by a Paris physician, who, finding his visits welcome whenever he brought any news for gossip, applied to Cardinal Richelieu for a patent to publish the Paris Gazette in 1622.

A Strenuous Day.

General Winfield Scott on Aug. 20, 1847, gained five victories in a day while marching to the City of Mexico.

Pickaninny.

The possible derivation of the word "pickaninny" was pointed out by Sir Hans Sloane in 1707 in his "History of Jamaica." "Piganinnes," said Sir Hans, "is a corruption of pequenos ninos, applied to the black or slave babies of Jamaica."

Polishing Wheels.

Perhaps the most curious of polishing wheels is that made of cornhusks for finishing shell or bone combs.

Michaelmas Day.

Michaelmas day is a festival in the Roman Catholic church celebrated on Sept. 29 in honor of St. Michael and All Angels. In England and Ireland it is one of four quarterly days on which rents are paid.

A MEMORY OF THE PAST.

The Unalloyed Joy That Came With the Little Red Scarf.

"I was wondering the other day what one thing had given me the most pleasure in the world," said the village deacon. "I had to go back a long ways—clear back into the blessed Santa Claus days—but I recalled it. It was a scarf I found in my stocking one bright Christmas morning. I got a red one, and my brother got a blue one. I was a mighty proud boy that morning as I trudged downtown with that red scarf around my neck. I wore it every day until the birds began to sing in the springtime and the kids were hunting up their marbles. I don't now remember who gave it to me nor what became of it, but I do know that the memory of it still clings like a benediction.

"Since the days of that little red scarf I have had things of far more intrinsic value. I have worn lodge emblems of high degree; I have had a gold watch and chain; I once had a pair of shoes that cost $5 and a necktie that cost twice as much as the little red scarf. Nay, more, I once tackled a plug hat. But among these things do I recall none that gave me such genuine and unalloyed pleasure, such a swelled up feeling, as did that little red scarf way back in the days when the wolf sat out in the road and howled. 'Tis the little red scarf days that stir the memory with 'It might have been.'"

PLAIN JOHN SMITH.

How His Name Changes In Various Parts of the World.

John Smith—plain John Smith—is not very high sounding; it does not suggest aristocracy; it is not the name of any hero in die away novels, and yet it is good, strong and honest. Transferred to other languages, it seems to climb the ladder of respectability. Thus in Latin it is Johannes Smithus; the Italian smooths it off into Giovanni Smithi; the Spaniards render it Juan Smithus; the Dutchman adopts it as Hans Schmidt; the French flatten it out into Jean Smeet, and the Russian sneezes and barks Jonloff Smittowski. When John Smith gets into the tea trade in Canton he becomes Jovan Shimmit; if he clambers about Mount Hecla, the Icelanders say he is Jahne Smithson; if he trades among the Tuscaroras he becomes Ton Qa Smittis; in Poland he is known as Ivan Schmittiweiski; should he wander among the Welsh mountains they talk of Jihon Schmidd; when he goes to Mexico he is booked as Jontit F'Smitti; if of classic turn and he lingers among Greek ruins he turns to Ion Smikton, and in Turkey he is utterly disguised as Yos Beef.

Fancy Boots.

The Russian boot is composed of many pieces of morocco in several colors put together in a shape to please the taste of the maker or the wearer. The foot of the boot is beautifully embossed with thread in bright colors.

Bearded Popes.

From the time of St. Peter down to the year 1153 the popes of Rome all wore beards.

A Life Note.

"Life is what we make it," said the philosopher.

BOYS' CLUB OF MURRAY ST. BAPTIST CHURCH ORGANIZED LAST NIGHT

At a largely attended meeting last night the Murray street Boys' Club was organized under most auspicious circumstances, and with a strong list of officers. The boys are going into the work with a good membership and with every encouragement from the adult members of the church.

The officers elected were as follows:

Hon. President: Mr. T. F. Matthews.
Adviser: Rev. J. R. Webb.
1st Vice-President: Ray Scott.
2nd Vice-President: Wilmot Browett.
Secretary: Stanley Kerneghan.
Treasurer: Harold Matthews.
Pianists: N. Wilson and Carl Quinn.

The boys have adopted as motto the letters S. P. I., representing the words Spiritual, Physical and Intellectual. Each member will have a pin on which these letters will be prominently placed in the centre with the words Murray street Boys' Club around the outside. It was determined to have a regular meeting every Friday night when everything of interest to the boys will be taken up. The boys are in two classes senior and junior, the age limit for the latter being 18 years and under. The club will co-operate with the other boys' clubs in the city in any general work. They have a hockey team already and will enter a church league which has been proposed. The boys should make a success of their new organization in which all the men of the church are interested, and will assist in anything to promote its scope and good work.

MR. T. F. MATTHEWS,
Honorary President of the Murray Street Boys' Club.

LINDSAY AND BROCKVILLE TO PLAY SUDDEN-DEATH GAME HERE SATURDAY

Mr. J. B. Hay received a telegram this morning from Secretary Gladish, of the O.R.F.U., to the effect that Lindsay, winners of No. 2 junior district, and Brockville, winners of District No. 3, will play a sudden death semi-final game here on Saturday afternoon and requesting Mr. Hay to secure grounds and make arrangements for the game. The contest will be pulled off at Riverside Park and no doubt a big crowd will be on hand for the event. The Lindsay team will run an excursion here for the game and the Pink Pill City will undoubtedly have a number of rooters on hand.

Lindsay won their district by taking two games from the local Y.M.C.A. team, while Brockville had a hard fight with Kingston and Gananoque. The Brockville team is composed of a number of the players who were in action against Peterborough several years ago in the intermediate series of the O.R.F.U. and on paper should have an easy victory over Lindsay. They have been running up big scores in their district and will be in good shape for the contest here, having the advantage of the coaching of Russell Britton, the old star Argonaut quarter-back.

Peterborough people will no doubt be interested in the game as they have seen Lindsay play here this season and a number of the players are well known here.

WALTER MILLER MAY BE WITH BRANTFORD ONCE MORE

Brantford, Nov. 17.—At present it looks as if McDonald, Ward and possibly Marks and Miller of last year's professionals were about the only ones available this winter. Before the professional league will have a really permanent life, the different teams would do well to secure a fixed salary limit and a two-year contract on the players. Some of these six clubs are going to have

WALTER MILLER,
The local hockey player who may be with the Brantford "Pros" again this season a real job on their hands getting together a fast team this year in so short a time.

The Brantford pro. team will have a big hole in it this winter, with Roy Brown not playing point. The manager was a tower of strength last year, and even though not in condition half the time, he infused lots of ginger and fighting spirit into the bunch.

A strong effort will be made to secure Johnny Ward for centre again this year. Ward hails from the American Soo, and always takes great care of himself.

JACK CORKERY IN LAST GAME KEEPS UP SHOWING

What is stated as Jack Corkery's last game with Ottawa College was that in which the Collegians defeated McGill University on Saturday by 12 to 3.

The Citizen refers to his work thus:

"Nick Bawlf and Jack Corkery performed marvellous work behind the College. Bawlf on Saturday was again the heady full back of 1907, and together with Corkery, pulled off many a great sad run. He kicks equally well with either foot and kept the McGill halves busy handling his long drives. Bawlf also handled the ball cleverly, his long passes to Corkery being as perfect as one could wish. Corkery, while he kicked but little, shone repeatedly in running out punts. He caught everything and his try was the result of a nice run."

JOHN D. MARSH IS AFTER TOM LONGBOAT FOR A RACE

Winnipeg, Nov. 17.—John D. Marsh, the Western pro. runner, is after Tom Longboat. He will write to Tom Flanagan, looking for a race right away.

When shown the above despatch, Mr. Flanagan said that Marsh could have a race either here or in Winnipeg.

He offered to match the Indian against Marsh here at Riverdale rink, with a return go at Winnipeg at any distance.

"Manager Smith of the rink says he will hang up a purse for Longboat and either Marsh, Coley or Meadows," said Flanagan to-day. "The Indian runs a relay race in a Brockville rink to-night."—Toronto Star.

JIMMY GARDNER IS TO MANAGE WANDERERS

Judging from the following despatch Jimmy Gardner, whom Fred Whitcroft expected to go west with him, is going to stay in Montreal after all:

Montreal, Nov. 17.—The officers of the Wanderers are not worrying about their team for the winter in the E.C.H.A., and to guard the Stanley Cup, but are rather letting the public do it for them. The club has, it is true, lost two good men in Riley Hern and Art Ross. While announcements have been made about the signing on of players by other clubs, the probable line-up of the Wanderers for the coming winter has been kept in the dark. Several players, however, have already signed, and probably next week the complete team will be pretty well known.

The new slate of officers is as follows:

President, A. H. Ross; Vice-President, S. C. Strachan; Secretary-Treasurer, T. G. Watt; Manager, James H. Gardner; Committee, E. Tuttersall, H. C. Scott and S. W. Steele.

HOCKEY.

Bruce Ridpath has gone to Pittsburg, where he will play hockey with the Banker team, this season.

A SECOND LONGBOAT IS DISCOVERED IN THE WEST

Winnipeg, Nov. 17.—In the big Olympic Marathon race run recently in London, Tom Longboat, probably the most famous Indian long distance runner the world has ever known, was played as the favourite by nine-tenths of the sporting fraternity. Equal to him on early showing, if not his superior, is Akoose, an Indian runner from Grenfell, Sask. In the race on Thanksgiving Day he finished an easy winner over the five mile course in 27 minutes and 16 seconds against a Canadian record for the distance of 26 minutes. But it must be taken into consideration that the performance of Akoose was done in a blinding blizzard, with the snow drifting into his face, making the track and conditions generally anything but good for beating records, and even under these conditions it is evident Akoose was not running for all he had in him, and at the finish was going very strong. Local sportsmen are of the opinion that this Indian will be heard from in the future, as he had decided to go into strict training, and will enter for the Olympic Marathon of 1912.

MR. ROBERT HARDING,
President of the newly organized Murray Street Boys' Club

THE T.A.S. ACCEPT THE CHALLENGE OF THE Y.M.C.A.

The T.A.S. Athletic Club's seniors have decided to accept the challenge hurled at them by the Y.M.C.A. seniors to play for the city championship, and state that they are willing to meet the "Y" as soon as the grounds can be secured, which will not likely be until a week from Saturday as Riverside Park will be in use this week with a junior O.R.F.U. game between Lindsay and Brockville. A game between the two local clubs should prove a big drawing card as both teams have a large following.

CENTRAL 'Y' BASKETBALL TEAM TO PLAY HAMILTON

The Toronto Star has the following to say of the Central Y.M.C.A. Basketball team which will play the locals here next week:—

That bunch of basketball artists up at Central are certainly going after big game these days. Physical Director MacLeod has been trying for some time to arrange home-and-home games with the famous Hamilton team (champions of Canada), and has at last secured dates with this crack aggregation. The first game takes place in Hamilton on Friday of this week, and the return game on Monday, the 23rd inst. This is absolutely the last chance to see Hamilton before they make the break away from the C.A.A.U., and they have promised to send down their strongest team, including Chadwick (captain), Arnold, McKeown, et al. The Central boys intend to give their opponents the hardest games they have had in some years, and the seating capacity of the gymnasium is sure to be taxed to the utmost capacity.

There is no little discussion going on, too, anent this game, because the Hamilton aggregation have announced their intention of playing teams across the line that are professionals. When a team or an athlete announces their intention of going after the coin they automatically become "pros." The propriety of the Central's amateurs playing a team that has "pro." intentions is questioned.

BOWLING.

There will be a meeting of the Schedule Committee of the newly organized Ten Pin League at 7 o'clock to-night at the Peterborough Bowling Club's Alleys, and of the executive committee at 9 o'clock. A full attendance of the members of both committees is expected as important business is to come up for discussion.

NORTHERN SENIOR GROUP TO BE FORMED IN O.H.A.

Lindsay, Nov. 17.—Eddie Gould of Midland, who is a member of the O.H.A. Executive, has a new scheme afoot, and has already mooted the same in Lindsay. It is this: He proposes to organize a senior district in the O.H.A. to comprise teams from Midland, Barrie, Collingwood and Lindsay. He claims that the material is genuine enough to supply the necessary goods. The only drawback will be the distance to travel, and even this he expects to overcome. Financially, he says, it will pay well in each of the four places. This would mean that Lindsay would have to sidetrack Port Hope and Cobourg, which have never been any great bonanza to Lindsay, and would probably be classed in the Peterborough category.

B.A.C. BOWLERS BEGUN THEIR GAMES LAST NIGHT

The first game in the B.A.C. bowling tournament was played last night at the Y.M.C.A. alleys. Middleton and Huston were matched against Harmer and Sisson, and in three games won by 77 pins. The winners' total scores were 242, 246 and 251, as against 233, 196 and 238 for the losers.

RUGBY

Since Varsity's victory over Queen's there has been much speculation as to what chance the Toronto students would have with the champion Tigers. On the game they played Saturday the blue and white supporters are convinced that the students would beat the Hamiltonians handily. They point out that the Varsity wing line to a man gave an exhibition of tackling that would beat any team, while their back division excelled themselves in the handling of the ball, the work of Hugh Gall especially being the most spectacular of the year. On the other hand, the admirers of the Tigers laugh at the presumption of the student adherents. What chance, they say, would these immature youths have against the seasoned veterans with their years of experience in the game? What chance, forsooth, as Leslie Crooks would say? What would the sturdy tackling of the youngsters avail against the battering-ram tactics of Dennis McCarthy and Co., and the ingenuity and finesse of George Ballard and Co., behind the line? Who knows? They may come together in the Canadian finals, and then the question will be answered.—Toronto Star.

Montreal Gazette:—Ottawa seems to have the coming team. The players are a much younger lot than the Tigers, and are showing big improvement, while the Tigers appear to be going back, notwithstanding their victory of Saturday. Moore and Tope are not the great backs of two years ago. Biggs cannot be compared to Southam, and Simpson seems to be the only one of the back field that is playing up to his best form. The schoolmaster is still without a peer as a left half, as resourceful as he is skilful.

WRESTLING

Great interest is being taken in the Fitzpatrick-Burridge bout in the rolled rink next Tuesday night, and from present indications it looks as if there would be a record crowd present. Both boys are in the pink of condition and the bout should be lightning fast and clever all the way. From the talk among the sporting fraternity it is evident that the bout is regarded as an even-up proposition as each man has a large number of supporters, who are confident that he will win. Both have been training faithfully, looking upon the match as a decidedly awkward proposition. The preliminaries will be of the same high quality as the main bout, and a very interesting evening's sport may be looked forward to.

ATHLETICS

A meeting of the T.A.S. Athletic Club will be held this evening when the question of the organization of a hockey club will be considered. All interested are urgently requested to attend at eight o'clock in the T.A.S. rooms.

PROFIT-SHARING IN INDUSTRIAL LINES

"Workingman" Writes an Interesting Letter Upon the Subject—What It Involves.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would like to take up a few lines in your paper in regard to the new company that is about to establish in Peterborough under the name, I believe, of the William Hamilton Company. Now, Sir, in your article which appeared in Saturday's issue, that the citizens of Peterborough are asked to take up $30,000 of 8 per cent. cumulative preference stock, I, as a working man, would like to appeal to the directors of this company, who I believe are business men, to keep back, say 5,000 one dollar shares and let the employees have an interest in this company, allowing the employees to take from 5 to 100 shares in the company, to be paid by agreement between directors and employees. Now, Sir, for an argument we will say that this company employees 200 men in constant work; these men should be the backbone of the factory; every man should be a good producer in his department; each man should receive a living wage whether he be mechanic or labourer; no man should receive less than $1.75 per day of 10 days. Now Sir, these are the men the 5,000 one dollar shares should go to, and then every man would be working for one goal; that is for the interest of the company, and at the same time his own interest as well, and Sir, I believe it would bring master and man closer together, and these things help in the success of the company. Now, Sir, I would appeal to those directors to put their company on a good basis by paying their employees a living wage and by doing this they have command of the labour market; if a man is not a good producer they can get rid of him and employ another, that is because they are paying a living wage. Now, Sir, I am sorry to say the working man is not getting a living wage in Peterborough just now. No man with with a family can live on $1.50 per day, and a good many are not getting that just now. I believe when a man gets a living wage things will be better in Peterborough, not only for the man and his family, but for our storekeepers who will have the benefit of ready money and will not have to give credit the same as they are doing now; and the working man will put up his own house and he will settle down, making at the same time a good citizen, and before long we shall have the representatives of the working class working hand in hand with the capitalist for the benefit of our city and its citizens. I have been reading an account in an Old Country paper in connection with the offer of Sir C Furness to the employees of his company, which I have enclosed in my letter.

Now, Sir, this is what I would like to see between this new company and its employees, and Sir, if you could publish this, the citizens of Peterborough could see as well what I mean by having better understandings between master and man. Thanking you, Sir, for the space I have taken in your paper.

Yours truly,
A WORKINGMAN.

Peterborough, Nov. 18, 1908.

The article referred to above will appear in to-morrow's issue of the Examiner, and will repay perusal.

WEDDING BELLS

DALLIER—BREWER

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the George street Methodist parsonage last evening at 7 o'clock, when Annie Maud Brewer was united in marriage to Chas. Willard Dallier, both of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Pearson, both parties were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Dallier will reside at 208 Euclid avenue.

REESOR—EASSON

Keene, (Nov. 18.—Special.—A very happy event took place recently at the home of Mr. Allan Easson, Otonabee, when his eldest daughter, Winnifred, was united in marriage to Mr. C. B. Reesor, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. D. Harrison, of Keene, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride, who was becomingly and appropriately gowned in bridal dress and veil, and carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses, was given away by her father.

After the ceremony the company sat down to a well prepared and daintily served repast.

The happy couple left on the evening train for Nagara Falls, Buffalo and other points. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

The bride, who was a general favourite, will be greatly missed from the social and church circles, where she was so well known.

Their many friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Reesor "bon voyage" through life to a safe haven at its close.

TROUBLED WITH STOMACH FOR SEVEN YEARS.

I Doctored With Six Different Physicians.

I Gave Up All Hopes of Ever Being Cured.

I Am Now Like a New Man, Thanks to Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin.

At least one person in ten has some stomach difficulty. This is only one way to say, that there are a vast multitude of people in this country who are suffering from ailments directly due to a deranged stomach.

The bustle and hurry of American life is mainly to blame for this. Rapid eating, worry and anxiety after eating, is sure to bring on stomach difficulty sooner or later.

Those who suffer from stomach derangement ought to know of Peruna. Peruna rarely fails to bring relief, and in some cases the restoration is almost magical.

The testimonial of Mr. George H. Simser, of Grant, Ontario, Canada, is a fair sample of the sort of testimonials Dr. Hartman is receiving concerning Peruna as a remedy for stomach ailments.

Mr. George H. Simser, Grant, Ont., Can., writes:

"I was troubled with my stomach for about seven years.

"I doctored with six different doctors. Some of them seemed to help me at the time, but failed to cure me. Some said it was cancer of the liver, others said it was dyspepsia or indigestion.

"Last fall I suffered so much that I gave up all hopes of ever being cured. I had headache, toothache, and lots of other troubles too numerous to mention.

"At that time, my wife was taking Peruna and Manalin and she urged me to try them. I took them, but without the least faith.

"After a week or so I felt a great deal better, so I continued to use them.

"After I had taken two bottles of Peruna and half a bottle of Manalin, I felt real well.

"I am now like a new man, thanks to Peruna and Manalin."

Dyspepsia for Twenty Years.

Mr. Sidney Wessels, Merritton, Ontario, Canada, writes:

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia and indigestion for twenty years, during which time I tried different doctors, but did not get the desired results.

"I have been compelled for weeks at a time to give up work, being completely prostrated. I had to confine myself to a milk diet, as nothing would remain on my stomach.

"I had about given up, thinking my case incurable, when I heard of Peruna and decided to try it.

"One bottle made a great change and after using another bottle of this wonderful medicine, I had complete freedom from pain, my appetite had returned and I could again enjoy my meals.

"I believe Peruna is the grandest medicine under the sun.

"To-day I weigh over two hundred and twenty-five pounds. Is it any wonder that I praise Peruna?"

Catarrh of Stomach.

Rev. J. T. Peeler, Hendersonville, South Carolina, writes:

"I desire to make known for the benefit of suffering humanity my experience with Peruna.

"I was afflicted with catarrh of the stomach, and though I tried several remedies and applied to several doctors, it was all in vain.

"Had it not been for Peruna I believe I would have been in my grave to-day.

"I have every reason to believe that Peruna is the greatest remedy for catarrh known to the world. Therefore I have been, and shall continue to recommend it to those who are unwell."

Tonic Effect of Pe-ru-na.

Mr. J. E. Carson, 218 St. Clarens Ave., Toronto, Canada, Inspector London Life Insurance Co., London, Canada, writes:

"I have used the popular remedy known as Peruna, and I can testify as to its merits. I regard it as one of the best tonics now on the market."

Other Cases of Stomach Trouble.

MR. E. J. HENNEMAN, Oakland, Neb., writes:

"I waited before writing to you about my sickness, catarrh of the stomach, which I had over a year ago.

"There were people who told me it would not stay cured, but I am sure that I am cured, for I do not feel any more ill effects, have a good appetite and am getting fat. So I am, and will say to all, I am cured for good.

"I thank you for your kindness.

"Peruna will be our house medicine hereafter."

MR. H. W. NAGEL, 68 Church St., Meriden, Conn., writes:

"For several years I had been troubled with catarrh of the stomach.

"After trying about everything else, I was advised to try Peruna.

"I could not eat any solid food for some time; now I can eat most anything that comes along.

"I have taken several bottles of Peruna and Manalin and am entirely cured. I heartily recommend Peruna and Manalin to every sufferer of catarrh.

"I thank you for your kind advice."

MR. CALEB H. BORTELL, Police Officer, 212 N. Paca St., Baltimore, Md., writes: "For several years I was troubled with catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. Many times I would vomit before and after eating.

"I took seven bottles of your Peruna, and I am glad to say that it has cured me. I feel more like living and working, and am not bothered at all with my old troubles.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Peruna to all sufferers with catarrh, and I thank you for what you have done for me, for none but those who have suffered as I have can appreciate a great cure as I have found Peruna to be."

BEAR PLENTIFUL IN THE NORTHERN WOODS

Over 300 Deer Shipped Through Lindsay and Express Companies Busy.

Lindsay, Nov. 18.—Deer are arriving in large quantities and yesterday the officials of both the express companies estimate the total shipments to be in the neighbourhood of about 300 carcasses. These include only the shipments to and through town, and only until yesterday. They do not mention the large and heavy shipments that will in all probability be brought in the next few days. Today some bear carcasses were also to to be seen among the venison. These were going on through to the homes of out-of-town hunters. Many were of the finest species, but not any better than those shot by Mr. Porter and Mr. Copp, of town.

ENJOYABLE LECTURE GIVEN BY DR. CHAS. STRATTON BEFORE ROYAL ASTRONOMICAL SOCIETY

Greenwich and Kew Observatories Were Described by the Speaker—A Brief But Comprehensive History of Astronomy.

NEW MEMBERS WERE ADDED

The meeting of the Peterborough Centre of the Royal Astronomical Society held last evening in the chemical room of the Collegiate Institute was a most successful and instructive session and was attended by a large number of members including a good representation of the fair sex. The feature of the evening's programme was an address by Dr. C M Stratton, of Napanee, upon the subject of the Greenwich and Kew Observatories and a history of Astronomy. Dr. Stratton while in England was entertained by Prof. Maunder of the Greenwich Observatory and was therefore able to speak upon the subject with authority. His remarks were entertaining and helpful and were listened to with the greatest pleasure by the members.

During the evening two new members were added to the Society; Rev. Mr. Elmslie, M.A., of Napanee, nominated by Dr. Stratton, and Mr. H B Collier and Hon. J R Stratton, by Dr. Marsh and Dr. Stratton.

The president of the Society, Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville, presided, and before calling upon Dr. Stratton for his paper, made a short report to the members upon the observations he had made since the last meeting.

Mr. H O Fiske and Mr. H B Collier also reported some of the interesting things they have discovered.

Dr. Stratton in commencing his lecture expressed his pleasure at being invited to address the Society.

Greenwich Observatory

Speaking of Greenwich he stated that it was one of the best known places in the world inasmuch as from the meridian of its famous royal Observatory longitude is reckoned. It was rarely that a visitor was granted an opportunity of seeing the inner workings of the Observatory and the speaker had received the privilege through the kindness of Dr. Marsh who had given him a letter of introduction to Mr. Maunder, professor of Solar-Physics in the institution.

Dr. Stratton described in a most interesting manner some of the most important features in connection with the Observatory. The first visit is always paid to the room in which stands the clock that sets the world's time. The clock is connected electrically with the balls that fall daily at 1 p.m. at Portsmouth, Devonport and Deal and also with the general post office which distributes the correct time to the most important towns throughout the Kingdom. The celebrated clock instead of being large and imposing as most people thought, was in reality most modest and unassuming in its form. The speaker explained that Greenwich time depended upon certain clock stars whose positions in the heavens had been observed for hundreds of years. He referred at some length to sidereal and mean solar time describing the two in a comprehensive manner that made the explanation most instructive.

Transit Circle Room

Dr. Stratton then passed on to a description of the transit circle room in which there is a large telescope mounted like a gun on trunnions through which time observations of the stars are taken. On the well worn boards of that room many distinguished feet had trodden.

The chronometer rooms, three in number, were most interesting. In them are regulated and kept going the chronometers belonging to His Majesty's ships. In the first of the three rooms there are two dials of great importance one termed sidereal and the other solar time.

To many people visiting the wonderful buildings the interior of the great dome would prove the most fascinating feature of the Observatory. Here, under the revolving roof, was the telescope through which nightly observations of the Heavens were made. The wonderful telescope revolved at the same rate as the earth, but in the opposite direction and the mechanism was very interesting. The roof had a large opening through which the telescope was directed and as the astronomer whose duty it was to take observations had to lie upon a mattress upon the floor his occupation on a cold winter night had its drawbacks as the observatory was built upon the summit of a hill 154 feet above the level of the sea, and was at the mercy of all the winds.

The Kew Observatory, situated in Old Deer Park, was well known especially to horologists, as being the place where chronometers were tested and a watch with a Kew certificate, the speaker remarked, could be absolutely relied upon as a time keeper.

The History of Astronomy

The second part of Dr. Stratton's lecture was taken up with a short but highly instructive history of astronomy which the speaker referred to as the science of the motion of the celestial bodies. Its origin amongst all nations was lost in antiquity, but it was evident that the first impulse of man must naturally have been to study the sky, the rising and setting of the stars and their relations to the seasons.

The speaker showed that in India the earliest civilized part of the Old World, the people of the early days were deeply versed in the science, especially the guardians of the holy places. Scientists had stated that the Hindoos had transmitted to modern people observations taken earlier than 2000 B.C. The astronomical law laid down by the Vedas for the arrangement of the Calendar must necessarily date back to the fourteenth century before Christ.

To the Chinese the earliest information which had any claim to exactitude was due. Dr. Stratton stated that in the time of the Emperor Yao, 2000 B.C., astronomy was made a special study in China. The Chinese at that time represented the vault of the firmament by a sphere divided into sections with the earth in the centre and with the sun, the moon, the earth and the stars in the places assigned them in the Ptolemean system. They constructed instruments for measuring the angular distances of the stars and ascertained that the solar year was about six hours longer than 365 days. They were also acquainted with the use of the dial and measured time by the aid of the clepsydra, (water clock.)

The Chaldeans

The speaker passed on to take up the observations in astronomy made by the Chaldeans which dated back, it is said, to nine centuries before Alexander the Great made his entrance into Babylon in 331 B.C. The Chaldeans were acquainted with the ancient planets, possessed a zodiac divided into twelve constellations and a sphere which has served as a model for what is now in use.

From them the knowledge of astronomy passed into Phoenicia and Egypt. The observations made by the Egyptians of the motion around the sun of the planets, showed how successful they were in this direction, and their priests were more particularly renowned. They divided the heavens into constellations and constructed a zodiac which was thought to have been in existence earlier than 2500 B.C.

Among the Greeks the first famous Greek astronomer was Thales, of Miletus who founded the Ionian school in which he taught the spherical shape of the earth, the obliquity of the ecliptic, and the causes which superinduced the eclipses of the sun and moon. After him came Anaximander who was credited with the invention of the dial, the terrestrial globe and geographical charts, and Pythagoras, who in 500 B.C., expounded two distinct motions of the earth, one upon its own axis and the other around the sun.

Dr. Stratton referred briefly to Pythias, Aristarchus of Samos, Aristotle, Hipparchus, and Ptolemy, famous astronomers of the olden days and lead up to Copernicus, Tycho-Brahe, Descartes and Newton, the last the most illustrious of all English savants. He explained the theories and discoveries made by each in a most interesting manner.

At the conclusion of this lecture a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Dr. Stratton, on motion of Hon. J R Stratton, seconded by Rev. J G Potter. Both speakers expressed the thanks of the audience to Dr. Stratton for his most entertaining lecture.

Before the meeting dispersed, Dr. Marsh gave a few explanations illustrated by drawings on the black board of new features in astronomical work that have been discovered lately.

On motion of Hon. J R Stratton, seconded by Mr. T A S Hay, a vote of thanks was passed to the Board of Education for their generous permission to the Society for the use of the Collegiate Institute for meeting purposes.

The date for the next meeting has not yet been decided upon

ST. ANDREW'S YOUNG MEN IN DEBATE

Canada Appears to be Doomed—Hockey Club Organization Talked Of.

At St Andrew's Young Men's Guild meeting last night a very interesting debate was the feature of the evening. The subject was:—Resolved, That it was to Canada's betterment that the Laurier Government was sustained.

The affirmative was taken by Guildsmen Campbell and Kerr, and the negative by Guildsmen Langford and McCulloch.

Mr. D Potter acted as scrutineer and Messrs. Menzies, Donaldson and Williamson, as judges. Although both platforms were set forth in brilliant style, and no political plots revealed, the judges, after due consideration, decided in favour of the latter.

The affirmative took the decision like a defeated candidate for election, but possibly with a more manly and pleasant expression, and had Sir Wilfrid not been now on his way to Florida he would probably have been asked to resign.

The subject of a hockey team was also discussed and a representative appointed to interview the rink management re practice night, and report at the December meeting.

Another interesting debate was arranged for a later meeting, after which a bachelor's lunch was partaken of.

SALE OF GOODS AT MARK STREET

Ladies of East City Methodist Church Held Successful Affair.

The entertainment and sale of goods at the Mark street Methodist church last night proved a success in every sense of the word. It was conducted by the Ladies' Aid Society in the school room which was prettily arranged for the occasion. The sale opened at three o'clock and during the afternoon and evening the goods were disposed of until all were gone. The proceeds amounted to $85.00. The refreshment tables were especially popular. The tea was provided by Mr. Jno. Kerr, and was brewed by Mrs. James Fowler. Everyone pronounced it fine. Music was discoursed during the evening, two orchestras assisting in the work. The George street orchestra and the Mandolin Club were heard with pleasure and assisted in no small degree in providing an enjoyable evening.

G. T. P. HAS CARRIED A MILLION BUSHELS

Fine Achievement in Marketing Crop by Road Opened But Few Months.

Montreal, Nov. 18 (Special) — Mr. F. W. Morse, vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, has returned to headquarters from the West, where he has been directing operations since the line was opened for traffic in September. He was accompanied by Mr. Kelliher, chief engineer, and Mr. D'Arcy Tate, assistant solicitor.

Mr. Morse is able to give a good account of the road which has moved already upwards of 1,300,000 bushels of wheat from the sources of traffic along its seven hundred miles of route down to Winnipeg. This is considered not bad for a new road through a new wheat region which was in a sense non-existent in large measure a year ago. It promises well for the future when the quantity marketed on the line is expected to amount to scores of millions of bushels. The elevators which number between forty and fifty have done well in the matter of storage. The grain in sight will keep the road going.

Mr. Morse, with later knowledge of conditions, confirms Mr. Hays' statement that the road will be opened for traffic as far as Edmonton at the new year. The Battle River and Clover Bar bridges which have been the only obstacles, are being put in final shape for the running of trains.

COMMITTEE HAS DECIDED TO PLACE ARC LAMPS ON ARMS-- SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY BE TAKEN UP

A meeting of the Fire, Water and oil was held on Monday night, at the conclusion of the council meeting, when there were present Ald. Johnston, chairman, the Mayor, Ald. Bull-Light Committee of the City Counler and McIntyre.

On motion of Ald. Buller and McIntyre it was decided that the committee should visit the fire hall to enquire into the lighting.

Steps will be taken at once to insure the firemen from accident, on motion of Ald. McIntyre and Buller..

A letter was read from Chief Howard, to the effect that the members of the Fire Department were considering the establishment of a benefit fund, and of securing a piano and furniture for their department, and had thought of asking for subscriptions. They asked the approval of the committee.

A petition was read asking for two incandescent lights on Bonacord street, between the creek and Monaghan Road.

The following resolution, moved by Ald. Buller and McIntyre, was carried:

"That any arc lamps ordered in future be ordered on the condition that they be put out on twelve foot arms, without extra charge for the arms, and that $2 extra be paid for any lamps now in use that the council asks, or has asked to have placed on arms, except those which the company agreed to place on arms free of cost, namely, one at Brock and Sheridan streets, two on Rubidge street, one at Hunter and Stewart streets, and one on Hunter and Rogers street."

A request was read from Superintendent McNellie, of the C. P. R., and the Mattress Company for a hydrant south of the C. P. R. tracks on George street.

It was moved by Ald. Buller and McIntyre that when the Water Commissioners are putting in a larger main, the committee will consider the matter of the extra hydrant.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. McIntyre and Buller, the Peterborough Light and Power Co. will be requested to move an arc lamp on Sherbrooke street, east of Aylmer street, to a point half way between George street and Bethune street, and place it on an arm and remove the incandescent lamp now near that point; to place an incandescent lamp at the corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer streets; an incandescent lamp on Aylmer street, south of Sherbrooke street; two incandescent lamps on Walton street, and two incandescent lamps on Hall street.

Archdiaconal Conference In Session In Lindsay

Address by Venerable Archpeacon Warren, Toronto, and Paper by Rev. H. R. Trumpour, Peterboro

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

Lindsay, Nov. 18—Special.—The conference of the Archdeaconry of Peterborough, was opened in St. Paul's church on Monday evening, when Rev. Mr. Teney, of Omemee, preached a very impressive sermon to a fairly large congregation.

Rev. Mr. Teney took the subject of his sermon from John 1, 18, "No man has seen God at any time, the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared Him."

At nine o'clock yesterday morning the matins and holy communion were observed at St. Paul's church, a large number being present.

At 10.30 Ven. Archdeacon Warren took the chair and opened up the conference in the school house. In commencing his address the Archdeacon welcomed the members of the clergy and laity who were present and expressed the hope that all deliberations would be conducted in a charitable spirit, and that all would return again to their labours in the different spheres, strengthened for their work.

Looking back upon the past, the speaker said the work of the clergy who have gone before should be an incentive to those present to do better work in the Archdeaconry.

In reviewing the work of the Archdeaconry the speaker said that there were a number of missions without pastors. He mentioned the missions of Warkworth, Minden, Manvers, Cardiff and Monmouth and Cameron, which are unfilled at present. He mentioned the names of the ministers who have been removed to other archdeaconries, and welcomed those who have been removed to Peterborough Archdeaconry. Among the new church edifices which have been built or are in the building, are Hastings, Rosedale, and a new church at Peterborough; also the improvement made to the Young's Point parsonage.

The great need of the day was, he stated, a supply of properly trained and thoroughly equipped clergy. A deeper consciousness among the laity of the work of the church was necessary. There are among us a number content with fine services, eloquent sermons and fine music, but who are not making concerted effort to really know the work of the church among men. Something should be done to advance people to a deeper study of the work of the church. In the speaker's opinion there should be a committee in each parish, and regular meetings held to discuss spiritual matters, and for planning effective parish work. This spirit must have influenced the minds of those behind the laymen's missionary movement. This movement, he was sorry to say, had been spoken of contemptuously. When it had first originated he had thought that there was a tendency, when the laymen took the matter up, for them to take the question of Christian unity, and he thought that a new denomination would be the only outcome. He had been assured, however, of the sincerity of the laymen, and was prepared to give the movement his support.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

Secretary-treasurer — Rev. W. J. Creighton, Lakefield.

Members of the Council of the Archdeaconry—Rev. W. C. Allen, M.A., of Millbrook; Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, of Ashburnham; Rev. John Lindsay, of Haliburton.

Those who were elected to the Council of the Archdeaconry were Rev. Canon Spragge of Cobourg; Rev. G. H. Teney, of Omemee, and Rev. Mr. Cummer, of Kinmount.

Lay members elected to the Council—Mr. Stewart, of Young's Point; Mr. Bemster, of Haliburton, and Mr. Comber, of Bobcaygeon.

"Present Life Ideals of the Various Classes in Canada," was the subject on which Rev. H. R. Trumpour read a very excellent paper to the conference. He said that this was a time of energy and hustle. Everybody was hustling to push on. Nobody liked to be last. This was an age of self, still Canada was the most generous nation on the earth. The first class Mr. Trumpour had to deal with was the politician. No country, said Mr. Trumpour, has ever had altogether righteous statesmen. It was a shame to see the country run by dishonest and roguish men who were looking after their own interests. We have such men in both political parties in Canada to-day, and even in our civic elections the best men are not always selected.

The next class was the teaching class. The ideal of this class is unselfishness. This class works hard, and although the reward is small, still they work onward, teaching the young in the way they should go. Their work is often looked down upon when it should be appreciated. The ministerial class was also touched upon by Mr. Trumpour. Perhaps the greatest work is that of the newspaper. The newspaper men are indispensable. The editor of one of Canada's great papers, a minister himself, said while speaking at a religious meeting: "When you go to a town make friends with the newspaper men. They are the best friends you have got." In some cases, however, the newspapers are of a lowering standard. Mr. Trumpour said that the newspapers of Canada were of a higher standard than those of the States. The farmer and his work was also touched upon. The farmer's mind to-day is progressive. The farmer to-day speaks of the poor townsmen. Years ago it was the opposite. The farm is the home of some of the greatest men in Canada. The speaker said he was not in a position to speak of the labouring classes, but he would say that whatever work was being done a high ideal should be practised. Professional and business men are divided into many classes. Some are honest, but a great many are dishonest. We should have it in this country so that large corporations, be it either merchant or railway, shall not have a hold on our citizens, but that every man shall be free and independent.

SOAKED IN PETROLEUM

Alberta is Believed to Contain the World's Greatest Oil and Gas Fields.

Calgary, Nov. 17.— When enough men are able to turn their attention from wheat growing and ranching, and take up the matter in earnest, there is no doubt that a very considerable proportion of the world's supply of petroleum will be produced in Alberta.

From the American boundary on the south, to Lake Athabasca, several hundred miles north of Edmonton, there are signs that the underlying rock is saturated with petroleum, and that in many cases there are immense accumulations of natural gas.

Along the Athabasca River the deposits appear at or near the surface. Natural gas and oil appear out of the river banks and the bed of the stream, and the famous "tar sands," which are simply sand covered with the residue of the petroleum which has run out and evaporated, stretch for over 100 miles.

Near Pincher Creek some successful oil and gas wells have been bored, and the Western Oil and Coal Consolidated, who have leased for oil boring purposes 13,000 acres of the most promising land surrounding that town, are now actively engaged in drilling for both oil and natural gas.

Dr. I. C. White, State Geologist of West Virginia, and one of the most successful oil and gas geologists on the continent, recently examined the sections where this company's outfits are drilling. He says that the character of the underlying rock, and the way the layers are tiled provide the conditions par excellence for the accumulation of oil and gas in commercial quantities. He regards it as almost certain that gas will be found about half a mile north-east of Pincher Creek, and oil a little farther away.

Western Oil and Coal Consolidated have secured a charter for lighting Pincher Creek with natural gas, and this and other pushing western towns will soon enjoy the cheapest of all lights and fuels.

THE SKIRTED CHORUS

"I won't have chorus girls in tights," declared Marie Cahill to Charles Darnton. "It isn't human. No girl can keep on wearing tights and keep her health. I know what girls suffer when they wear tights. Of course, Lazy Gertie, who bags at the knees and sits down when she feels like it, isn't in any great danger of becoming an invalid, but the girl who wears tights as they should be worn is sure to pay for it at the end of a few years. She can't sit down, poor girl, and if she looks well she feels otherwise. The girl who presents an unwrinkled front to the audience is more to be pitied than dined, believe me. It's worse even in Paris. Why, those poor, skinny creatures who hop about at the Moulin Rouge, the Alcazar, and other places make me feel like rubbing them with cocoa butter. I used to wear tights myself, but, thank goodness, I've kept my health. I haven't anything against tights just as tights. But in my opinion nobody cares to see girls in tights any more. I find that our girls, dressed like ladies, are admired much more than the old style of chorus girls. They find it much easier to be natural."

"TRADESMAN" TELLS OF COMBINES

Believes That a Number of Them Exists Among the Various Merchants

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would like to take up a few lines in your valuable paper in the interests of the labourers and manufacturers of Peterborough and Canada. It seems to me it is high time the tradesmen and labouring men were rising up from their slumbers and wakened up to do their duty towards themselves and families. Who is to blame for high prices and scarcity of work? The labouring man you may say. How is he to blame? Right here is where all working men and women have fallen asleep, and while they sleep all manufacturers in all lines of trade suffer; and why do they suffer? Because all merchants in all lines of trade are combined to hold up prices. The coal merchants charge $7.50 per ton, the highest price; how is this? Combine. Doctors, grocers and dry goods merchants of all lines and even milk dealers and bakers, all combine to get all the working man's wages. Why should a man pay a merchant tailor from $10 to $14 for making a suit of clothes; is it worth more than eight? Is a ton of coal worth more than $6? Is a doctor's one or two hours work worth one hundred dollars? Combine! Who pays this? the labourer. Why does a poor man's wife or daughter have to pay from $5 to $144 for a hat that is actually worth $3.50? One or two weeks' hard labour for one hat; what does this? Combine. Why does the dry goods merchant send the money you worked hard for to a foreign country, to give the foreigner work, when it ought to come back to Canadian manufacturers and give you a chance to earn another suit of clothes? Combine. It seems presumption on the part of the labourer to cry "No Work!" and at the same time buy from foreign producers. If the Canadian manufacturers in all lines, and all labourers and tradesmen would combine and have their own merchants, fuel dealers and doctors, and demand home products as far as possible, the manufacturers would have all they could do, and the workingman would have lots of work, and all lines of trade would boom. It is high time the labourer and manufacturer cut out foreign dealers and local combines, and have a combine to protect themselves, instead of looking after foreign interest, and refuse to buy foreign goods and give your money to others to bank when you could bank some for yourself. Progress!

Yours very truly,

TRADESMAN.

A SURPRISED MINISTER

"For many years I have been a sufferer from bronchial catarrh, and had despaired of anything like a cure. Judge of my pleasant surprise when I first used Hyomei which brought complete relief. Hyomei has been a veritable 'godsend.'—Rev. Charles Hartley, Sardinia, Ohio.

Thousands of catarrh sufferers have given up in despair. They have tried stomach dosing, snuff, sprays and douches without success, and now believe catarrh to be incurable.

But Mr. Madill, the druggist, holds out hope to all distressed. He sells a remedy called Hyomei which is guaranteed for catarrh, colds, coughs, bronchitis, asthma and croup.

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is medicated air, full of the healthy virtues of the mountain pines. You breathe in the delightful antiseptic air, and as it passes over the inflammation, kills the germs, and drives out the disease.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including a hard rubber inhaler, costs but $1.00, and an extra bottle of Hyomei, if afterwards needed, costs but 50 cents. See Mr. Madill about it to-day.

Appropriations Made By The City Council And The Actual Expenditures

The following is the financial statement presented by City Treasurer F. Adams to the City Council on Monday night. The statement is for the first ten months of the year and shows the standing of the city on the 31st of October:—

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

THE EXAMINER welcomes all Items of Interest for this column. Phone 24 or send post card with name and address.

Miss Dell Carey has returned home after visiting her parents in Omemee for a week.

Mr. George Cleary, of Gore's Landing, Rice Lake, is in the city for a day or two on business.

Mrs. R. F. McWilliams will not receive again this month, owing to her absence from the city.

The report of an especial communication of the Grand Lodge, Saskatchewan, A.F. & A.M., is signed by John M. Shaw, Grand Secretary. Dr. Shaw, formerly of Keene, and at present at Regina, evidently takes as large an interest in matters Masonic as when he lived in this vicinity.

Mrs. A. S. Morrison, nee Miss Maud Breeze, formerly of Peterborough, but now of Chicago, Ill., gave a dinner in honor of the Canadian entertainer, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kyle, who appeared in the Chicago Opera House, Chicago, this week. Mrs. Morrison was assisted by her mother, Mrs. D. Breese, who is spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Morrison, at 6910 Erie avenue, Chicago, Ill.

The many friends of Miss Margaret Brooks will be glad to learn that she has been successful in taking her graduating examinations in the Homeopathic Hospital in Syracuse. Before returning home Miss Brooks will visit with friends in Vermont, Schenectady, N.Y., Albany and Troy for a few weeks. A Syracuse paper contained the following item, which will be of local interest: The graduation exercises of the Nurses' Training School of the Homeopathic Hospital was held last evening at the Kandenah. The graduates were Miss Mary Frances Hall, Miss Margaret Brooks and Miss Katherine Harrar. The Rev. W. R. Ferris made the opening prayer and the address of the evening was made by William Nottingham. President William Kent, of the Board of Trustees, conferred the diplomas. George W. Ballard sang a solo and the university orchestra played during the evening. The report of the training school was made by Mrs William Gere.

FIRST SOD HAS NOW BEEN TURNED

Big Ceremony Attends Commencement of Hydro Lines.

ALD. J. H. FRYER OFFICIATES

President of Ontario Power Union Performs Inaugural Act at Toronto Exhibition Grounds — Premier Whitney and Hon. Adam Beck Are Showered With Congratulations—Speeches at Ceremony.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—Sir James P. Whitney drove a final rivet in the Hydro-Electric power scheme yesterday and clinched it on the other side in his speech at the sod-turning ceremony in Exhibition Park.

"We will stand by the people who have stood by us," he declared, after applause had followed his declaration. "We have not gone this far to be stopped in our good work."

The occasion was the formal commencement of work on the construction of the Ontario high-tension electric power transmission line, when Ald. J. H. Fryer of Galt, president of the Western Ontario Power Union turned the first sod at 3.25 p.m.

He used a silver spade on the bird's-eye maple handle on which a silver plate bore this inscription:

"This spade was used by J. H. Fryer, president of the Niagara Power Union, to turn the first sod of the high tension transmission line of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, at Exhibition Park, Toronto, Nov. 18, 1908."

Yesterday's ceremony was preceded at 1 o'clock by a luncheon at the Parliament buildings at which a number of the leading supporters of the power movement throughout the province were present. There was no speech-making and among those who accepted invitations and who were present were: Hon. J. J. Foy, W. J. Hanna, [illegible] Premier Whitney, Hon. Adam Beck, Hon. E. A. Fyfe, Hon. J. S. Duff, members of the Hydro-Electric Commission; Hon. Adam Beck, Mr. W. K. McNaught, M.P.P., Mayor Oliver and Controllers Harrison, Hocken and Spence, representing the City of Toronto; the following members of Queen Victoria Park Commission, who control the water supply for the companies at the Falls: J. W. Langmuir, L. G. Raymond, F. W. Ellis, Geo. Wilkes, W. W. Doran and J. O. Wilgress; General F. V. Green, vice-president of the Ontario Power Co., that will supply the power to the commission; Ald. J. H. Fryer, Galt, president, and Ald. J. W. Lyon, Guelph, secretary-treasurer of the Niagara Power Union; Hon. Thomas Crawford, W. F. Maclean, M.P., Ald. Fred Cory, Brantford, J. F. Jaffrey (Galt), J. A. Macdonald, W. J. Douglas, W. D. McPherson, M.P.P., J. P. Downey, M.P.P.; and as representatives of this union, Mayors Stewart of Hamilton, Stevely of London, Bowlby of Brantford, Newstead of Guelph, Sutherland of Ingersoll, Sawtell of Woodstock, Geddes of St. Thomas, Reeve Stewart Scott of Galt, Arthur White, Ald. Greenlees, London; Ald. W. N. Andrews, Brantford; Ald. (Dr.) Mearns, Woodstock; R. H. Hobson, president C.M.A., Hamilton; L. H. Clarke, president Board of Trade; J. H. Kennedy, president, and W. J. Hevey, secretary Trades and Labor Council; F. H. McGuigan, head of the McGuigan Construction Co.; A. F. Lobb, solicitor for the commission.

The party adjourned to the Exhibition grounds, where the pillars for a tower had been set, and Ald. Fryer turned the first sod. The participants then proceeded to the Horticultural Hall, where a platform had been erected.

Hon. Adam Beck took the chair and expressed the pleasure it afforded him to welcome the representatives of the municipalities. These members of the Niagara Power Union had given five or six years' service to the movement and done their work without stint or restraint, and the successful issue evoked a sense of great satisfaction in them all. It was of great interest and importance to Ontario as a whole, also.

He outlined the history of the project and discussed the advantages of it at some length.

J. H. Fryer, president of the union, was first called upon. The scheme at first was thought to be applicable only to a few towns, he said, but it had spread all over Ontario. The difficulties had appeared to be insurmountable, but had finally been overcome. The Power Union ought to feel proud of Mayor Oliver and the City Council of Toronto, who had been towers of strength to the union and had stood up for the outside municipalities. A great deal of their success was due to Mr. Ellis. They owed a debt, too, to Mr. Beck, and the stand taken by Premier Whitney was worthy of their pride. In another year they would see electrical power being brought to their homes.

Ald. Lyon of Guelph, secretary of the union, Mayor Oliver of Toronto, P. W. Ellis of Toronto, W. K. McNaught, M.P.P., and Sir James Whitney also spoke.

The Premier was received with loud applause.

There were two ideas underlying what had been done by the Ontario Government in dealing with the power matter. One was the old, old saying, that the safety of the people was the supreme law.

Those entrusted with the work of the people should do it, having in view the general welfare of the people, whose servants they were.

The other idea was contained in the words of Davey Crockett—"Be sure you are right, and then go ahead."

"We waited till we were certain we were right, and then went ahead," he added.

"We will not be stopped or deterred by technical or other difficulties." He deplored the condition of the opponents of the plan, now sunk into a state of mental lassitude and torpor, the ultimate results of which were hard to prognosticate." Cheers followed his final assurance, "We will stand by the people who have stood by us."

REFORM WILL GO ON IN CHINA

Choice of Name For China's Emperor is Favorable Omen.

MANCHUS IN ASCENDANCY

Chinese Officials Are Bitter Over Favoritism Shown Their Hereditary Enemies—Arrangements Are Being Made For Burial of Dowager and Emperor—Threatened Disturbances Passing Over.

Pekin, Nov. 19.—An edict was issued yesterday declaring that the era of Pu Yi, the infant Emperor of China, be named "Hsuan Tung," meaning "Proclaimed successor." This characterization is interpreted as signifying the unification of the nation upon the reform program of the throne.

Another edict orders a posthumous title for Kuang Hsu in recognition of his merits. It enlarges upon the reform program to which the valedictory of the Emperor committed the throne, and thus commits the Government again to the details set forth in the program.

The regent has set aside May 25 for the members of the diplomatic corps in Pekin to appear in the forbidden city and express condolences of their respective Governments in the death of the emperor and Empress. Three members from each legation will be received at 9 a.m. They will bow three times before the coffins of the Emperor and the Dowager Empress and once to Prince Chun, the regent.

The Dowager Empress Yehonala, acting on a memorial presented by the princes and ministers, has issued an edict that the period of mourning be reduced for the regent and the court to 10 days and for the people to 70 days.

Orders were issued on Tuesday that the military manoeuvres in the Yangtse Valley be modified on account of the mourning.

Considerable adverse comment has been aroused by the fact that Prince Chun, the regent, is ignoring the Chinese in announcing the composition of the committee that are to have the funeral obsequies of the late Emperor and Empress in hand. The only two Chinese appointees are Yuan Shi Kai and Liu Chun Ling. The remainder are Manchus.

The selection of Prince Pu Lun and Chen Pi to proceed to the western tombs and select the site for the mausoleum of Kuang Hsu, the late Emperor, has been received with great dissatisfaction, principally because Prince Pu Lun was at one time very active in the intrigues to secure the throne for himself. Chen Pi is a former Boxer and anti-foreign in his sentiments. He owes his position and power to the eunuchs.

It is reported that Prince Ching, president of the Board of Foreign Affairs, has suffered physical collapse on account of his exertions and the excitement of the past few days. His political position is precarious, and it is believed that his career is practically at an end.

The fourteen native banks that suspended payment a few days ago were reopened and began to pay out money from funds supplied by the Government for the purpose of tiding over the panic.

The city is absolutely quiet and no disturbances are anticipated. Ten thousand foreign-drilled troops are in Pekin and their presence assures the maintenance of order. These soldiers are friendly to foreigners.

Nichols Students Fined.

Halifax, Nov. 19.—Six Dalhousie students, arrested Tuesday night for rioting and assaulting the police, were let off on a week's suspended sentence, and fined $200 to make good the damage.

Hotelmen Fined.

Belleville, Nov. 19.—Messrs. Carroll and Johnson of the Balmoral Hotel were fined $50 and costs for illegal selling of liquor. Three other hotelmen are to appear in court.

Babe Eats Pills.

Hamilton, Nov. 19.—Grant Richmond, 330 Wellington street, an infant son of Martin Richmond, a machinist, got hold of some pills last evening and ate them in the belief that they were candy. He was hustled off to the City Hospital in an unconscious condition. The doctors promptly used the stomach pump and have some hope of the youngster's recovery, although his condition is critical.

Added to Owen Sound.

Owen Sound, Nov. 19.—The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board met here yesterday to consider the petition of 162 property owners of Brookholm for annexation to Owen Sound.

The commissioners stated that an order to annex would be drawn up, subject to ratification of a special act of the Legislature.

The annexation will increase the population of Owen Sound by 900.

Fireman Davie Killed.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—A Grand Trunk freight train from Montreal jumped the switch at the Rideau Junction, one mile from Ottawa, last evening.

The engine toppled over, pinning Fireman Davie underneath. He was dead when removed. His home was in Madawaska.

Engineer Miller, Ottawa East, was seriously injured.

Prohibition in New Zealand.

London, Nov. 19.—(C.A.P.)—A Wellington, N.Z., cablegram states that the latest returns show the prohibition votes to have largely increased. Prohibition has been carried in nine electorates and reduction facilities in five others. The prohibition party estimate that 150 public houses will be closed and a number of wholesale licenses canceled.

Words to the Wise

By GERTRUDE LEWIS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

To begin with, Mrs. Mook was not even Ben Melville's mother-in-law. She was his stepmother-in-law, and Letty disliked her as much as her husband did.

They had welcomed the change in Ben's business affairs which required his removal to California, and as they boarded the train that was to take them on the first stage of their journey Letty breathed a little sigh of relief.

"I suppose it's wicked," she said softly, "but I wish we were going to China or Japan."

"What's the use?" asked Ben, with a laugh. "She would follow us out there. The last thing she said was that if you grew homesick to wire a ticket and she would come out at once."

Letty sat up very straight in her seat.

"Ben Melville," she warned impressively, "if you ever dare send such a message I'll never speak to you again."

"I won't," he promised teasingly, "unless you need punishment."

Thereafter impending quarrels were checked when Ben irrelevantly inquired if there was a telegraph blank handy. The threatened trouble always ended in a laugh.

The first six months of California life seemed like a dream, so different was everything from what it had been in the east. A flower garden that bloomed the year round was new to the little New England girl, and Wah Ling, once his oriental makeup was mastered, was like a gift of the gods. After a quick succession of raw immigrants of all nationalities the Chinaman was a revelation.

Silent footed, competent and scrupulously neat, Wah Ling was a great relief to the little housekeeper, and Melville declared his home to be a paradise with a thirty dollar a month angel in charge.

Then the blow fell. Letty met her husband at the door of their little home with an expression on her face that filled him with alarm.

"What's wrong, little woman?" he asked anxiously. "Is is bad, dear?"

"It couldn't be worse," she sobbed as he gathered her into his arms. "Mrs. Mook's coming."

"Wire her not to," he said sharply. "I know that she's your stepmother, darling, but that doesn't entitle her to come out here and make life miserable. I should not think that she would want to. You don't even call her mother."

"She doesn't mind a little thing like that," sobbed Letty. "She writes that the doctor says that her lungs are weak and that six months in the mild California air is just what she needs. She's coming to stay with us because dad can't afford to send her out here and pay her board too."

"Wire her not to come," repeated Ben sternly. But Letty shook her head.

"We can't," she wailed. "She started the day after she mailed this, and she'll be here tomorrow."

"Then we'll have to make the best of it," said Ben, with the peculiar tightening of the lips that marked his displeasure. "Perhaps we may find some way of housing her elsewhere Let's have dinner. The situation will look better after we have had something to eat."

But even Wah Ling's perfect cooking did not bring the customary sense of contentment, though he had done his best, because he had seen that his mistress was worried.

He moved about the dining room in his spotless white costume like some accomplished ghost and took a dislike to the new guest before he had seen her because she had made the mistress cry.

But his dislike became personal when he entered the dining room the following afternoon. Mrs. Mook had arrived only a half hour before, and she had not been apprised of the employment of a Chinese "boy."

"The person's in his night clothes!" one cried, eying Wah Ling's snowy garments with disfavor. "My dear Letty, your father wears those things to sleep in."

"It is the native costume," explained Letty. "It is very cool and comfortable."

"It's indecent," commented Mrs. Mook, and Wah Li... scowled.

A melancholy trio sat on the piazza that evening in the soft dusk, heavy with the scent of flowers. Mrs. Mook found fault with everything and announced that on the morrow she would readjust the household affairs.

Letty sought to make reply, but a warning pressure on her arm caused her to remain silent, and not until Mrs. Mook announced herself ready for bed was the riddle explained.

Immediately after breakfast Mrs. Mook announced that the process of reform would start in the kitchen. Mrs. Melville drew back.

"You mustn't go in there!" she cried. "Tell Wah Ling what you want done and he will do it perfectly, but the Chinese boys will not stand for any supervision."

"That's all nonsense," declared Mrs Mook militantly. "He can ride roughshod over you, but he'll find he has some one else to deal with now."

With majestic mien she strode into the immaculate kitchen. Wah Ling looked up inquiringly from the chicken he was disjointing with a hatchet. Mrs. Mook gave a cry of disapproval.

"You mustn't do it that way," she commanded.

"Was malla?" asked Wah.

"Get a knife," commanded Mrs. Mook. "That is the proper way."

"Velly good way," commented Wah serenely as he severed a wing from the body.

"Do as I tell you, you impertinent heathen!" cried the exasperated Mrs. Mook. "I am going to take charge of this kitchen, and things must be done as a Christian does them. Mrs. Melville has been too easy with you. You will find that I am not so easily imposed upon. Get a knife and cut the chicken with that."

Wah dropped the chicken, and with a docility that brought a smile of triumph to Mrs. Mook's face he trotted over to the cupboard and procured a knife with an eighteen inch blade.

"You get out here," he commanded as he brandished knife and hatchet. "You velly bad. You buttin."

With a whoop he started for her, and Mrs. Mook fled to the front porch, where Letty waited developments.

"Get a policeman! Call for help!" she panted. "That Chinaman has gone crazy."

"It's just his way," said Letty placidly. "All Chinamen are like that. They make splendid servants, but they will not stand interference in their work. You can tell them what you want done and how you wish it done, and you can count on its being done, but when you interfere— Wah nearly scared me to death the only time he chased me out of the kitchen. He had a knife and the fire shovel."

"He must be dismissed," said Mrs. Mook firmly.

"What's the use?" said Letty. "If he goes he will leave his mark somewhere. Then we never can get a boy at any price. Mrs. Morgan tried that. She let her boy go, and they had eleven in two days. They all knew where to look for the sign, and when they saw it they went."

"Either that heathen goes or I shall," said Mrs. Mook sternly.

"We can't let Wah Ling go," declared Letty with equal firmness. "I simply will not be without a servant."

Mrs. Mook paused to give her stepdaughter a chance to reconsider. As she stood there she caught sight of Wah Ling's face contorted with rage peering through the dining room door. He still held the carving knife, and, with a scornful sniff, Mrs. Mook turned and marched upstairs to pack her trunk.

Wah Ling departed cheerfully for the livery to order the carriage to take her to the resort down the road, and her last glimpse of the little redwood cottage showed Wah Ling performing a solemn dance on the porch, with a knife in one hand and a club in the other.

The best dinner Wah had ever cooked was spread on the table that evening when Ben came home from his work, and from the kitchen came the shrill notes of what Wah Ling was pleased to consider a song. Ben laughed as he took his place at the head of the table.

"I always said that Wah Ling was a jewel," he declared. "He is a pearl without price."

"I am a little afraid myself," confessed Letty. "He never was so violent when we had our trouble."

"No be fiald," counseled Wah, who had noiselessly entered. "Hear chin-chin yess'day. 'Word to wise man plenty 'nough.' Savvy?"

"And you did it on purpose?" cried Letty reproachfully.

"You no like?" asked Wah in simulated surprise.

"It was very wrong," declared Ben as he drew a bill from his pocket and passed it to Wah. "But if she comes again we will speak more words for the wise."

"Me savvy," agreed Wah as he pocketed the bill.

Fifty Cents a Month

A small bottle of Scott's Emulsion costing fifty cents will last a baby a month—a few drops in its bottle each time it is fed. That's a small outlay for so large a return of health and comfort. Babies that are given quickly respond to its helpful action. It seems to contain just the elements of nourishment a baby needs most. Ordinary food frequently lacks this nourishment; Scott's Emulsion always supplies it.

To Polish Mahogany.

"If others are troubled as I have been," says a writer in Harper's Bazar, "with a blue gray appearance on the surface of any of their highly polished furniture they may feel perfectly safe in using the following:

"To about a quart of clear water add a tablespoonful of good strong vinegar. In the solution saturate a soft cheesecloth and wring out as dry as possible. With this rub lightly the surface to be cleaned and dry—always rubbing lightly—with a dry piece of cheesecloth.

"If afraid of this at first, you might experiment on a section of the furniture that does not show. The inside of the top lid of the piano might do if that is the article to be cleaned. In case of the first application not entirely removing the cloudy look repeat the operation in about a week and you will have the satisfaction of seeing your furniture look as fine as it did the day it left the factory."

A Phillips Brooks Story.

The spirit of love and kindliness to all which pervaded every word and deed of Bishop Phillips Brooks did not hinder his keen appreciation of others' failings and shortcomings or his own.

"Why in the world doesn't Brown write his autobiography and have it published?" said one of the bishop's friends, referring to an incessant talker and most egotistical man who had been wasting an hour of the bishop's most precious time by a rehearsal of some unimportant happenings.

"Why, he'd rather tell it, of course," said the bishop, and then like a flash came regret for the quickly spoken truth, and he turned on his friend with a half humorous, half distressed face. "What do you mean by asking me such a question as that when I'd off my guard?" he demanded reproachfully.

Mystery of a Cookbook.

Somebody mentioned cookbooks.

"It takes a good dea... make me wonder," said the publisher, "but I received a jolt in the culinary line the other day that set me thinking. In looking over the manuscript of a cookbook that had been submitted for our approval I was struck by this introduction to many of the recipes, 'Good for boarding house table.'

"Now, why that discrimination? Isn't anything that is good enough for a boarding house table good enough for any other table, and isn't anything that is good enough for any other table good enough for a boarding house table? Judging by the way those particular recipes read, they may result in some rather tasty dishes. Then why limit them to boarding houses?"

His Successor.

Shortly after the death of one of England's greatest poets a devoted admirer of his visited the little Westmoriand villages where the poet had lived and died to gaze reverently at his house, the little church and at some of his favorite haunts where some of his immortal poems were composed.

Seeing an old man a native of the village), the stranger entered into conversation with him, remarking sadly on the death of the poet, to which the old man answered kindly and encouragingly:

"Aye, aye, still I mak' na doobt but t' wife 'll carry the bizness on."

Brief and Pithy.

An American law journal has quoted the charge to a jury delivered by a certain Judge Donovan as the shortest on record. The judge said:

"Gentlemen of the jury, if you believe the plaintiff find a verdict for plaintiff and fix the amount. If you believe the defendant find a verdict for defendant. Follow the officer."

But an English periodical caps this brief charge by quoting a shorter one delivered by Commissioner Kerr. He said to a jury:

"That man says prisoner robbed him. The prisoner says he didn't. You settle it."

Knew Them at Once.

The vicar appointed to a living in an old English village was anxious to restore his church. On either side of the porch were grotesque, not to say hideous, faces that had become almost hidden. The vicar had these ancient faces worked up until their features were made distinct. Then he took a very old lady of the parish to see them and jokingly asked if she could tell him who they were. "Why, bless my heart, sir," said she, peering at the old ornaments, "it's you and your good lady!"

Pear Shaped Balloons.

Pear shaped balloons are the fashion in Belgium. The point is upward; the base of the balloon is spherical. It is claimed that balloons of this shape pierce the air vertically with far greater speed than the ordinary spherical balloon. Consequently they are steadier.

THE "DOCTOR."

An Important Functionary on Merchant Vessels is the Cook.

There is one functionary on merchant vessels of all kinds who has very much more to do with the "peace and dignity" of the floating commonwealth than shore folks usually imagine. I refer to the cook, who is sometimes called the "doctor." Why he is given this cognomen is not altogether plain, for his handiwork seldom has any therapeutic value and in the past, at least, has had much to do with sending poor sailormen to a doctor, if not to Davy Jones' locker. In fact, there was a time in nautical history when the presiding genius of the galley was in such bad repute that to call a man a "son of a sea cook" was a most opprobrious epithet and one that would be emphatically resented. In those days (and to some extent today) the cook was covertly despised by the occupants both of the forecastle and the cabin, though the men "forrard" outwardly professed affection for him and apparently were never so happy as when they could wash his clothes or do him various other favors, with the hope of getting sundry "leavin's" from the cabin table or being granted such privileges as "hanging out" in the galley when rough weather at night made the watch on deck grateful for such shelter. In other ways it was found highly salutary to keep in good graces of his culinary majesty, who frequently was a more powerful person in some respects than the "old man" himself. It is almost needless to add that the more skilled as a cook the cook was the more profound was his influence both fore and aft. But he wasn't often much in the way of skill, all the same.—Shipping Illustrated.

BOUGHT OFF THE BURGLAR.

An Old Banker's Bargain With His Unwelcome Visitor.

"William Winslow Sherman, the old banker, had the coolest nerve of any man I know," said a man who knew him. "Some years ago, when Sherman was an old man and partially crippled by reason of a fall from a horse, he entered his bedroom late at night to find a masked burglar ransacking it.

"The thief had a big gun trained on Sherman in a minute. The banker just waved it aside with a tired hand. 'Put that away,' he said irritably. 'Let us discuss this matter like gentlemen.' The burglar was so surprised he laughed. 'Now, you could hurt me if you wanted to and might get away with some little knick-knacks,' said Sherman. 'But you might be caught, and there's a slight probability that you could dispose of my toilet articles profitably. What would you consider a fair cash proposition to go away?' They talked it over in all peace.

"The burglar thought he ought to have $10, but Sherman, after inquiring into the man's habits, said $8 was enough. 'You see,' he said, 'you're a known thief. If this were your first offense, I'd pay your price, but now the police have your picture you ought to be glad to accept any fair compromise and run no risk.'

"The burglar finally agreed to take $8. Sherman pulled out a ten dollar bill. 'Give me $2 change,' said he. And he got it before he paid."

Not a Nursery.

"Before I got this job I had no idea so many funny things happened on street cars," said a new conductor, according to the Denver Post. "Every day I see and hear things that are amusing. For instance, a woman with a baby about two years old boarded my car and rode downtown. When we reached Fifteenth and California she rose to get off. The baby was tucked snugly in the corner of the seat. The woman hesitated in the aisle. 'Say,' she said to me, 'I'd like to ask a favor of you.'

"'What is it?' I asked.

"'I've got some shopping to do,' she said. 'Would you please take baby around a trip with you? I don't want him with me. I'll be back when you return to this corner and take him.'

"'Madam,' I replied, 'I can't take care of your baby. Suppose he should get to crying, as he undoubtedly would?'

"'Well, goodness me,' she said, 'you could slap him, couldn't you?'"

"Don't Neglect a Cough or Cold."

It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It is without an equal as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Pain in the Chest, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Quinsy and all affections of the Throat and Lungs.

A single dose of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will stop a cough, soothe the throat, and if the cough or cold has become settled on the lungs, the healing properties of the Norway Pine Tree will proclaim its great virtue by promptly eradicating the bad effects, and a persistent use of the remedy cannot fail to bring about a complete cure.

Do not be humbugged into buying so-called Norway Pine Syrups, but be sure and insist on having Dr. Wood's. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cents.

Mrs. A. Elps, Innisfail, Alta., writes: "Last spring I had Typhoid fever and Bronchitis, which left me with a terrible cough. I tried doctor's medicine but got no relief until my husband got me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before I had finished it my cough was cured. My husband also uses it whenever he has a cough. I would not be without it."

A LINGUISTIC ESCAPADE.

When Henry W. Longfellow Shocked Intellectual Boston.

In the original impression of Longfellow's poem of "Hiawatha" there were found in the seventh book the three lines following:

Straight into the river Kwasind
Plunged as if he were an otter,
Dove as if he were a beaver.

How this offending preterit passed the proofreader without protest is one of those mysteries which have never been revealed. But the form certainly made its appearance and can still be found in copies of the poem which were regularly published and sold. Boston never received such a shock since the days when Fenimore Cooper insisted that it was only in the middle states that the English language was spoken in its purity. But that attack came from an outsider. Here the offender was of her own household, was, in fact, her favorite son. What means of suppression were resorted to will probably never be disclosed. A mysterious reticence has always been preserved in regard to this linguistic escapade. The biographers of Longfellow appear to be silent upon the subject. Measures of some sort must, however, have been taken at once. "Dove" was expunged, and the decorous "dived" assumed its place, and the whole transaction was so completely hushed up that no public scandal was created. Let him who possesses a copy of that first impression continue to cherish it. Whatever may be its worth now, the time will come when it will reach the value of the virtuous woman of Scripture, and its price will be far above rubies.—Professor Thomas R. Lounsbury in Harper's Magazine.

THE PALACE WAITED.

A Suggestion That Changed the Plans of a Pope.

At a time when there was great suffering among the people from lack of food and when famine in its worst form was threatened Pope Alexander VI. had made arrangements for the erection of a magnificent palace. The best architects had been employed, and the plans had been submitted and accepted, and an accomplished builder had been sent for to come from Venice, a man whose work had won for him renown and who was known to be a just and upright man.

The builder had arrived, and at an appointed time he waited upon his holiness to receive the plans and make his estimates. "There is one thing yet to be done," said the pope. "There has been no proper inscription or legend thought of to be placed over the main entrance of the palace. It should be put above the great gate. You have had experience. Do you think of an inscription that would be appropriate?"

"If your holiness would pardon me for the liberty, I might suggest one most appropriate at this time."

"You are pardoned in advance," said the pope, smiling. "Now, what shall it be?"

"Sovereign pontiff, let it be thus: 'Command that these stones be made bread!'"

The pope was visibly and deeply affected. He paid the builder munificently for his expenses of coming and going, and instead of building his palace he fed the hungry ones of his children.

Poverty Has Its Advantages.

A man on the wane of life observes that poverty has advantages and adversity its uses. If you are poor you can wear out your old clothes. You are excused from calls. You are not troubled with many visitors. Bores do not disturb you. Spongers do not haunt your tables. Brass bands do not serenade you. No one thinks of presenting you with a testimonial. No storekeeper irritates you by asking you, "Is there anything I can do for you?" Begging letter writers do not bother you. Flatterers do not flatter you. You are saved many debts and many a deception. And, lastly, if you have a true friend in the world you are sure to know it in a short space of time by him not deserting you.

Not Deliberate.

A SHINING MARK

What Parisian Sage did for Chas. S. Baker, it will do for you. Read the following:

"I was so bald and such a shining mark for my friends that I, as a last resort, tried your Parisian Sage (after trying several bottles of the highly advertised and high priced so-called hair restorers), and I am glad to say I now have a heavy growth of new hair after carrying my shining mark for over seven years. I gladly recommend Parisian Sage to all afflicted with baldness." Chas. S. Baker, 491 Main street east, Rochester, N. Y.

Parisian Sage, the only natural hair restorer, is guaranteed by Wm. Madill to cure dandruff, stop falling hair, and cure itching of the scalp, or money back. It is the ladies' favorite hair dressing because it adds charm and luxuriance to the hair. 50 cents a bottle. Ask Wm. Madill about it.

BATHING AT DIEPPE.

When the Countesse de Boigne Tried It in the Year 1824.

The Countesse de Boigne in her memoirs gives an account of a visit she paid in 1824, which is interesting in view of the position Dieppe now holds among French watering places.

"The poverty of the inhabitants," she says, "was frightful. The Englishman, as they called him (and for them he was worse than the devil), was cruising incessantly before their empty harbor. With much difficulty a boat was able to escape from time to time and go fishing, always at the risk of being captured by the foreigner or confiscated upon the return journey if the telescopes of the watchers had seen it approach a vessel.

"As for the comforts arranged for the convenience of bathers which Dieppe has since organized, they were nonexistent at that time. My brother was able to find a little covered cart, and with great trouble and great expense, notwithstanding the universal poverty, a man was hired to lead the horses down to the sea and two women to go into the sea with me.

"These preparations raised the public surprise and curiosity to such a pitch that my first bath was watched by a crowd on the shore. My servants were asked if I had been bitten by a mad dog.

"I aroused extreme pity as I went by, and it was thought that I was being taken down to be drowned. An old gentleman called on my father to point out to him that he was assuming a great responsibility in permitting so rash an act. It can hardly be imagined that the inhabitants of a seashore could be so afraid of the sea.

"But at that time the people of Dieppe were chiefly occupied in keeping out of sight of it and in protecting themselves from the disasters which they feared the sea might bring, so that it was for them nothing more than a means of annoyance and suffering. It is curious to think that ten years later bathers were arriving in hundreds, that special arrangements were made for their convenience and that sea bathing of every kind went on without producing any astonishment in the neighborhood.

"I have thus attempted to point out that the custom of sea bathing, which is now so universal, is comparatively recent in France, for Dieppe was the first place where it began."

TREE DWELLING ANTS.

South American Insect That Acts as Plant Guardian.

Ant defenders of plants and trees are some of nature's pretty marvels. The Cecropia adenopus is a remarkable tree of south Brazil, widely distributed through the tropics. Its slender trunk is crowned with long leaves at the ends of the branches.

A few active ants run continually along the branches and the leaves, but if the tree is shaken slightly an army of ants rushes out by small apertures ready for a savage assault on the intruder. The ant is the terrible guardian that the tree has retained to protect it from its most formidable enemy, the leaf cutter ant.

The defenders rarely leave their retreat, where they live on small whitish egg shaped bodies about one-twelfth of an inch long, known as Mueller's corpuscles. These are formed of delicate tissue, rich in proteids and oil, as rations for the garrison of defender ants to feed upon. The curious arrangement by which entrance is made to the hollow stem has been studied by W. Schimper.

Just above the point of insertion of each leaf extends nearly to the superior node a superficial groove, at whose end is a rounded depression. There the tissue is thin, like a diaphragm in a tube, and it also is soft. The hole by which the ant enters is always pierced at this spot. The ants seem to have made their entrance through the groove originally because it was at the top. In the course of this plant's further development natural selection augmented these natural advantages, so that finally the thin, frail diaphragm as it exists today was developed.

Married the Day They Met.

Horace Greeley and Mary Young Cheney were married the first day they met. They had corresponded for some time, a common friend who was something of a matchmaker having brought this about. She was all his fancy painted her, but she was much disappointed in his appearance, so much so that when he appeared before her, having proposed and been accepted by letter, she frankly told him that, although she married him, she was not in love with him. Their married life was long and happy, and the look of his wife was a blow which Greeley did not long survive.

THEY TAKE THINGS EASY IN ANDALUSIA.

During Breakfast the Callers Arrive and Each Sits Down to the Table and Partakes of Cigarettes and Sherry—Four O'clock Ends First Meal, Dinner at Eight and Theatre at Ten—A Gossippy Watchman.

In the houses we knew in Andalusia the men obliterated themselves all day, the ladies went to mass in the morning and spent the rest of the time sitting in flower decked balconies, fanning softly and talking to canaries and cockatoos.

After weeks of travel the prospect of rest in such an environment was not unattractive, and I contemplated adapting myself to the ways of the household and the balcony with much pleasure. With some good novels bought in Madrid, fate could not harm for a few days at any rate. But while dressing in my cushioned and scented boudoir it was borne in upon me that the atmosphere of this palacio was not so serenely dull as the houses of Andalusia. The smart freshness of the house was too obvious, and certainly the dona did not look like a woman who found canaries intellectually satisfying.

Waiting for us in the drawing room with the don and dona was a young man introduced simply as "Mariano," the nephew of somebody. Nor do I know to this day what was Mariano's other name. That was a trivial detail, but his ancestors were very serious. He represented one of the old Moorish families who for reasons of love or money had remained in Spain after the fall of Granada, and his solemn eyes and blue black hair and beard made him a rare example of the persistence of race type. Paquita, a pretty young girl, was a semidetached member of the family, the dona's goddaughter, living on another floor of the palacio, who had come in "to see us eat breakfast."

On the don's arm I went the length of the house to the dining room, where the table was prettily laid with a few flowers, picturesque wine bottles and primly arranged fruit baskets. It was appalling to find ourselves placed at the head and foot of it, but they proved to be literally seats of honor, with no duties attached. Everything was served by two little maids as pretty as their names, Serafina and Lijandra, in peasant costume, and the dona wore throughout the meal a look of restful unconcern.

We were hardly seated before visitors began to arrive. Each shook hands with every one present, including a superannuated housekeeper on a divan in a far corner, then joined us at the table, taking cigarettes and sherry. Nothing else was offered them, while we enjoyed course after course. At first we rose when introduced, but they always protested vehemently, and, seeing that the family remained seated, we did likewise and found it the only reasonable plan, as during the meal we had half a dozen callers, and each one shook hands all around twice. We were still at the table when the tertana was announced at 4 o'clock.

The fine arts exhibition was the centre of social interest, and we were plunged without warning into the midst of it, spending the afternoon in a chaos of introductions, music, pictures and light refreshments.

Dinner at 8, except for a few more sweets and visitors, was like the previous meal. At 10 we hurried to the theatre, and I was limply thankful to leave at midnight, though the play was not over and a gay party protested against our going so early.

Arrived at the palacio, the don clapped his little gloved hands, and a voice from the distant darkness called "Voy corriendo," ("I come running"), though the steps were slow and shuffling. In my impatience it seemed as if the don might have carried his own latchkey until the vigilante produced it from a bunch containing the keys of all the houses in the block, each weighing about half a pound.

He also provided a long wax taper to light us upstairs, and after firmly refusing anything more to eat or drink we made our elaborate good night speeches, shook hands with every one in sight and retired.

The day seemed to be over, but we had yet to reckon with the sereno, falsely so called, who walked up and down, tapping the street with his staff, proclaiming the hour, the state of the weather or anything he thought might entertain the people he was keeping awake.—Ellen Maury Slayden in Century.

The Sunflower's Birthplace.

Scattered as is the sunflower, "tawny and bronze and gold," all over the Kansas prairies, yet few people know that it originally came from Peru. Incidentally here are the birthplaces of other popular plants: Celery came from Germany, chestnut from Italy, onion from Egypt, tobacco from Virginia, nettle from Europe, citron from Greece, oats from north Africa, poppy from the east, rye from Siberia, parsley from Sardinia, pear and apple from Europe, spinach from Arabia, mulberry tree from Persia, walnuts from Persia, peaches from Persia, cucumber from East Indies, quince from Crete, radish from China and Japan, peas from Egypt, horseradish from southern Europe, horse chestnut from Tibet.

The Origin of a Miserable Joke.

Confucius had just met William Penn at one of Cleopatra's 5 o'clock teas.

"William Penn?" he said. "William Penn? Seems to me I have heard of you, sir."

"Yes," said Penn, with a pleased smile. "I am the man who was mightier than the sword."

"Ah, yes!" said Confucius. "You are also the man who invented sleep, are you not?"

"No," said Penn; "I founded Philadelphia."

"Oh, yes," said Confucius. "I knew it was something of that kind."

Plagiarism.

At the literary club a sympathetic crowd surrounded the humorist, whose house had been robbed.

"They cleaned out everything," said the man—"everything, but, thank goodness, they didn't swipe from my desk the manuscript column of jokes for next week's paper."

"Perhaps they knew," suggested a conneteer cynically, "that the jokes had already been swiped."

Liberality.

Little Jimmie, who had just received a box of mixed candy, passed it around to treat the family, saying: "Help yourself to all the chocolates you want. I don't like them."—Exchange.

Palpitation of the Heart.

One of the first danger signals that announce something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or again, there may be a most violent beating, with flushings of the skin and visible pulsations of the arteries. The person may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die. In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond all question, marvellous. They give such prompt relief that no one need suffer.

Mr. Sylvester Smith, Hampton, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and tried doctor's medicines, but they only gave me temporary relief. I heard of your Heart and Nerve Pills and bought two boxes and before I had used them I was completely cured and would recommend them to all similarly affected."

MISS ASQUITH'S MISHAP.

Premier's Daughter Had a Narrow Escape From Death.

Miss Violet Asquith, the daughter of the Prime Minister, has had a startling adventure in the neighborhood of Slains Castle, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, where she was staying with her parents during the Parliamentary recess.

Miss Asquith went out in the afternoon to walk along the braes to the north of the castle.

She returned in time for dinner, but she had forgotten the book which she took with her, so about 8 o'clock in the evening she set out in quest of it, remarking to her maid that she would be back in a few minutes.

When nearly two hours had passed without her reappearance, a message was despatched to the coastguard and the local policeman that she was missing.

A search party of coastguards was organized, and, provided with rope-ladders and lanterns, made a diligent search among the rocks until eleven o'clock without success.

Anxiety was intense, but the search seemed so hopeless that the suggestion of waiting until the dawn had actually been made when Samuel Milne, a young fisherman, who had been fishing in the bay in the afternoon, told some of the members of the house party that he had seen from his boat a young woman sitting on the cliffs reading a book at a place on the north side of the Longhaven, and a considerable distance from where the search was being made.

The search party hastened to the place described by Milne, and, as they neared it, they heard barking, and soon Miss Asquith's dog came running toward them. As soon as it saw them it turned and ran back and then turned again.

At length the search party found Miss Asquith lying unconscious at the edge of a very steep cliff.

Miss Asquith was quickly carried home, and Dr. Stewart, from Hatton, was summoned at once and attended to her.

It is thought that possibly Miss Asquith had found that she had left her book further away that she thought, but with characteristic tenacity had resolved that she would not turn back until she had discovered it, and had pushed on until overcome by fatigue.

TOLL OF THE SNAKE.

New Method of Fighting One Indian Plague May Save Thousands.

The "Times of India" gives the "snake" statistics for 1907. The total mortality amongst human beings caused by snake-bite fell from 22,811 in 1906 to 21,418 in 1907. So low a figure has not been reached since 1897. The decrease is noticeable mainly in Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam, where the figures fell from 8,862 and 2,730 in 1906 to 8,276 and 1,900 respectively in 1907. The most important increases occurred in Madras and Burma, where the figures rose from 1,527 and 1,149 in 1906 to 1,977 and 1,348 respectively. The highest mortality in Bengal occurred, as usual, in the Patna division, the number of deaths being 3,393 as compared with 3,836 in 1906. The decrease in Eastern Bengal and Assam is attributed to the floods having been lower. The Central Provinces figure (996) is the lowest returned in any one of the last seven years. The Lauder-Brunton treatment of snake-bite by incision and application of permanganate of potash and the distribution of lancets continues. It is too early yet to pronounce with any certainty as to the result of the experiment, but a number of favorable reports have been received. Eight cases are reported from the United Provinces of the successful use of Dr. Calmette's antivenene. In two of these cases the permanganate of potash treatment was also employed.

War Artist as Stowaway.

Mr. Melton Prior, the well-known war artist and correspondent, who was married recently to Miss Georgina Douglas, daughter of the late Mr. George M'Intosh Douglas of the British Civil Service, has taken part in over twenty-four campaigns and revolutions, his first appearance on the battlefield being in the Ashanti war of 1873, his last during the Russo-Japanese war of 1904. Mr. Melton Prior developed pluck and daring early in life. When he was four years old his elder brother induced him to accompany him on an apple-stealing expedition into a neighbor's garden, and, when their pinafores were crammed full, they were suddenly disturbed, and beat a hasty retreat. Melton's brother fell headlong into a rain-water butt, and Melton himself, in getting over the palings into his father's garden, got hitched up by a nail through his hand. When his parents lived in Boulogne he hid himself on one of the London steamships in hopes of being taken on as a sailor, but it happened to be a rough night, and his first feelings of sea-sickness daunted his ardor. When he was discovered and brought before the captain he was made to do some very nasty work, and was thoroughly sickened of sailoring. As an old campaigner, Mr. Prior has always believed in making himself comfortable, and boasts that he was the only man with a tent in Ulundi, where Lord Chelmsford slept under a tarpaulin.

Reforming the Head Hunters.

A curious development is in steady progress in the Solomon Islands, the group in the South Pacific which lies to the west of New Guinea, whose people have earned such unenviable notoriety as head hunters. The young men of the tribes in these fertile and beautiful islands are abandoning the historic pursuit which has made them dreaded for centuries in the South Seas and are taking to the copra industry. Copra, which is the dried interior of the cocoanut, is valued commercially for the oil which can be pressed from it, and some of the young Solomon Islanders are accumulating considerable wealth by extracting it, though the older generation, to whom head-hunting is still the only profession for a gentleman, are said to look down upon them as being "in trade."—London Standard.

HINTS FOR BUSY WOMEN.

How Newspapers on Kitchen Tables Prove Traveling Universities.

The faithful reader of the Atlantic Monthly Magazine will remember well the young woman who confessed in an issue of two or three years ago that the source of her remarkable fund of information and her broad knowledge of affairs was all due to her grandmother's uncompromising ideals of economy and cleanliness. Was the kitchen table freshly scrubbed and the board above the sink washed and scoured? Then cover them with newspapers. Newspapers were everywhere, and as this young woman, who was then a girl in her early teens, pared the apples or shelled the peas or washed the dishes thrice daily her eyes traveled up and down the columns of those papers that shrouded everything about her. Editorials and news items all were alike to her. She read them all and, reading, remembered.

The methods of today are neither so deliberate nor so particular as to permit this sort of newspaper education, but a contributor to a current magazine suggests another method by which she obtains a liberal education while "on the wing," as it were.

She is a busy woman and can spare only a few minutes each day for the papers. A hasty glance at the headlines or a look at the leading articles in the magazines may be all that she has time for, but there are often long articles on art or literature or matters of national importance which she longs to read through. So she has formed the habit of marking these articles, and after the other members of the family have read the paper one of the children cuts the marked pieces out and slips them into the mother's pocketbook. These can be read through on the car when waiting for an appointment or at other odd seasons and thoroughly enjoyed. And so in the end this busy woman finds herself not so far behind the times, after all.

Design For Street Costume.

The drawing shows a very smart costume for street wear, the coat having the newest features of the season.

DESIGN FOR STREET COSTUME.

The model is in black broadcloth, with satin revers and satin passementerie buttons, but the model is also especially well adapted to soft, flat fur, such as pony skin or caracal. The skirt of the gown is in walking length, in a gored circular, and the sleeves are small and fitted without fullness into the armhole.

Kitchen Help.

A dozen grains of rice in a saltcellar will absorb dampness and keep the salt in powder. It also breaks the lumps that there may be in the salt.

An alarm clock kept in the kitchen may be set to ring at the time the vegetables should be put over the fire or the hot bread or the cake or pudding is due to be done and as a guide to time in many other matters.

Racks for kettle and pan covers may be made on the back of the doors of kitchen closets and will save much trouble. Get brass screw hooks and arrange them on the lower edges of the crosswise panels of the door. Screw larger hooks at each end of the panels and stretch the door springs attached to them across the panels. The distance of the spring from the bottom of the panel varies according to the size of the covers. The hooks for the springs for the large covers should be put about the middle of the panel and for the smallest covers quite near the bottom.

The covers or flat trays slipped between the spring and the doors will rest on the hooks along the lower edge.

For Milk Bottles.

A little rubber lid for milk bottles is now on sale at the grocery stores. These are circular pieces of flexible white rubber with a little round button in the center, and they fit in any milk bottle, taking the place of the nerve trying paper top or the older tin form. These rubbers cost 5 cents and last practically forever. Once tried one will never be without them.

Milk bottles should be carefully wiped about the top with a wet cloth before removing the pasteboard top.

AN AMUSING CUSTOM.

Spaniards Trick Themselves Into Wanting a Glass of Water.

Writing of experiences with Spanish hospitality, Ellen Maury Slayden in the Century says:

The cafes were always crowded to suffocation, and yet we lingered past the small hours, the men smoking dozens of cigarettes and the women dipping bits of wafer into chocolate as leisurely as if they had the night instead of the day before them. A favorite drink was a thin almond milk which looked like something for the complexion and which, after tasting, I would have much preferred applying externally. There was a refreshing absence of the highball and cocktail element, and no one ever seemed to take too much to drink.

It is always amusing to see these most temperate people tricking themselves into wanting a glass of water. They recommend certain dishes and enjoy their eternal chocolate chiefly because "it makes one so thirsty." Visiting a country house once, we were invited into the dining room and I hoped for tea. The table was elaborately spread. We were seated and each helped to a delicious conserved peach and tenderly urged to eat it to make us want some water. When we had eaten the peach and drunk the water the ceremony was complete.

SENIORITY IN CONGRESS.

Experience Carries Influence—Old Members Relied on For Work.

A man's standing in congress is gained by seniority. His influence there comes from length of service, provided, of course, that it is the right kind of service.

New men, no matter how ambitious and zealous, have very little influence. They do not and cannot begin their work where their predecessors left off. Speechmaking does not bring them influence. Work brings it—committee work.

Members rank in their committees by seniority. Besides, new members do not get and cannot get in the usual course of things appointments to the more important committees. These appointments go to the tried men, who by length of service coupled with ability are chosen in the house for the vacant places.

Some constituencies know this and act accordingly. Some constituencies ignore the fact and gain nothing by ignoring it. In fact, they lose weight in the councils of congress by frequently changing their representatives simply to gratify the ambitions of local politicians.

A Story About Rodin.

The Cri de Paris tells a most amusing story if true about Rodin and some unnamed rich American woman who had selected him to make a statue of herself, full length and so far as possible a portrait. She had posed ten times in antique costume when Rodin told her that he did not need her any more and that he would finish the work at his leisure. When the American came again she found to her amazement that the head of the statue bore no resemblance whatever to her. She complained bitterly that no one would even recognize her. "It is true," said the great sculptor dreamily. "Your head did not inspire me at all. At first I thought I would not put any head on the statue, as I have been accustomed to do of late, but after I had thought it over carefully in order not to offend you I put in place of your face that of Mme. de R. She had ordered hers of me, but never paid for it. At any rate, you will gain much by this change!"

The Earth's Visibility.

As we look up through the transparent atmosphere on a clear night and see the moon beaming brilliantly down upon us we may think, "What a wonderful sight the continents and oceans of the earth would present if we could view them from the moon!" But, according to the conclusions of the director of the astrophysical observatory of the Smithsonian institution, a man on the moon would catch but fleeting glimpses of the outlines of our continents. "The true radiating surface of the earth as a planet," says the scientist, "is chiefly the water vapor at an elevation of 4,000 meters (13,000 feet) or more above the sea level." In consequence the man in the moon would see the features of the earth dimly outlined in the glare of light reflected from the atmosphere. —Youth's Companion.

IN FASHION'S REALM

Paris Has Larger Hats In Store For America.

ROSES THE BIGGEST EVER.

Neckwear Smart New York Women Are Wearing This Winter—Directoire Gown Has Been National Costume of Burma For Centuries.

Paris milliners say that American women have never seen the really large hat. Well, if we haven't had an opportunity of observing the genuine article the imitations vouchsafed us this season have done much toward making the amende honorable. The modistes of gay Paree doubtless are merely waiting for a ship to be built large enough to accommodate their cargo. Then picture to yourself the scene when the custom officers first sight them. "Madam, is this a new airship?" Curtain.

Seriously, though, the other day I wanted to hail a Fifth avenue bus, but simply couldn't make the driver see me on account of a barricade of hats that made the crossing look like a particularly fine patch of extra large mushrooms. Every woman in that crowd seemed to have affected as her piece of headgear one of the huge new mushroom shapes swathed in folds of silk, velvet or tulle held in place with a buckle about the size of an old fashioned door knocker. Now, you'll be proposing me as a member of the Knockers' club, but really the big hats of the year are the limit. Their only saving grace is flatness. And the roses that trim some of these chapeaux! Talk about nature fakers! Why, the manufacturers of the present artificial rose, with its unheard of dimensions, have the former miscreants—to be very slangy—stung to death. There is a stunning hat called the Marie Louise, an enormous, round, floppy affair that depends upon one of these roses, with foliage of an unnatural pink color, as its only adornment.

It is a case of where's the face when a woman dons one of these hats. And her hair? Yes, it's all there, bolstered

The fur neckbands mean visits later on to the throat specialists. But who cares for that if they have a de mode piece of fur they can convert into one of these dressy accessories? All that is necessary to bring it up in line with the most expensive ready made production is to shape it snugly to the neck and as high as one can fashionably stand it. Comfort is out of

CARE OF PLANTS.

The Proper Way to Water Flowers Kept Indoors.

There are three ways to water plants, two wrong ways and one right one. Many people adhere to the plan of frequent application of small amounts of water. Thus the soil about the top of the pot is constantly moist, but the lower two-thirds of the soil is entirely dry. By this method the upper roots are nourished, while the lower roots, which demand water, soon die and the plant is continually in an unhealthy condition.

Directly opposite to this is the plan of overwatering which many persons thoughtlessly follow. They water their plants thoroughly today. Tomorrow they apply the same amount, and so they go from one day to another. The result is that the soil is kept saturated with moisture. It is in the condition of mud all the time, a condition that suits only aquatic plants and one in which the ordinary plant will soon become diseased.

The stagnant water will sour the soil, and the roots will begin to decay. By and by the plant dies. Either of the above mentioned methods are equally destructive to healthy plants.

There is only one right way. When you water a plant do it thoroughly—in fact, be sure every particle of soil is wet. Then do not apply any more until the surface of the soil is really dry. As long as the surface of the soil looks damp you may rest assured that the rest of it contains sufficient moisture. Enough should be given, as stated above, to completely saturate all the soil in the pot. If proper drainage is given all surplus water—that is, all water that the soil cannot take up and hold—will run off at the bottom of the pot through the hole provided for this purpose. By proper drainage we mean that something must be placed in each pot to keep the soil from washing down and stopping up the hole.

There should be at least one inch of drainage placed in all four or five inch pots, and from one to three inches used in larger pots. The best material to use for drainage is old bits of broken flower pots or broken bricks. Use small pieces, not much larger than a marble. Many people are careless about this drainage or ignorant as to its value, but no one can grow plants successfully without it.

Some reader may ask: "How can I tell when I have given enough water to permeate all portions of the soil?" Well, in answer let me say there is only one sure way, and that is to notice the drainage hole in the bottom of the pot. When we see the water trickling through that we know it is time to stop.

Some plants have roots that enable them to make use of much more water than others. Then, again, some soils part with moisture much more rapidly than others. Some rooms are kept so warm that evaporation takes place rapidly. When all these things are considered it will be seen that there can be no regular time for watering plants.

Water must be given when the appearance of the soil shows need of it; not until then.

Use ordinary hydrant water. Use it just the temperature you draw it from the hydrant. Neither chill it nor heat it. By following the above directions you should be very successful with the average plant.

FOR THE TEA TABLE.

Dainty Sweet Sandwiches Latest Fad of Up to Date Hostesses.

An ideal spot for the tea table when one expects three or four friends is the drawing room. The dining room is reserved for large afternoon teas or when ten or more guests are expected. All the paraphernalia for boiling the water and making the tea should be on the table so that the brew may be perfectly fresh and with water of the necessary temperature.

It is always a charming scene, even to other women, to watch a dainty hostess prepare tea, from the lighting of the alcohol lamp to the final bit of lemon or pouring of cream.

To a man it suggests the delightful side of domesticity, and a clever girl wishing to marry should never lose a chance to let a desirable party behold her making tea—provided she does it gracefully. Sandwiches of all sorts are the best possible accompaniment to tea. Crispy toast and little cakes come second.

Toast is often the most agreeable to the taste, but it is so seldom truly hot and is so greasy with butter that it is by no means an ideal thing to handle while making a call.

Sweet sandwiches are new and may be made from thin slices of stale or rather tough cake, having a layer of ground or pounded nuts or nuts pounded fine in a mortar and held to the cake by the thinnest possible layer of jam, marmalade or jelly.

A bit of preserved ginger placed at intervals on the slices before they are laid together is delicious. Maraschino cherries cut in quarters may also be used.

Alcohol a Remedy For Hay Fever.

If a girl has a hay cold or hay fever, her cheeks, nose and lips are in a congested state. She must cool them a little and take out their redness. The most soothing thing is alcohol, which bleaches the redness out of the skin. The girl with an inflamed skin can experiment with various remedies. The same will not do for all, but many women find that they can daub the face daily with spirits of cologne with fine results. The skin is bleached and cooled and the pimples dry out of the skin quickly under this treatment.

"Don't be covetous," said Uncle Eben. "Envyin' what yoh neighbor has is mighty apt to put de opportunity in yoh neighbor's way foh handin' yoh a gold brick."

TALES OF THE DERBY

Some of the Winners That Were Not Liked as Youngsters.

BOUGHT FOR A MERE TRIFLE.

Little Wonder, Who Carried Off the Blue Ribbon in 1840, Cost His Owner Only $325—The Successes of Voltigeur and Thormanby.

Stories of Derby winners having been sold as youngsters for exceedingly small sums are fairly numerous, and without going too far back into the recesses of the past at least two instances can be cited of animals destined ultimately to win the "blue ribbon of the turf" which as yearlings no one thought good enough to buy. Voltigeur was one of these, and the other was Thormanby.

Voltigeur was bred by Robert Stephenson in 1847 and as a yearling was sent up to be sold at the Doncaster sales, a reserve price of $1,750 being placed on him. Not a man was found to bid that much for him; consequently he was withdrawn.

In all probability he would have remained unsold had not Williamson, a relative by marriage of Lord Zetland, seen him and, having taken a fancy to him, finally persuaded his lordship to buy him.

His judgment was triumphantly vindicated, for not only did Voltigeur win the Derby and St. Leger, but he succeeded in establishing a line of thoroughbreds which is at present dominant on the English turf and likely to remain so for some time to come.

Thormanby, too, was sent up to be disposed at the Doncaster and, like Voltigeur, did not reach a nominal reserve. Desirous of getting rid of him, however, Plummer, his breeder, requested his famous trainer, Matt Dawson, to come and have a thorough look at him.

This Dawson did and, perceiving at a glance good points about him, which no one else apparently had noticed, bought him for Merry, his patron. Strange enough, Dawson gave the same figure for Thormanby as that paid for Voltigeur.

As a two-year-old Thormanby ran fourteen times and out of this number scored nine wins, and in the Derby of the following year he beat a field of thirty. It was said that the race netted Merry the nice sum of $200,000.

The cheapest horse that ever won the Derby was Little Wonder, which was successful in 1840, for he cost his owner, Robertson, the meager sum of only $325.

Spaniel, too, winner of the race in 1831, was picked up for a very small sum, Lord Egerton, his breeder, letting him go for $750.

Pyrrhus J., which won in 1846, was purchased by John Day, the noted trainer, as a yearling at Doncaster, Gully, the pugilist, taking a half interest in him.

As a two-year-old the horse never ran, and seemingly his abilities were then of an unknown quantity, for at the end of the season Day agreed to sell his half share in him to Gully for $500. Day's chagrin at his subsequent victory in the Derby was very great.

Teddington, the winner of 1851, was bred by a blacksmith, who sold him as a foal, together with his dam, to Sir Joseph Hawley for $1,250 and a further $5,000 if he won the Derby.

Sir Joseph and his confederate, Massey Stanhope, to whom the horse really belonged, profited largely over the success, and the jockey, Marson, who rode the horse, received $10,000 as a token of victory, which in those days was unprecedented.

Sainfoin, which carried the colors of Sir James Miller to the front, was an exceptionally fortunate purchase by John Porter, the trainer. He bought the colt out of the Hampton Court lot of yearlings in 1888 for the very reasonable price of $2,720, Sir Robert Dardine taking a half interest in him.

As a two-year-old he was seen only once in public, and he won his race with the greatest ease. The year following he won the Esher stakes in a canter, after which he was sold to Sir James Miller for $30,000 and a contingency of half the stakes if he won the Derby. It was indeed a profitable deal for Porter and Sir Robert.

Another instance of Porter's shrewdness as a horse dealer was his purchase of the great horse Isonomy for the bagatelle figure, comparatively speaking, of $1,800. The real owner was Fred Gretton.

Isonomy gave no real promise of his worth as a two-year-old, his only victory being a nursery stake in the latter part of the season. As a three-year-old he was not seen in public until the Cambridgeshire, which he won easily by two lengths and incidentally earned no less than $200,000 in bets for his owner.

Had he been in the classic races he would in all probability have cleaned the board.

As a four-year-old he won the gold cup at Ascot and the Goodwood and Brighton cups and crowned these feats by literally running away with the Great Ebor handicap, carrying the crushing weight of 136 pounds.

The following year Isonomy proved himself a better horse than ever, not only winning the Ascot gold cup again, but also the Manchester cup with the almost impossible burden, one would think, of 138 pounds.

It has been calculated that altogether Isonomy won for his owner upward of $500,000 in stakes and bets, which for an $1,800 investment was a colossal profit.

If you will not take pains, pains will take you.—Whately.

If you intend to do a mean thing wait till tomorrow. If you intend to do a noble thing do it now.

FOR COLLEGE MEN.

Pretty Things in Room Decorations to Please Masculine Minds.

Christmas presents for the youth at college can always include a number of made things, for he is almost invariably as anxious to have his room fixed up as any girl can be. Then he longs to have all sorts of cases for his athletic traps and his musical instruments if he belongs to any of the glee clubs. So anything that contributes to these ends is sure to please him.

For his study table an attractive blotter is mounted on a linen covered cardboard. The linen can be found with the design stamped and dyed, ready to outline. Spotted lilies beneath, with leaves and stems curving upward to the top of the mount, make an odd but good design. The flower is adaptable by nature to any combination of red, blue or yellow college colors.

A scrap box will be handy for the table, too, or it can be used to drop notes of lectures in for safe keeping. A pasteboard box about five inches square makes a good foundation. Discard the cover and cut down the box an inch, except in the middle of the two sides, where inch and a half wide uprights are left. Cover the box, inside and out, with heavy paper and bind the edges with passe-partout or cover with silk and finish with a guimpe. If paper is used, the college pennants may be painted on the panels of the box or embroidered there if cloth has been put on.

Pipe racks can be made useful in almost any college man's room. An oblong shaped pasteboard curved and rounded off into irregularity of outline can be covered with burlap in artistic shades. Three ribbon loops are arranged on it to hold three pipes. In the middle of the rack, at the top, embroider the emblem of the favorite secret society and on the lower part of the rack make a graceful arrangement of holly leaves.

Sofa pillows, always acceptable, are best done in a material heavy enough to stand rather rough handling and must have the college colors or be done in pennants, seals or insignia that pertain to the college. Art cretonnes come in artistic colors and are a soft yet strong fabric.

Another good present is a scrap basket. Handsome ones can be made of large muff boxes covered with denim on which has been appliqued a shield of plain color. This must first be monogrammed with the college initial in the proper colors. Of course the denim will in its ground or its figure repeat one of the college colors.

Pongee coats for lounging are the most comfortable of garments. The recipient's monogram in college colors and small lettering makes one of these desirable to senior or sophomore.

If one can use a crochet or knitting needle handily, then a college sweater can be evolved, one of the most useful gifts of the year.

Covers for rackets, bats, banjos and every other kind of case are usable to the college man, especially if his seal, flag or other insignia appears on them in embroidery.

Couch covers make sizable gifts and usually mean considerable hand work. Nothing can be handsomer, though, than one of the art cottons cross stitched with the seal in the center and with a broad fancy border.

Sydney Smith's Salad Dressing.

That witty divine, Sydney Smith, wrote the following directions for a salad dressing, which those who have tried praise highly:

Two boiled potatoes strained through a kitchen sieve
Softness and smoothness to the salad give.
Of mordant mustard take a single spoon;
Distrust the condiment that bites too soon.
Yet deem it not, thou man of taste, a fault
To add a double quantity of salt.
Four times the spoon with oil of Lucca crown
And twice with vinegar procured from town.
True taste requires it, and your poet begs
The pounded yellow of two hard boiled eggs.
Let onion's atoms lurk within the bowl
And, scarce suspected, animate the whole,
And lastly in the favored compound toss
A magic spoonful of anchovy sauce.
Oh, great and glorious! Oh, herbaceous treat!
'Twould tempt the dying anchorite to eat.
Back to the world he'd turn his weary soul
And plunge his fingers in the salad bowl.

Fudge Cake With Whipped Cream.

Beat half a cup of butter to a cream. Gradually beat in one cup of sugar, the beaten yolks of two eggs, three ounces or squares of chocolate melted over hot water, half a cup of molasses, half a cup of sour milk, half a cup of hot water and then two cups and one-half of sifted pastry flour sifted again with one teaspoonful of soda. Bake in a hot, well buttered muffin pan and serve hot, with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with vanilla or powdered cinnamon. The recipe makes about eighteen cakes. Part of it may be baked in a layer and the layer be cut into halves and put together with a little white icing.

Smyrna Figs.

Smyrna figs ripen by the beginning of August. They are not picked, but when they reach a certain maturity they begin to dry, and consequently they drop on the ground. In the morning everybody on the plantations goes around with baskets gathering the fruit, which they carry to a certain place where the ground is covered with dry leaves and straw (sergei) and on which they spread the fruit, exposing it to the sun, allowing it to remain there from two to three days. It takes about three days to dry the fig if north winds prevail, as the atmosphere is then very dry. If, however, westerly winds are blowing, which means heavy dew at night, the fruit must remain exposed to the sun from five to seven days. This is a dangerous period, as rain or even a shower might ruin hundreds of tons of fruit lying on the ground. Heavy dews sometimes are just as detrimental. The proper atmospheric conditions to insure a crop of large, sound, rich figs are west winds in June and July, followed by north winds in August, and from then on an occasional west wind every five or six days.

A Curious Spanish Custom.

Ellen Maury Slayden in the Century in an account of her own and her husband's lavish entertainment in a Spanish household says:

"No custom of the house was so unaccountable as that of having people come 'to see you eat.' Enjoying a square meal while our guests inhaled cigarette smoke seemed so inhospitable that I sometimes playfully insisted upon their having something with us. It was always laughingly declined, except once when a particularly lively youth took a piece of ham and ate it with all sorts of self conscious little antics, as if he were acting a pantomime."

Shortening of the Day.

It has long been known theoretically that the tides act as a brake on the rotating earth and tend to lengthen the day. The effect, however, is so slight that it cannot be measured in any length of time at man's disposal. It may be estimated with the aid of certain assumptions, and, using the data available, W. D. MacMillan made the necessary computation by the formulas used by engineers. He finds for the increase of the length of the day one second in 460,000 years.

Waiting.

"Where are you lunching now?"

"Over here at one of these places where you wait on yourself. Where are you eating?"

"Oh, I'm still over there where you wait on the waiter."

NEW YORK'S BOWERY.

Why the Upper Part of It Was Named Fourth Avenue.

In the early forties of the last century there lived in Brooklyn a Mr. and Mrs. Smith. Mr. Smith was a rising civil engineer, and most of his work was in New York. It was necessary that he be nearer his place of business than Brooklyn, for in those days ferries were slow and infrequent, no bridges spanned the river, and horse cars were the speediest means of transit. Being a man of moderate means, Mr. Smith went house hunting through the streets of New York, seeking a modest but respectable abode. Near the upper end of the Bowery he found a small house. Elated with his success, he rushed home with the news to his wife. But when he mentioned the name of the street in which this house stood his wife's face fell.

"How could you think of it?" she asked. Smith was in despair.

Even as far back as 1840 the Bowery had acquired an unenviable reputation. Mr. Smith tried to explain that the upper part of the Bowery was still untarnished; that many very respectable people lived in that part of town; that it would be many long years before crime and sin would spread that far north.

It was all wasted energy. The fact that she would be living on the Bowery was sufficient for Mrs. Smith.

As a civil engineer it was Mr. Smith's custom to overcome obstacles. The following day he hired a conveyance, and he and Mrs. Smith went house hunting together. Mrs. Smith knew her Brooklyn thoroughly, but had only a slight acquaintance with New York. After driving through many streets without finding a suitable house the husband quietly turned into the Bowery at Union square and slowly walked the horse in the direction of the house he had found the previous day.

Suddenly Mrs. Smith exclaimed, "Why, there's a pretty place to let, dear!"

"Where?" listlessly questioned her husband, purposely looking in the opposite direction. Had Mrs. Smith not been so intent upon the house in question she might have noticed the merry twinkle in her husband's eyes and suspected something.

"Right over there," she replied, pointing to the house with the "To Let" sign.

An examination of the premises convinced Mrs. Smith that she must have the place, and when she learned that her neighbors were old friends of hers she had her husband close the bargain at once.

All this time no mention was made of the street. How Smith managed to move into the house and keep Mrs. Smith in the dark as to the name of the street is a mystery. But there came a day, and there was a storm. The tear fall was something heretofore unknown in the Smith household.

Once again Mr. Smith's habit of overcoming obstacles stood him in good stead. His wife would not live on the Bowery. Her home was ideal, her neighbors were good people, but they lived on the Bowery. So Smith and one of his neighbors went before the board of aldermen. The neighbor had influence. The street signs from Union square down to Fourth street were changed. Instead of "Bowery" the words "Fourth avenue" were substituted.

And Mrs. Smith was happy ever after.

ELECTIONS ARE CLOSE IN P.E.I.

Liberals in Island Province Expect Majority of Two.

CONSERVATIVES CLAIM TIE

Estimate in Provincial Elections is That Seats Will Stand 16 to 16—Commissioner of Agriculture and Capt. Joseph Read Among Defeated Candidates — Two Are Returned by Acclamation.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Nov. 19.—A majority of two for the Liberal Government is the result of the provincial elections which took place yesterday.

The Liberals claim 16 seats, and give the Conservatives 14.

The Conservatives claim it is a tie, 15 to 15.

The last House stood 21 Liberals, 9 Conservatives.

Hon. S. R. Reid, Commissioner of Agriculture, and Capt. Jos. Read, of tunnel fame, are among defeated Liberals in Queen County.

Two members of the Government party, Hon. G. E. Hughes and Dr. Warburton, were returned from Charlottetown and Royalty by acclamation. There were straight party contests in each of the remaining ridings.

The elect:

Liberals: Agnew, Gallant, Richards, McWilliams, Smith, Laird, McMillan, Palmer, Cumisky, Hazzard, Irving, Hughes, Warburton, Cox, McInnes, L. McDonald—16.

Conservatives: Dobie, A. K. Arsenault, Delaney, Jas. Kennedy, Wyatt, McNeill, Murdock, Kennedy, McLean, Prowse, McKinnon, Mathieson, A. J. McDonald, Morson, K. A. Macdonald —14.

NATIVES SLAY WHITES.

Man and Daughters Murdered Near New Hebridean Mission.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 19.—In a massacre at Santos, New Hebrides, Peter C. Gried, 51 years of age, and his two daughters Ada and Elizabeth Gried, settlers, were murdered by a mob of natives, according to news brought by the steamer Moana yesterday. Santos had been regarded as a Christian centre and white settlers were believed safe.

The massacre took place within a short distance from the mission station, to which the surviving member of the family, a boy of 14, made his escape. The settlers were surprised and tomahawked. H.M.S. Prometheus has been sent to the scene.

Women Cannot Vote.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 19.—The Anglican synod, in session here, decided not to give women the right to vote at vestry meetings.

It was also decided to ask the Government to enforce the Lord's Day Act, and strong ground was taken against the moral conditions prevailing.

Rev. Stanley Ard, rector of St. James', Victoria, told of conditions in opium dens. He said there were more white men than Chinese in these, and nearly as many white girls as Chinese girls. The police said they were powerless. He declared they should investigate and allow the newspapers to expose the guilty ones.

Penny Cable Rather Extreme.

London, Nov. 19.—A Sydney despatch quotes Premier Fisher as saying regarding cable rates: "While favoring all increased facilities, including cheapness, I think the reduction from three shilling to a penny an extreme proposition, but Australia would get great advantage by the reduction."

Hon. Mr. Lemieux responded to the toast "Our Kin Overseas," at the Men of Kent's dinner, Henniker Heaton presiding.

Toronto In Lead.

Denver, Nov. 19.—Toronto seems to have the lead over the other cities contending for the honor of the next A. F. of L. convention, though St. Louis is making a hard fight.

Tubercular Cows.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—A deputation of doctors was yesterday granted its request by Hon. W. J. Hanna for the milk commission of Ontario to have tests of milk sold made at the pathological laboratories at Toronto, Kingston and London.

Dr. Helen MacMurchy said that three cows condemned as tubercular had been slaughtered at an abattoir not very far from here last week.

Hon. W. J. Hanna said the laboratories could not be put to any better use than to do the work suggested.

Steel Men to Confer.

London, Nov. 19.—(C.A.P.)—An important meeting of British steel railmakers has been called for Friday in London, to discuss the serious situation created by the keen competition of the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. and a Russian firm, neither being in the international rail combination.

Those concerned maintain that if a new international compact cannot be devised to contest this unlooked-for competition, and also to regulate American operations, it would be better to break up the combination and give British makers a free hand. This will be insisted on at the conference.

Baby Alone Escaped.

Selkirk, Man., Nov. 19.—Word reached here yesterday of a drowning fatality in Red river, in which Cornelius Favel, Jr., his wife and two children lost their lives.

Favel left on Monday with his wife and three children for the fishing quarters, traveling by dog train over the ice, and when near Devil's Creek, struck a weak spot and all went through.

Some fishermen who followed later found the baby on the ice, where evidently it had been thrown out of danger by the father.

PETERBOROUGH THURSDAY NOVEMBER 19 1908

FORMER RESIDENT OF PETERBOROUGH AND WELL KNOWN INVENTOR FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED IN A ROOM OF A CINCINNATI HOTEL

Mr. P. J. Creedon Had Gone To That City to Organize Company —Was Superintendent at Rapid Tool Company's Factory While in Peterborough.

HE DIED OF DESTITUTION

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 18 (special).—Patrick J. Creedon, aged forty-five an inventor, and a former resident of Peterborough, Ont., was found dead this afternoon in his room at the Burnet House. Dr. Coe of the coroner's staff, said he believed death to be due to natural causes, probably a hemorrhage brought on as the result of starvation. The man was last seen in the hotel lobby at noon on Monday. The failure of the porters to obtain a response to their knocks on his door necessitated the employment of the pass key and resulted in the finding of the man dead on his bed. He was partially dressed. Creedon came to Cincinnati on Wednesday, November 11th, to negotiate with Arthur Frances Hoover and Charles S. Burdsall, the organizer of a company to put on the market a bit that Creedon had patented, and also to employ his secret process of hardening steel in the manufacture of the bit. He had held a number of conferences with Burdsall and Hoover and negotiations had proceeded to the extent of obtaining the subscription of several thousand dollars to capitalize a $75,000 company. Papers found on the man by Dr. Coe indicate that he was married.

According to the terms of a contract drawn up between Creedon and Charles S. Burdsall and Arthur Frances Hoover, he had agreed to sell his patents to the company in process of organization for $31,000. Mr. Burdsall stated that the man's son will probably resume the negotiations to manufacture the patented bits.

While in Peterborough Mr. Creedon was superintendent at the Rapid Tool Factory in East City, being brought here by the company from the Southern States to act in that capacity. He proved himself to be a clever inventor and a splendid mechanic. Later he resigned his position there to accept a somewhat similar position with a new company that was formed in Peterborough, but which did not go one with their manufacturing.

About that time, it will be remembered, Mr. Kinleyside, representing the North America Company Promoting Agency, was in Peterborough in connection with the formation of a company to operate the Hotel National, and he secured Mr. Creedon to become manager of a manufacturing establishment at Weston, Ont., near Toronto, and he went to Weston from here. He and his family lived on the corner of Hunter and Aylmer street, and after he left they remained here for some time.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES TO BE HELD AT COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE ABOUT THE MIDDLE OF DECEMBER

Commencement exercises which will be held at the Collegiate Institute, probably on Dec. 18th, will afford the students one of those opportunities for gathering in a social manner as was promised with the opening of the new building. Complete details have not yet been arranged, but the Principal, Mr. H. B. H. Kenner, has instituted the idea and is giving it his hearty support. The affair will be held in the assembly hall in the evening and the friends and relatives of the students will have a chance of joining with them.

The scholarships won by the students at the midsummer examinations will be presented to those who were successful in winning them, diplomas likewise, (and the silver trophies, medals, badges and prizes won at the Field Day of Sports. Miss Gladys Crane, who won the Faculty of Education and Honour Matriculation scholarship, will read the valedictory. She is now attending St. Hilda's College, Toronto. Miss Katheryn Burnett won the junior matriculation and Mr. Arthur Roseboro, the Normal Entrance scholarships.

A concert will be given in addition to the above interesting programme and the whole affair should be one of exceptional enjoyment in literary circles. Miss Crane's valedictory should be well worth hearing and this with the other features will no doubt make the initial commencement an unqualified success.

MORE THAN 1000 BOYS ATTEND THE Y. M. C. A. MEETINGS DURING OCTOBER

The Business Boys' tea every Tuesday night at the Y.M.C.A. is proving very popular among the business boys. The boys come direct from their places of business, and have supper at 6.30, which costs 10 cents. After the supper the boys have a half hour Bible study, and then go to the gymnasium for the rest of the evening.

The Order of the Triangle is very popular among the boys. Also the idea of classing them according to their standing in all-round work, and giving them something to work up to is the interesting point. There are three degrees, and to get the first degree a boy must attend 75 per cent. of Bible study classes, 75 per cent. of gymnasium classes, swim 30 feet in the tank in 45 secs., and pass a physical test of five events. The second and third degrees are much more difficult to obtain.

On Nov. 27 and 28, Mr. R. A. Waite of New York, the famous Syracuse athlete, who made so many friends at the recent Boys' Conference held here, by his manly and inspiring addresses, will be here to address the boys. Mr. Waite will be remembered as the man who gave such an inspiring address at the Conservatory of Music Hall at the Sunday meeting of the conference.

The boys' rooms at the Y.M.C.A. are always scenes of activity. The interest and attendance is improving every day. For October there was a total attendance in the rooms of more than 1000 boys. There are 54 enrolled in Bible study and 78 taking gymnasium classes.

HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN SAVED ONE MAN FROM A FINE THIS MORNING

His wife and children saved Jas. Tierney at the police court this morning. He was charged with being drunk and disorderly, and admitted the justice of the charge when it was read to him.

"I am very sorry," he remarked in penitent tone to the court.

He informed the magistrate he had a wife and three children.

"Have you any money to throw away in that case?" Mr. Dumble inquired.

Tierney admitted that he had not.

"Then why did you make a beast of yourself by getting drunk?" was the query of the court.

For the sake of his wife and children Tierney was allowed to go.

"I promise that it will be the last time," he remarked as he left the court room.

Unfortunately for Richard Price he had no wife and children to get him out of a similar charge.

"What excuse have you got?" asked the magistrate, with strong emphasis on the pronoun.

Richard had none except that somewhat hackneyed reply that he was very sorry.

He admitted that he had no one to look after but himself.

Officer Adams had reported that Price had an open knife in his hand and was threatening to carve holes in people.

The defendant denied the charge. He explained that he purchased a plug of tobacco and had the knife open for the purpose of cutting off a pipeful.

The magistrate considered that a fine of $2, to be paid forthwith would about suit the purposes of the case. After considerable research through his pockets Price dug up enough of the root of all evil to get himself out of durance vile.

BRIDGE OVER BATTLE RIVER COMPLETED; STEEL RAILS GO TOWARDS EDMONTON

Examiner Special.

Edmonton, Nov. 18—The Grand Trunk Pacific Bridge over the Battle River, a short distance east of this city, was completed this week, and the work of laying steel into Edmonton is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible. The completion of the bridge has rendered it possible to commence the work of completing the gap between Battle River and Edmonton. The weather continues favourable and it is hoped that construction work can be continued for at least two weeks longer, though a sudden cold snap or heavy fall of snow would tie things up, until the Spring.

ERECTION OF SKATING RINK FOR THE SOUTH CITY ATHLETIC CLUB

The South City A.A.A. skating rink is fast rounding into shape. The ground has been levelled, and the stakes for the plank are driven. The rink will be 110x60 feet, and lit up by arc lights. It is situated on Chamberlen street, directly back of the Park street church. The dressing rooms will be the very best, as the Church has kindly given the club the use of the old church parlours for the same. It will be handy for car service down Park street.

A special meeting of all the members is called for next Friday evening to make arrangements for the management of the rink, and other important business. All wishing hours on the rink are asked to send their applications to Mr. Herbert Reid, Perry street, or Mr. Stanley Gillespie, 101 Lock street. The first come will be first served.

SURVEYORS ABOVE BURLEIGH CHASE DEER IN A BOAT

An interested chase of a deer is reported from Lovesick Lake a few days ago. A number of surveyors are engaged in that locality and several of them crossing in a boat they had with them saw a deer about one hundred yards from shore. They gave chase to it, following for quite a distance. At a range of three hundred yards several shots were fired at its head, but it finally reached the shore, entered the woods and disappeared.

"DIVORCE" TO-NIGHT AT THE PRINCESS

In connection with Paul Burget's great play "Divorce," which opens at the Princess Theatre, Toronto, to-night, to-day's Globe has the following to say:

"A brilliant audience will greet the first production of the now celebrated play "Divorce" at the Princess Theatre this evening. The interest aroused by the announcement of the appearance of Miss Marion Terry, a member of the celebrated English family of that name, created an exceptionally strong demand for seats at the opening performance, and the very best circles of Toronto society will be fully represented. Coupled with the social feature of the event is the sterling quality of the cast selected by Mr. F. C. Whitney for the interpretation of the play, the names of Ida Conquest, Vincent Serrano, Eben Plympton and John Glendenning being a sufficient guarantee that a finished performance will be given."

This company appears at the Grand, Peterborough, next Wednesday, Nov. 25th, coming here direct from the Russell Theatre, Ottawa, where it appears Monday and Tuesday evenings.

DEAD DEER DISCOVERED FAST IN THE CREVICE OF A BURLEIGH TOWNSHIP ROCK

While Mr. Fred L. Roy was in the northern woods with the hunters last week he visited Mr. Jerry Ford's camp in Burleigh, owned by the McDonald Estate. He tells of a peculiar scene he observed there of a deer which had been caught in a crevice of a rock, which position had resulted in death. The feet of the deer were dangling below and with every struggle to get out it had sunk farther into the crevice with its head in the air. This is one of those stories that has proof behind it as Mr. Roy secured a splendid photo of the deer which is now in the display window of the Roy Studio.

LOVESICK LOCK AND DAM TO GO

EXTENDS TO BUCKHORN

The preliminary operations of what will be a very important piece of work for the Kawartha chain of lakes and which will make a decided change between Burleigh and Buckhorn are nearing completion. Two parties of surveyors have now practically finished surveying the waterway from Buckhorn down to Burleigh for the purpose of raising the dam at the latter place in order to do away with the lock and dam at Lovesick. This is considered an extensive undertaking, for in order to raise the water at Burleigh to the desired height, it must be sufficient to do away with the lock at Lovesick which is about two and a half miles above Burleigh. It will be seen that this further requires that the water in Deer Lake be raised and for this reason the surveyors began their work at Buckhorn. The immense quantity of water which will be added to that already conserved by the dam at Burleigh may be easily imagined. Navigation men have expressed their satisfaction with the proposed enlarging of this dam.

A LARGE LYNX BROUGHT DOWN

Shot by Mr. Paul Payne to the North of Stony Lake—Measures 50 Inches in Length—Fortune Favours These Hunters.

WILD GAME FROM NORTH

A huge lynx skin was brought into Peterborough this morning by Mr. Paul Payne, of Dummer, which he shot while in the quest of wild game in the northern woods during the past two weeks. Mr. Payne and his party usually hunt for the deer to the north of Stony Lake, and this year he was successful as usual. The lynx, he shot, was probably the largest which ever was killed in Peterborough County. From the tip of its nose to the end of its tail—and a lynx's tail is very short—it measures 50 inches. The skin was purchased by Wm. Lech & Son, and is hanging up in their display window, where it is being much admired by passers by.

The Payne party secured a variety of game including lynx, pole cat, racoon and deer and returned highly satisfied with their trip.

Dr. Coward Denies Report That Sheffield Choir Were Dissatisfied With Their Visit

Met With Few Unavoidable Discomforts in Smaller Places—Many Reports Exaggerated.

NO FEELING OF SORENESS

Examiner Special.

Montreal, Nov. 18—While passing through Montreal on his way to Quebec to embark on the steamship Grampian, Dr. Coward, the leader of the Sheffield Choir, gave emphatic denial to the statement that he members of the organization were dissatisfied with their treatment in many of the Canadian cities which they visited. "We met with a few unavoidable discomforts in some of the smaller places we visited," said Dr. Coward, "but there is not a member of the choir but will bring back to England pleasant memories of the cordial reception and kind treatment accorded us by the people of Canada. The stories of discomforts which we suffered through lack of hotel accommodation were grossly exaggerated, in some of the papers. It is no small undertaking to care for two hundred people and look after their baggage, and in several places the hotel keepers were hardly prepared for the magnitude of the task before them, but everything possible was done to smooth over the little difficulties which we encountered, and it is not true that there is any feeling of soreness among the members of the choir."

ENGINE LEFT RAILS— THE EXPRESS DELAYED

The noon C. P. R. express from Toronto was delayed about thirty minutes to-day by the engine of a freright train leaving the rails at Sandbank, a place near Pontypool. From the intelligence regarding the matter it was learned that no one was hurt and the delay was caused by considerable difficulty in getting the engine back on to the rails of the main line.

MOVEMENT TO ESTABLISH WORTHY CHORAL ORGANIZATION IN PETERBORO'

The visit of the Sheffield Choir, and the splendid possibilities of choral execution it demonstrated have given a new impulse to the movement which has been floating in the air of musical Peterborough for some time, for the organization of a choral body for which abundant material exists in the city. It is impossible to give details at present, but it is probable that the movement will take shape in a form which will insure capable and effective business as well as musical management. The time is certainly propitious; for the public is still under the spell of the Sheffield Choir and will doubtless take kindly to the idea of providing Peterborough with a choral organization which would effectively assist the city in becoming, as in some respects it is now, and can be made in other respects, the most important musical centre in Ontario, East of Toronto.

FAMILY IS SENT BACK TO THE OLD COUNTRY TO-DAY

Mr. Davlin, of Kingston, who is in charge of the deporting of immigrants, was in the city to-day and took charge of Mr. and Mrs. Munsey and four children, who are being sent back to the Old Country. They have been in Canada about eighteen months.

MUSKRATS ARE A MENACE TO THE TRENT CANAL AND WILL BE EXTERMINATED

Although it is a close season for muskrats, these web-footed rodents which are proving a menace to the Trent Canal have to be exterminated. Profiting by the example of the Erie Canal, whose banks were honeycombed by the same family of animals boring out their homes, with the result that the City of Rochester was seriously flooded by the banks giving way, the local officials have decided on this step.

They are very numerous between the Liftlock and Nassau, particularly at Thompson's Bay near the golf links. It is not desired that any of the people living along the canal should be given the opportunity of saving the rest of the neighbouring land from a washout, by stopping one of these holes were they to form, as the little boy in Holland did when he heard the water trickling through a small leak. The employees have already set traps and quite a number have been done away with, but there are hundreds still to go on a pleasant journey to the happy hunting grounds. It is probable that a number of men who are skilled in catching muskrats will be engaged to wage war upon them until they finally cease to exist along the canal.

As it is the close season for these animals the superintendent communicated with Ottawa stating the circumstances and that it was an offence to kill them, but at the same time it was a necessity. The work of slaughter was authorized to be proceeded with and it is likely that Provincial and Dominion officials will come to a satisfactory agreement in order that the local game warden may not find it his duty to make any prosecutions for the destruction of the rats.

If some one of the nature of the Pied Piper of Hamlin town would lend his services, the matter would be easily settled. This failing there are numbers of musicians actually living not more than 10 miles away whose execution might bring better results than either the professional rat catcher or the Pied Piper.

CHIEF JUSTICE FALCONBRIDGE WILL PRESIDE AT THE AUTUMN SITTINGS HERE NEXT MONDAY

Ambrose M. Regan Claims Over a Year's Wages From J. P. Langley in Connection With the National Hotel—Docket is Light

ONLY TWO CASES TO COME UP

The Autumn Sittings and Winter Assizes of the High Court of Justice without jury, will be held here on Monday, before Hon. Chief Justice Falconbridge. The docket is an extremely light one, as there are only two cases to come up.

They are as follows:

Regan vs. Langley—In this action the plaintiff, Ambrose M. Regan, is a clerk residing in Beaverton. He alleges that in April, 1907, John A. Lawless, at that time proprietor of the National Hotel, Peterborough, employed him as manager of said hotel, at a salary of $100 per month, and that he was in the employment of John A. Lawless from May 1st, 1907, to June 30th, 1908, and was therefore entitled to $1,400. Of this amount he alleges that only $295 was paid and furthermore that he, the plaintiff, at the request of Lawless, had paid out $25.04 to M. J. Carroll, $34.70 to the Peterborough Water Commissioners, and $400 to the Bank of Ottawa. None of these amounts had been paid back. On the 6th day of July, 1908, the plaintiff alleges that the said John A. Lawless made an assignment to J. P. Langley, and that he, the plaintiff, duly filed his claim with the defendant for $1,104.20, balance due in wages, and the further sum of $469.74, the amount paid out by him. The plaintiff claims that he is entitled to rank as a creditor of the estate of J. A. Lawless for the sum of $1,573.94, and that he is entitled to be paid the sum of $200 on account of his wages, in priority to the claims of the ordinary creditors of the estate. He also claims the payment of the said sum of $1,573.94 and such other relief as the nature of the case may require. O'Connell and Gordon for the plaintiff, Wm. R. Smyth, Toronto, for the defendant.

In the other case, the Port Hope Brewing and Malting Company vs. Alexander L. Sykes, formerly managing superintendent of the Canadian Cordage Company, Peterborough, and now a resident of New York, the plaintiffs claim a balance of $513.16 and interest thereon from 31st March, 1908, in regard to a stock transaction alleged to have taken place between the plaintiff company and the defendant. O'Connell and Gordon for the plaintiffs; Hall, Medd and Davidson for the defendant.

LATEST NEWS FROM THE CAPITAL

McKenzie King in Ottawa—Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier Leave for the South—Prince Edward Island Elections Interesting.

COPPER NEAR PORT ARTHUR

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Sir Wilfred and Lady Laurier leave to-morrow for a fortnight's sojourn in Florida. Finance Minister Fielding left yesterday for England on public business.

Hon. Sidney Fisher is at Gibraltar on his way to Rome to attend the International Agricultural Institute meeting. To-night at New York Hon. Clifford Sifton, former Minister of the Interior will speak at the 140th annual banquet of the New York Chambers of Commerce.

W. L. McKenzie King, M.P. for North Waterloo, and Prospective Minister of Labour is here to-day to confer with the Government regarding his proposed trip to Pekin, China, to attend the international conference. It is possible that in view of the approaching session, Mr. King will have to send a deputy to the China conference, as his services will be required here during the session.

News of the result of the general elections in the Province of Prince Edward Island was received with interest by maritime men here. Premier Haszard's majority is only two, and if the old Liberal County of Prince, which in the last election returned nine Liberals and now only returns four, Mr. Haszard would have been in the soup. As it is, his majority is unworkable, and the Liberals think they see their way back to the control of the affairs of the island province.

News has reached here from Port Arthur that one of the richest and most extensive discoveries of copper yet uncovered in the head of Lake Superior District, has just been developed near Flor Island, off Isle St Ignace, at the entrance to Nepigon Strait, by Didace Carufel, of Sudbury. It is said to extend for miles, and the deposits seem to run through a chain of mines continuing from Lamb Island lighthouse eastward.

It is the opinion here that Sir Wilfred Laurier will elect to sit for his City of Quebec constituency, and that, consequently there will be a new election in the City of Ottawa. It is believed that City Treasurer J. A. Ellis will be selected as the Liberal candidate, and in view of the general result of the recent appeal to the people, it is thought that he will be allowed to go in by acclamation.

INSPECTION DAY OF 24TH FIELD BATTERY STORES ANNOUNCED

Major Young has received word word from Col. Burstall, O.C., of the Horse Artillery, Kingston, that the inspection of the stores of the 24th Field Battery will be held on November 25th. The inspecting officer has not yet been announced.

BERT HUNTER'S NEW GROCERY AND PROVISION STORE

The new brick building recently completed by Mr. McCannon on the corner of Park and Sherbrooke streets, has been opened up as a new grocery, provision and confectionery store, by Mr. Bert Hunter. The store has been well stocked with new goods, which, together with the handsome fittings, store accessories, and general arrangement of the different lines presents the appearance of a good city grocery. Mr. Hunter is a young man with business experience; he possesses a good knowledge of groceries, and the allied lines which he carries, and will no doubt work up a good trade in this section of the city.

LOCAL MAN CLAIMS $2000 DAMAGE FROM HAMILTON COMPANY

The case of Overend versus Thos Burrow, Stewart & Milne Company, of Hamilton, which was to have been heard here has been transferred to Hamilton and will be taken up at the Autumn Assizes there. In this case William Joseph Overend, the plaintiff, is a retired hotelkeeper, residing in Peterborough, and the defendants, The Burrow, Stewart & Milne Company, are a manufacturing company in Hamilton. The plaintiff claims that the defendants have infringed his patent for certain improvements in a carry combe whereof Frances Henry Burke, of Peterborough, was the first inventor. The plaintiff claims an injunction to restrain the defendants from further infringement and claims $2,000 damages.

MORAL OBLIQUITY.

Mr. Rufus Pope, of Compton, is prosecuting a Quebec journal for libel. The alleged libel consists in the journal having charged Mr. Pope with being an "Orange fanatic." The Toronto News says this charge "does not suggest any desperate, personal or political obliquity." That is exactly what it does suggest. No more baneful political obliquity of conduct can be devised or imagined than dividing our people on racial or religious lines. The integrity of Canada as a country, and inferentially all the national interests, are bound up in the condition of a homogeneous and an harmonious citizenship with common aims and common ambitions. We cannot have satisfactorily national growth and development without the earnest and amicable co-operation of every element of our citizenship. The party, or section of a party, which, whether it be in Quebec or Ontario, incites to this division, is practising the most noxious political and moral obliquity. The News is so fond of harping on the sectarian string that it regards its performance as a harmless amusement. If Quebec appeals to sectarian prejudice are, as the News says, made "with the object of consolidating the French vote for the French-speaking Prime Minister," what about the appeals made through the Conservative campaign document, "The Duty of the Hour," circulated with judicious liberality in sections of Ontario constituencies where it would do the most good? In face of attacks of this kind what can we expect other than the consolidation of the votes of the section of our population against which they are directed? Self preservation is the primary law of nature. The charge that a man is "an Orange fanatic" "does not imply any desperate or political obliquity," may be the views of the News and its peace-wrecking co-workers, but the meaning of the charge, what it implies in the destruction of Canadian public spirit, what it implies in the way of destroying the conditions of growth and development, and sowing the seeds of national disintegration, is not merely "political obliquity," but political iniquity, rank treason to the best interests of Canada. The euphemistic flippancy of the News in characterizing this odious policy of its party allies as merely harmless "political obliquity" is an indication of the extent to which it has stifled the voice of conscience, as an element in its political creed and practice. The News, as well as those it speaks for, is infected to no little degree with moral obliquity of vision.

HONEST DEALING PAYS.

It a man is not honest from principle the next best thing is to be honest from policy. There is abundant warrant for recognizing the truth of the saying "honesty is the best policy." It was not long ago that the shipper of Ontario fruit controlled the Western Canada market from Winnipeg to the Rockies. He has, according to the Edmonton Bulletin, lost that market, which he might have held, if he had practised honesty in his business dealings. The Bulletin tells how the Western market slipped from the grasp of the Ontario fruit grower. It says: "He lost that market not so much by the enterprise of rivals as by his own systematic swindling of his customers, for it was the disgust awakened by this persistent jobbery that gave impetus to the infant industry in British Columbia and disclosed an opportunity for business to the dealers of California. It became a matter of course for the purchaser of a barrel of Ontario apples in the West to find a few layers of respectable fruit on either end of the barrel hiding an interior filled with seedlings and windfalls. This soon ceased to be a joke and became a sore spot in the public mind. While the Inspection Act has worked a betterment it has by no manner of means terminated the offence and the fact stands to-day that a western man with experience buys apples from anywhere else rather than from Ontario . . . Ontario apples have probably no superiors in the world, but the kind of apples sent hither by Ontario shippers have frequently nothing to identify them but their names."

The Bulletin may think it is correct in describing the Western market closed to Ontario apples, but there is reason to believe that, while dishonest methods have injured the reputation, of Ontario apples especially, they have not quite killed the western market for Ontario fruit. Mr. J W Crowe, lecturer in the Science of Horticulture at the Ontario Agricultural College, speaking at a recent meeting of the Fruit Growers' Association said that in 1907 Winnipeg received 43 cars of strawberries, 430 cars of tomatoes, 680 of peaches, pears and other small fruits, 600 of oranges, and 1,000 of apples. Fully 70 per cent. of these were consumed in that city. As the population of Winnipeg had increased by 50,000 in the past four years, a large market would be opened there for the future. This year, it was estimated that the west would take 83,500 barrels of apples, 220 cars of grapes, and 75 cars of tomatoes, peas and canteloupes from Ontario. The shipments to the west have increased 100 per cent. in the past ten years.

Ontario packers of apples should lay the lesson to heart. Mr. Crowe says that he heard strong censure of the methods of packing fruit, especially apples, employed by Ontario shippers. The bad reputation achieved in this regard may be lived down, but it must be done by perfectly straightforward and honest dealings.

The purchasers of everything, not alone apples, have a sort of prejudice in favour of getting what they pay for. When they cannot, or do not, get that from sellers, of course business relations cease. The moral is not obscure.

HANDLE SCANDAL WITH GLOVES.

(Collier's Weekly.)

The results (of the last Dominion elections) prove that a scandal campaign does not always scandalize. A dark horse is like the first proof of a photograph. It loses its colour when exposed overlong to the light, and then—you have no proof. Mudslinging as a sport, can not hold the spectator any length of time. There are no fine points about it. The Opposition used a seven months' session of Parliament to talk scandal. They used a two months' election campaign to warm the scandal talk over. They heaped a Pelion on Ossa of horror and kept on heaping. The emotion of disgust is like any other emotion—it may become jaded. That was what happened to the Opposition scandal campaign. People got tired. They said with the Queen in Hamlet "The lady doth protest too much." So much palaver bespoke insincerity. A strong breath, you know, for a weak cause. The philosopher knows that the way to treat scandal is as perishable freight. It must be pushed through to its destination. If it goes bad it will smell like a car of rotten fish and will drive people off. The way to have managed that scandal campaign was for the Opposition to have said nothing about it during the session of Parliament, nothing about it until the last three weeks of the campaign, then to feed it in fast and furiously. So would the nation have been properly shocked. And so it would have voted in a panic—perhaps. As it was, nearly every member of the scandalbund—Fowler, Pope, Bennett, Lefurgey, Cockshutt—were defeated. The only tongue-thrasher that was retained was George E Foster, who is a man of brains and useful to his party for something besides his noble organ of vituperation.

MEDICAL EDUCATION.

(Hamilton Times.)

The Ontario Medical Council is again to the fore with a proposal to place further obstructions in the way of youths desiring to study medicine. Former proposals to require the possession of an arts degree before beginning the study of medicine were very properly rejected by the Legislature. Now it is proposed to require senior matriculation. It is hardly disguised that the object of these proposals is not to raise the standard of medical education, but rather to shut out students from beginning the study of the profession. The public has given this Medical Council large powers, and it was not its intention that they should be used solely to strengthen a combine or guild. The people will approve of any course taken by the Medical Council to ensure that persons licensed to practice medicine shall have attained a high standard of medical education. But this end does not seem to be advanced by putting up the bars to prevent the student from beginning his studies until he has spent further years and money in preliminaries of at least doubtful value. At any rate, it would seem to be much to be preferred that the youth who has passed the matriculation should devote another year or two or more, if necessary, to the study of his chosen profession than that he should spend the extra years in diffuse studies which have no direct bearing upon the healing art—that is, of course, if the object sought is to place the medical profession on a high plane of efficiency. Of course, if the only object be to reduce the numbers entering the profession—to make it impossible, save to the wealthy—the present proposals would seem to be well made. The general public, however, is more interested in the question of the quality than the quantity of the medical service of the Province; and if it is to be restricted, they would prefer to accomplish the work by such a change as would make the actual medical course longer, more efficient, and more exacting. As to the matriculation standard, there are people who doubt the ability of some of the standard-raisers of the Council to make a good showing themselves in an examination based on the present standards. Let our medical friends bear in mind that their regulations should consult the public interests, then they will have public support.

The expenditure of $750,000 on colonization roads by the Province sufficiently, the Hamilton Times thinks, indicates that 1908 was an election year. The election returns and the localities of the expenditure tell the story almost as well as the public accounts.

A LESSON.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

The doors of Kingston penitentiary on Saturday opened to received Donald Cameron McCallum, the twenty-two year old lad who had just been sentenced to four years' penal servitude for the theft of $16,000 from the Farmers' Bank, of which he had been teller. Sixteen thousand dollars is a lot of money, but the 35,040 hours involved in his sentence is a lot of time. For every dollar he stole McCallum will have to pay about two hours in prison.

This may seem a blunt way of putting the facts, but they are presented in that fashion for the purpose of emphasizing upon the mind of our young readers, especially, that honesty is the best policy and that speculation in stocks with other people's money is a losing game. Speculation is nearly always a poor business except in the case of those who have plenty of money of their own to back up their belief in their speculation. In the case of him who "borrows" from the till of his employer to gamble in Wall Street or elsewhere, it is invariably certain to result as did McCallum's speculations.

Listen to what McCallum said as he travelled to the penitentiary;—

"I tried to get rich too fast. People would talk to me of 'sure things' in horses, and stocks, and I thought I could do something for myself. I traded in New York industrials and in Sugar and Cobalts. I was never caught short of the market, and I made money in some accounts, but I couldn't keep it up. It needs caital.

"Looks to me as if a bank man should cut out gambling of any kind. He shouldn't touch stocks, for he can't keep his mind on his work and on the market too."

What more eloquent sermon could be preached upon the folly of speculation than this bald statement?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Ottawa Board of Trade has passed a resolution congratulating Hon. Mr. Lemieux upon his active interest in promoting international cable reform.

The Nova Scotia Steel Company has received a large order for fish plates from the Sandbery Company, of London, England. The same company has also received an order for 15,000 tons of steel rails from New South Wales.

Hamilton seems to be coming to its senses. A movement is on foot to eliminate politics from municipal elections. National and provincial issues necessarily imply divisions on party lines, but municipal matters have no more to do with politics than have the elections of church officers.

The majority of the Hon. Rudolphe Lemieux, Postmaster-General, in the County of Gaspe, is 1,492. These are the figures of the year in which Columbus discovered America. These may also be regarded as the figures by which Hon. Mr. Flynn, his opponent, who, by the way, didn't get votes enough to save his deposit, discovered the retribution for the desertion of the Liberal party and going over to the enemy, does not always fail to "get in its work."

So far Professor Genno, manager of the Auditorium roller rink has not succeeded in inducing any of the local runners to offer to go up against Alfred Shrubb, when the great little Englishman visits Peterborough on Dec. 1, 2 and 3, but he expects to find a number that will keep the wonderful distance runner busy in a relay race. The local cracks do not wish to professionalise themselves for the sake of a crack at Shrubb, and they cannot be blamed very much for taking that attitude, but it is likely that some will be found ready to hook up with the visitor. In any case Shrubb will clash against a squad of roller skaters who will undertake to make him extend himself to the utmost.

The Durham Chronicle still seeks to defend Mr. Whitney's threepfifths unfairness. Recently it said: "If the moral sentiment of a community is not sufficiently strong to carry a moral question on a three-fifths vote, it is doubtful if it is strong enough to properly enforce a moral law by a smaller majority." To this the Pioneer, the prohibition organ, makes this reply:

This is nonsense. If the Chronicle were in earnest, it would urge Sir James to amend his clause to permit the repeal of local option by a 40 per cent. vote. Because if a two-thirds majority is necessary for enforcement, it is necessary all the time; as necessary now as when the by-law was carried, and as necessary two or three years hence. If the three-fifths is right it should require a three-fifths vote to retain the law as well as to pass it. Perhaps Sir James will have the courage of his convictions or the hardihood of his political affiliation with the traffic to impose this amendment to the law. To be consistent the Chronicle would have to support it.

SWYRYDA TO DIE.

Polish Murderer is Sentenced to Hang on February 11.

Brampton, Nov. 19.—Stephan Swyryda was found guilty of the murder of Olak Liuteck last night and sentenced by Mr. Justice Riddell to be hanged on Feb. 11 next at sunrise. The jury was out two hours and forty minutes.

So strongly circumstantial had been the chain of evidence binding the identity of the prisoner with the killing of his young countryman, a Galician, in Samuel Faskin's bush at Clarkson on the night of April 16 last, and so positive had been his lordship's charge to the jury that no surprise was evinced in the crowded court room when the jurgment was pronounced.

A moment later the condemned man's wife broke into the side door with a heavy sob and attempted to push her way to the prisoner's dock.

SLAYER OF OLAK LIUTECK.

She was allowed to accompany the prisoner to the jail, where they were granted a brief interview and she was taken to Toronto by sympathetic friends.

Throughout the proceedings the condemned man maintained a stolid and indifferent attitude. Even his wife's emotion made no visible impression upon him.

The jury's verdict contained a recommendation to mercy. Defence Counsel Elihu G. Morris asked that the talesmen be polled, and each of the 12 arose, as his name was called, to pronounce the words, "Guilty, with a recommendation to mercy."

Justice Riddell strongly eulogized Detective Miller's work in establishing so many clear facts in a case that there was so little to go upon, and the talent and perception it must have required to ferret out the case.

Wills Son-in-Law Rope.

Philadelphia, Nov. 19.—The feeling entertained by the late George D. Wolf of Sommerdale, a suburb of this city, toward Charles W. Wenzel, his son-in-law, was shown in the following paragraph in his will, which was admitted to probate yesterday:

"Fifty cents to be paid to my son-in-law, Chas. W. Wentzel, a native of Huntingdon, Pa., to enable him to buy a good, stout rope with which to hang himself."

The deceased left an estate valued at $10,000.

Sweden's Monarch In London.

London, Nov. 19.—The King and Queen of Sweden, who are at present in England as the guests of King Edward at Windsor, paid a state visit to London yesterday and were entertained at luncheon in the Guildhall by the Lord Mayor and the corporation of London.

To Arbitration.

Paris, Nov. 19.—The Casablanca dispute between France and Germany is to be submitted to the arbitration of a commission of five members.

Council to Advise Shah.

Teheran, Nov. 19.—The Shah has summoned the representatives of the various classes in Persia to appear before him to-day and hear his decision in the matter of a constitutional government for the country.

It is understood that His Majesty purposes the formation of what may be called a council of state. This body shall consist of about forty members, elected on limited suffrage and with power to control the ministers, but without executive powers.

Tag Day Continued.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—The "tag day" committee of the Y.W.C. Guild are again in action, preparing for next Saturday's campaign. The committee wish it distinctly understood that it is not their intention to re-tag anyone. At the same time a tag will not be refused to anyone willing to wear it. The warehouses and offices that have not already been canvassed will receive a call from the young ladies.

Favored Newspapers.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—It is stated that when all the Departments of the Government are thrown open to a royal commission of enquiry the newspaper patronage list will also be brought into the limelight. This patronage is carried to such an absurd extreme that not only advertisements but news items affecting the country are retained for Liberal newspapers only.

CONSTITUTION OF THE CITY LEAGUE RULES GOVERNING THE PLAYERS; ANNUAL MEETING NEXT WEEK

In view of the fact that the annual meeting of the City Hockey League will be held on Tuesday of next week, it has been deemed advisable to publish the constitution of the league for the benefit of the new clubs who may come in this season.

Following are the provisions of the constitution;—

1. That the Association be called the Peterborough City Hockey League.

2. The annual meeting of the league is to be held not later than Nov. 25th of each year.

3. The active officers of the league shall consist of the president, first vice-president, second vice-president, secretary-treasurer and one representative from each club.

4. A majority of officers shall constitute a quorum, and due notice of every meeting must be given to each representative, two days before each meeting.

5. The entrance fee of $200 must accompany each application for admission to the league.; the same being returned if the application is not accepted.

6. No club can be represented at the annual meeting unless the admission fee of $2.00 for the present season is paid on or before the date of meeting.

7. No verbal proxies will be accepted at any meeting, and all proxies must be signed by an officer of the club and witnessed.

8. The amount of the deposit from each club is to be determined by the incoming executive and must be paid to the secretary-treasurer before December 25th.

9. O.H.A. rules are to govern all games as far as actual play is concerned.

10. All games must commence on advertised time. Any teams delaying games will be fined $2 per team.

11. All City League games must be played on Peterborough ice.

12. All games must be played to a finish.

13. Competing teams are to agree on a referee two days before each game, and in the event of their inability to agree, the matter is to be left in the hands of the president and secretary-treasurer.

14. Any club playing a man who violates any rules of this league must lose such game and is also liable to suspension.

15. No team will be allowed to enter the league after Dec. 15th.

16. Each club is requested to register its colours with the secretary-treasurer before the first scheduled game.

17. No permits will be issued to any club under any consideration.

18. A player in the City League must be a bona fide resident from December 1st, of the municipality in which the team is located with whom he has signed a certificate to play.

19. Each player in the City League must hold a certificate from the league to entitle him to play in such games.

20. The number of playing certificates issued to each club is twelve.

21. Players who have participated in any league games for the Peterborough Hockey Club in the O.H.A. series, other than the junior, since and including the season of 1905-06, are not eligible.

Amendment, last year— That the Strathcona O.H.A. Hockey Club be allowed to draft players from any team in the City League, and that any players may be allowed to play at least two games in the O.H.A., and still be permitted to play with their respective teams in the Peterborough City Hockey League.

22. The team winning the cup must furnish the secretary-treasurer with a satisfactory bond for $25 against loss or damage to the cup.

FRED WHITCROFT LEAVES FOR WEST WITH RETINUE OF HOCKEY PLAYERS

Fred Whitcroft left Peterborough yesterday accompanied by Steve Vair the Barrie and Renfrew forward, and Lindsay, last year goal keeper for Renfrew, on his way to Edmonton, to get his team in shape for the Stanley Cup games early in January. A Toronto despatch says:—Manager Fred Whitcroft of the Edmonton Hockey team, challengers for the Stanley Cup, is in town to-day with three of his players, viz.; Steve Vair, centre, formerly of Barrie, and Renfrew; Harold MacNamara, right wing, formerly of the Montreal Shamrocks; and Bert Lindsey, goal-keeper, formerly of Renfrew.

The four hockeyists leave at ten o'clock to-night for Edmonton. At Winnipeg they will be joined by Chas. Poulin, the sensational forward of last year's Manitoba League, and Hugh Ross, cover-point of the Portage la Prairie team. Frank Patrick of Nelson, B.C., is expected to play point.

The players will reach Edmonton on Sunday, and will get on the ice on Monday for their first practice. They will leave for the East Dec. 27, and will play Wanderers for the Stanley Cup before the 10th of January in Montreal.

BIG CROWD COMING FROM LINDSAY FOR SATURDAY'S RUGBY GAME

The Lindsay Watchman-Warder says;

The football artists who represent the town of Brockville will stack up against the Lindsay team in Peterborough next Saturday.

Thats good news for you!

Lindsay will run a special train for the occasion and some five hundred followers are wanted.

The game will decide who will play off with the winners of the Eureka-Capital battle for the championship.

Wouldn't it wake up this old town if our boys should win the championship.

Brockville have a fast team, however, and utilise every opportunity for practice. The armoury is used for signal drill and everybody turns out. Nothing but hard practice between now and Saturday will win for Lindsay and all the players are requested to turn out and get licked into shape.

And we'll all go to Peterborough on Saturday.

BROWNIES WIN THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF Y. M. C. A. BASKETBALL LEAGUE

The Brownies won the championship of the Y.M.C.I.A. Basket Ball League last night by defeating the Tigers, last year's title holders, in an interesting game by 36 to 32, and as a result will have possession for one year of the Cressman trophy, emblematic of the championship. The game last night was a splendid exhibition both teams playing splendid ball and the contest was fought out until the last minute. The Brownies had a shade on their opponents all the way and won the game on their merits. Len Dobson as referee and Stewart Laing as umpire were entirely satisfactory. The teams were as follows:

Brownies .... Tigers

Forwards

F. Cressman .... H. Staunton
G. Miller .... F. Hall

Centres

W. Fitzpatrick .... P. Wallace

Backs

R. Hall .... D. Loomis
E. Payne .... P. Weatherstone

The Brownies have played consistent basketball all through the league and are clearly entitled to the honours as the following list of their games played in the League this season will show. In the games with the Rustlers they allowed their opponents 13 points; the Chieftains 15 points and Turner's 10 points. The scores:

Brownies 40 — Rustlers 25.
Brownies 19 — Maple Leafs 17.
Brownies 36 — Tigers 32.
Brownies 33 — Chieftains 29.
Brownies 28 — Turner's 20.

The Brownies will endeavour to bring out some fast basket ball teams here during the season.

BULGARIAN WRESTLER WHO MEETS ROGERS IS AFTER JENKINS AND GOTCH

Yussiff Mahmout, the terrible Turk from Bulgaria, and Tom Jenkins, of West Point, ex-champion catch as catch can wrestler of this country, will meet in a grappling contest in Madison Square Garden, the evening following the re-running of the Marathon race between Hayes and Dorando. To be exact in the time, Jenkins and Mahmout will hook up on the mat on Thanksgiving night, November 26th.

Yussiff is now in excellent condition and says that if nothing happens to give him a setback between now and Thanksgiving Night he'll enter the ring with Jenkins fit to wrestle for the Sultan's crown, or harem, or whatever it is that furnishes the inspiration to the Turkish wrestlers when they go away from home.

Jenkins is hard at work up at West Point and declared that when he gets through with the Turk, Antonio Pierri, his manager will have a better idea of whether he wants any more of Gotch's game than he has now. Jenkins, it is safe to say, will be in better condition on this occasion than when he lost the championship, and if Yussiff is anything like the wrestler his manager has touted him to be, a desperate struggle should result.—Telegraph.

Mahmout wrestles Yaakee Rogers in Montreal, Friday night.

PROPOSAL TO ORGANIZE JUNIOR CITY LEAGUE

The junior hockey players of the city are asked to remember the meeting at 7.30 o'clock this evening in the Examiner office for the purpose of organizing a junior city hockey league. All clubs intending to join this organization are requested to have representatives present. The prospects for a good league are very bright as a number of teams have signified their intention of joining the league. Junior teams should see that they are represented at tonight's meeting.

PROTEST WAS ALLOWED BY CANADIAN UNION

Toronto A. A. C. will have to play at Hamilton on Saturday without the services of Leon McCrimmon, the McMaster half-back, who was protested by the Tygers yesterday. This was the decision of the Canadian Rugby Union.

McCrimmon has not participated in an O.R.F.U. game, as is required, and the Tigers availed themselves of the technicality to weaken their Canadian semi-final opponents. They also protested Maxwell, but without success, the ex-Ridley boy having played in a game with Peterborough.

T. A. A. C. will run a special train to Hamilton by C. P. R.—Toronto Star.

OTONABEE BOYS IN A SERENADE

Band of Youths Gather to Visit One Who Has Just Become a Benedict.

Stewart's, Otonabee, Nov. 18.—Special.—That charivaris have not become things of the past was evidenced here on Monday night, when some of the boys went out to serenade a former comrade who had but a few days previously joined the ranks of the benedicts. Cap. "Ginks" and his phalanx met at Bachelors' Hall and arranged their plans of attack. After securing all the pots and pans in the vicinity and a considerable quantity of paint, they started off for the home of the young man. He did not appear and immediately the "band" struck up a lively air and, it is said, the din lasted for four hours. But all their work was of no avail and the captain and his men quietly withdrew.

STERILIZED BARBER SHOP

A Famous Shop in the Carvolton Hotel, Baltimore, Maryland.

The barber shop in the Carrollton hotel, Baltimore, sterilizes everything it uses in the shop. The sterilizing is done by heat. The towels, the razors, the strops, the soap, the combs and brushes are all sterilized before being used on a customer. Where there is no sterilization, have the barber use Newbro's Herpicide. It kills the dandruff germ, and it is an antiseptic for the scalp, and for the face after shaving. All leading barbers everywhere appreciate these potent facts about Herpicide and they use it. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10 cents in stamps for sample, to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. McDermid & Jury, and Payne's drug stores.

ST. JAMES CHURCH NOT RESULT OF SINGLE EFFORT

Rev. H. M. Manning Corrects Wrong Impression That Has Gotten Abroad

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I will esteem it a favour if you will allow me a little of your valuable space to correct a misapprehension that exists in the minds of some of the Methodist people of Peterborough, and elsewhere also, regarding the origin and status of the St. James Church. It should be understood that this is not in any sense a one man church, and that it is not the pet scheme of any preacher. The necessity for its organization had been discussed in the boards and committees of the other Methodist churches of the city for years, and the present beginning of actual operations is the outcome of those discussions. Several influential officials of George street sustain a creative and vital relation to the enterprise. The three Methodist churches of the city share the responsibility of the undertaking, for their boards, in answer to specific questions sent to them by the Chairman of the District in May last, voted in favour of the organization of this new church and the boards of George and Charlotte street Churches made grants from their funds towards the current expenses for one year, and gave permission to solicit subscriptions from the members of their congregations for the building fund. The fact, therefore, is that the four thousand Methodists of Peterborough, through the votes of their official boards, are at the back of this movement. Having been inaugurated in this way, and having such a large constituency in sympathy with the undertaking, its success is assured. The St. James Church will stand as a monument of the aggressive spirit and missionary zeal of the older Methodist churches of Peterborough.

Capital And Labour As Partners; New Departure In Old England

Sir Christopher Furness, the Great Shipbuilder, Takes His Employees Into Partnership---The Object to Prevent Strikes and Business Interruption and Loss.

From the News of the World.

A momentous development has been reached in the economic progress of this country as the result of the offer of Sir Christopher Furness to take the men employed in his two Hartlepool shipyards into partnership. The men's delegates have agreed to advise their comrades to accept the offer. This recommendation will have to be approved by the executive of the unions conserned, but this approval is practically a foregone conclusion. The proposal will then be submitted to a vote of the men. More than a hundred delegates were present at the conference which arrived at the above decision. A committee which waited on Sir Christopher Furness a few days ago to obtain further information about the details of the offer reported, and evidently the result of the interview was satisfactory to the delegates. The recommendation is that the offer should be accepted for a year's trial, and that, if it then proves satisfactory, it should be adopted permanently. Sir Christopher Furness made his now famous offer at a conference called on October 7 last, at which he said that the time had come when the vexatious strikes in the shipbuilding industry must cease, or the industry would be ruined. He then made two offers. One was to turn over to the trade unions the Middleton Shipbuilding Yard at Hartlepool and the Harbour Dockyard at West Hartlepool, at a price to be determined by a firm of assessors of recognized standing. This offer has not been considered seriously by the men. The other offer, the acceptance of which has now been recommended, was as follows: The men employed in these two yards were invited to become limited co-partners in the enterprise, as distinct from the other undertakings of Furness, Withy and Co., on certain conditions. These conditions were that the men should become holders of special shares to be known as employees' shares, paying for such shares by agreeing to a 5 per cent. reduction in their wages until the full par value of the shares had been paid. These shares will carry a guaranteed dividend of 4 per cent., and, after the apportionment of 5 per cent. for capital's interest and the usual funds for depreciation, reserve and development, they will rank with the ordinary shares for division of the company's profits. But, as Sir Christopher told the trade union delegates, co-partnership means something more than making profits. The employee partners must agree not to strike against the decision of the other partners in the firm. "The decision is in accordance with my view," said Sir Christopher Furness to a press representative. "Indeed, I would prefer the men to have twelve months' trial. It was my suggestion. I have no doubt whatever that after twelve months' experience of the scheme there will be a unanimous vote for its continuance. One thing is perfectly clear. If Mr. Purdon, our managing director, whom I regard as the ablest shipbuilder in this or any other country, has loyal workmen and there are any orders to be got, they will be secured for Hartlepool, for the advantage not only of the men engaged in the shipbuilding trade, but also for those in the local engine works and steel works. As soon as the scheme is consummated Mr. Purdon will be in a position to undertake contracts with definite dates of delivery, either with or without penalties. I regard it as a most serious reflection on both masters and men that the fine steamer Frankenwald—the last of the three vessels built by my firm for the Hamburg-American Line—was only completed and ran her trial trip this week, when delivery ought to have taken place twelve months ago. It is, indeed, a very great reflection on the country that such a delay should be allowed to take place, to the loss of everybody concerned. However, I am satisfied that after twelve months' trial of my scheme the reply will be, 'Why have we been so long in finding out so effectual a solution for the benefit of all concerned?' If I had listened to the advice of some people nothing would have been done, but I preferred to take my own line, and that line is to put an end to wastage, and institute in its place thorough efficiency. This is not a local question. If England is to remain the workshop of the world in the future, as in the past, it must become a national question."

Case Against Dominion Wholesale Grocers Over

Taking of Evidence Concluded—Guild Officers Impatient Over Delay.

DECISION YET TO BE GIVEN

Examiner Special

Toronto, Nov. 19 — After a delay of over two years the famous case against the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Association, known as the Grocers' Guild, is practically over. The taking of evidence was concluded this week, and it is expected that the judge's decision will be announced in the course of a few days.

The first action against the Grocers' Guild was taken in Hamilton two years ago, and was instituted by Mr. Harry Zealand, of the Grocers' Wholesale Company of that city. This organization was composed of a number of retail grocers who had formed a co-operative buying association, with the object of obtaining goods at manufacturers' prices. A number of manufacturers refused to have any dealings with the Hamilton association, and it was claimed that the Grocers' Guild was responsible for this. The action taken by Mr. Zealand, though dismissed in court, brought the matter to the attention of the Ontario Government.

At this time the provincial authorities of Ontario were prosecuting a campaign against a number of alleged combines, and the matter was exciting interest, not only in Ontario, but throughout the whole of the Dominion. The Province took proceedings against the Guild, charging a number of the most prominent members with forming a combination in restraint of trade.

The preliminary hearing was held before Police Magistrate Jelfs, in Hamilton, and the case was sent up for trial. A number of delays and adjournments followed, and it was not until September last that the hearing commenced. The Guild officers were impatient at the delay, claiming that the charge placed them in a false position in the eyes of the public, and that they should be given a chance to clear themselves. After some evidence had been taken in September, Chief Justice Falconbridge, who tried the case, adjourned until last week when the final evidence was taken.

Lakefield Minister Not In Accord With Local Option; Views At Anglican Conference

Addresses by Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt and Archdeacon Warren---Rev. Mr. French Says He Was Misquoted---Conference at Port Hope Next Year.

Lindsay, Nov. 19.—Special—At the close of Tuesday morning's session lunch was served by the ladies.

After lunch had been partaken of His Honour Judge Harding and Mr. G. H. Hopkins extended a hearty welcome to the visitors, which was replied to by Ven. Archdeacon Sweeney, of Toronto, and Rev. Dr. Jones, of Port Hope.

"The work of the Archdeaconry," was proposed by Rev. W. J. Creighton, of Lakefield, and replied to by Rural Dean Allen and Archdeacon Warren.

The afternoon session of the conference opened at 3 o'clock, there being a large attendance of both clergy and laymen.

One of the subjects for the afternoon was "The ideals which should to-day obtain among a Christian people."

A very able paper was read by Rev. H. O. Tremayne, M. A. and was exceedngly well rendered.

Venerable Archdeacon Warren delivered a stirring address to the conference on the subject of Christianity. The present, said the archdeacon, is the object of our attention. Men are engaged in various pursuits, some of which are good and some are not. Sometimes a preacher is inclined to come down rather heavy on a man's actions all at once, without any foundation, but sympathy binds all classes together. A man can, if he likes, labour for something else besides money and existence. He can labour to help his brother who, perhaps, is not as well off as he is. Every country is looking for honest and upright men to handle the reins of government. We have among our newspaper men, men who have as keen an eye for purity as any clergyman living.

The workingman, said the archdeacon, had his entire sympathy as long as he is not ashamed of his rank. A man who is ashamed of his colours is a coward. The archdeacon said he would like to see this subject fully discussed.

State of Morals

The second subject of the afternoon was the state of morals at the present time in the archdeaconry.

Rev. W. C. Allen, M. A., of Millbrook, read a paper on the subject, which led to considerable discussion. He said that the subject given to him was a very hard subject, because of its personality. He thought the best way of getting at the subject was to get something bearing on the question. He therefore procured a report of the jails and prisons in Ontario. There has been an increase in larceny and drunkenness in Ontario. The chief reason for this is the influx of foreign population, and a good many jails in Ontario have been over-crowded on account of this. In Peterborough there has not been so much of this as in the rest of Ontario. There are no more noble men throughout the length and breadth of our country than those who are working, and working hard, to train the young. In this archdeaconry we form a large part of the playground of Ontario. We have a large number of summer resorts in this district. The question is, "How are our Sundays being observed in these resorts?" The Lord's Day Alliance is doing a grand work in stopping all that goes to mar the peace and rest of Sunday. The only way is to bring all these criminals in touch with Christ, and He will do the rest.

Rev. Mr. French, of Fenelon Falls, in opening his remarks, said that he had risen to his feet to defend himself against a charge which had appeared in the Toronto papers. Mr. French, along with three others of that village, were charged with going on board a steamboat at Fenelon Falls and stopping a Sunday excursion to Lindsay. This was not a true account. All that the ministers did was to look into the legality of the excursion and ask that it be not run. Local option, said Mr. French, may be all right, but he believed that there was a better way of solving the liquor problem.

Local Option Question

Mr. Anderson, of Brooklin, gave a very encouraging report on the local option results in towns throughout Ontario. Mr. Anderson is a very earnest local option supporter, and he delivered a stirring address in support of it.

A number of other speakers spoke in support of local option. It was held, however, that while it did a great deal of good, those who desired to get drunk would get it no matter how much trouble they had to go to. A man who drinks will get the liquor as long as it is manufactured.

Rev. Mr. Creighton, of Lakefield, said that he came from a local option town, but he was not in accord with it. There is more drinking in a local option town than in a town that has the open bar, especially among the boys.

Church Life in England

At the evening session two very excellent addresses were given.

Ven. Archdeacon Warren occupied the chair and in a few well chosen words called upon Rev. Canon Davidson of Peterborough to address the audience on the subject, "Church life and wor kin England as an inspration to Canada."

Rev. Canon Davidson said it was noticeable while he was in England that the English people have a great respect for those who will help themselves, but those who just copy some one else they will have nothing to do with. The church in England is very exact. The service is most beautiful, and nowhere had he seen anything like it. The devotional services were not tied down to the programme, but they were beautifully rendered. The most striking feature of his trip to London was that 10,000 people either knelt or stood in silence. It was a great disappointment to many of the Canadian clergy who visited the Congress to find that Canada had no special missionary field of her own. The cause for this is because the church in Canada has worked under a great English society and therefore the society gets all the credit for the work done. The English people were very kind to the representatives who attend the conference and invitations were sent in from all over England to one or more representatives, asking them to stay while in that country. He witnessed the procession of the suffragettes and although he went to England with the opposite notion, he came away after seeing that procession of noble women, decided that women should have a vote if they wanted it. The condition of England said Mr. Davidson, is most appalling, and gradually becoming worse. As he saw the streets in London lined with poor and unemployed he could not help feeling sorry for the condition of the mother land. It is for the Canadians to see that we do not repeat the mistake, but keep our people employed. In England the young boys and girls make love out in the open and along the streets. As you walk along the street it is nothing to see a young man with his lady love close to his side. Socialism is sweeping over the north of England, and part of the south. It is said that at the next election over twice the number of labour candidates will be elected to the house. One of the great duties of the church of England, said Mr. Davidson, is to teach the Socialist the true brotherhood and educate him in the true way. At the conclusion of the address Miss Adams sang a solo which was exceedingly received.

The second lecture of the evening was by the Ven. Archdeacon Sweeney, M.A., D.D., of Toronto, on the subject, "The Pan Anglican Congress."

Yesterdays Session

An eloquent address was delivered by Rev. J. E. Revington Jones, of Port Hope, on the subject, Communion with God.

At 10.00 a.m., the report of the committee on "Present Methods of Church Activity in the Archdeaconry, and the Rendering of our Services," was the subject on which Rev. A. J. Reid delivered an excellent address.

Rev. Mr. French, of Fenelon Falls, said that the day of the pie plate for a collection plate had passed, and he thought that every congregation should have plates that a dollar bill would not be ashamed to go on.

The second subject was pastoral visitation, and was handled in a very able manner by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, Ph.D. of Peterborough.

Dr. Langfeldt said that he felt like an intruder, as he appeared on the platform. In nearly every particular the parishioners did not want pastoral visitation. A pastor meets his congregation in three ways, social, ministerial and in time of death or sickness. A man's stature, said Mr. Langfelat, has something to do with the amount of visitation that he does. A man of large proportion is not in the same position to visit as a smaller man would be. A minister should not make any discrimination between the different classes of people. A minister should be interested in his people. A few minutes chat with a man makes him see that you are interested in his welfare. When a minister goes to visit a family, especially if they are not in the habit of attending church, the meeting should be strictly ministerial one. Never hinder your people in their work when you go to visit them. It is necessary that to know our people we should see them in their daily work. Get shoulder to shoulder with your people, and make them see that you are interested in them. The most solemn parts of our work is when we are called upon to visit the sick and the dying. If we are keeping in communion with God we will be successful in our work and will be much blessed.

It was moved and seconded that the next meeting of the Archdeaconry of Peterborough, be held in Port Hope, if favorable to the clergy of that town.

In the Rambodde district in 1877 the first successful attempt was made to produce tea in Ceylon. In 1892 Ceylon Tea was first introduced into Canada by the "Salada" Tea Co. The excellence of this brand is responsible for the commercial success of Ceylon Tea in this country. 80

Reports Of Delegates To The Laymen's Convention

Given Last Night at St. Andrew's Church—Addresses by Messrs. Clifford and Lees.

NEW INTEREST IN MISSIONS

At St. Andrew's church last night a most interesting meeting in connection with the laymen's missionary movement was held. A representative attendance was present, and was greatly pleased with the addresses that were delivered. The information was of so much value and was given in such a manner that it was decided to have the two laymen give their talks from the pulpit some Sunday morning in the near future, when all the men of the church will be expected to be present.

After the devotional exercises, which were led by Rev. J G Potter, the chair was taken by Dr. N C McKinnon, who, in opening, expressed himself as greatly interested in the present movement. He felt that one great cause of the lack of interest in missions by the men in the past was owing to the fact that no sufficient information was furnished, and the scheme was considered more of a vision than a reality. Now, however, the business men of the churches had taken up the work and were conducting it in a business-like way, and it was bound to be a success.

Mr. William Lees, public school inspector for the county, was one of the delegates who attended the laymen's banquet in Toronto recently. He dwelt upon the largeness of the movement and the importance of it. He related several very interesting facts in connection with the convention and pointed out the necessity of every man doing his duty. It is proposed, in order to carry the undertaking into effect, to raise annually $1,500,000, and of this about $1,500,000 would be devoted to Christianizing that portion of the immigrants coming into Canada recently who have not yet had the opportunity to listen to the preaching of the Gospel. The only way to accomplish this was to meet them upon arrival with the Bible and convert them early to the Christian religion. To render the laymen's missionary movement successful it has been decided that every communicant in every Protestant church must contribute $5 a year, or 10 cents a week, which is indeed a small matter when considered in that light.

Mr. Clifford was also a delegate to the banquet, and in his report he took the view that the people should consider it their greatest privilege to support missions, as it was the Lord's last command, viz., "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel." Mr. Clifford gave a very interesting definition of mission work. In speaking to His disciples the Lord said, "Now I am leaving you. It is necessary for me to go to My Father's house, where I will prepare a banquet for you. I have purchased tickets for everyone, and I want you to go throughout the world and distribute those tickets and extend an invitation to all to come. You must live right, love one another, not that it alone will gain you admission to the banquet, but that you may be happier on earth, and that you may enjoy the hereafter better. When I have everything ready on earth I will come again and escort you all to My Father's house." "As yet," said Mr. Clifford, "only one-third of the world has received the gospel, but to-day means of communication are so easy and the heathen people are so much more ready to receive the gospel, that a tremendous work should be accomplished during the next five years."

FORTY-NINE HEAD OF CATTLE ON FIFTY ACRES

I now maintain a herd of 43 pure bred Holstein cattle and 6 horses on 56 acres, and purchase not one dollar's worth of feed except a small amount of balanced rations used to feed some of the cows while being officially tested for milk and butter fat. Next year I propose to increase my herd to 50, and expect to raise plenty to feed all. The only products sold from the farm are milk, stock and potatoes; of the latter I have usually from 300 to 500 bushels to sell, and I have sold $2,500 worth of pure bred stock since October 1st, 1907. My milk brings me about $100 per month, besides feeding whole milk to every calf born for at least six months. Of course the system of farming eliminates all pasturage and requires two and sometimes three crops from the land each season. The alfalfa, of course, produces three crops, and we generally manage to get two, and sometimes three, crops for soiling purposes. All animals are fed in the stable the year round, with outdoor exercise every day, and all manure is drawn and spread upon the land every day, and it may readily be imagined that the land is rapidly increasing in fertility. — John McLennan, in Rural New Yorker.

Many In Attendance At Tuberculosis Convention

His Excellency Earl Grey Present to Officiate—Includes Many of Best Exhibits.

SCHOOL CHILDREN'S VISIT

Examiner Special.

Montreal, Nov. 19.—A large crowd attended the formal opening of the exhibition which is being held under the auspices of the Montreal Tuberculosis League at the Auditorium Hall yesterday afternoon. His Excellency, Earl Grey, the Governor General, in formally opening the exhibition referred in eulogistic terms to the work of the Tuberculosis League in the great effort which is being made in all parts of the Dominion to stamp out the White Plague. Sir Geo. Drummond, who acted as chairman, explained the object of the exhibition and referred to the splendid gift of a $50,000 tuberculosis dispensary made by Lieut.-Col. Burland, which, he said would greatly assist the league in its fight against the dread disease in Montreal. Dr. Biggs, of New York, one of the foremost American workers in the anti-tuberculosis cause, delivered the opening address. He spoke of the work which is being carried on in the United States and referred to the many prominent Canadians who have assisted in the work both in Canada and on the other side of the line.

The exhibition is an interesting one, including as it does, many of the best exhibits of the celebrated Washington exhibition. The exhibits are ranged around the walls of both floors of the big hall. In addition to the Canadian and American exhibits, France, Germany and Sweden are represented. One of the principal sections which appeared to attract the attention of the visitors yesterday was that containing the celebrated Irish exhibit which took first prize at Washington. In a nearby section Mr. Nathan Strauss has an exhibit demonstrating his methods of pasteurising milk for children. The McGill University exhibit in charge of Dr. Maud Abbott, shows the outdoor methods employed for the treatment of tuberculosis patients. The Swedish exhibit is a unique one, the walls of the booth being completely covered with charity stamps, the sale of which is the chief method of raising money for all charities in that country.

An arrangement has been made whereby the children of the various city schools can visit the exhibition in charge of their teachers in the mornings. The afternoons are to be devoted to lantern and cooking demonstrations. Lectures and lantern demonstrations will be held in the evenings. Last evening a lantern demonstration was given in French by Dr. Benoit of Laval University. Dr. Benoit dealt with the symptoms and effects of the early stages of consumption and the various measures adopted for the prevention of the spread of the disease.

FRED WHITCROFT,
Manager of the Edmonton Hockey Team, who left yesterday with the nucleus of the Stanley Cup Team.

TWELVE TEAMS ENTER THE TEN PIN BOWLING LEAGUE

At a meeting of the Schedule Committee of the Peterborough Ten Pin League held at the P.B.C. alleys last night the applications for membership numbered twelve, and as all were accepted, a match game every night in the week including Saturdays, is assured. It was suggested however, that the Saturday dates be transferred all along the line and the clubs will be asked to decide on the matter at a general meeting to be called shortly.

The Schedule Committee is still engaged arranging the season's engagements and the complete schedule will be published on Saturday next.

The season will open on Monday next, when Gutterson's trio and the B.A.C. will play the first game. For the remainder of opening week the programme is as follows:—

Monday, Nov. 23—B.A.C. vs, Gutterson.

Tuesday, Nov. 24—Belmonts vs. Laing.

Wednesday, Nov. 25—Examiner vs. Bankers.

Thursday, Nov. 26—Martin vs. McIlroy.

Friday, Nov. 27—T.A.S. vs, Lock Works.

Saturday, Nov. 28—C.G.E. vs, Lilie.

OBITUARY.

MR. J. H. REYNOLDS

On Saturday morning, Nov. 14th, there passed away in the person of John Herbert Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Reynolds, of Peterborough, one of the most highly respected young men of Millbrook, at the age of 28 years and 10 months.

The deceased was born in the Township of Ennismore, on the 6th day of January, 1880, and eight years after came with his parents to Fraserville, and two years later they moved to the Steward farm in Cavan. Later Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds moved to Peterborough, having sold their farm.

On 19th of April, 1905, he was united in marriage to Miss Louisa McIvor, who with two infant children survive him; besides these, he leaves to mourn his loss, Mr. and Mrs. A. Reynolds, and three sisters, the Misses Matilda, Jane, Maggie, and Millie of Peterborough; also four brothers, Messrs. Albert and George, of Springville; Joseph of Peterborough, and Roland of Saskatoon, Sask.

Deceased went with the McBride party for the annual deer hunt, but was not feeling well when he went away, and was compelled to return before the others of the party, and took to his bed as soon as he got here, and notwithstanding that he had the best of medical attendance, and good nursing of a devoted wife and loving parents, he passed away on Saturday. In religion he was a Presbyterian, and politically a Conservative.

The funeral on Monday under Orange auspices was very largely attended.—Millbrook Mirror.

ABRAHAM R. BAIN

Prof. Abraham R. Bain, M.A., LL.D, Registrar of Victoria College, and who was closely identified with the institution, and whose influence was strongly felt by those who passed through the institution, died about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon of heart failure, at his home, 133 Bedford road. Prof. Bain was taken ill on Tuesday while attending to his official duties at Victoria, and was removed in a cab to his home. The late Prof. Bain was a student of Victoria College, then at Cobourg, and it was said of him last night that every year since his graduation, with the exception of one, was spent at Victoria. The degree of LL.D. was conferred by Mount Allison University. He was a brother-in-law of Mr. D. W. Dumble, Peterborough.

RESTORED TO HEALTH BY VINOL

"Having for years suffered from catarrh and a cough, and being run-down owing to a severe attack of bronchitis, and after seeking relief in vain from several so-called remedies, I took three bottles of Vinol, which completely restored my usual vigor, entirely removed the mucous and cured the cough.

"I consider Vinol the greatest and most beneficial remedy ever offered the public and am glad to testify to its efficiency." George Cole, "The Pines," Kincardine, Ont.

This is because Vinol is a genuine tonic and body-builder which contains peptonate of iron together with every one of the body-building, medicinal elements of cod liver oil, but without one drop of oil to upset the stomach and retard its work. Vinol acts directly upon the stomach, creates a healthy appetite, and enables the digestive organs to obtain the necessary elements from the food eaten to make rich, red blood, healthy flesh and muscle tissue and create strength.

Your money back if Vinol fails to benefit. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's Drug Store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

MR. TODD DID NOT REQUEST PUBLICITY OF HIS GIFT

Is Not Seeking Any Free Advertising Whatever.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your issue of Sept. 25th, there appeared an item "Presentation to R. J. Todd."

Some of the evil thinking individuals have tried to make capital against me, owing to the headline. As you have personally admitted, with your consent, I wish to state over my own signature that I did not ask to have the article published (as has been insinuated), neither did I write it. A reporter and friend of mine examined the mirror, pronounced the quality and ascertained the fact from me as far as I then knew them, and, I presume, wrote according to his judgment and manner of expression. I didn't see the article until I saw it in the paper. Consequently I do not feel that I, in any sense of the term, was seeking free advertising. I sincerely hope this may help to quench the thirst for blood of those evil surmisers who, like "Saul of Tarsus," always have a warrant, not in their pocket however, as the Government will not grant them one, but in their hearts for the arrest of those who dare to declare and try to practise truth as Jesus commanded with signs following. (Mark, 16th chapter and John 14: 12.)

Thanking you for past and present favours,

Sincerely yours,
R. J. TODD.

WEDDING BELLS

BARNARD—MADILL

A very pleasant event took place on Wednesday, Nov. 11th at 6.30 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Campbell, Fraserville, when their cousin, Miss Margaret Madill, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Percy C. Barnard, of Bailieboro, in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties, numbering about thirty-five. The bride was dressed in cream taffeta with lace and insertion trimmings. She entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her father, and to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Cathcart, of Springville. The bridesmaid was her cousin, Miss Violet Campbell, who wore a pretty cream costume, while Mr. Jeffrey Jewison, cousin of the groom, supported him. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Wetherell, Fraserville Methodist Church, under an arch of evergreens and flowers with horseshoe centre. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding repast was served and a pleasant evening was then spent. Later Mr. and Mrs. Barnard left for their new home in South Monaghan, followed by the heartiest good wishes of their assembled friends. The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful presents.

O'NEILL—DUFFY

Downeyville, Nov. 19.—Special.—St. Luke's church, Downeyville, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday morning, Nov. 17, when Mr. John O'Neill, son of Mr. Michael O'Neill, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Katie Duffy, daughter of Mr. Patrick Duffy, both of Emily. The bride wore a neat tailor-made suit of dark blue, with hat to match. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Florence, who was becomingly attired in dark green, with brown hat slightly touched with green. The groom, who is the youngest of six brothers, now all married, was assisted by his cousin, Mr. Miller, of Ops. Rev. Father McGuire performed the ceremony, and the wedding march was played by Miss Mollie O'Brien. A number of friends were present, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. George O'Neill, of Peterborough, brother of the groom, who were heartily welcomed back to Downeyville by their many friends. The young couple will reside on the old homestead, a mile north of Maple Leaf Cheese Factory. All wish them a long and happy life.

JACOBS—TOBICO

Rev. E. A. Pearson, pastor of the George street Methodist church, officiated at an Indian wedding this afternoon at one o'clock at the parsonage. The principals were Miss Lizzie Tobico and Mr. David Jacobs of the Chemong Indian Reserve, where they will reside.

Representatives of all clubs who are thinking of entering a Junior City League series are requested to be present sharp on time. The number of clubs represented will depend wholly on whether the league will be organized or not. The Otonabee Athletic Club are anxious to enter and the Chieftains would also play should they be allowed to participate in both City League and Junior O. H. A. Other clubs that are a possibility are the T. A. S., Invincibles and Lakefields. There will be plenty of discussion to-night, so the representatives should be on hand with their suggestions on the tips of their tongues.

CITY CURLERS TO MEET TO-MORROW NIGHT

There will be a meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club in the Dominion Bank Chambers to-morrow (Friday), at eight p.m. All interested in curling are earnestly invited to be present. With the facilities at hand in the shape of a magnificent rink it is confidently hoped that all lovers of the "roarin'" game will be encouraged to take part this winter, and by their presence and enthusiasm help to bring it to as high a state of excellence as exists in the Dominion.

WHITTY HAS UNCOVERED NEW INDIAN RUNNER

The Toronto Star says:—

The wood's a-full of Indian wonders!

Fred Whiteroft, the Peterborough hockey player, now of Edmonton, who was one of the men behind Fred Simpson when he first jumped into the running game, has another Indian in view for the Hamilton Herald race next fall.

He is Fred Fraser, an Arctic Circle Indian, who does 280 miles a week, week in and week out, the year around, with a dog team carrying the mails north from Fort Chippewan Islands.

"Fraser is a big fellow like Fred Simpson, but better built," said Whiteroft this morning, on his way through Toronto with the nucleus of the Edmonton hockey team for the Stanley Cup series. "He won the only two races he ever entered. In the first he did 10 miles in 61 minutes, running in moccasins. I saw him do five miles over a sandy track in 28 minutes. He is a natural runner with a grand stride, and he is tireless. He is 21 years of age, and should be right for this Hamilton race next fall. We'll win that Herald cup yet for the West."

Whiteroft does not know much about Acoos, the other Western Indian wonder.

HOCKEY.

They have the right idea now in Peterborough. They intend to encourage the junior O. H. A. hockeyists, looking towards the future, and will hold their Rugby organization meeting for next year right away, so as to get things in shape for the season to come.—Toronto Star.

RUGBY

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Rugby Club will be held next Monday night at eight o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. All Peterborough people interested in the game are asked to be present as officers will be elected and other arrangements made for the campaign in the fall of 1909.

Successful Dinner And Concert In Havelock Presbyterian Church

Examiner Special.

Havelock, Nov. 18.—Miss Matilda Brion, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Rodgers and Mr. Felix Courneyea, of Peterborough, spent a few days in town last week the guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. Alex. Treadeau.

Mrs. Miller and Miss Hope Miller, of Peterborough, were the guests of Mrs. Jno. Harper last week.

Mrs. Thos. Bennett was the guest of friends in Peterborough last week.

Mrs. Chas. Armstrong and Mrs. Hanaman spent Wednesday with friends at Norwood.

Business traffic on the C.P.R. just now is very heavy, and the yards at this point are constantly congested. This naturally makes it very busy for the employees, and as a result a great increase in their pay cheques. On Sunday last over 400 cars were sent out of Havelock.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Webster, of Winnipeg, arrived in town to-day on the noon train and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ritchie. Mr. and Mrs. Webster are former residents of Havelock, and they are receiving the glad hand of their many friends.

Mrs. John O Taylor, of Madoc, was the guest of her sons, Messrs. H J and Horace Taylor, last week, en route to Chatham, where Mrs. Taylor will spend the winter months with her daughter, Mrs. Gamage.

Miss O. Fowler is the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Jas. Fowler, of Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Londerville, of Peterborough, visited friends in town last week.

We are glad to report Mrs. Chas. Barton able to be around after her serious operation.

The dinner and concert in the Presbyterian church and basement on Wednesday night was largely attended and proved a great success. The bar was served in the basement from 5 until 8 o'clock, and everything desirable was placed in abundance on the beautifully decorated tables, which looked most inviting to the eye. The programme commenced shortly after eight o'clock in the auditorium of the church with an opening address by the pastor, Rev. J A G Sterling. Those who so kindly assisted were Dr. and Mrs. Kindred, Misses Rose, McGill and Graham, Rev. Mr. Thornton, of Cobourg, and a number of selections by the choir, made a long and most appreciated programme. Rev. Mr. Keith, of Peterborough, gave a short and interesting address, as did also the two resident ministers, Rev. H Caplan and Rev. Mr. Balfour.

A number from town drove down to Victoria Hall, Asphodel on Friday night to a concert given by the school children under the direction of their teacher, Miss Lydia Kelly. It was given in the new school house, which has lately been completed and much credit is due the trustees and people of Victoria, for the neat, pretty little building, now erected, where their children may be educated. The splendid grammar given by the west type was well appreciated by all in attendance, and the teacher, Miss Kelly, is deserving of congratulations in the way she had them trained to go through the many pretty drills and tableaux. Mrs. W Batcombe and Mr. Masterman, of town, assisted with a couple of solos, and Mr. Jas. A Smith, M.P., and the resident clergyman gave short addresses. Mr. Jas. Frecknall acted as chairman and filled the position most ably. The proceeds amounted to $19.40 and will go towards placing a bell on their new school.

The three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Matt. Rody, underwent an operation for appendicitis at Mrs. Campbell's residence on Tuesday last, and is improving rapidly.

Gertrude Taylor, aged five years, a little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Taylor, passed away on Thursday after only a few days illness. The remains were laid to rest on Friday morning at Maple Grove Cemetery. Sympathy is extended to the bereaved parents in the loss of their little darling.

The new buildings are rapidly progressing and will soon be nearing completion. Mr. S S Joyce's has already been completed and he has started up in business again. In one part he has placed a full line of up-to-date gentlemen's furnishings, which is under the management of his son, Russell, and in the other part, a boot and shoe store, which he himself will manage.

Rev. Geo. McConnell, of Roblin, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Webb.

Mr. Josh Craig, of London, spent Saturday and Sunday in town the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A E Bennett.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Brennan, passed away on Sunday, after only a brief illness. The remains were taken to Norwood on Monday morning for interment.

Mrs. Jno Scott, of town, was successfully operated on for appendicitis at Mrs Campbell's residence on Sunday morning, by Dr. Holdcroft, assisted by Dr. Wade of Hastings.

The hunters have all returned from their two weeks' chase after the deer, and all seem well pleased with their success this year.

Mr. J A Culverwell, of Port Hope, visited Havelock on Monday.

Rev. John Bennett Anderson, of Brooklyn, exchanged pulpits with Rev. H Caplan, rector of St. John's church here, and delivered most interesting sermons at both services, which were indeed appreciated by all present. On Wednesday night he will deliver a lecture in the Opera House, when it is hoped a large number will try and avail themselves of the grand opportunity of hearing him.

INTERESTING BUDGET OF LAKEFIELD NEWS; ANOTHER CUP RACE HELD AT SCHOOL

Examiner Special.

Lakefield, Nov. 18.—Mrs. F. G. Erskine and Miss Jean returned home on Tuesday, after spending Thanksgiving Day with friends at Port Hope.

Mrs. Rosborough and Miss Ennis, of Peterborough, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kelly, on Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. F. G. Amys spent a few days last week in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Cephas Guillet and child, who have been spending the past five months at Stony Lake, passed through the village on Saturday last, on their return to Toronto.

Miss Minnie Garrison, of Belleville, was the guest of Miss Bertha White, on Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. Roland Johnson spent a few days last week in Montreal.

Master Harry Atwood spent Sunday in Peterborough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Evans Atwood.

The Rev. W. J. Creighton was in Toronto last week, attending the quarterly committee meeting of the Synod.

Mrs. E. R. Tate and Master Keith returned home on Wednesday last, after spending ten days in Toronto.

Mr. C. S. Campbell, of the Traders' Bank staff, spent Thanksgiving Day at Acton, Ont.

Mrs. W. Stobbs spent a few days last week in Toronto.

Mrs. Halifax, of Bedford, England, formerly a resident of Lakefield, arrived on Monday on a visit to her sister, Mrs. R. C. Strickland.

Mr. Charles Blythe, of London, Ont., is visiting friends in the village.

Miss Atwood was in Peterborough on Thursday last, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Dale Fense.

Mr. Bruce Murdoch spent a few days last week at Midland, Ont.

The Wednesday evening service at St. John's Church is omitted this week, owing to the absence of the rector, who is attending the annual conference of the Archdeaconry of Peterborough, which is being held at St. Paul's Church, Lindsay, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Miss Maud Manley, of Peterborough, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. E. Singer, for a few days last week.

Her many friends will be pleased to hear that Mrs. Z. White is much improved in health since her arrival at Los Angeles, Cal., and intends returning to Lakefield in the spring.

Judge Weller, of Peterborough, was in the village on Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornish were in Peterborough on Thursday last.

Messrs. W. Gray and B. Kidd returned home on Wednesday last with four fine deer, the results of a few days' hunt at Red Lake.

A grand concert will be held in the Town Hall on Thursday, Nov. 19th, under the auspices of Beresford L. O. L., No. 122. The society have secured the services of the famous comedian, Eddie Pigott, of Toronto, for the occasion and guarantee an enjoyable evening.

A great many of the Lakefield citizens went to Peterborough to hear the Sheffield Choir on Thursday evening last. Among them were the following: Rev. A. W. and Mrs Mackenzie, Mrs. Hilliard, Mrs. Butchart, Mrs. E. R. Tate, Mrs. Davidson, Misses J. Strickland, E. Strickland, K. Atwood, A. Atwood, K. Penny, G. Tate, Rev. W. J. Creighton and Mr. F. Fearman.

The "Sam Campbell," the final race of the season, was run at the Grove School on Friday last, over the usual course. It was won by Bateman, of Grenada, W. I.

ANNUAL MEETING OF CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE

City League teams and those intending to enter are asked to bear in mind the fact that the annual meeting of the City League will be held next Tuesday night in the Y.M.C.A., when officers will be elected reports received from last year and other business transacted. The clubs are asked to have representatives present or in the event of this not being possible, to arrange to be represented by proxy. It is important that there should be a large attendance as it is desired that the league should be gotten under way in plenty of time before the opening of the season.

THE TIGERS IN BEST OF SHAPE

Hamilton Spectator: Already several reports have appeared in the Toronto papers to the effect that the Tigers are pretty badly used up. Dr. Thompson, manager of the Tigers, stated this morning that every man was in the best of condition, although still a little stiff from their exertions at Kingston. There is no truth in the statement that Ben Simpson is suffering from a splintered chest bone. Ben was badly used up in the big game, but was out to practice last evening, and will be in the game on Saturday. The great player was the recipient of several hard tackles, and a couple of telling kicks in the chest, but, outside of a little soreness, he is all right, and will be on hand in the two games yet to be played, still a-punting that ball as only he can.

ANDREW CARNEGIE

The following are a few of the views of Mr. Andrew Carnegie as appeared in one of the big dailies recently:

"The unequal distribution of wealth lies at the root of the present socialistic activity. This is no surprise to the writer. It was bound to force itself to the front, because, exhibiting extremes unknown before, it has become one of the crying evils of our day.

"In the world's progress scientific discoverers and mechanical inventors appeared and adapted the forces and materials of nature to the uses of man, followed by the commercial and industrial age in which we live, in which wealth has been produced as if by magic and fallen largely to the captains of industry, greatly to their own surprise. Multi-millionaires, a new genus, have appeared, laden with fortunes of such magnitude as the past knew nothing of.

"The extremes in the distribution of wealth have never been so great as they are to-day, although salaries and wages have never been so high.

"Those whose incomes are only sufficient to meet physical wants, should not be subject to taxation at all.

"It is only possible to really help those who co-operate with the helper.

"I scarcely know a family intimately of which one or more members are not earnestly engaged spending their time and means in doing good, thus giving not only their wealth but themselves to make brighter the lives of the less fortunate.

"The test of thrift most clearly separates the well behaved, respected and useful from the unsatisfactory members of society."

STOCK QUARANTINED IN BUFFALO

New York and Pennsylvania Close on Account of Epidemic.

SPARROWS SPREAD DISEASE

Barnyard Birds Blamed For Foot and Mouth Disease Which Has Caused Closing of East Buffalo Stock Yards—Two Carloads Found Infected With Plague — Every Precaution Is Being Taken.

Buffalo, Nov. 19.—For the first time in their history the East Buffalo stock yards are under the ban of a quarantine.

Because two carloads of cattle which were delivered in western Pennsylvania were found to be infected with foot and mouth disease, were traced back to East Buffalo, the federal and state authorities have raised the bars on this market, pending a general clean up of the yards and a further investigation of the outbreak of the disease so much dreaded by stockmen.

As a direct result of the conditions growing out of the investigation of the Pennsylvania shipment, the word came yesterday from the bureau of animal industry of the Department of Agriculture, ordering the entire States of New York and Pennsylvania to be quarantined. Pennsylvania state authorities have declared a quarantine against New York, and last night Commissioner Pearson of the Department of Agriculture of this state, who is here, ordered that a strict quarantine be placed on five counties in western New York, namely, Erie, Niagara, Orleans, Wyoming and Genesee.

Animals infected with the foot and mouth disease have been discovered in each of these counties by Government inspectors, who have been quietly at work in this vicinity for over a week. Practically all the cases, it is said, have been traced back to Buffalo.

Chief Melvin of the Washington bureau has been here in personal charge of the the crusade to stamp out the disease, and under him are working a score of inspectors from the federal bureau of animals industry.

The federal quarantine will apply to all cattle in this state and Pennsylvania. No one is prepared to say how long the quarantine will last. In the case of Boston, two years ago, the quarantine lasted several months. Over 200 men will be put to work today on the East Buffalo yards disinfecting every inch of ground. This work will take at least three weeks.

It is said that the infected cattle may be traced back to Michigan.

It is supposed that one point of attack which has heretofore escaped the efforts of department regulations has been that poisons thrown off by the afflicted animals have been transmitted to other healthy beasts through barnyard birds, principally sparrows.

Deputy Commissioner of Agriculture Flanders asked the state forest, fish and game department yesterday if a permit to poison sparrows in infected territory could be secured. He was told that while no such permits were granted, if it could be demonstrated with reasonable certainty that the sparrows were agents of transmission of the disease, the fish and game protectors would not interfere with a warfare against them.

Cattle which are victims of the foot and mouth disease suffer the sloughing off of hoofs and attacks of a poisoning foaming at the mouth, many fatalities occurring.

New Fire Insurance Company.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—R. Forget, M.P., is the leading figure in a newly-organized fire insurance company, with head office in Montreal. The company will be known as the Imperial Fire Insurance Co. of Canada, and will have a paid-up capital of two millions.

Toronto Riflemen Win.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—Toronto University won the university shooting match with a score of 668 against 647 of McGill. Only two teams competed, eight men being in each.

A GREAT HONOUR FOR CANADA

Showered With Compliments at New York Banquet.

BILL WANTS FREE TRADE

Ambassador Bryce, Byron E. Walker and Hon. Clifford Sifton Also Speak on Matters Concerning the Dominion and Its Trade—Toast of King Edward VII. Drunk With Great Enthusiasm.

New York, Nov. 20.—Over the seat of the chairman at the banquet of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York last night shone a famous portrait of George Washington, to the right was one of President Diaz of the Mexican Republic, and on the left an almost living representation of the grave features of Sir Wilfrid Laurier warmed the hearts of the Canadians who were present. All about the noble banqueting hall of the Waldorf-Astoria were the banners of the states, but in a position apart and alone at the head of the hall was the banner of Great Britain, with the national arms and the Union Jack. The first speaker of the evening called upon by the chairman was Right Hon. James Bryce, Ambassador of Great Britain. The British ambassador is a practiced speaker, and having little of the distinguishing accent of Oxford, thanks to his Irish and Scottish associations, he was heard with splendid effect. He referred to the special position accorded to Canada, and, speaking of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he said he had the highest gifts and of the highest kind.

Senor Jose F. Godoy, Mexican Charge d'Affaires at Washington; read a spirited address.

The toast of King Edward VII. preceded the section devoted to Canada, and it was received with surprising enthusiasm, an enthusiasm in significant contrast to the somewhat pale reception which greeted the name of President Roosevelt.

Chairman Simmons called upon Mr. Byron E. Walker of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The great hall was filled with capitalists and commercial kings of the metropolis of the chief commercial city of the United States, who listened with profound attention to Mr. Walker's rapid sketch of the progress of Canada. His words about the financial relations between the two countries and his contrast between the banking systems of Canada and the United States received equally intent hearing, interrupted momentarily by appreciative applause.

Chinese Government Doing Well.

Pekin, Nov. 20.—Several of the foreign legations here have expressed their surprise and gratification at the manner in which the Government is managing the situation. It had been expected up to the present time that the death of the Dowager Empress would precipitate trouble, but the way in which the new Government has assumed its responsibilities has created confidence among the diplomatists.

Thigh Broken by Sign.

Galt, Nov. 20.—Percy, the youngest son of James Munn, met with a painful accident here yesterday, by which he sustained a broken thigh and several painful bruises. The lad was sitting in the doorway of a store over which workmen were erecting a sign, when the scaffolding collapsed, pinning the unfortunate boy to the pavement.

Seat Found For Calder.

Saltcoats, Sask., Nov. 20.—At a large convention Hon. J. A. Calder, who was defeated in the last provincial election, was nominated for the constituency of Saltcoats, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Thomas MacNutt from the Provincial Legislature.

Johnson's Fortune Gone.

Cleveland, Nov. 20.—Mayor Tom L. Johnson, for years reputed to be a millionaire several times over, yesterday announced that his entire fortune had been lost.

He said that he would be compelled to give up his home on Euclid avenue, and also to dispose of his automobile.

He added that a large part of his fortune had been spent in an effort to save the properties left by the late Albert Johnson, his brother.

Heavy Snow In the East.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—This section of the country has now enough snow to make fairly good going on runners. A heavy snow storm set in yesterday morning. The ground was covered with snow previous to the present downfall, but not enough to make sleighing.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—Winter apparently has set in in the capital. Snow fell all day yesterday and the street sweepers are out.

Mounted Policeman Suicides.

Regina, Sask., Nov. 20.—Staff-Sergeant Bates of the R.N.W.M.P. suicided yesterday morning by shooting. He was orderly sergeant in the hospital, and had just called the day orderly to relieve the night man. Despondency was the cause. He joined the force twenty-three years ago, and went through the rebellion and the South African war.

Means Business.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—Rodolph Forget, M.P., yesterday deposited security for costs in the case of libel which Hon. Geo. E. Foster is taking against J. W. Leveseque, who was returned for the Legislature in Laval at the last election, but is now vacating the seat on account of illegal acts by agents.

A KICKER AGAINST THE PROGRAMME

Kingston Tory Paper Objects to Proposed Tupper Leadership.

PREFERS SIR J. P. WHITNEY

Standard Resents Rumor That Sir Hibbert Will Succeed Borden in the Event of Latter's Retirement—Suggests Premier of Ontario With McBride of British Columbia as His Lieutenant.

Kingston, Nov. 20.—The Daily Standard (Con.) yesterday in a leading editorial, discussing the possibility of R. L. Borden's withdrawal from the leadership of the Conservative party, comes out strongly in the event of such a withdrawal for Sir James Whitney as leader with Premier McBride of British Columbia as his associate, and declares in effect that the suggestion of Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper as leader is by no means a welcome one.

"Who," asks The Standard, "proposed Sir Charles and by what authority?"

For itself, The Standard declares, it has heard of no stirring demand for him, from this particular section of the country, while it recalls that the Vancouver Conservatives themselves refused him a nomination.

The Standard objects to any limited body of men within the party undertaking to say who shall or shall not be the leader, and thinks that if Mr. Borden is to retire the proper policy will be to call a general convention of the party that "the influential Conservatives may be given an opportunity to express themselves on one subject or another, and that the present leaders may be given an opportunity to learn, as they should learn, what the rank and file of the party think of Conservative candidates as they are to-day."

The Standard then observes:

"It is very clear that when the Conservative party goes into the next campaign it must go in prepared to wage other than a campaign of slander. It is very clear also that when it goes in again to fight for the people it must in fact fight for the people and not make an appeal, or not permit an appeal to be made for it that will stir up racial and religious prejudices and tend, unintentionally it may be, but none the less certainly, to align class against class, creed against creed and race against race. The appeal must be a broader, a truer tolerant, a more liberal appeal than this and nothing can justify any other appeal, not even a narrow appeal by the other party."

The Standard repeats that it knows of no men better qualified for leadership and for the formulation of a satisfactory Conservative policy than Whitney and McBride. Whitney as leader, McBride as associate. It says of them: "They are doers of things. They are Conservatives. They have each redeemed their provinces; they are men of Canada."

Gold Thieves In Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 20.—B. B. Reed, formerly employed by R. T. Barnette, owner of the Dome Creek mine, near Fairbanks, Alaska, arrested on a charge of stealing gold from his employer, has confessed his guilt and implicated other laborers.

Reed said: "I gathered the gold and sand in handfuls out of the riffles, hid it in my handkerchief or gloves or boots, carried it home and washed it out. My cleanings were from 50 cents to $400 a day. Altogether I must have cleaned up $1,500 worth of stolen gold. I know one man who has $30,000 worth of stolen gold salted down."

A Woman's Murder.

Buffalo, Nov. 20.—Robert E. Kinney, a Pennsylvania Railroad yardmaster, was shot dead at Seneca street Wednesday night. Agnes Gatlin, wife of Edward Gatlin of Terre Haute, Ind., is under arrest.

Mrs. Gatlin was captured while trying to force an entrance to a saloon nearby, where her husband was lying in a side room.

She was out searching for her husband when she met Kinney. Asked as to the whereabouts of her husband, Kinney replied: "Oh, he's out with the blonde to-night."

Taken Over the Line.

Emerson, Man., Nov. 20.—Considerable indignation is expressed over the action of a U. S. immigration officer Wednesday night.

At a late hour Officer Smith went to the home of Jas. McQueen, one-armed man, and forcibly ejected him from his house, taking him over the border and then placing him under arrest.

McQueen failed to appear at Fergus Falls, Minn., last May on a summons, and the authorities have been after him ever since. District court opens at Fergus Falls to-day, when McQueen will be given a hearing.

ROBBERS FARE BADLY.

Colored Highwaymen In Windsor Get Bullets Instead of Money.

Windsor, Nov. 20.—George McWilliam was attacked by two colored hold-up artists last night.

Reaching to his hip pocket McWilliams remarked: "I haven't got much, but you're welcome to it, since you insist," and with that flashed a 32-calibre revolver, which he fire point blank at his assailants, who turned and fled.

McWilliams fired two more shots, one of which evidently took effect in the body of one of the fleeing men. The men got away.

Memorial For Prof. Bell.

Brantford, Nov. 20.—The sites committee of the Bell Memorial Association announced yesterday that the former homestead of Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, on Tutela Heights, near this city, where the telephone was invented, will be acquired as part of the memorial scheme. In addition, a $35,000 monument will be erected in the city and unveiled probably in the summer of 1910.

Trolley Runs Away.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—While a street car, loaded with C.P.R. mechanics, was proceeding up the hill on Davidson street yesterday morning, to the Angus shops, a fuse blew out, and the car started to back down the hill, and ran into another car following closely.

There was a stampede to get out of the runaway car, and five men were injured, two of whom went to the hospital.

Runs Into Brick Wall.

St. Catharines, Nov. 20.—William Padgett of Dunnville, Ont., a clerk in the local branch of the Bank of Commerce, participating in the "blindman's" race at the military games on Wednesday night, while going at full speed ran into the brick wall. He was picked up unconscious and carried to the hospital.

Trainer Committed.

Chatham, Nov. 20.—Ernie Crummer, well-known on the track as a trainer and driver, against whom a charge of perjury was preferred by Fred H. Brisco, was sent up for trial by Judge Houston yesterday. Crummer was released on $600 bail. He formerly drove Brisco's racehorse, Goldie Brisco.

Holding Trumps

By W. F. BRYAN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Bitter Creek cared little for the presidential race. It was too remote from the center of things to care which of the two Williams occupied the White House. It was the tail of the ticket that interested Bitter Creek, and interested it mightily.

The camp had reached a stage in its development where a local sheriff was of greater importance than a national ruler. The fight was to be made strictly on party lines, but the parties were the Colcordites and the Myliusites.

It was agreed that either man would admirably perform the onerous duties of the office, but Ben Colcord and Tom Mylius both wanted the place, and the contest would be none the less exciting because the two men were close friends.

"This sure is going to be a fight," announced Colcord when he met his chum after the nominati· "No hard feeling if I beat you, Tom?"

"If you can," confirmed Mylius, with a laugh. "I think I see myself wearing that badge already, Ben."

"Not if I can help it," denied Colcord. "I've a few ideas as to how to run a campaign myself, and I'm going to try them."

"Anything short of shooting," assented Mylius. "I hold the trump card, though. You wait and see."

Bitter Creek did not have long to wait. Colcord led from the first and took the first trick by fitting up the old Bella Union as a picture show. In between reels he made a speech to the audience, and the audience included most of the townspeople in the course of the evening.

The pictures were changed every evening, and even the barkeepers at the new Bella Union and the Yalta were permitted to take time off to see the new reel run through.

Business at the faro tables suffered, and Colcord would have become unpopular had it not been that at the conclusion of each performance he led the audience across the street for a drink, patronizing first the Bella Union and then the Yalta.

It was the general opinion that Colcord had set a pace too swift for his rival to follow, but Mylius only smiled.

This smile grew broader the following week when Mylius played and took the second trick. Bitter Creek sadly lacked the feminine element. Save for Mrs. Mulligan, who ran the Golden West hotel, the census of Bitter Creek was entered in the male column of the records.

The arrival of Edna Mylius created nothing less than a sensation, and that evening the picture show was deserted, while the voters of Bitter Creek slowly filed past the Golden West in the hope of obtaining a sight of the new arrival.

Edna Mylius was well worth the trouble. She was a slip of a girl with a coronet of silky hair the color of virgin gold. She dressed with an artful simplicity far more fetching than the latest fashion, and her smile was simply irresistible. She was just out of college, in love with the west and delighted to be one of the factors in an election contest.

Tom fitted up a store near the picture show, and waffles, with real honey, vied with the pictures as an attraction. Waffles were Edna's specialty, and with sleeves rolled above her dimpled elbows, with dainty apron and a coquettish cooking cap, her face flushed from the heat of the fire, she was a picture—and a moving one—far more effective than the product of lantern and film across the street. Bitter Creek decided that of the two Tom Mylius was better fitted to be sheriff.

Colcord racked his brains for something to counteract the effect of the waffles and brought down to the Creek half a dozen minor pugilists, who battled for the benefit of a mere handful of spectators, while the rest of the camp watched Edna make fudge.

Colcord left the fight and went over to see what success the fudge maker was having. The room was packed with men solemnly masticating the toothsome compound, while Mylius made a speech.

They listened, as in duty bound, but all eyes were upon the trim little figure hovering over the stove at the end of the hall. She had impressed Mrs. Mulligan as assistant, and the ponderous figure of the elder woman made an excellent foil for the girl.

Edna looked up, with a smile, as Colcord entered and made his way to the stove. It was by no means his first visit, and she had come to like the frank, breezy man who at once was her brother's friend and rival.

"I'm perfectly happy," she whispered as she offered Colcord a plate of the sweets. "When we made fudge in a chafing dish I used to say that I hoped some day to be able to make all I wanted to. I've got my wish sooner than I expected."

"I wish I might have mine," retorted Colcord.

"You can't," was the prompt reply. "I'm going to elect Tom as sheriff. Perhaps if you are real good I'll elect you the next time."

"It's hard to fight fudge," assented Colcord, with a laugh, "but there is still the home stretch to be run off. You wait and see."

Edna smiled as she shook her head in disapproval of the claim.

"The way to men's hearts is through their stomachs," she reminded.

"A lesson you have taught me," he admitted. "You have dealt me the trump card."

"I thought you told Tom you held it all along," she retorted.

"This is a new deal—and a new trump," he declared mysteriously.

"You wait and see."

He would not explain further, and presently he made his way back to the picture theater, where the concluding bout was just over. It had been an expensive experiment, and Colcord reflected that if fudge could beat fighting in Bitter Creek he had already lost.

His trump card was a burgoo. Colcord was from Kentucky, and he had pinned his last faith on this savory stew, the weapon of the politician, the delight of voters for generations.

Two aged negroes were imported to superintend the making, and Colcord had selected a field on the outskirts of the town where the crowds would have to pass his rival's house on the way to the grounds.

The day before election was selected for the function, and all business was suspended by common consent that every one might participate.

Colcord watched Mylius sharply for a counter move, but no announcement came, and, with a chuckle, Colcord assured himself that at last he had played a trump, and played it at a moment when it would save the game.

He made an early trip to the grounds, where already the great stew was bubbling and seething in its caldron. Edna was in the yard in front of the shack her brother had taken when he had arranged for her coming, and he stopped to chat and brag a little on his success.

"I don't suppose that you'd care to come to the grounds," he said, "but you really ought to taste the burgoo. There is nothing else like it. I'll send or bring some over."

"I shall be delighted," was the demure reply, and Colcord rode on rather sorry that he had to whip Edna's brother. It might reduce his chances of winning Edna, and that was even more important now than the office on which he had once set his heart.

It had been announced that the burgoo would be served at 2 o'clock, but it was well past that time when a single rider came to explain why the crowd had not shown up.

"Mylius is giving a lawn party," explained Colcord's friend. "There's a dancing floor laid down in his yard and a band from Silver City. You can't get a man past the place, for Miss Edna is dancing with all in turn. Looks as though we were beaten, Ben."

"I'm rather glad that we are," was the unexpected reply as Colcord turned to give an order.

Some time later the guests at the lawn party were surprised to see Colcord drive up. In the wagon box were the two negroes and the caldron of burgoo.

"I promised to bring you some," explained Colcord as he approached Edna, "and as no one else seemed to want any I brought all of it. It may help out with the refreshments. It's rather a cold day for a lawn party, and the hot stew will be appreciated."

"Splendid!" cried Edna. "If you will drive round the house I'll show you where you can have it served. We only have cakes and lemonade."

She led the way to the back of the house, where the two cooks unloaded Colcord's addition to the refreshments and prepared to serve it. Colcord made the best use of his time, and when he appeared in the front yard again he approached Mylius.

"Tom," he said, "you can be sheriff, for I'm going to be your brother-in-law. I told you that I would win, but I didn't realize that my trump card would be the one you held."

Wanted the Other One.

A handsome and neatly dressed young woman was walking down the street the other day, followed by her favorite dachshund pup. It was market day, and the pavement being somewhat crowded caused the dog to get some distance behind its mistress. Fearing it would lose sight of her, she called, "Come along, sir!"

A would be wit who was near stepped up to her and with great politeness said, "Certainly, miss."

"Ah," she exclaimed as her pet came running up, "you have made a mistake! This is the puppy I called."—London Tit-Bits.

A CHANGE OF CLIMATE.

Why Hot Southwest Winds No Longer Strike Missouri.

"People may talk as they choose," says an old timer, "but the climate of St. Louis and Missouri is certainly changing.

"Everybody remembers the hot winds that twenty or thirty years ago were a common feature of our climate in the summer. They blew day and night from the southwest, often for a month or six weeks at a time. There was not a moment's intermission in the steady gale, as hot as the blast of a furnace. Often it happened that the corn was dried in the fields, so that the leaves were as ready for fodder in July as in October. Sometimes even the foliage of the forest trees was wilted, and once or twice the leaves fell off, completely dried up by the hot wind, and the trees started a second crop of foliage. We have not had a hot southwest wind for ten years. The explanation is plain. Thirty years ago Oklahoma and western Texas were sun dried plains. In summer the heat of the sun baked the surface as hard as a brick. Great cracks appeared in the soil, so wide you could put your finger in them, and extended downward four to six feet into the ground. The surface became so hot that it almost burned the soles of your shoes. For five or six months in the year 150,000 square miles of the treeless region of Oklahoma and Texas became a veritable fiery furnace, and it was the wind from this region that desolated Missouri, Kansas and even Iowa.

"Now all this southwestern country is broken up into farms, and instead of being a sun baked desert it has been converted into cultivated fields. Trees have been planted, and orchards and rains are more abundant in that vast region than before cultivation began. The rain belt has extended west from Arkansas and Missouri into Oklahoma and Kansas, and with increasing rainfall the former desert region shows greater fertility. So it is the hot winds have ceased, and when we have what people call a hot wave in Missouri nowadays it is not the heat of the Texas plains, but that which might be expected in our own latitude."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Cooking Without Utensils.

A London organization, the League of Frontiersmen, has opened in Surrey a camp to demonstrate how easy it is to cook well without the utensils commonly considered necessary. "Our idea is to cook all our food without pots and pans," says the spokesman of the league. "Meat never tastes so delicious as when stuck on a stick and cooked over glowing coals. Vegetables cooked in the embers of the campfire are said to be splendid. A bird wrapped up in clay and cooked in the ashes of a big fire is reputed to have a rare and distinctive flavor. This system of clay cooking is indeed still common among some of the English gypsies. The aim of army experts is now all for the simplification of gear; hence we hope that our experiments will be of value."

Loomis' Face.

Charles Battell Loomis, the writer and humorist, has as sorrowful a face as can be found at a funeral. He seldom smiles and then with a seeming effort that is painful to behold. He was present last winter at a theater party given by Mark Twain to all the Harper authors. After the show the elder humorist greeted the younger with a smile and a handshake, but the mournful visage of Loomis remained unchanged.

"W've met before, Mr. Clemens," he said. "I attended your birthday dinner, but I didn't suppose you'd remember my face."

"Remember your face?" responded Twain. "Why, I'll never forget it. I wish I had it."—Morgan Robertson in Success Magazine.

Danger in the Egg.

Diphtheria, according to the London Lancet, may be directly communicable from birds to man, and this through the egg! Dr. Sambon of the London School of Tropical Medicine has discovered the characteristic diphtheritic membranes in the oviduct of fowls, and he has also found fragments of such infectious matter in the egg itself and on his own breakfast table! Cooking no doubt destroys the insidious germ, but those who frequently partake of raw eggs and milk should see that the "white" of the egg is above suspicion before swallowing the luscious drink.

The Twins of Twinsburg.

The village of Twinsburg numbers five sets of twins among its population of something like 300 souls. The query suggests itself, Is there anything in the suggestion of a name? Twinsburg has presented the condition to the world. It is content to let scientists puzzle over the theory. The town was originally named for the Wilcox twins many years ago, the early settlers being so proud of them.—Columbus Dispatch.

Stellar Tin.

Observations of the spectrum of Alpha Scorpii, made at the Cape of Good Hope, have shown a puzzling line that an astronomer has attributed to tin. If this proves to be correct it is the first discovery of tin ever made in the atmosphere of a star.

THE WHEATFIELD.

Where the Billowing Golden Waves Stretch From Sky to Sky.

Take a look at the wheatfield that has been brought up to perfection as it stands, yellow as gold, with the sheen of the sea, billowing from sky line to sky line like an ocean of gold, where the wind touches the rippling wave crests with the tread of invisible feet. In California, in Oregon, in Washington, in Dakota, in the Canadian northwest, you may ride all day on horseback through the wheatfields without a break in the flow of yellow heavy headed grain—no fence lines, no meadow lands, no shade trees, no knobs and knolls and hills and hollows of grass or black earth through. From dawn till dark, from sunrise, in a burst of fiery splendor over the prairie horizon, to sundown, when the crimson thing hangs like a huge shield of blood in the haze of a heat twilight, you may ride with naught to break the view between you and the horizon but wheat—wheat. It is like the gold fields. It goes to your head. You grow dizzy looking at it. You rub your eyes. Is it a mirage? The billowing yellow waves seem to be breasting the very sky. You look up. The sky is there all right with the black mote of a meadow lark sailing the azure sea. He drops liquid notes of sheer mellow music down on your head, does that meadow lark, and that gives you back your perspective, your sense of amazing reality. You are literally, absolutely, really, in the midst of a sea of living gold. It is you and not the lark that is the mote. You begin to feel as if your special mote might be a beam that would get lost in infinity if you stayed there long, and so you ride on and on, and some more on, and by and by come out of the league long, fenceless fields with an odor in your nostrils that isn't exactly like incense—it's too fugitive, too fine, too sublimal of earth. It is aromatic, a sort of attar of roses, the imprisoned fragrance of the billions upon billions of wheat flowers shut up in the glumes of the heavy headed grain there. And that's the odor of the wheat.—Agnes C. Laut in Outing Magazine.

KIDNEY DISEASE
COMES ON QUIETLY.

Perhaps no other organs work harder than the kidneys to preserve the general health of the body and most people are troubled with some kind of Kidney Complaint, but do not suspect it. It may have been in the system for some time. There may have been backaches, swelling of the feet and ankles, disturbances of the urinary organs, such as brick dust deposit in the urine, highly colored scanty or cloudy urine, bladder pains, frequent or supressed urination, burning sensation when urinating, etc.

Do not neglect any of these symptoms, for, if neglected they will eventually lead to Bright's Disease, Dropsy and Diabetes.

On the first sign of anything wrong Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go to the seat of trouble, strengthen the kidneys and help them to filter the blood properly and flush off all the impurities which cause kidney trouble.

Miss Albertha B. Clarke, Stony Creek, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with kidney trouble for several years; my back was weak, I had such terrible headaches, and was so restless I could not sleep at night and tried everything without any benefit. Meantime a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got four boxes and they completely cured me. I now feel as well as I ever did and would advise everyone suffering from Kidney Disease to try them."

Price 50 cts. per box, or 3 for $1.25, all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering specify "Doan's."

THE DOCTOR SAID "I CAN'T HELP YOU"

Suffered 10 Months with Kidney Complaint. Gin Pills Cured.

Dunvegan, Inverness Co.

I am perfectly cured of Kidney complaint after using Gin Pills. Six hours after taking the first Pill I obtained relief, and now after three months I feel as well as ever.

I suffered ten months and the Physician attending me advised me to go to the Victoria Hospital at Halifax, as he could do nothing more for me. I may add that I used a great deal of medicine, and strictly followed my physician's directions regarding diet, etc., but without avail, until providentially I learned of your most excellent remedy. I am recommending Gin Pills.

ROYAL PRIVATE SEALS

NUMBER OF RULING FAMILIES HAVE FINE INTAGLIOS.

They Are Used For Private Correspondence Alone and Are Beautifully Cut—King Edward Affects a Cairngorm While Queen Alexandra Has a Private Seal Cut In Red Cornelian—Sealing Wax Is Often Costly.

It may not be generally known that practically all the members of the royal family, even some of the quite youthful of them, have their private seals. These are intaglios, or precious or semi-precious stones, as the case may be, with the design hollowed out of them, the stones mostly employed for the purpose being amethyst, chalcedony, cornelian, onyx, and sardonyx. These private seals, even that of King Edward himself, are never used for affixing to public documents; they are reserved for quite private correspondence at home or with foreign royalty. It is that fact that gives impressions of the seals such value in the eyes of collectors.

The designs carved on these private seals are usually of what may be termed an individual character. Though presenting a truly heraldic appearance, the design frequently gives indication of the indulgence of personal fancy, as, for instance, the reversed initial "A" which Queen Alexandra includes in the pattern of her very beautiful private seal. Again, the private seal of Princess Henry of Battenberg shows a bee with wings outstretched.

King Edward has a fancy for cairngorm, the yellow variety of rock-crystal found in perfection at Cairngorm, in Scotland, as a stone to be carved in intaglio for sealing his correspondence. When Prince of Wales, he once had a metal replica made of one of his seals, specially for sealing the warrants of tradesmen appointed to supply him; but the King's seal for his private correspondence has always been reserved for that purpose only. Queen Alexandra treasures a seal in red cornelian that was specially engraved for her on the occasion of her marriage.

The sealing-wax used is of the finest quality, as it should be in order to obtain the most satisfactory impressions of what are truly exquisite examples of highest art. The wax, mostly red, though some members of the royal family prefer other colors, costs four shillings a pound—one pound of it containing twenty sticks. It may just be whispered that one youthful prince, who has now a seal of his own, has been known to adopt the original idea of using brown parcel wax for sealing his boyish correspondence, and costing him fivepence for sixteen sticks—at once economical and "out of the common."

It is interesting to note that the private seals of foreign royal personages are nearly all carved in England, a case in point being that of King Alfonso of Spain. It may be added that royalty, like ordinary, everyday persons, vary very much in their ability to produce a nice, clean, sharp impression of a seal. One of the most skilful is said to be our own Princess Victoria, and, needless to say, impressions of her private seal are much sought after.

Besides collectors of the impressions of such private seals, there are persons, of course, necessarily rich, who collect the intaglios themselves. The finest collection ever got together was that of the Duke of Marlborough, which was ultimately sold for no less than £36,750. One of the most valuable intaglios known — an engraved stone signed by Dioscorides, the marvellous Greek engraver—fell from its setting in a coronet that was being worn by Lady Louisa Egerton at a ball. For a time it was presumed to be lost, but it was subsequently found under a settee in the ballroom. So five hundred pounds' worth of exceedingly portable property was recovered.

There are royal princesses, both British and foreign, who themselves collect the impressions of the private seals of other royal personages. And it is a kind of unwritten law that whenever a new private seal is cut for royalty, a wax impression of it shall in due course be sent by its owner to each of these young ladies.

A Good Guesser.

A Hungry Mexican Shark.

Pursued by a nine foot shark, which when they abandoned their boat at the shore put his front fins on the edge of the boat and ate the fish therein as a pig would eat out of a trough until in its greed it swallowed a big hook thrown into the pile of fish, is the story told by several fishermen and people who saw the windup of the affair. The fishermen were returning to port with their sloop filled to the gunwales with fish when they noticed a great fish pursuing them and rapidly gaining on them, although still about 1,000 feet away. They hurried to the pier, where in terror they scrambled out of the boat. The shark, for such the fish proved to be, followed them and immediately mounted part way into the boat, where he began devouring great quantities of fish in single mouthfuls. The fishermen hurriedly secured a shark hook, which they threw in with the fish. The shark, after a mouthful or two, took the hook into his mouth along with several fish and swallowed it. A crowd of people had gathered by this time, and all lent a hand in pulling the monster in.—Mexican Herald.

The Meeting and the Parting.

They had met by chance at Atlantic City. They were strangers to each other, but he was convinced that she was a southern girl of high caste, and she in turn believed him to be a New York man of money.

"You are from New York, aren't you?" she abruptly asked when they had paused for a moment after a stroll along the beach.

"Yes," he answered, determined to reveal himself in his true station. "I live in East Sixteenth street, where I grovel among my fellow clerks on $10 a week. But you—you are a southern lady of social distinction and"—

"No," she coldly rejoined; "I live in East Sixteenth street among the clerks also."

"Anywhere near 258?" he faintly asked.

"Next door—256!"

Then they parted.—New York Times.

Must Not Be Copied.

Both Queen Alexandra and the Princess of Wales dispose of dresses which they do not intend to wear again, by having them taken to pieces and the materials distributed amongst members of their households. There is an inviolable rule, however, in Buckingham Palace and at Windsor, that the recipient of any royal finery is never, in any circumstances, to wear a gown in the form in which it is worn by the Queen.

Often Her Majesty wears a dress only once, particularly those in which she is seen at evening courts, after which the gowns are taken to pieces and the parts distributed, with the exception of the valuable lace trimming, which is used over and over again. On the other hand, the Princess of Wales does not hesitate to be seen in the same gown many times, especially if it happens to suit her.

She Tumbled to It.

"My affianced bride is in the hospital, and I am the cause of it!" lamented the prospective bridegroom.

"How is that?" inquired his friend.

"You see," he explained, "I went to her house to ask her to be my wife. She was upstairs at the time, and when she appeared at the head of the stairs for fear I'd lose my nerve when she got closer I called up, 'Deary, will you marry me?'"

"Well?"

"She tumbled all the way downstairs!"—Brooklyn Life.

Where She Was.

Underneath the balcony
He played his light guitar,
The moon was afloat like a silver boat
In the sea blue depth afar.
But no one out from the lattice peeped
To answer his ardent wishes.
His love, his adored one, where was she?
Why, back there, just where she ought to be—
In the kitchen, washing up the supper dishes.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

It Is at Once the Oldest and Youngest Newspaper in London.

The youngest newspaper in London the Great is also the oldest. The London Gazette, after an existence close upon two centuries and a half, has only a short time ago been registered as a newspaper on its 28,186th issue. The Gazette came in with the great plague in 1665, and for that reason was first published in Oxford. The modern newspaper robs it of much of its importance, for the big appointments have all been announced in the press before they make their full dress appearance in its official pages.

Macaulay described The Gazette as containing nothing but that which the Secretary of State wished the nation to know. There has never been a rush on the jog trot circulation of the only paper of authority printed in England, as Lord Weymouth said of it about a century ago, except, perhaps when there is a change of Government, when the lucky recipients of office set up a brisk demand for copies of the issue containing the notice of their preferment.

To the death of Queen Victoria, an event which profoundly moved the whole world, the paper devoted only thirteen lines. Of the coronation of King Edward it gave no account whatever.

The Gazette's leisurely way of imparting the news was amusingly shown during the South African war, when it went on calmly publishing week after week long accounts of Lord Kitchener's drives, more than a year after they had taken place.

Once The Gazette did have a real beat. That was the time of the Crimean war, when it was the first to publish an important item of war news, the result of the battle of the Alma.

The Gazette is the only news journal to which Cabinet Ministers are frequent contributors, and to which the reigning sovereign now and then sends paragraphs authorized with his own initials. It is probably the only paper which returns the original copy to authors with the proofs. This is done in the case of the sovereign and Cabinet Ministers.

SPIED ON SUBMARINES.

Foreign Agent Said to Have Passed as British Lieutenant.

A singular story is being told in British naval circles at the present time.

A certain lieutenant was posted to the command of one of the new "C" submarines on acceptance by the Admiralty from the contractors. The little vessel was to make the passage round to Portsmouth, shepherded by a cruiser.

The lieutenant duly came on board in uniform. The crew were all present, although the submarine was not to start until the following day. The officer made a most searching inspection of the vessel, parenthetically mentioning that this was the first time he had been on board one of the new type, and asking many questions. He then went ashore again, leaving word that he would be on board in the morning before the craft was due to sail.

A few hours later another naval officer came on board, and in reply to polite inquiries stated that he was Lieutenant ——, and had come to take command of the submarine. It speedily became apparent that a hoax had been played. The newcomer had difficulty in establishing his bona fides. Therefore, the first "officer" was evidently an imposter who had come aboard skilfully disguised as a lieutenant to pry into the secrets of the new submarine.

The matter, it is said, has been diligently hushed up. But in naval circles it is held that the abnormal precautions taken on the recent occasion of the launch of a new submarine at Chatham lend veracity to the rumor.

Patroness of Ten Livings.

The story of the famous Balaclava charge is recalled by a recent regrettable events, and which has aroused much indignation in Northamptonshire, England. A party of trippers visited the historic church at Deene, and while there damaged the beautiful carving on the tomb of Lord Cardigan, leader of the Light Brigade in the ever-to-be-remembered charge on Oct. 25, 1854. When Lord Cardigan received the fatal order, conveyed by Capt. Nolan, from Lord Lucan at daybreak, he remonstrated strongly, but, obeying orders, he led his men to death. Lord Cardigan gave the words, "Light Brigade will advance, walk, march," and then followed the command to "Trot." The Russian battery were more than a mile ahead, and Lord Cardigan placed himself right for the central gun. He, however, survived fourteen years to live through that terrible day again thousands of times, and when he died his title passed to his cousin, the second Marquis of Ailesbury, "Lord Cardigan" becoming the courtesy title of the heir of the marquisate. The Countess of Cardigan, who is naturally much grieved at the injury done to the tomb, is the patroness of no less than ten livings. She is very fond of singing, and used to delight in "dressing up." She would sometimes appear dressed as Carmen.

The Complete Alpinist.

The young millionaire had climbed the Jungfrau, Monck and Eiger.

"It is more dangerous work than motoring," he said, "and, dear me, how the climber is loaded down. He resembles a peddler more than anything else. He carries wood to make a fire with. He carries nails for his boots. He carries a lamp. He also has an ax wherewith to cut steps for himself in perpendicular ice walls, and he has a cord wherewith to rope himself to his companions, and he has a staff to help him up and down the steeps. In the sack on his back there are all sorts of things—tubes of concentrated soup, tea, coffee, candles, socks, extra shirts, gloves, pins, brandy, meat extract, smoked glasses. And dangling between his shoulders is a pair of snowshoes, without which in the hot August sun he would sink in the soft snow quite up to his knees at every step."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

When "Slate" Means Slater Shoes

OBSERVE the "Sign of the Slate." On a school slate the following words —"The Slater Shoe."

That is a trade-mark worth several hundred thousands to-day.

It is widely poached upon because it is widely known as a standard of quality.

It now commands a market of a Million Dollars yearly in $4.00, $5.00, and $6.00 Shoes.

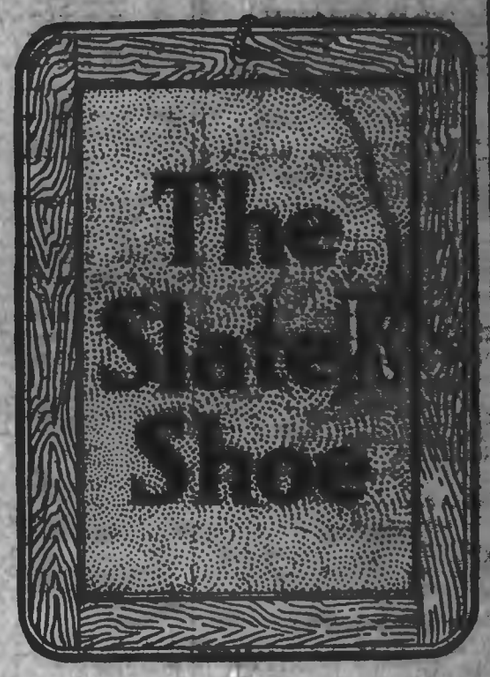
This is why there are so many substitutes evasively offered as "Slater Shoes"—"Shoes made by Slater"—and four other tricky ways of trading on the name and merits of "The Slater Shoe."

So,—to protect the Public we say again—

No shoe is a genuine "Slater Shoe" unless it has the trade-mark picture of a Slate stamped on it with the makers' price (this latter to prevent overcharge).

Look for that Slate mark!

And, when you want a genuine 1869 "Slater Shoe" you can head off Smart Alecks who would trick you into something as "Slaters" which have never been within the Slater Shoe Factory, if you will simply look for the Slate as well as the name "Slater."



The quality of Slater Shoes is established. None but the best materials and the best methods figure in their manufacture. The Goodyear Welt system invariably used in making them, insures the maximum amount of comfort and wear. (20)

"Bobs'" Holiday.

Congratulations to Earl Roberts, who, recently celebrated his seventy-sixth birthday. It is not generally known that Lord Roberts can claim descent from royalty, being able to trace back his ancestry by three different lines to two of England's kings —Edward I. and Edward III.

"Bobs" is one of the most popular of England's heroes, and certainly he does everything to make himself loved by all. Some years ago, when he was visiting Winchester, the boys of the college received him in their midst with a whole-hearted enthusiasm that was unmistakable, and the senior scholar welcomed him in a long Latin speech, that must have cost him much labor in the compilation.

"I have listened with great attention to Mr. Moberley's eloquent oration," said the Commander-in-Chief in reply. "My Latin is, I am afraid, somewhat rusty, and I may have missed a word here and there. But if I understand his general purport rightly, he asked me to ask the headmaster to give you all a holiday, which I have now much pleasure in doing."

Needless to say, Lord Roberts' eloquent and practical reply was cheered by the enthusiastic scholars even more than their head scholar's Latin oration.

Grosse Isle Memorial.

The plans of the monument which will be placed on Grosse Isle, near Quebec, in memory of the hundreds of Irishmen who perished there of fever, have been submitted to the National Council of the order for approval.

The formal dedication of the monument will probably take place next midsummer, when excursions will be arranged from many points.

Diagnosis.

When your thoughts won't turn,
And your gig lamps burn,
And the tip of your nose is red,
And there's no dry reef
In your handkerchief,
And your comforts all have fled;
When you cough and sneeze,
And your proboscis
Is minus the sense of smell,
And a bear tastes good
As a risky would,
So far as your taste can tell;
When a good cigar
And a stogie are Alike in their rich boksy;
When your throat is parched,
And your temper starched,
And your nose just runs away—
That's hay fever.

Everything She Ate SEEMED A BURDEN TO CARRY.

HAD STOMACH TROUBLE FOUR YEARS.

When your food has not been properly digested, your body has not received the benefit it should. The exertions of the gastric juice have been confined entirely to removing the unmasticated undigested portions of food which they cannot properly digest as speedily as possible from the body, thereby only giving the blood a small percentage of nourishment with which to feed the tissues. Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the bowels, promotes perfect digestion, makes pure blood, tones the stomach, and thus restores perfect health and strength to the debilitated system.

Mrs. D. A. Francisco, Rossland, B.C., writes: "I was suffering from stomach trouble of the worst kind for about four years. Everything I ate seemed a burden to carry. I always arose in the morning with a sickening and feverish taste in my mouth and was also troubled with swellings in my hands and feet, which my physician said was due to the disordered state of my stomach. I tried everything that was purchasable, and also consulted two or three physicians, but could find no relief until one of my neighbors told me of a wonderful cure by Burdock Blood Bitters. I used altogether ten bottles and am now perfectly cured. I wish to recommend B.B.B. to anyone who may be so unfortunate as I was.

A LESSON IN SPANISH

How Tourists in Mexico Wrestle With the Language.

A QUEER RESTAURANT ORDER.

The Way an American Woman Shocked a Waiter With a Demand For a Dish That the Cook Would Not Prepare.

"It's no wonder that men who go from the States down to Mexico on business do not get along better," said a returned New Yorker. "They don't study Spanish as they should. In the clubs half of the stock stories are about these half educated Americans.

"It was in a restaurant where only Spanish is spoken that a party of American tourists assembled. There were a woman and her two daughters and, of course, the attendant and patient papa with the wad.

"'Let me order,' said the mater. 'I want to use my Spanish.' And she proceeded to pull out a handy book of conversation. 'Let me see,' scanning the menu; 'we want oysters, I'm sure. A small fry for each would be just the thing.'

"Running her fingers through the leaves, she found that 'chiquita' means 'small' and 'frita' means 'fry.' Perfectly simple. 'Chiquita fritas' would mean 'small fries.' She held up her fingers to indicate four and said complacently to the expectant and polite waiter:

"'Chiquitas fritas.'

"The waiter's eyes bulged out, and his Latin politeness got a shock. 'Oh, no, senora,' he cried as he backed away; 'no chiquitas fritas!'

"'Why not?' returned the patron. 'Don't you have 'em?' for in her surprise she had fallen back on her vernacular. Then she remembered her role and consulted her book.

"Nothing doing. No end of gesticulations on the part of the waiter.

"'Nice country where one can't get fried oysters,' piped the woman, and she added, 'I wonder why?'

"'You can get 'em, ma'am,' said a man's raucous voice at an adjoining table. He continued: 'You ordered fried babies, and they don't serve 'em in this part of the republic. The word "chiquitas" means babies, a term of endearment, but you're all O. K. as to the fritas. If you had asked for "ostras fritas" the order would have gone through all right.'

"And she ordered 'em, though she looked daggers at the stranger, who was a New Yorker and had lived in Mexico for twenty years.

"It was the same sort of woman," continued the traveler, "who tried to air her Spanish by asking the amount of her bill after she had taken her dinner in a restaurant in the City of Mexico. With a bland smile she addressed the head waiter with 'Como mucho?' intending to ask how much.

"Now, the word 'como' not only means 'how,' but also 'I eat,' so that the woman had remarked to the waiter, 'I eat a good deal.' This was as much as to say that the dinner was so good that she had eaten all or more than she ought. In fact, it was a compliment and such a compliment as is highly appreciated in any Latin country.

"With a deep bow the servitor expressed his delight that his humble viands should have found approbation in the sight of the most excellent senora. It was expressed in the choice phrases that so readily lend themselves on such occasions through the Castilian tongue.

"But my lady didn't understand a word of the lingo. She meant business, and she repeated in a louder tone: 'Como mucho? Como mucho?' She was sure of her correct Spanish but somehow she couldn't get the waiter to do anything but bow and scrape and smile.

"The puzzle was solved when the proprietor, hearing the excited voices, entered and learned that the lady merely wanted to pay her bill. Had she known that not 'Como mucho?' but 'Que es la cuenta?' ('What is the account?') is the correct expression she would have been saved trouble and mortification.

"Time and again United States consuls have set forth in federal publications the advantages of a real knowledge of Spanish to the business man. The need is growing more emphatic with every day, as our relations in trade are growing with Mexico daily. But I guess that federal publications don't hit the people at large as a general rule.

"One of the easiest ways to learn a foreign language is to read good novels in that tongue. You get so interested in the story that you just have to go on to the end to learn whether the hero and heroine come out all right.

"Students of Spanish don't adopt that method in New York, I guess, for you can't find any Spanish novels on the secondhand bookstore tables up or down or across the city. The only specimens I have found have been Spanish novels translated from the French novels. It is strange, too, for there are many excellent novels nowadays by Spanish writers.

"Of course an instructor is needed to obtain the correct pronunciation, but on visiting Mexico with a good, ready knowledge of the language you can soon acquire the needed pronunciation. In fact, you have to do it in order to get along."

Any coward can fight a battle when he's sure of winning, but give me the man who has pluck to fight when he's sure of losing.—George Eliot.

Any man may make a mistake. None but a fool will stick to it. Second thoughts are best, as the proverb says.—Cicero.

A HOMEMADE BASKET.

Directions as to the Various Details of the Undertaking.

An extremely decorative yet inexpensive scrap basket may be made from stiff cardboard and small odds and ends of wall paper. The cardboard should be rather heavy weight and should be cut in five pieces—four sides and a bottom.

The basket should measure about fourteen inches from the base to the highest point, about ten inches across the greatest width and seven inches at the base. It will be found advantageous to paste the paper on the cardboard before cutting the shape; then use a pair of very sharp scissors to preserve a neat, clean edge.

A good smooth paste (not mucilage) should be used to prevent "blisters" and an uneven surface. The inside of the basket should be lined with a plain color to match the general color scheme of the room for which it is intended, then flowered or striped wall paper in either colonial or art nouveau designs should be applied smothly to the outside.

Ribbons in plain or fancy design are slipped through small holes in the sides of the cardboard, and you have a receptacle for waste paper rivaling the expensive cretonne article now on the market. Because of the almost unlimited variety in wall papers one can always match a room in color and be sure of a unique and tasteful touch.

A DRESSMAKING HINT.

How to Make a Circular Skirt Hang Well.

If you make your own clothes, don't you have trouble in getting circular skirts to hang well? Most people do, and the secret of a well hung skirt is something the professional dressmaker does not often see fit to impart to the novice in the art. But here it is nevertheless:

If you will always remember to sag or have sagged your circular skirts before the lower edge is finished, your troubles will be over, and the skirt will be an even length all round. To do this work of sagging, first finish your skirt and sew it on to the belt, of course leaving it unhemmed at the bottom. Now put it over a skirt hanger and hang in some place out of the way. Now you must weigh both sides of the skirt, or, in other words, you want to stretch the fullness out of the circular part. Let these weights stay fastened to the skirt for twenty-four hours or longer if you have the time to spare. When the weights are removed, cut the skirt the desired length and finish the bottom.

What does one use for weights?

The ingenious woman has no certain things. She utilizes what is handiest. Small iron rods are the best things to use, but a row of heavy glass bottles also produces the result wanted. So use what is nearest your hand, but be sure to have weights sufficient for the thickness of your material and give it time to sag.

A skirt thus treated will rarely, if ever, cause the wearer any further trouble.

Their Business In Life.

Does a young wife know her power? Does a young husband remember that he represents everything to her and that her eyes ever turn toward him? And do both realize that in choosing each other they have voluntarily shut out forever any chance of happiness from any other quarter? They must not let things slide; they must make each other happy. It is the business of their life. The responsibility of it is enormous, the privileges of it incalculable.

A Useful Kitchen Apron.

An apron of white marble oilcloth worn while washing clothes or dishes saves the wear of dresses a great deal. The water cannot get through, and it does not need any scrubbing. Just a quick wipe with a cloth, and it is clean and ready for the next time it is required.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A half hour well spent upon the complexion at night is worth two in the morning.

A good cure for brittle nails is to soak them daily in sweet oil warmed to blood heat.

A tablespoonful of olive oil taken each day will aid the digestion and ease liver trouble.

The hair should be brushed thoroughly for about fifteen minutes every night before retiring.

Honey is very nutritious and should be on the bill of fare of every person who wants to gain flesh.

Witch hazel is excellent for the eyes, but one should be sure the liquid is absolutely pure before using.

Cold water closes the pores of the skin and makes it firm. A little vinegar or cologne added to the water also assists in hardening.

If you have dark hair and it seems to be coming out, cut off a slice of lemon and rub it into your scalp. It will stop that trouble promptly.

His wife, and peeled them well.
He then peeled off his jacket and Began to peal the bell.

Why They Were Generous

By M. MONROE JAMES.

Copyright, 1903, by American Press Association.

In 19— I was invited to make a Memorial day address in my native town of Eastport. When the exercises were over I wandered among the tombs, watching the friends who were bestowing fragrant tokens of remembrance over the ashes of their dead.

I was standing beside a grave which was literally covered with choice flowers when my friend C. joined me.

"Those people are generous," I said, pointing to the flower strewn grave and indicating a gentleman and lady who had just left it.

"They have reason to be," he answered.

That evening he told me the story:

For a time it was difficult to guess which of the rivals for the hand of Cora Dixon would carry off the prize, for she seemed equally gracious to Fred Nevius and Geoffrey Burns.

There was one intensely interested spectator, who, had the question been left for her decision, would have settled it easily. To Cora's mother money was the key to all things desirable, and as Burns had an abundance of the commodity, while Nevius was but indifferently provided, she wondered at her daughter's indecision.

But Cora was unlike her mother, and when the supreme test came to her she did not let the superior financial advantages of one lover outweigh the fact that her heart had gone into the keeping of the other.

Scarcely had the story of Fred's good fortune become known when the town was startled by strange news. The lover had forged his employer's name and had fled.

While the matter was being discussed elsewhere Cora was reading with tear wet eyes and agony of soul a letter from her accused lover:

Dear Cora—When you get this I shall be far away, where I do not know. Fate is against me; but, as there is a God in heaven, I did not do the thing they charge against me. I shall love you always, but of course you are free from any promise to me. Unless I can clear my name I shall never return. I trust you will believe me, though I suspect the world will not. God bless you. Goodby! Your unhappy FRED.

The story was this: A check presumably drawn by Samuel Blake, his uncle and employer, was presented by the young man at the bank and cashed. Mr. Blake declared the check a forgery. Fred said it was received in a letter which stated it was a gift. Unfortunately the letter could not be produced. With an indignant denial he paid back the money and demanded to know if his uncle intended to prosecute. Receiving a negative reply, he left the store and, packing his belongings, left town without notifying any one of his destination.

As Cora faced the situation she saw that, as he had said, his explanation would not be accepted. She was worldly wise enough to know that, notwithstanding the maxim of the law to the contrary, public opinion is apt to adjudge an accused man guilty unless he can show his innocence. Her cheeks tingled as she thought of the covert sneers about that gift. Oh, if he had only kept that letter!

But what did it all matter? She knew he was innocent. Whatever the world might say, that was her verdict.

This verdict she announced with quiet emphasis whenever the matter came to her attention, but she sadly saw that few stood with her; hence it did her a world of good to receive a note from Geoffrey Burns announcing his faith in her friend.

As time wore on Cora, bearing the double burden of her own desolation and her lover's shame, saw, with an added pang, how quickly the world forgets. Fred Nevius had been the idol of the social circle in which they had moved. Now he was as one who had never been.

So went a year. Then came an event which broke somewhat the dreary tenor of her life. David Nelson, a fellow employee, on his dying bed made a statement which wiped the blot from Fred's name. He said he sent the letter and check as an April fool jest, expecting to tell Fred of it before he could present it at the bank. When he saw it was likely to get him into trouble he became alarmed and held his peace.

Shortly after this disclosure Burns called on Cora and congratulated her on the clearing of her lover's name.

"I cannot thank you enough for your loyalty to Fred," she said gratefully.

"He was my friend, too," he answered.

Then he told her of having sent Nelson's confession to the papers of the large cities with the hope that the innocent man might see it.

Somehow after this it seemed the most natural thing for Burns to call now and then. So went another year.

Meanwhile a report came to Eastport that Nevius was dead. When Burns next called Cora questioned him about it.

"Yes, I have heard it," he answered evasively.

"Do you know what foundation it has?"

"There does not seem to be much that can be called foundation."

"Then you don't think it is true?"

He hesitated, dreading to give her the direct answer, which must come now.

"You don't think it is true?" she asked again.

"I fear it is," he said at last. Then he told her of a railroad wreck in a western state in which a young man answering Fred's description had been killed. On his linen they found the word Nevius. He told her also that he and Mr. Blake had put personals in the city papers all over the country, making inquiry for the missing man, but months had gone by and they had heard nothing.

"My heart says no," she replied only when he had finished.

Love cannot remain hidden. When Cora chose Fred Nevius, Burns had put his love away. But now, believing his rival dead, it had come back in greater volume. And so, though she ever put him aside, he sued persistently for her hand.

One day she told him if he would put like inquiries for Nevius in the papers again and in six months no tidings came she would give him an answer.

When the time was past and he faiteringly reminded her of it she said: "Mr. Burns, you have been a true friend to me when such were very few. I respect you, honor you, but the love which you deserve is not mine to give. Living or dead, Fred Nevius still has my heart."

"I will be content if you will but say yes," he urged.

And thus the compact was made.

Now that it was settled Burns begged for an early marriage, and, being abetted by Mrs. Dixon, Cora consented. Listlessly she did it as if it mattered not to her, as indeed it did not.

So in the days after Burns noted the same apathetic agreement with every suggestion from her mother or himself. It cut him to the heart, for, though counting it earth's choicest blessing to have her by his side on any terms, he could not escape the conviction that he was requiring too great a sacrifice of her.

One day when she was more than usually distrait he offered to release her. She told him that, while she could not give him what his truth and devotion deserved, she would be true to him if such was his desire.

"It is my heart's dearest wish," he answered fervently. "And love like mine must have its reward by and by. I will be patient."

Deeply touched, even more by his tone than the words, she answered gently, "Geoffrey, I wish I might do more, but all that I can give shall be yours."

After this for his sake she strove to bring back some of her old time cheerfulness. And when she succeeded, as in part she sometimes did, his happy face paid her for the struggle. But when alone in her room, where she could be herself, her sore heart cried out against the fate which forced this hollow life upon her.

On the evening of the day before that set for her wedding she was sitting in a rustic chair on the lawn. Wrapped in the contemplation of her strange position, she did not know that a man was approaching her until he had called her name. As she turned the face of Fred Nevius, full of a hungry longing, met hers.

With a little cry of gladness she sprang up, and the next moment his arms were about her. How long they remained thus they could not have told, when they saw the grave eyes of Geoffrey Burns, not in anger, but full of unutterable sadness, resting on them.

Tearing herself from Nevius' clasp, Cora went to Burns and put her hand upon his arm.

"Forgive me, Geoffrey," she said humbly. "Forgive me. I forgot." Then, turning to Fred, she added, "Tomorrow night I am to be his wife."

Nevius recoiled as if she had struck him and, like one dazed, stood, with a dumb misery on his ashen face, looking from one to the other. At last he broke the painful silence.

"Great God," he cried passionately, "did ever a man have such bitter fate? On a scrap of paper a few days ago I saw an account of the cruel jest which ruined my life. I hurried home, hoping to find what evil fortune had snatched from me. I thought I had, but, oh, my God"— His words ended with a wail of despair, and, turning, he staggered away like one who had lost all hope.

Burns, watching them, saw that while Cora still kept her hand upon his arm her eyes followed the retreating form, and all her heart went with them.

* * * * * * * *

Impatiently the guests, sitting in Mrs. Dixon's parlor, waited the coming of the bridal party. The groom had been with Cora fully half an hour, and the clock had announced the hour for the ceremony more than that long ago.

Presently it was whispered they were coming. The organist made ready, touching the initial chords. The clergyman took his place. All eyes turned on the door saw Geoffrey Burns come in alone.

The astonishment of the assembled company found expression in one smothered murmur. Then all grew silent as the chamber of death as they saw Burns was about to speak.

With a mighty effort to be calm, he began: "Friends, there will be no wedding tonight. I had thought that this hour would crown my life with the fulfillment of its fondest hope, but God wills otherwise. My love for Cora Dixon has not abated one jot, and she stands ready to make good her promise to be my wife. But he whom God hath joined to her is now returned, and, though it leaves my life a barren waste, I have released her from her vow."

Shortly after Fred and Cora were quietly married. And the first news they had of the noble man whose sacrifice had made their union possible was that he had been killed in Cuba, and in his will he had left his property to Cora.

American Humor.

American humor exists, if distinguishes the national character, it permeates all our affairs. It is not of aboriginal descent. It was not brought from England or Holland by the fathers. Its saving grace was lacking under Puritan rule. The humor of Diedrich Knickerbocker is all the more taking because of the absence of all sense of humor in the subjects of his chronicle. If our humor came over from Erin in the first rush of immigration it was quickly adapted to its new environment. It was modified and changed by new circumstances and conditions, geographical, ethnological, atmospheric. Wherever it came from it is a boon which saves us from a lot of needless trouble and worry.

Why We're Ahead.

A curious explanation of the reason why "Canada has but about 7,000,000 people against America's 80,000,000" is given in a review of the world's production of coal and iron. Canada produces but 9,000,000 tons of coal against 370,000,000 tons produced by the United States, and that is why, as long as the coal age lasts, "Canada is not likely to grow to anything like the dimensions of her southern neighbor." This is an English view, and it is not open to the charge of bias.—Boston Globe.

A Doubtful Future.

"Biggins has developed a habit of saying rude and sarcastic things."

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "I am waiting to see whether he is going to be recognized as a great bore or a social lion."

Not Modesty.

Blox—Bimberly is exceedingly modest, isn't he? Knox—I hadn't noticed it. Blox—Well, he never talks about himself. Knox—Oh, that isn't modesty. It's discretion.

A CHINESE STORY.

The Way a Mandarin's Wise Wife Decided a Baby Case.

Two women came before a mandarin in China, each of them protesting that she was the mother of a little child they had brought with them. They were so eager and so positive that the mandarin was sorely puzzled. He retired to consult with his wife, who was a wise and clever woman, whose opinion was held in great repute in the neighborhood. She requested five minutes in which to deliberate. At the end of that time she spoke, "Let the servants catch me a large fish in the river, and let it be brought here alive." This was done. "Bring me now the infant," she said, "but leave the two women in the outer chamber." This was done too. Then the mandarin's wife caused the baby to be undressed and its clothes to be put on the fish. "Carry the creature outside now and throw it into the river in the sight of the two women." The servant obeyed her orders, flinging the fish into the water, where it rolled about and struggled, disgusted no doubt by the wrappings in which it was swaddled. Without a moment's pause one of the women threw herself into the river with a shriek. She must save her drowning child. "Without doubt she is the true mother," she declared, and the mandarin's wife commanded that she should be rescued and the child given to her. And the mandarin nodded his head and thought his wife the wisest woman in the Flowery Kingdom. Meanwhile the false woman crept away. She was found out in her imposture, and the mandarin's wife forgot all about her in the occupation of donning the little baby in the best silk she could find in her wardrobe.—Bystander.

White and Red Wines.

White and red wines owe their difference to the fact that, while the former is permitted to ferment without the grape skirts, these are allowed to remain in the case of the latter. The color of the grapes makes no difference whatever to the color of the wine which they produce, for the juice of all grapes is as nearly as possible colorless. For instance, the grape which yields champagne is almost black in outward appearance.

Over the Telephone.

"Is this Dr. Smith?"

"Yes."

"Well, this is Mrs. Jones. I wish you would come over as soon as convenient. My cuckoo clock has a little throat trouble."

His Mentor.

From the time a boy sits under a street corner electric light playing with toads until he is blind and toothless he has to account to some woman why he didn't come home earlier.

Not Like His Parent.

"Do you think Mr. Skinnum's baby will take after its father?"

"Not at all. The other day they persuaded it to cough up a nickel it had swallowed."—Exchange.

Expert Criticism.

"I don't like that judge," said the smooth crook; "his speech is so jerky."

"I would say," remarked the Boston burglar, "that, though they are unrhetorical, I rather like his short sentences."

MAJORITY IS TWO.

Premier Hassard Has Safe Lead in Prince Edward Island.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Nov. 20.—The election returns stand as at first reported, sixteen Liberals, and fourteen Conservatives.

All Mr. Matheson's fighting lieutenants in the late House—Morson, Prowse, McKinnon and others—are re-elected.

On the other hand the Government has lost three of its nine members by defeat: Reid, commissioner of agriculture; McNutt and Clark, members without portfolios. The defeat of Captain Jos. Reid was due to local causes. He was one of Premier Hassard's best debaters and one of his most influential supporters.

John Richards, brother of James Richards, Liberal M.P., will probably be made commissioner of agriculture, vice Capt. Reid, defeated. He holds a safe seat.

Local Option Fights.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—There will be local option campaigns in 23 places in Ontario, at least, on Jan. 7, of which three are places which have before defeated it; 31 where repeal is before the electors, and 59 new contests. There are 216 bars affected in the present "open" municipalities, while where repeal is being sought there are 103.

Woodstock, Owen Sound, Picton, Tillsonburg, Ingersoll and Whitby are in the fray.

In addition, there is the license reduction campaign in Toronto, and possibly one in St. Catharines.

Wheat For Mexico.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—There is a provision, shortage in Mexico, and the Canadian commissioner there, Mr. Donly, writes that the Government of that country proposes to suspend the customs duty on wheat until June next.

It is thought this will provide a market for Canadian wheat, as the duty is 66 cents per hundred pounds. Canadians can ship by way of either Vancouver or St. John, as there is direct steamship service on both the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards.

Thinks Morris Will Win.

Halifax, Nov. 20.—H. Moulton, who was elected as a supporter of Sir Edward Morris for Burego District, Newfoundland, is now in Halifax. He believes that Sir Edward Morris will soon be Prime Minister of Newfoundland. Judge Seymour, who was defeated by one vote in Harbor Grace, he thinks, will be elected on a recount. This would make the parties standing 19 supporters of Sir Edward Morris and 17 for Sir Robert Bond.

Must Pay Full Duty Now.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—An aftercap of the general election is the demand made upon Contractor Mayes of St. John, N.B., for duty on the famous dredge Beaver, which was imported in bond from the United States to do work in St. John harbor. The custom officials request the full duty on the ground that the dredge was not sent out of Canada within the specified time.

Killed at Port Elgin.

Port Elgin, Nov. 20.—Edward Williams lost his life in the Dominion Pressed Steel Works yesterday morning while he and other helpers were moving a riveting machine. It overbalanced and struck a pinch bar, which hit Mr. Williams on the right side and wrist, causing immediate death. Mr. Williams came here from Pittsburg as welder.

Alleged Swindler Caught.

St. Catharines, Nov. 20.—William Fairwell, believed to be the man for whom the police of Lincoln and Welland Counties have been searching, was arrested Wednesday night at Niagara, in an attempt to swindle the Niagara Electrical Co., and was yesterday afternoon committed for trial.

Women Gets Votes.

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 20.—The Victoria Legislative Council has passed the bill empowering women to vote at state elections. This bill previously has been rejected several times. The women throughout Australia have now won the right of suffrage in both Commonwealth and state elections.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs Take an Upturn at Buffalo Market.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—London cables for cattle are steady at 11¾c to 12c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c to 11½c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—The railways again report another heavy run of live stock of 117 carloads for Thursday, consisting of 1657 cattle, 2530 hogs, 1914 sheep and lambs, and 98 calves.

Exporters.

None were offered and none were wanted, owing to there being no shipping space.

Butchers.

We heard of 14 out of 1657 cattle that sold over $4.85 and up to $5 per cwt., none that we could learn, had gone over $5 and the 14 we heard of were good enough for any market. The best loads sold from $4 to $4.87½, and few in comparison brought these figures; medium butchers', $3.75 to $4; common, $3.50 to $3.60; cows, $2.50 to $3.75; canners, $1 to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report the heaviest run of stockers and feeders this fall, but to offset this the outside demand for anything with quality was the best in some time, which kept prices of this kind pretty well up to past week's quotations. The depreciation in values was more noticeable in the common and medium classes, altho there were many buyers for this kind. There are a few cattle left over, but the market was remarkably well cleared up, considering the enormous run.

The Messrs. Murby bought 500 this week at following quotations: Best feeders, 900 to 1100 lbs. each, at $3.65 to $4 per cwt.; best feeders, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.35 to $3.75; stockers, 650 to 700 lbs. each, at $2.90 to $3.15; common and medium stockers, 500 to 600 lbs. each, at $2.75 to $2.90.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers during the week were liberal. The market continues strong for the good to choice classes, at prices ranging from $45 to $65 each, with an odd one or two reaching $70 and $71. On the other hand common light cows were hard to dispose of at $25 to $35 each.

Veal Calves.

Few good calves are being offered. Prices were quoted at $8 to $8.25 with an odd calf at $8.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Export sheep are in demand. Ewes sold at $3.25 to $3.50; rams, $2 to $2.50; lambs, $4 to $4.60 per cwt.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris reported prices unchanged at $6.25 for selects, fed and watered, at the market, and $6 for lights. Prospects are for lower prices.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 19.—Cattle—Receipts, 200 head, steady; prime steers, $5.35 to $5.50.

Veals—Receipts, 400 head; dull and steady.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 11,000 head; dull and 25c lower; lambs, $4 to $5.75; a few $6.00; yearlings, $4 to $4.40; wethers, $4 to $4.25; sheep, mixed, $1 to $4.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Beeves—Receipts, 2254; no trading, feeling steady.

Calves—Receipts, 421. Market dull and unchanged; veals, $5 to $8.75; a few at $9; fed calves, $5 to $5.50. Culls to prime western calves, at $4.50 to $5.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 7000; sheep, slow but steady; lambs, dull and weak to 25c lower; sheep, $2.50 to $4; culls, $1.50 to $2; lambs, $4 to $5; culls, $3.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 3220; no sales; feeling steady.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Cattle—Receipts, 2000; market steady to strong; steers, $4.60 to $7.75; cows, $3 to $5.35; heifers, $3.50 to $4.60; bulls, $2.75 to $4.50; calves, $3 to $7.50; stockers and feeders, $2.50 to $4.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 30,000; market strong; choice heavy shipping, $5.90 to $6.05; butchers', $5.85 to $6; light mixed, $5.60 to $5.85; packing, $5.60 to $5.85; pigs, $4.75 to $5.50; bulk of sales, $5.65 to $5.85.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 20,000; market weak to 25c lower; sheep, $3 to $5; lambs, $4.75 to $6.90; yearlings, $4.40 to $5.25.

VICE IS WIDESPREAD.

Speaker at Hamilton Citizen's League Meeting Charges Police.

Hamilton, Nov. 20.—Sensational charges were made at the public meeting of the Citizens' League last night against the police, the police commissioners and license commissioners for the alleged tax administration of the law in this city with regard to disorderly houses, gambling and the liquor business.

Peter Bertram went so far as to say that the police commissioners connived at the existence of many immoral places, and stated that the police magistrate had admitted that they were tolerated. He doubted very much the right of a police commission to tolerate such places, and thought that neither the police nor the commissioners should allow their eyes to be closed to these abuses.

Resolutions were passed condemning the non-enforcement of the law in the matter of gambling, illegal liquor selling and immorality.

RAIDERS GO TO PRISON.

Fourteen Get Heavy Sentences For Lawlessness In Montana.

Great Falls, Mont., Nov. 20.—Fourteen men charged with murder in Valley County pleaded guilty to manslaughter and were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment.

The crime was an attack upon the cabin of John Hayes and his family, which resulted in the death of Hayes and his daughter. Hayes had "jumped" a claim which Walter Long had taken up. The settlers went to the cabin at midnight, shot through it and attempted to set fire to it.

The first trial was that of Walter Long. It was long and expensive and resulted in his conviction to 35 years' imprisonement. His brother Milo was sentenced to 13 years in prison. Two turned state's evidence and got off with a jail sentence.

The rest were given sentences of from six months to one year and nine months.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CANADIAN CLUB OF PETERBOROUGH

MR. DANIEL O'CONNELL, Elected President of the Canadian Club

ON A SERIOUS CHARGE

Havelock Man Arrested---Charged With Seduction Under Promise of Marriage—Case to be Heard Next Week.

ALLOWED OUT ON BAIL OF TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS

A Havelock youth named Charles Bowen, has been arrested on a charge of seducing a young Havelock girl under promise of marriage. He was brought to Peterborough yesterday by Constable Brill, and appeared before County Magistrate Edmison. He was given bail for $2,000, including two sureties of $500 and $1,000 by himself. Mr. Geo. Sherry, of Norwood, acting for the defence, did not object. The case will come up again at Havelock next Thursday for a preliminary hearing. The case will then stand over until the following Tuesday.

A LUMBERING SCENE IN LOCAL HARDWARE WINDOW

The window of the Kingan Hardware Company's store is particularly attractive this week. It illustrates a lumbering scene in the forest and transports the imagination of the onlooker to the regions of the primeval forest. In one corner is the log cabin with a window shewing a lantern hanging on the wall. Axes, peevees, cross-cut saws, logs, chips, leaves, etc., constitute a prominent part of the window. An evergreen tree with a young bear half concealed beneath it also figure in the dressing scheme. The work was accomplished by Messrs. Hanwell and Alex Letellier.

CANADIAN CLUB HOLDS ITS ANNUAL MEETING IN COUNCIL CHAMBER

MR. D. HUGHES CHARLES, One of the new Committee of the Canadian Club.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CANADIAN CLUB AUGURS FAVOURABLY FOR A MOST HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL SEASON FOR THE ORGANIZATION

New Officers Were Elected Last Night---Mr. D. O'Connel President for the Year---Rev. Canon Davidson's Most Interesting Address Upon Present Conditions in England, as Observed in His Recent Trip, Was Listened to With Appreciative Attention by the Members.

Advocated A Spirit Of Canadian Nationality Among People

The enthusiasm which pervaded the annual meeting of the Canadian Club held last evening in the council chambers was a most encouraging promise of a most successful season for this flourishing organization. There was a large and representative attendance and the members seemed to enter into the spirit of the occasion with a zest that if continued with promises great things for the Club during the next few months. Outside of the election of officers there was no business before the meeting and after the Nominating Committee's report had been adopted, the remainder of the evening was taken up with a most interesting and instructive address from Rev. Canon Davidson on conditions in England as he had observed them on his recent trip to the Old Land in connection with the great Pan Anglican conference.

President F. D. Kerr was in the chair and the first business was the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by the secretary, H. R. H. Kenner.

The new Officers

The Nominating Committee then brought in its reports through Mr. Kenner, which was unanimously adopted. As a result the officers of the Club for the ensuing year will be as follows:

President—D. O'Connell.
First Vice-Pres.—H. R. H. Kenner,
Second Vice-Pres.—Dr. Cameron.
Secretary-Treasurer—E. L. Goodwill.

Committee—J. H. Larmonth, A. H. Stratton, Rev. H. J. Keith, T. F. Matthews, S. R. Armstrong, J. E. Hodgson, H. LeBrun, D. Hughes-Charles.

Mr. Kerr in retiring from the president's chair remarked that although there were a limited number of meetings, yet the lectures were of such a nature that the members could feel that they might play an important part in the life of Peterborough. He thanked the officers and members of the Club for the support they had given him during the year. In conclusion Mr. Kerr expressed the opinion that the Club might be a great power for good in the city and should be supported by young and old.

Mr. O'Connell on taking the chair was greeted with a round of applause. In a brief speech he thanked the Club for the honour it had conferred upon him in making him its presiding officer for the year. He paid a tribute to Mr. Kerr for the able manner in which that gentleman had looked after the affairs of the Club during the past year. It had been, it might be said an experiment, and Mr. Kerr was deserving of great credit for the work he had done. Speaking of the coming year, the new president promised that he would use his best efforts to make the Club a success.

Rev. Canon Davidson was then called upon to address the Club and was greeted with warm applause. His address was a scholarly and instructive one, containing much about the political conditions in England that were new to his audience who followed his remarks with the most appreciative attention.

Commencing by referring to the Pan Anglican conference which was the raison d'etre of his being in England he remarked that the congress was a notable one in the history of the Anglican Church, and had the effect of opening the doors of England to the members of the conference, so that for six weeks he had an opportunity of studying the social conditions in England.

The general condition was evidently a state of very rapid change. The presence of the Labour and Radical members at the present Parliament, was shown in the old age pension bill and the licensing bill, and the speaker explained the effect of the latter measure which it was thought would overthrow the Government.

Spread of Socialism

Socialism was sweeping over northern England and a large part of centre England as a flood, and was playing a most important part in politics. It was no wonder when the poverty on all sides was seen and the fact that the greater part of the land was in the hands of an infinitesimal portion of the population was considered. The speaker quoted from a speech which he had heard delivered by Rev. R. J. Campbell, in which a strong plea was made for Socialism, and in which the conditions existing at that time in England were pointed out.

Susceptible Voters

One reason for the change politic-

GREAT ADVANCE IN TRADE SHOWN BY RETURNS RECEIVED AT OTTAWA; OTHER LATE NEWS FROM THE CAPITAL

SIR WILFRID LAURIER, Prime Minister, 67 years old to-day

Splendid Showing of the Trade Returns for October—$4,000,000 Increase in Agricultural Exports as Compared With Same Month Last Year.

POLITICAL DULLNESS

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—The absence of the majority of the Ministers from the Capital, some abroad on business and others getting needed recuperation after the arduous work of the election campaign, and in preparation for the equally arduous labour of the aggravating session, causes a dearth of political news.

Trade returns for October show an increase of $2,602,074 in exports of domestic products and a decrease of $6,221,515 in imports of merchandise entered for consumption, as compared with October of last year. The total value of domestic exports for the month was $26,299,212, as compared with $23,697,148 for the same month last year. Exports of agricultural products increased by about four millions, while exports of the mine and of animals and their products each fell off about one million. Total imports, exclusive of coin and bullion, were $26,262,985, as compared with $31,484,500 for October, 1907.

For the first seven months of the present fiscal year the imports entered for home consumption totalled $162,908,302, a decrease of $58,726,936, as compared with the same period of 1907. During the seven months coin and bullion were imported to the value of $7,212,812, as compared with $1,396,375 last year. Exports of domestic products for the seven months totalled $136,408,283, a decrease of $12,962,525. The total trade for the seven months was $318,405,995, a decrease of $73,216,434.

STORM WINDOW FALLS WITH LOUD CRASH TO WALK

While passing the Snowden House yesterday evening, a pedestrian was almost "scared out of a year's growth," so he informed the Examiner. Of course this was not exactly Gospel as he was past the age when he might add to his stature, but no doubt he was scared. A workman was engaged putting on a storm window in an upper storey. By accident the window fell to the sidewalk and the resulting noise produced the scare.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR SECOND YEAR OF THE CANADIAN CLUB

REV. H. J. KEITH, A Member of the Canadian Club Committee.

CADETS WIN PRAISE

Mr. Kenner, Principal of Collegiate Institute, Receives Excellent Report From the Officer Who Conducted Recent Inspection.

RECOMMENDS USE OF THE SUB-TARGET GUN

That the Collegiate Institute Cadets made a fine showing at their recent inspection is shown by the splendid report which Col. Hemming, who inspected the corps, made at headquarters. The principal, Mr. Kenner, has received a communication from Lieut.-Col. Strange, which should be very gratifying to the cadets and to their instructor, Lieut. J. E. Hodgson, of the 57th Regiment. The letter is as follows:

Kingston, Nov. 17th, 1908.

To the Principal, Peterborough Collegiate Institute, Peterborough, Ont.

Annual Inspection Report, 1908, No. 13 Cadet Corps, Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

Sir,—I am directed by the O. C. Eastern Ontario to enclose herewith for your information, copy of the inspecting officer's report upon his inspection for 1908, of the Cadet Corps marginally noted.

The excellent report submitted upon this corps has given much satisfaction to the Militia Council, and you will please convey to the officer commanding the corps the commendation of the Hon. the Minister and members of the Militia Council upon the good showing made at the inspection in question.

It is particularly gratifying to observe the ability shown by the company officers in handling their companies, as also the steadiness and silence of all ranks.

You will specially convey thanks to Lieut. J. E. Hodgson, 57th Regiment, for his good work as instructor.

Has this unit got a Sub-Target Gun? If not, it is desired that one should be provided for this school, in view of their efficient condition and excellent inspection.

I am,
Your obedient servant,
F. STRANGE,
Lieut-Colonel S.O.O., M.D., No. 3, then C.S.O., E.O., absent on duty.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CANADIAN CLUB WAS HELD LAST NIGHT

MR. E. L. GOODWILL, The Secretary of the Club.

MR. SAM CLEGG'S HUNTING PARTY GOT TWENTY-TWO DEER, A MOOSE WEIGHING 900 POUNDS AND A BIG BEAR

Twenty-two deer or two apiece, was the number secured by the party of hunters from Kinmount, of whom Mr. Sam Clegg was a member. They were eleven all told, and went back to Hawk Lake, twenty miles north of Kinmount. They had no trouble in getting the prescribed number. One of the Dettman boys got a bear weighing 375 lbs., and a big moose that tipped the scales at 900 lbs. The latter was shot at Paint Lake, and had to be brought "en bloc" seven miles to camp. Two canoes were tied together and the huge carcass placed across them. Mr. Dettman surmounted the whole and slowly paddled down the lake with this strange flotilla. It was a magnificent specimen of its family as was the bear.

Brother And Sister In One Family Die Of Same Disease

The young friends in Peterborough of Master Chester Marks, aged 17 years, who until last June was a resident here, will regret very much to hear of his early death in Collingwood yesterday at noon. He is a son of Mr. Wm. J Marks, who with his wife and family moved away in June. Since that time two of the family have died—a daughter having passed away only a short time ago.

The death of the youth was due to typhoid fever—the same cause as that of his sister. He was well known to many of the younger generation of Peterborough and particularly to those who went to the West Ward School, which he attended while here. He was also a member of the George street Methodist Church Sunday School. Besides his parents he is survived by a brother, Earl, and one sister. His body will be brought to Peterborough to-morrow night on the nine o'clock G. T. R. train and the funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of his uncle, Mr. Albert Duncan, 371 Bethune street, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Mr. Armstrong Had To Talk On His Fingers In Police Court Case To-day

A case of unusual interest was heard in the police court to-day, which served to demonstrate the versatility of City Clerk Armstrong, who was subbing for Magistrate Dumble in the latter's absence. The usual big crowd of court attendants, however, found the case rather unsatisfactory, inasmuch as they were unable even to get an inkling of what was going on.

Two deaf mutes, [illegible] and Alexander Carr, were charged with stealing some lumber from Baptie Bros. and from Finnie and Gordon, two contracting firms. Fortunately Mr. Armstrong was master of the situation and astonished the court by commencing a rapid conversation on his fingers, which elicited the information that the twain were not guilty.

Chief Rossel was not ready to go on with the case and it was enlarged until Monday next. Rourke was allowed to go on his promising to be present then, but his companion who is not so well known, having lived in Peterborough only six weeks, will be held.

Several other cases were allowed to stand over until Monday. In one four youths were charged with being disorderly, and in another a married man was charged with having used threats against his wife to such an extent that she asks that he be bound over to keep the peace.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding, or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50 cents.

"PAR VALUES" TO BE THE SUBJECT OF THE ADDRESS

The return to Peterborough on Nov. 27th, of Mr. R. A. Waite, the well known Syracuse athlete, is creating considerable interest among the boys of the Y.M.C.A., as well as others. Mr. Waite will give an address on "Par Values" in the Opera House on Sunday, Nov. 29th at 4.15 and something unique is anticipated. He was here in connection with the recent Boys' Conference at the Y.M.C.A. and his return will be welcomed.

MEMBERS OF THE REGIMENT GET EFFICIENCY PAY

There was a crowd at the Royal Bank yesterday evening, but not the kind that brings consternation with it. The members of the 57th Regiment who were entitled were receiving their efficiency pay which was deposited there, and hence the assembling of the large crowd.

Rail Spreads Near Diamond—Big Mogul C. P. R. Engine Blocks Line

"It never rains but it pours" is an old and worn-out saying that may be used in connection with the mishaps on the railways in this locality during the past week. The C.P.R. and G.T.R. have had their shares of the accidents and this morning the former line was blocked near the diamond by a rail spreading. The big mogul engine ran along the ties for a short distance before being stopped, cutting up the ties, and digging its heavy wheels into the earth. It occurred between ten and eleven o'clock at Townsend street, and blocked the express from Toronto nearly two hours. It passed through shortly after one o'clock, when the engine was back on the rails again after rapid work on the part of the section men. The auxiliary from Havelock arrived too late to assist in the operations.

The Anniversary Services At The Springville Church

Anniversary services marking the close of the second year of Rev. Dr. Marsh's pastorate, will be held in the Springville Presbyterian church on Sunday morning and evening. Rev. A. K. McLeod, M.A., of Brighton, Ont., will be the special preacher and special thankofferings will be given. Miss Heatlie, recently of Kingston, will be the soloist.

During the past two years since Rev. Dr. Marsh has been at Springville, the congregation has been tripled, the church property has been improved, new property has been acquired, and the general standing of the church is in splendid condition.

On Monday evening a concert will be held including selections on the bagpipes by Mr. McLeod, the Peterborough Quartette led by Mr. John Crane, the Kennedy trio, Miss Heatlie, soloist; Dr. Heatlie, violinist, and Mr. J. John, Elocutionist.

Oddfellows' Representative Goes To Quebec Province

Mr. J. A. Tully, travelling representative of the Oddfellows' Relief Association, left the city last night for the province of Quebec, where he intends remaining for about a month, working in the interests of the Grand Lodge of that province. During his absence he will, in his official capacity, visit all the I.O.O.F. lodges in the province and report to the Grand Master as to their progress. He also intends being present at several institutions of new lodges during the month.

ROBINS ARE STILL HERE---IS SIGN OF MILD WINTER

Evidences are not lacking that point to a mild winter or at least a continuation of fine weather before the cold blasts finally arrive. Among those that have been noticed of late are several robins that frequent the orchard to the rear of Mr. John Crane's residence on Brock street. They have remained behind their fellows which by this time have reached a warmer clime there to pass the winte before returning again in the spring. Some old residents claim that this is a sign of a mild winter.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS.

To-day is the sixty-seventh birthday of Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Prime Minister of Canada, G.C.M.G., K.C., LL.D., and President of the King's Privy Council. Sir Wilfrid was born at St. Lin, Quebec, on Nov. 20th, 1841. He is consequently only twelve days the junior of His Majesty King Edward. At 30 years of age, in 1871, he was elected to the Legislative Assembly of Quebec. He entered the House of Commons in 1874 and became in 1877 Minister of Inland Revenue in the Government of the late Alex. Mackenzie. He was chosen leader of the Liberal party in 1887, and became Prime Minister of Canada in 1896. He represented Canada at the Queen's Diamond Jubilee, received the honour of knighthood, and was otherwise distinguished, one special honour being accorded him, first place in the great Jubilee State procession of all colonial dignitaries. How he has governed Canada with unexampled success since 1896, the country and its wonderful progress bear witness. His triumphant return as head of the nation in October last, guarantees the country another term of good and progressive administration, if his life and health are spared, which is the wish and prayer of every loyal Canadian. The Examiner joins with all Canadians in extending congratulations to Canada's greatest son on the occasion of his sixty-seventh birthday. Many happy returns.

RECIPROCITY.

The United States is coquetting with Canada in regard to the resumption of enlarged trade relations between the two countries, meaning really reciprocity of trade. Influential public journals across the border are outspoken on the subject of the desirability of better trade intercourse. The Journal of Commerce, New York, expresses regret that the United States has at different times too obstinately rejected Canadian propositions, looking to the creation of a more amicable commercial conditions, and an enlarged trade between this country and the United States. This attitude on the part of our neighbours has created an independent attitude on the part of Canadians in this matter. In 1899 the commercial relations of Canada and the United States were the subject of prolonged discussions at Quebec and Washington, during the sittings of the International Conference. There was failure to come to an agreement, chiefly owing to the attitude of the United States. This led Sir Wilfrid Laurier to take the position, which he announced on his return to Canada, that this country would not take any further steps in the direction of improved trade relations and that if there were any overtures made they must proceed from the United States. The people of Canada endorsed this manly, independent and dignified stand of the Prime Minister, and that attitude had its results. We cultivated to a larger degree than ever the British market with which we have established such satisfactory relations that trade with the United States has assumed less importance—we have developed on trade lines independently of our neighbours. There is no doubt, however, that ameliorated commercial arrangements with the United States would be of mutual benefit, but the self-respect, the dignity of Canada will not permit us, after the experience of the past to take the first step. Any action taken must proceed from the United States. They have in one way forced our trade into a new line, a line which suits us well, and it appears that our merchants and business men would not relish the idea of humiliating the country by renewing proposals for negotiations with a view of establishing reciprocal trade relations. Canada's growth, in development of resources and in self-reliance, permits us to maintain an independent attitude with greater success than would have been possible under the conditions which obtained a few years ago.

THE JEALOUS WEST.

The Westerners are jealous of their good name in anything that directly concerns the reputation of the West as a desirable home. The Calgary Herald is up in arms in respect of a statement published to the effect that the loneliness of the West had so depressing an effect upon the British women transplanted from the thickly settled districts of the Old Country that on the average one in three of these women went insane, and had to be confined in asylums. The Herald resents this as an overstatement of the real conditions. It was made by a minister from the West lecturing in Montreal. There is little doubt of the exaggeration. Enthusiasts, whether they be ministers or politicians are wont to overstate. We had a striking example of it in the recent elections. The Provincial Secretary of Ontario in the last election, made wholesale denunciation of British immigrants, asserting in effect that they constituted the chief element of population in our jails and asylums. This was as plainly an overdrawn statement as was that of the missionary minister in reference to Western women. In one case political zeal, the desire to influence voters led to exaggerated statement; in the other the desire to impress his hearers or probably stimulate contribution, led the speaker into extravagance of statement. A good cause does not need to enlist suppression of the truth in its interest.

LITERARY IMMORALITY.

The Orillia Packet has a suggestive article on "Spelling Place Names," which opens a considerable field for moralizing:

The Packet objects, rightly, to the carelessness of Canadians concerning the spelling of their picturesque place names. Particularly those names which are Indian in their origin suffer much from the writer and the printer. A few examples are given, as follows:

How often do we read Temiscaming, Temiskaming, or Temiscamingue—how rarely Timiskaming, which is correct. How often Fort Francis instead of Fort Frances? How frequently Tamagaming or Temagami, when it ought to be Timagami? Occasionally one reads Tillsonburg, but it is frequently and incorrectly deprived of an "l." Another name often mis-spelled is Maganatawan, the river in the Parry Sound district. Stoney Creek, named for a pioneer settler, is often printed Stony Creek, while Stony Lake and Stony Plains are given the unnecessary and incorrect "e." The Packet recalls to mind the existence of a Geographic Board in Ottawa, and recommends that teachers, editors, writers and publishers should secure from a King's Printer the annual reports of that body, which decides all questions concerning geographic names in Canada.

This may seem a trifling matter to complain of, but it is more than trifling. Entrance into sin and crime is not made at one plunge; moral degeneracy comes by degrees—by practising what may be regarded as venial sins, with progressive indifference to moral obligations, illustrating the facilis descensus of Pope as explained in these lines:

Vice is a monster of so frightful mien;
As to be hated, needs but to be seen;
But seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace.

If, in moral matters, we should, to be safe, resist beginnings, we should follow the same practice in all things. Corruption of language is progressive. When one hears a new outrage in slang, one's sense of propriety is shocked, but continued hearing and consequent familiarity with it robs it of its repulsiveness and it becomes a trivial matter to the possible point of adoption. Loose habits of speech have a terrible grip upon us as a people. To hear persons with good educational equipment, maltreat and murder the English language, we have some reason to conclude that our system of education is a failure; this offence is not committed by ignorant persons who would be insulted if they were described as uneducated—but by teachers by ministers, by professional men, by persons with a High school education. The use of clipped words, incorrect grammatical forms and slang, is so common and universal, that judged by their speech, the vast majority of persons we meet would be regarded as uneducated and uncultured. Colloquial culture seems to be non-existent. We Canadians have reason to load ourselves with heavy self-reproach, and have special reason to be on our guard against the corrupting influence of our contiguity, in speech as in other things, to the United States that with its plastic ideas in regard to the obligations of morality, culture and refinement, sets the pace for the degradation of the highest ideals in these regards, and we are far too apt pupils in the acquirement of corrupt forms of speech and slang. If we, as a people, would recollect what we have been taught as to the correct use of the English language, and practise our knowledge as readily and continuously as we adopt, and yield ourselves to corrupt forms of expression and sloppy habits of speech, we should reach some justification for regarding ourselves as an educated, cultured and refined people; which we are not now, if we judge by our use of the English language. We are so greatly accustomed to outrage committed in the use of language used colliquially, that it does not attract the attention it would do if we gave closer heed to what we say and what we hear said. Let anyone have the curiosity the next time he enters into conversation to note the errors in pronunciation, enunciation, grammatical concord and clipping of words made by others and himself or herself, too, and the force of what we have said will be driven home. He or she will be astonished at the terrible literary immorality committed every day by people who are regarded and who regard themselves as educated persons and persons of culture, but who have no claim in practice to the title.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier leaves this afternoon for the south of the United States to pass a holiday and seek rest, after the labours of the late campaign. He will not take a very long rest, as he returns to duty on December 1st. Mr. Borden also goes south to rest. Everybody will wish both gentlemen a pleasant and rejuvenating holiday.

There is as little doubt that the Liberal Government will supplement its promise to create the Department of Labour, now attached to the Post Master General's office, but a separate department, as there is that Mr. Mackenzie King, member-elect for South Waterloo, will be the first Minister of Labour.

The Toronto News still feels called upon—though the elections are all over—to refer with covert significance, to Sir Wilfrid as the "French-speaking Prime Minister." In its anxiety to propagate its racial and creed campaign, it gives an unwarranted elasticity to facts. Sir Wilfrid Laurier speaks both French and English, as never man spoke them in his generation; but in his public speeches and addresses he speaks a hundred times in English to once in French. And the News assumes to hold the chair of Political Morality in the journalistic faculty.

The beauty of a protective tariff in relation to its facilities for developing trusts, is illustrated by a fact brought out at a hearing on tariff revision at Washington, U. S. A representative of the "starch trust" testified that his company sells corn starch to customers in Great Britain at a price forty cents per hundred less than it is sold in the United States. This beautiful state of things permits of sending an article across the Atlantic and sending it back, paying freights both ways and selling it at a profit for a less price than United States customers have to pay on the same article. That's the price the people of the United States have to pay for making it a country of millionaires and of privileged classes.

FIRST SIGNS ARE IN THE BACK

Best Not to Neglect Nature's Danger Signals When Kidneys are Involved

ANYONE CAN PREPARE IT

Take care of backache. A great many cases of kidney complaint are reported about here; also bladder trouble and rheumatism.

An authority once stated that pain in the back, loins or region of the kidneys is the danger signal nature hangs out to notify the sufferer that there is something wrong with the kidneys, which should receive immediate attention. Only vegetable treatment should be administered and absolutely no strongly alcoholic medicines, which are harmful to the kidneys and bladder.

The following prescription, while simple, harmless and inexpensive, is known and recognized as a sovereign remedy for kidney complaint. The ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them: Compound Kargon, one ounce; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This preparation is said to restore the natural functions of the kidneys, so they will sift and strain the poisonous waste matter, uric acid, etc., from the blood, purifying it and relieving rheumatism. Backache will be relieved, the urine will be neutralized and cleared and no longer a cause of irritation, thereby overcoming such symptoms as weak bladder, painful frequent and other urinary difficulties.

This is worth trying and may prove just what many people here need.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CANADIAN CLUB FORCASTS SUCCESS

ally lay in the nature of the English voter. He was particularly susceptible to an appeal; the men could not be won around to another way of thinking and voting without. The machinery used in effecting this was apparently legimate. Vast sums of money were spent but principally in advertising in every possible manner.

Class Restriction

The striking difference between the rich and the poor was another cause of the spread of Socialism. A great chasm seemed to divide the upper middle classes and the aristocracy of England from the others. The average Englishman of the higher class stood upon the full sense of his own importance; he would not bend or stoop for anything in this world. The poorer classes, however, could not afford this spirit of indifference. There seemed to be a wholesale pauperization in the country. The workhouses seemed to combine to take away the independence of character, and no one seemed to have any healthy scorn of taking money for which work has not been done. One of the greatest efforts that had to be made in Canada was to put a sturdy independence into some of the immigrants from England, and teach them to earn their own bread.

Rev. Canon Davidson referred for a few minutes to the feudal system and its influence in undermining a spirit of independence. He remarked that an effort should be made in Canada to preserve the self-respect of the inmates of the houses of refuge now generally established in Canada, by allowing them to work for their living.

The speaker referred to the easy going lives of the English people, describing their customs in a most interesting manner. Despite their poverty the poorer classes, spent a large amount of their money in drink, they had their pipes always in their mouths, and seemed always to be able to take advantage of the many cheap entertainments that were offered them on every side.

The Suffragistes

Rev. Canon Davidson discussed for some time the Suffragistes and their efforts to secure the franchise. He had been a spectator of the wonderful parade of the 10,000 women who had marched from the Thames Embankment to the Albert Hall, many of them doctors and members of other professions now open to women. He had been so favourably impressed with their efforts that he had been led to change his opinion in regard to the movement.

The speaker referred to the strong Imperialistic sentiment existing in England at the present time, and the regard that was being paid to Britain-over-the-seas. Canada, the speaker said, held a much higher position in the regard of the people of the Motherland than she did some years ago. This, the speaker thought was due to the fact that Canada has been developing an independent and national spirit that makes her more respected by the people of England.

In conclusion, Canon Davidson urged the adoption by the Canadian people of high national ideas. The criticism had been made by an English gentleman after living in this country for eighteen months that Canada had no ideals, that it was inclined to boast about its resources and was wrapped up in materialism. This was not as it should be, and Canon Davidson considered that high ideals should be fostered.

On motion of Mr. L. M. Hayes, seconded by Mr. Peter Campbell, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Rev. Canon Davidson for his most interesting and instructive address.

In tendering the thanks of the Club to Rev. Canon Davidson, President O'Connell re-echoed the sentiments expressed in the closing remarks of that gentleman's address in regard to the development of a strong national spirit among Canadians and the danger of being enveloped in materialism, to forget high ideals in the riches of its wonderful resources. Before the meeting was brought to a close the retiring president, Mr. Kerr advised the members to feel that it was their club and to co-operate with the officers in every way possible, and Mr. O'Connell also bespoke the assistance of the Club in making the coming year a success.

Topsy Turvy at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—Judging from the appearance of the Parliament Buildings the opening of the House can hardly take place so early in January as was intended.

Workmen are still busy and the rooms are far from finished. An effort, however, is being made to have them ready for the second Wednesday of the new year.

Meanwhile the main estimates are ready.

No Hop Substitutes.

London, Nov. 20.—An announcement was made by Premier Asquith yesterday afternoon to the effect that a bill would shortly be introduced in the House of Commons prohibiting the use of hop substitutes in the manufacture of beer.

Clerk of Frontenac.

Kingston, Nov. 20.—J. W. Bradshaw, Tichborne, has been appointed clerk of Frontenac County, succeeding Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P., resigned.

Nobleman Weds Actress.

London, Nov. 20.—Another romance of the stage was recorded yesterday afternoon, in the marriage of Eileen Orme, a musical comedy actress, to the Hon. Maurice Hood, heir of Viscount Bridgport.

Gregory May Die.

Quebec, Nov. 20—J. U. Gregory, he former agent of the Marine Department at Quebec, is seriously ill, and his physicians have but slight hopes for his recovery.

THEATRE COLLAPSES.

Newly-Completed $30,000 Structure in Winnipeg to Complete Ruin.

Winnipeg, Nov. 20.—At 8 o'clock last evening the New Grand Theatre collapsed, covering the sidewalk with debris. The building was receiving the finishing touches and had been built at a cost of $30,000.

Fortunately no one was injured though several people passing on the sidewalk had narrow escapes. The theatre was built by a company promoted by W. J. Gillman of New York.

Single Fare For Delegates.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—It is expected that about 350 delegates from outside the city will attend the charities conference next week. Those attending, can, on application to the railway agent, on payment of single fare, secure standard certificates, which on endorsement by the secretary of the conference, will entitle the holder to free return transportation.

Czar Will Walk

St. Petersburg, Nov. 20.—The funeral in St. Petersburg of Grand Duke Alexis, who died in Paris Nov. 14, will be attended by Emperor Nicholas in person.

His Majesty will follow the casket on foot through the streets of the city. This will be the first time the Emperor has been seen on the streets of St. Petersburg since 1904.

Buried Under Wreckage.

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 20.—While the steamer John A. McGean was endeavoring to pass out of the canal at the Lackawanna Steel Plant early yesterday her bow caught the rigging of a hoisting machine used in unloading iron ore, tearing the machinery down. The debris fell upon three men, killing two of them, named Malki and Crittenderr.

Doctor Dies of Glanders.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Death from glanders, rare in a human being, overtook Dr. Thomas M. Wilson of Atwood, Ont., at the Presbyterian Hospital in this city yesterday. Dr. Wilson absorbed the germ of the disease while conducting experiments at Rushwell College.

Out of Mind.

ECZEMA AND PILES CURED

Magistrate and School Commissioner Healed by Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk by its healing power has earned the praise of men and women in the highest stations of life. One of the latest prominent gentlemen to speak highly in Zam-Buk's favour is Mr. C. E. Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N.S. Mr. Weston is a Justice of the Peace for the county and a member of the Board of School Commissioners. He is also deacon of the Baptist Church in Berwick. Indeed, throughout the county it would be difficult to find a man more widely known and more highly respected.

Some time back he had occasion to test Zam-Buk, and here is his opinion of this great balm. He says: "I had a patch of eczema on my ankle, which had been there for over twenty years. Sometimes also the disease would break out on my shoulders. I had taken solution of arsenic, had applied various ointments, and tried all sorts of things to obtain a cure, but in vain. Zam-Buk, unlike all else I tried, proved highly satisfactory and cured the ailment.

"I have also used Zam-Buk for teching piles, and it has cured them completely also. I take comfort in helping my brother man, and if the publication of my experience of Zam-Buk will lead other sufferers to try it, I should be glad. For the cure of piles or skin diseases, I know of nothing to equal Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk also cures burns, cuts, ulcers, blood poisoning, ringworm, scalp sores, chapped hands, cold sores, and all skin injuries and diseases. Rubbed well on to the chest in cases of cold it relieves the tightness and aching. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25.

VARSITY RUGBY CLUB PRACTISED AT C.P.R. STATION DURING DELAY

Even the greenest farmer seeing the Varsity Rugby team having a little workout at the C.P.R. station this morning would have known that they were some of those 'college lads.' They left Toronto this morning for Ottawa, where they will meet Queen's to-morrow afternoon for the final game of the Intercollegiate series. The boys left their car and walked from Parnell street down to the station where they cavorted around like young colts. Fancy coat sweaters, sporty coats and trousers, "dinky" hats or none at all, Turkish cigarettes, bandaged ears, discoloured eyes, a proneness to flirt with all the good looking girls that passed, and a scrap or two of their college songs, also college flags with the word Toronto written on them, these were a few of the distinguishing features of the football team. Nearly all of them bore marks suggesting having run the gauntlet of a row of prize fighters.

JUNIOR CITY LEAGUE HOLDS MEETING; AGE LIMIT HAS BEEN DECIDED ON

That the Junior City League will be gone ahead with seems a certainty, and there is every reason to expect that at least six teams will battle for the honours. At the meeting held last evening, in the Examiner office, two clubs were represented: the Chieftains by Mr. Fred A. Clarke, and the Otonabee A. C. team represented by Messrs. Harris, Coughlin and Anderson. These clubs are very enthusiastic over the prospects before the League, and if the other teams who come in show the same spirit, there is no doubt of the success of the schema.

It was decided to postpone the election of officers until Wednesday night of next week at the Examiner office. The age limit of the league was decided upon last night. Any player who has not reached the age of nineteen years before January 1st, 1909, will be eligible to compete in League games, and teams intending to enter are requested to bear that fact in mind.

LONGBOAT HAS A BUSY SEASON READY FOR HIM

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Tom Longboat will be kept busy the next few weeks, as he has seven races in various parts of the United Staets and Canada. Next Monday night he goes to Niagara Falls to run a five-mile relay, and on the morning of Thursday, Nov. 26th, he will run a three-men relay ten miles at Fall River, Mass. In the afternoon of the holiday he will meet three men in a ten-mile race at Taventon, Mass. The following Saturday a similar race will be pulled off at Cambridgeport. He will also appear at Philadelphia probably on Dec. 4. The next day he will be in Princeton, N.J., after which he will return to Toronto, and thence go to Collingwood.

More challenges for matched races are being received. Besides Marsh, of Winnipeg; Jujiri Wade, the Jap Scrubb and others, communications have been received from Frank Killaly, of Boston, and Black Hawk, of the Carlisle Indian College. The Boston man wants to run any distance from a half to ten miles. While Black Hawk names ten miles as his distance.

A Winnipeg despatch says that Longboat will be seen in Winnipeg soon in a race with Marsh. No date has been agreed upon, but negotiations are under way, and the event, if pulled off, will be a 17-mile affair.

A GOOD WRESTLING MATCH TO TAKE PLACE

Geo. Lillie and B. Guerin have been matched for a six round boxing bout as a preliminary to the Burridge-Fitzpatrick wrestling match in the Auditorium Roller Rink next Tuesday night, making another big feature to what promises to be the best evening's sport offered for a long time. Lillie has been seen in action before in this city, and Guerin is said to be a clever, fast boxer, who will give the Englishman a busy twenty minutes. Both principals in the big bout are not letting up any in their training and are rounding into the pink of condition. Both are confident of victory and cannot hear of any result to the match but that they will win. The opinion among the fans seems to be divided in the same manner, and the many supporters of each are confident that their man will win. If the men who are mentioned as intending to accept Hackenschmidt's challenge to throw any five Peterborough wrestlers in ten minutes, go on against him the clever Hack will have his hands full.

CURLERS PREPARING FOR THE WINTER SEASON

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club will be held in the Dominion Bank Chambers this evening. This is probably the most important period in the history of the local curlers, owing to the completion of the new rink, and it is desirous that all interested in the roarin' game be present at.

WHITCROFT MAKES BIG OFFER TO FRED TAYLOR

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Fred Taylor, the celebrated defence player of the Ottawa hockey team, received a big offer to play with Edmonton in the Stanley Cup series against Wanderers. Taylor is in Pittsburg at the present time, and turned the offer down, stating he would play with Ottawa this winter.

BROCKVILLE DEFAULTS THE GAME TO LINDSAY

Peterborough people who were looking forward to seeing the game scheduled for to-morrow between Lindsay and Brockville, will be disappointed inasmuch as the Brockville team, who were winners of No. 3 district, have defaulted the game to Lindsay, according to the following despatch from Toronto this morning:

The Brockville Rugby Club, winners of the Eastern District of the O. R. F. U. junior series, last night notified the secretary of the union that the club had decided to default the semi-final game, ordered to be played with Lindsay at Peterborough Saturday. The Brockville team does not wish to spare the time to make a trip to Peterborough, which would mean three days away from home, two of which would be spent on trains.

LINDSAY IS TO HAVE A JUNIOR O.H.A. TEAM

Lindsay Watchman-Warder. — In Peterborough a junior team has been placed in the O.H.A. this year. The sports in that city have found out to their cost that it does not pay to neglect the juniors for the senior team, even though the latter may be a winning one.

Lindsay has been following the same path, and the juniors, that is the players under twenty, have been almost totally neglected. The town league have an age limit and few players in it are eligible for junior.

It is just possible that a junior team will be formed in Lindsay this year, and entered in the junior O.H.A. If the kids are not placed in the O.H.A. practise nights will be secured and exhibition games arranged. This will prepare a good outfit for the junior series next year. Dick Butler will manage the team.

SPLENDID FANCY SKATING AT THE ROLLER RINK

Miss Patterson and Prof. Genno at the Auditorium Roller Rink last night gave some performances on rollers that could scarcely be improved upon. About nine o'clock the regular skating ceased for a few minutes when they gave their exhibition. Their graceful skating and difficult manoeuvres which were performed in every conceivable manner were delightful to watch and they showed themselves to be masters in the art of roller skating. Prof. Genno's "slide for life" in which he slid backwards down an incline plank and jumped backwards over a barrel was most thrilling. Miss Patterson concluded the evening's programme by a pretty electric light scene which captivated the audience.

T. A. S. TO PUT TEAM IN THE CITY LEAGUE

At a meeting of the T. A. S. Wednesday night it was decided to place a team in the City League. It was felt that they had the material to just about land the mug, and while it was felt by all that they should be in the league, there was quite a discussion about financing it. It was finally decided to hold an "At Home" on November 27th, a week from today, to help getting things started. Should it be a success it was just hinted that they might undertake to place a team in the intermediate series of the O. H. A., as several of the older members have signified their intention of getting out.

THE CONFERENCE AT A CLOSE

Papers Read Yesterday by Two Peterborough Laymen, Mr. R. J. Davey and Mr. A. Kingdon

LINDSAY DESERTED AGAIN

Lindsay, Nov. 19 (Special)—The Archidiaconal conference was concluded here yesterday afternoon. An address was given by Mr. R. J. Davey, of Peterborough, on "The Condition of Young People's Work in this Archdeaconry." There are thirty-one branches of this society in this archdeaconry. The report of the Young People's Societies, said Mr. Davey, is very encouraging. There are very few parishes in this branch of the Young People's Society. What these societies need are good people to lead these young people. These leaders, however, need the help of the clergy, and Mr. Davey said that he thought that the clergy should give more of their time to that work.

The report upon work of the "Brotherhood of St. Andrew" was the subject on which Mr. A. Kingdon, of Peterborough, addressed the conference. The Brotherhood of St. Andrew, said Mr. Kingdon, is doing a great work. There is much work for the members to do if the young man is to be saved. The Brotherhood is divided into three parts — the past, present and future. In the past the Brotherhood had done a wonderful work in looking after the stranger in the city. At the present time the brotherhood is doing a good work amongst the poor and sick, lifting up the fallen and bringing them to the light. In the future the Brotherhood has still a greater work to do, but if everybody gives a certain amount of time to the work it will be accomplished.

STEEL-COAL CASE AT AN END

The Issues of the Great Case and the Progress Made—The Original Action.

JUDGE LONGLEY'S DECISION

Examiner Special.

Montreal, Nov. 20.— The last stage of the famous Steel-Coal case which has occupied the attention of the whole Dominion, and has been the cause of several sensational flurries in the stock market, commenced to-day, when the suit was taken up by the Privy Council in London, England. Both sides appear confident of victory and it is impossible to form any conjecture as to the outcome of the hearing.

The hearing of the suit between the Dominion Iron and Steel Company and the Dominion Coal Company before the Privy Council makes the third one in the big fight between these two leading Canadian corporations. The original action was instituted by the Steel Company against the Dominion Coal Company for alleged breach of contract to supply it with a certain amount of coal suitable for steel purposes each month. The coal company claimed that it was the steel company that had broken the contract by refusing to accept many car loads of coal and buying elsewhere than from the Dominion Coal Company. The first trial was held before Judge Longley, of Halifax, and the decision handed down was strongly in favour of the Steel Company. The Coal Company then carried the case to the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia. This court ratified the decision of Judge Longley. The Coal Company then announced that it would carry the case to the Privy Council. Many times it looked as if the case would be settled out of court, but some hitch always occurred just when the various interests were about to reach what looked like a mutually satisfactory basis.

THE CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES

The Delegates Will Get Return Railway Tickets Free Next Week.

The railways have issued notices that all persons attending the Conference of Charities and Correction at Toronto on Wednesday and Thursday next, November 25th and 26th, who obtain a certificate from the ticket agent at starting point that they have paid single fare to Toronto, will receive tickets to return free to their homes, good for three days after the adjournment of the Conference.

The attendance at the meetings is likely to represent every County in Ontario, and the discussions will touch all phases of charitable and correctional work. Everyone in sympathy with prison reform and organized charity is invited to attend this conference, and the grant of return fare free by the railways is more generous than usual.

THE PLAN ADOPTED BY PETERBORO' MERCHANTS

Several branches of the Retail Merchants' Association throughout the province have adopted the plan of employing permanent secretaries who are paid a liberal salary to look after the affairs of the various branches within each county. This plan has been adopted by the associations at Peterborough, Guelph and other places and splendid results are expected from such an undertaking. The paid secretaries are active and aggressive, visit the different branches in each county and are at all times available to further the work, to assist in the adjustment of grievances or to advance propositions for the attention of the Provincial Boards or the Dominion Boards.—Canadian Grocer.

Napoleon Holds Record For Short Hours In Sleeping

It is said that in the recent Presidential campaign in the United States, particularly when the candidates were stumping New York State, neither of them slept more than six hours in a night during the critical period of the contest. On October 26, 27, 28 and 29 Mr. Bryan had to content his body and soul with only four hours, and Mr. Taft was seen at some of the great meetings to be almost on the verge of the yawning stage.

Napoleon, it is well known, could do with less sleep than probably any other man who ever lived. On the evening of the battle of Eylau, after a hard won victory, he declared he had not slept for forty-eight hours previously. Certain it is that when he retired to his couch he slept for nearly thirty-six hours continuously. His valet dared not wake him; nor was even Berthier, his chief-of-staff, venturesome enough to do so. It was subsequently said that this, his longest sleep, was more in the nature of a narcoleptic trance than a really natural sleep, even considering his previous forty-eight hours of waking. A similar disposition to somnolence evinced itself in the two days preceding Waterloo.

As to how long a busy man should sleep, authorities — the busy men themselves — differ widely. M. Mazade, a French newspaper man, has recently inquired among a score or more of the busiest men of the French metropolis and received replies of considerable interest from many of them. They were all brain workers. Prince Roland Bonaparte, the scientist, finds some difficulty in putting a figure on the amount of sleep he requires. He cannot, he says, perform any intellectual work unless he has slept well. Jules Claretie tells us that he must have at least seven hours, but that he can work with equal pleasure whether he has slept well or badly. Baron de Constant, the diplomatist, requires eight hours; if he gets less he performs less work. He advises every man who has a big or important day's work before him to sleep well and as long as he can. Armand Gautier, of the Academy of Science, declares that "about eight hours" is the proper allowance. He says with much truth that to sleep too long is enervating and physically and mentally weakening. Houssaye, the Academician, will not consider fewer than nine hours. His colleague, Etienne Lamy, wants seven for his bodily and mental satisfaction. Maurice Maeterlinck goes to bed at 10 o'clock and rises at seven. Ribot, the literary man, asks eight, and this allowance seems to be the minimum with which the majority of mankind is satisfied. Mark Twain, it is said, spends from twelve to fifteen hours a day in bed. In the course of this long spell, however, the humourist accomplishes much work or reading. Mr. Edison, on the contrary, works well on an allowance of three or four hours' sleep. Mr. Roosevelt is said to be a believer in the seven hour regime.—New York World.

BARGAIN ANNEX OPEN SATURDAY

We Celebrate the Third Anniversary of The Bargain Annex

156 Weekly Annex Events --- And Not A Single Failure

Three years ago, Wednesday, Nov. 18th, a new feature was inaugurarted, in the form of an Exclusive Department — A Department in which nothing but goods of rare value was to be offered for sale. Prices were to prevail in this section lower than in any other part of the store or in any other store in the city. The idea was to make Wednesday the city people's SATURDAY and also to draw outside people to the mid-week market and thus equalize business throughout the week. The success of this department "Cressman's Bargain Annex" was phenomenal from the start. Then the ANNEX was comparatively small. To-day it is the LARGEST and MOST WIDELY KNOWN PURELY BARGAIN DEPARTMENT carried on in any city in Canada of anything like the size of Peterborough. It has its own organization, BUYERS and SALESPEOPLE. Hundreds of customers visit the ANNEX each Wednesday and are given perfect satisfaction, we insist on as efficient service as in the other departments. We guarantee satisfaction and try to uphold our claim that ours is THE STORE THAT NEVER DISAPPOINTS.

Bargain Annex Facts

1. The Bargain Annex is a purely Bargain Department.
2. The "Bargain Annex" is open one day each week—Wednesday.
3. The "Bargain Annex" is covered by Government patent.
4. The "Bargain Annex" this week celebrates its Third Anniversary.
5. The "Bargain Annex" has never had a failure.

WEDDING BELLS

MORTON—JOHNSTON

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the Erskine Church parsonage, Hamilton, Nov. 9th, when Miss Isabella Johnston was united in marriage to Chas. Wesley Morton, of Frazerville.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. S B Russel. Both parties were unattended.

The bride was becomingly and appropriately gowned in blue broadcloth and hat to match and carried a bouquet of white roses.

After the ceremony the most intimate friends of the bride sat down to an inviting repast at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Robt. Lawrie.

The happy couple left on the 3.15 train for Peterborough, where they will reside at 471 Rubidge street.

The bride who was a general favourite will be greatly missed from the social and church circles, where she was so well known.

Their many friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Morton a "bon voyage" through life to a safe haven at its close.

CHISHOLM—HUDSPETH

Port Hope, Nov. 20.—Special. — A very fashionable wedding took place at high noon on Wednesday at St. John's church, when Miss Helen Wyndham Hudspeth, daughter of the late Adam Hudspeth, of Lindsay, was united in marriage to Duncan Henry Chisholm, son of His Honour Judge Chisholm, Berlin. The Rev. E Daniel, rector of St. John's church, performed the ceremony, and was assisted by the Rev. R B Grobb.

The chancel of the church was artistically decorated with palms and white chrysanthemums, and the ceremony was witnessed by a fashionable assembly, many out of town guests being present.

The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Hamilton Hudspeth, of the Bank of Montreal, Chicago, and wore a beautiful gown of ivory liberty satin, made semi-empire, with chiffon yoke, and old rose point bertha. She wore the customary wreath of orange blossoms and tulle veil, which fell in graceful folds to the bottom of her train and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lily of the valley. Her only ornament was a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom.

Mr. J D Chisholm supported the groom, and the ushers were Mr. J A Morris, Trinity College; Dr. E A Hammond, of Peterborough; Mr. John Greey and Mr. Angus Heighington, of Toronto.

The maid of honour was Miss Gertrude Hudspeth and the four bridesmaids Miss Alice Chisholm, Berlin; Miss Burnham, Toronto; Miss Helen Burn, New Haven; and Miss Edith Smith, Port Hope. All were gowned in mauve payette, made semi-empire with yokes and sleeves of tucked chiffon. They wore large picture hats of mauve satin, faced with a darker shade of panne velvet and trimmed with soft folds of mauve meline and velvet. They carried sheaths of mauve chrysanthemums tied with ribbon of the same colour and wore amethyst pendants and gold chains, the gifts of the groom.

A reception was held at the bride's home, Augusta street, after which Mr. and Mrs. Chisholm left by the flyer for a brief tour in western points.

The bride's travelling dress was brown broadcloth, with brown hat, faced with brown velvet and trimmed with pheasant's wings, and touches of old rose. She also wore a mink stole and muff.

The bride and groom are both very popular here, and the best wishes of their host of friends are extended to them.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ROBERT WALSH

The death yesterday of Mrs. Robt. Walsh, of the township of Cavan, is one very much regretted by those who knew her. She was fifty years of age, and had only been ill a few days, pneumonia being the cause of death.

The late Mrs. Walsh is survived by her husband, and one son, Mr. Wilbert Walsh who resides at home. Several relatives reside in Peterborough. She was a member of the Methodist church and was held in the highest esteem by a large number of friends.

MR. JOHN HART

After an illness of short duration Mr. John Hart, one of the oldest residents of this locality, passed away at his home, corner Bethune and London streets, Thursday night about seven o'clock. The deceased was born in Manvers 79 years ago, and had resided in the city for a great many years, where he was very widely known and highly respected. He was a life-long member of the Methodist Church and was a staunch Liberal. He is survived by a wife, three sons and two daughters. The sons are Dr. E. Hart, of Brantford; J. H. Hart, of Edmonton; and Jacob Hart, of Manvers. The daughters are Mrs. Robert Arnott, of the city, and Mrs. R. Grandy, of Pontypool.

The funeral services will be conducted at the late residence of the deceased on Monday morning at 10 o'clock, and will leave for the G. T. R. Station to be transferred to Bethany station, and from there the remains will be taken to the St. Mary's cemetery for interment.

There are some good seats left yet for the big attraction, "All the Comforts of Home" at the Grand to-night. Come with the crowd.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF COOKING SCHOOL

To be Held on Dec. 18th—An Exhibit Worth Seeing

The closing exercises of the YWCA School of Cookery have been set for Friday afternoon and evening, Dec. 18th, when an interesting programme will be presented in the gymnasium In the afternoon there will be an exhibit of classes of work, making cake, candy, etc., besides a display of domestic arts and crafts, made in Peterborough, and loaned by the many kind friends of the Y.W.C.A. There will be specimens of needlework, embroidery, lace-making, drawn work, crochet, knitting, centre pieces, doilies, embroidered doilies and scarfs, lace bordered handkerchiefs, embroidered handkerchiefs, sofa pillows, china and oil painting, hammered brass, basketry, amateur photography, wood carving and manual dexterity. There will also be a Christmas pudding table, a cake table, and a candy table. In the evening's programme there will be introduced a short number entitled "The Reveries of a Bachelor." Further information will be furnished later.

ROY'S ATTRACTIVE HUNT WINDOW

Scenes of the Northern Woods Excellently Displayed.

The hunting scenes portrayed in the display window of the Roy Studio are attracting considerable attention from those who pass. The pictures were taken at various camps in the north of Peterborough County by Mr. F. L. Roy, and are certainly of a splendid quality. Faces of familiar Peterborough men in the haunts of the wild game may be seen and make one feel like getting back among the tall pines himself.

BIG BUSINESS PULLERS AT H. LEBRUN'S & CO.

The old established city clothing store just now presents the most complete line of timely attractions for men, young men and boys. This store has long occupied first place in the hearts of Peterborough's male sex, for reliable clothing and nifty toggery. The new live furnishing man, Mr. Warren says; "We are just 365 days ahead of our competitors, and a visit here will convince you that our stock of holiday and everyday necessities can't be duplicated in the city."

Mr. Lou Picard of the cloths and clothing department, says that "Prices are marked down to rock bottom in suits, raincoats, top coats, overcoats, trousers and vests— in fact, they can't go any lower without getting out of reach of reliability."

The display in the store certainly proves their labour has not been in vain in securing big snaps from the wholesalers. Read the story of low prices and high qualities in their "big business" ad. in another column of this issue.

WATER IN RIVER IS NOW ABOVE USUAL HEIGHT

The water in the river is now above the navigation mark, and the shallowness that was prevalent a short time ago has now passed, and the water is above the usual mark. This information was gained from one of those prominently connected with one of the local power companies, who stated that the water supply was most satisfactory.

How Much Are Your EYES Worth?

If you were offered $10,000 for your eyes you would laugh the proposal to scorn. You practically cannot get along without them.

They are in use every waking moment—working, reading, gazing at what you see around you. That is why perfect vision is absolutely necessary to you; why its monetary value is inestimable.

The vision value of our lenses will help you see better than ever you saw before.

If your eyes are worth only $10,000 a pair, figure out for yourself the actual value of a pair of our lenses that will increase your seeing power.

Evidence In Havelock Case Lasted More Than Two Hours

The summing up of the case of the Village of Havelock against Sampson, the Campbellford butcher, was given in Magistrate Edmison's office yesterday and lasted for more than three hours. The prosecution was represented by Mr. Geo. Sherry, of Norwood and the defence by Mr. Melville, of Campbellford. The Magistrate reserved judgment.

Muskrats Fall From The Lift Lock And Are Killed

Probably the first tragedy of the Lift Lock, resulted in the death of two muskrats, by jumping from the top of the lock to the pavement below. They were seen running along the walk at the top and without looking ahead of them they were over before they had the slightest chance of saving themselves. Their downward flight was perhaps the maddest of their career. If all the rats in the canal could be enticed to the edge of the top of the lock they would be easily exterminated.

SURFACE OF RIVER WAS COATED WITH ICE

The river at the foot of Lock street, where the street railway loops at its southern terminal, was frozen over according to the statement of one of the street car men this morning. This week ends with November 21, and we have not yet had any hard weather, at least there has been no sign of it freezing over. If this may be taken as a criterion of the whole winter there is a reason for hoping that the coming months may be comparatively mild.

"ALL COMFORTS OF HOME" AT GRAND THIS EVENING

There promises to be a S. R. O. crowd at the Grand Opera House this evening for the production of "All the Comforts of Home," and the presentation of the Examiner prizes to the winners in the Thanksgiving Day Road Races. Mr. H. R. H. Kenner will present the prizes during the evening, and the prize winners will occupy the boxes on the south side of the house. The other starters in the two races will be seated in the north boxes and in the orchestra seats. Great interest is being taken in the event, and the big advance sale promises a crowded house. "All the comforts of Home" is a bright, funny comedy and the caste which produced it with so much success several weeks ago will no doubt make a big hit to-night.

AN ENJOYABLE SOCIABLE EVENT BY YOUNG FOLK

A pleasant social evening was enjoyed last night at the residence of Mr. Henry Nalsh, 219 Charlotte street, when a number of his friends assembled. The evening was pleasantly passed in music, singing and games, refreshments being served after midnight.

TORONTO'S OPINION OF "DIVORCE"

"Divorce," which will appear at the Grand Opera House here next Wednesday, November 25th, was presented at the Princess Theatre, Toronto, last night and among the comment, on the production in to-day's Toronto papers is the following:

Paul Bourget's remarkable drama, "Divorce," held a large audience spellbound during its presentation last night at the Princess Theatre. It is not strictly speaking a problem play, because it begins years after the problem play usually ends. But inferentially and by implication it contains all the tragic elements that gives human interest to the vital questions which are presented by modern marriage conditions. And although Bourget's drama appeals more particularly to the audience for whom it was written, it has a gripping power for all who recognize that the family is the foundation of the community.

"Divorce" had an entirely admirable and convincing presentation. The part of Gabrielle Darras, as rendered by Miss Marion Terry, was powerful and pathetic, all the more so because it was the result of a thoroughly restrained, but for that reason, all the more effective art. Miss Ida Conquest was no less convincing as Bertha Planat, and Miss Julia Hanshet did full justice to the role of Albert Darras' mother. Gladys O'Neil was natural and unaffected as Jeanne, the child of Gabrielle's second marriage.

The male parts were admirably filled. Mr. John Glendinning showed real force in the character of Darras, his conception being entirely in consonance with the part. Vincent Serrano gave a satisfactory interpretation of the role of Lucien, and Eben Plympton made a dignified and impressive personality of Pere Ruvrard, the Catholic priest, whose exposition of the faith of the church so materially affected the action of the play. "Divorce" was finely staged and from its abundant human interest and appeal to high moral ideals should find a generous response in Toronto. It will be repeated to-day and to-morrow, with a Saturday matinee.

LADY WAS STRUCK IN EYE WITH A SNOWBALL

A gentleman from the north end of the city called at the Examiner office to-day, claiming that some boys at the King Edward School had been unduly using the snow as missiles. One of them had struck his daughter in the face and broken her glasses. More serious results might have occurred.

RESOLUTION IS FORWARDED TO LEADER COWARD

A beautifully engrossed copy of the resolution of appreciation which the City Council passed in favour of the Sheffield choir was last night sent out to begin its long journey. The writing was of the copper plate style and most neatly and admirably accomplished by Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, whose ability as a penman is well known. The document was sent to Dr. Coward, musical director of the Choir.

CITY CLOTHING STORE--TWO ENTRANCES; GEORGE AND HUNTER

All cereals should be thoroughly cooked to get the best results for human purposes. In our Canadian Agricultural Colleges they have tested the influence of cooking on the solubility of foods.

Read this table:

Name of food	Time boiled	Percentage solids made soluble
Rolled oats	Uncooked	6
" "	30 minutes	14
" "	2 hours	15
" "	5 hours	20
" "	8 hours	34
Wheat flour	Uncooked	6
" "	30 minutes	27
" "	2 hours	37
" "	5 hours	39
" "	8 hours	39

You will notice the gradual increase in percentage due to long cooking. Few homes are equipped to spend the time or fuel necessary to properly prepare cereals. By a system of steam pressure and heavy machines the Orange Meat people thoroughly clean and steam cook the wheat, then malt and flake each grain, after which it is dried and toasted. This produces the largest percentage of solubility; a process totally impossible in the ordinary kitchen.

THE IMMENSE SUM OF TWENTY-SIX MILLION DOLLARS THE ESTIMATED AMOUNT RECEIVED BY EASTERN ONTARIO FARMERS FOR CHEESE

Examiner Special.

Montreal, Nov. 21 — That the sum of twenty-six million dollars was paid to the farmers of Eastern Ontario and Quebec for dairy produce during the season which has just been brought to a close, is shown by figures compiled by the Montreal Board of Trade. Of this amount a little over twenty million dollars was paid for cheese and nearly six million for butter. This is lower by several million dollars than the amount received by the farmers for their dairy produce last season.

The total output of "make" of cheese this season was smaller by nearly 300,000 boxes than that of the previous season, but the make of butter was considerably larger. The Board of Trade figures up to the end of last week show receipts into Montreal as follows:

	1907	1908
Cheese ...	...2,017,363	1,855,553
Butter	278,898	334,000

For the wholesalers and exporters the past season was a very quiet one, showing very little profit but no severe losses. Prices for cheese opened high and remained high throughout the season, there being but little fluctuation of values in comparison with other seasons. Moderate priced cheese was unusually scarce. There was a fair demand from the English market but high prices which prevailed on this side as a rule left but a very small margin of profit for the shippers.

For the farmers the season was on the whole a fairly good one, though conditions were so bad in some sections that there was little or no profit to be made. On the whole, however, the Canadian dairy farmer had a fairly prosperous season. Although the average price for cheese has been steadily increasing, and for several years past record prices have been paid to the farmer, the past season established still another price record, the average price was twelve cents per pound at the country boards, which is about a quarter of a cent higher than last year's average price, which was considered a record. Against this high price the farmers had to count the heavy cost of feed, which on account of the drought was very scarce during the last part of the summer. The average price paid for butter at the country boards was twenty-three cents, a fraction lower than last season's average price.

That there is a grave danger of New Zealand taking the dairy industry away from Canada entirely was the statement made by the head of one of the largest firms of exporters in the city in discussing the trade of the past season this morning. In spite of the fact that shippers are paying record prices to the farmers for cheese, he declared, for the past five or six years the make of cheese has been gradually declining. In round figures the Canadian output for the past six years has been as follows:

Year	Boxes
1903	2,805,000
1904	...2,300,000
1905	2,200,000
1906	2,200,000
1907	2,000,000
1908	1,900,000

This decline in the output is due to the ever increasing cost of the production of milk, owing to higher prices for grain, short crops of hay and dry weather. The dangerous feature of the decline is that it has made an opening for New Zealand in the British market. The New Zealand trade has increased in the same proportion as Canada's has declined. The cost of feeding is a thing which does not enter into the calculations of the New Zealand dairy farmer. His cattle run out all the year and pick all they eat off the fields. In Canada the dairyman must stable his cattle seven months in the year, and feed them on grain and hay which have a market value. The New Zealanders, therefore, have the quality, their goods have improved wonderfully during the past few years, and they are making a strong bid for the British trade. Their opening has come in the falling off of the Canadian output, and it is contended by many shippers that any further reduction in the make will mean a serious set back to the Canadian dairy industry.

CHATS ABOUT FAMOUS BOOKS AND THEIR AUTHORS

By F. M. D.

Before proceeding further with the lives and works of those who have rendered their names immortal in literature, let us take a glance at the rise of the Drama, of which the Miracle Plays, Moralities, Interludes, Farces and Sotties of the Middle Ages were the progenitors. In truth, a sound knowledge of literature cannot be said to be acquired, unless one is versed in facts concerning the birth of an art, which the greatest poet of all time has glorified by his genius.

The Birth of the Drama

As there were "poets before Homer," so also there were dramatists, of a sort, flourishing on this earth long before the advent of the Medisval playwrights. The theatrical representations of the ancients have, in fact, been traced back to a Grecian stroller, in a cart, singing to the honour of Bacchus, the god of wine. The pagan Greek sang the praises of his heathen deity, and in like pious mood our first actors devoted their talents to depicting scenes in the lives of the most sacred characters of Holy Writ.

Early Pilgrims our First Dramatists

The early pilgrims were the first to introduce the "Mysteries, or Miracle Plays," into England, and they may thus be said to be the founders of our drama. Returning from the Holy Land they composed canticles of their travels, interweaving scenes of which our Saviour and His Apostles were the usual subjects. These pilgrims travelled in troops, and stood in the streets, with staves in their hands, reciting their poems. Their chaplets and cloaks, covered with shells, formed a picturesque exhibition, which served both to amuse and instruct the general public. So palatable were they to mediaeval taste, that whenever a prince entered a town, one of these plays formed a highly important part in the programme decided upon for his reception.

Plays First Acted in Churches

The Miracle Plays were first enacted in the churches, but afterwards on some open plain; and ecclesiastics themselves took part in their production, as they considered them useful vehicles for the dissemination of Scriptural knowledge amongst the people. These plays lasted several days, and attracted crowds from the neighbouring counties.

The Miracle Play at Chester

At Chester, one of the earliest towns to patronise this form of entertainment, a Miracle Play was performed, which was put on at the expense of the various corporations in the place. On that occasion the Creation was performed by the drapers, the Deluge by the dyers; Abraham, Melchisedek and Lot by the barbers; the Purification by the blacksmiths; the Last Supper by the bakers; the Resurrection by the skinners; and the Ascension by the tailors. Serious consequences sometimes ensued, owing to the clumsy way in which the rude machinery was managed at some of the exhibitions. We read, for instance, in the History of the French Theatre, that "in the year 1437, when the Mystery of the Passion was represented on the plain of Veximal, outside Metz, an old gentleman, who enacted the part of Jesus, nearly expired on the cross, being assisted just in time to prevent such a calamity. It was agreed that another priest should be placed on the cross the next day, and the first performer took instead the part of the Resurrection," which the record says, "he did admirably well." Another priest, who personated Judas, hanging on the tree, was nearly strangled by his neck slipping in the rope, but he was quickly cut down and rescued.

Pandering to the Public

The actors seem to have had little idea of the blasphemy involved in the production of such spectacles. Not only were the persons of the blessed Trinity represented, but in order to cater to the taste of the yokels and the lower part of the town populace, the grossest impurities of language and action were introduced in order to please them. Yet no less an authority than Bayle says in their defence, that such performances had their use in teaching the truths of Scripture and in softening the manners of the people.

The Different Styles of Plays

Something must be said as to the difference that marked the various orders of plays alluded to. The Mystery, or Miracle Play was quite distinct from the Morality, Interlude, Farce or Sottie. The Miracle Play depicted real personages. The Morality dealt with human vices and virtues, under the veil of allegory. These two comprised the serious side of the drama. The Interludes, Farces and Sotties dealt with the comic side of life, and were farcical in their nature; the Sotties, perhaps, being the most pronounced in their vulgarity and uproariousness.

The following is an extract from a Miracle Play, given in the Curiosities of Literature. It is a dialogue between Annie and Caiaphas, who are conversing about St. Peter and St. John.

Annie.

"I remember them once, very honest people. They have often brought their fish to my house to sell."

Caiaphas.

"Is this true?"

Annie.

"By —— it is true; my servants remember them very well. To live more at their ease they have left off business; or perhaps they were in want of customers. Since that time they have followed Jesus, that wicked heretic, who has taught them magic; the fellow understands necromancy, and is the greatest magician alive as far as Rome itself."

Again, St. John is attacked by Domitian's followers, amongst others Longinus and Patroclus, and the following are a few of the insulting questions put to him:

Longinus.

"Is it anywhere said that we must believe your old prophets (with whom your memory seems overburdened), to be more perfect than our gods?"

Domitian.

"Will you not change these foolish sentiments? Would you pervert us? Will you not convert yourself? Lords! You perceive now very clearly what an obstinate fellow this is! Therefore let him be stript and put into a great cauldron of boiling oil. Let him die at the Latin Gate."

Pesart.

"The great devil of hell fetch me if I don't Latinise him well. Never shall they hear at the Latin Gate anyone sing so well as he shall sing."

Torneau.

"I dare venture to say he won't complain of being frozen."

Patroclus.

"Frita, run quick; bring wood and coals, and make the caldron ready."

Frita.

"I promise him, if he has the gout or the Reh, he will soon get rid of them."

So great was the license of those days that we read that a play was once acted in one of the principal cities of England, wherein the parts of Adam and Eve and the serpent were enacted in exact accord with the third chapter of Genesis.

These representations died hard, extending even beyond the appearance of the Elizabethan drama.

The Passion Play of Ober Ammergau

The Passion Play of Ober-Ammergau, was instituted in 1633, by its inhabitants with the hope of staying the ravages of the plague. It is in no sense, as some people think, a continuation or revival of the representations of the Middle Ages. The actors are all bona fide inhabitants of the little Bavarian village. The play takes place once every ten years, and is characterized by the utmost reverence and solemnity.

MISERY IN STOMACH WILL VANISH

Your Stomach Trouble Will Be Cured Before You Realize It

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure the worst case of dyspepsia, and have sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve a sour stomach or indigestion in five minutes. Get a case now and eat one Triangule after your next meal. They are harmless and taste like candy, though each contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a hearty, healthy appetite; but, what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach prescription, too, if you ever have indigestion or gastritis or any other stomach misery, as one just one Triangule of Diapep...

DON'T BLAME HER

For she cannot help it. Women are often cross, irritable, hysteric, and declare they are driven to distraction at the slightest provocation.

Men cannot understand why this should be so. To them it is a mystery because in nine times out of ten this condition is caused by a serious feminine derangement.

A remedy is necessary which acts directly upon the organs afflicted, restoring a healthy normal condition to the feminine system, which will quickly dispel all hysterical, nervous and irritable conditions. Such is

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Henry Clark, Glandford Station, Ont., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for years, and never found any medicine to compare with it for sick women.

"I had ulcers and a displacement of the female organs, and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has cured me."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Sophy of Kravonia

by

ANTHONY HOPE

Author of "The Prisoner of Zenda"

Copyright, 1908, Anthony Hope Hawkins

"If you'd let me through I'd give you a kiss," she said, offering the only thing she had to give in all the world.

"Now you can go through," he said.

"You would, would you? But I hate kisses. In fact, I hate girls all around, big and little."

"You don't hate Julia, do you?"

"Yes, worst of all."

"Oh!" said Sophy—once more the recording, registering "Oh!"—because Julia had given quite another impression, and Sophy sought to reconcile these opposites.

The young man jumped down from the gate, with a healthy laugh at himself and at her, caught her up in his arms and gave her a smacking kiss.

"That's toll," he said. "Now you can go through, missy."

"Thank you, Mr. Basil. It's not very hard to get through, is it?"

He set her down with a laugh, a laugh with a note of surprise in it. Her last words had sounded odd from a child. But Sophy's eyes were quite grave. She was probably recording the practical value of a kiss.

"You shall tell me whether you think the same about that in a few years' time," he said, laughing again.

"When I'm grown up?" she asked, with a slow, puzzled smile.

"Perhaps," said he, assuming gravity anew.

"And cook?" she asked, with a curiously interrogative air, anxious apparently to see what he, in his turn, would think of her destiny.

"Cook? You're going to be a cook?"

"The cook," she amended—"the cook at the hall."

"I'll come and eat your dinners." He laughed, yet looked a trifle compassionate. Sophy's quick eyes tracked his feelings.

"You don't think it's nice to be a cook, either?" she asked.

"Oh, yes; splendid! The cook's a sort of queen," said he.

"The cook a sort of queen? Is she?" Sophy's eyes were profoundly thoughtful.

"And I should be very proud to kiss a queen—a sort of queen—because I shall be only a poor sawbones."

"Sawbones?"

"A surgeon—a doctor, you know—with a red lamp, like Dr. Seaton of Brentwood."

She looked at him for a moment. "Are you really going away?" she asked abruptly.

"Yes, for a bit—tomorrow."

Sophy's manner expanded into a calm graciousness. "I'm very sorry," she said.

"Thank you."

"You amuse me."

"The deuce I do!" laughed Basil Williamson.

She raised her eyes slowly to his. "You'll be friends, anyhow, won't you?"

"To cook or queen," he said, and heartiness shone through his raillery.

Sophy nodded her head gravely, sealing the bargain. A bargain it was.

Chapter Three

"It seemed somehow impossible, me going to be cook there all my days." So writes Sophy at a later date in regard to her life at Morpingham hall. To many of us in our youth it has seemed impossible that we should pass all our days in the humdrum occupations and the mediocre positions in which we have in fact spent them. Young ambitions are chronicled only when they have been fulfilled—unless where a born autobiographer makes fame out of his failures. But Sophy had a double portion of original restlessness. This much the records of Morpingham, years, scanty as they are, render plain.

The immediate result of this disposition of hers was unhappy, and it is not hard to sympathize with the feelings of the Brownlows. Their benevolence was ample, but it was not unconscious. Their benefits, which were very great, appeared to them exhaustive, not only above what Sophy might expect, but also beyond what she could imagine. They had picked her up from the roadside and set her on the way to that sort of kingdom with the prospect of which Basil Williamson had tried to console her. The squire was an estimable man, but one of small mind. He moved among the little—the contented lord of a pin point of the earth. Mrs. Brownlow was a profoundly pious woman, to whom content was a high duty, to be won by the performance of other duties. If the squire detected in the girl signs of ingratitude to himself his wife laid equal blame on a rebellion against heaven. Sophy knew—if not then, yet on looking back—what they felt. Her references to them are charged with a remorse whose playful expression, obstinately touched with scorn as it is, does not hide its sincerity. She soon perceived, anyhow, that she was getting a bad character. She, the cook in posse, was at open war with Mrs. Smilker, the cook in esse, though, to be sure, Smilker might have done something to reconcile her to Grouch!

Mrs. Brownlow naturally ranged herself on the side of constituted authority, of the superior rank in the domestic hierarchy. Moreover, it is likely that Mrs. Smilker was right in nine cases out of ten, at all events. Sophy recognised that probability in after life. None the less, she allows herself more than once to speak of "that beast of a Smilker."

For the greater part of this time she had no friends outside the hall to turn to. Julia Robins was pursuing her training in acting in London and, later, her profession in the country. Basil Williamson, who amused her, was at Cambridge and afterward at his hospital. A glimpse of him she may have caught now and then, but they had no further talk. Very probably he sought no opportunity. Sophy had passed from the infants' school to the scullery. She had grown from a child into a big girl. If prudent Basil kept these transformations in view, none can blame him—he was the son of the rector of the parish—so when bidden to the hall he ate the potatoes Sophy had peeled, but recked no more of the hand that peeled them. In the main the child was no doubt a solitary creature.

So much is what scientific men and historians call "reconstruction"—a hazardous process, at least when you are dealing with human beings. It has been kept within the strict limits of legitimate inference and accordingly yields meager results. The return of Julia Robins enables us to put many more of the stones—or bones, or whatever they may be called—in their appropriate places.

It is the summer of 1865, and Julia is very gorgeous. Three years had passed over her head. Her training had been completed a twelvemonth before, and she had been on her first tour. She had come home to rest and to look out for a new engagement. She wore a blue hat with a white feather, a blue skirt and a red Garibaldi shirt. Her fair hair was dressed in the latest fashion. The sensation she made in Morpingham needs no record. But her head was not turned. Nobody was ever less of a snob than Julia Robins, no friendship ever more independent of the ups and downs of life, on one side or the other, than that which united her and Sophy Grouch. She opened communications with the hall scullery immediately, and "Sophy was as much of a darling as ever" is her warm hearted verdict.

"You're beautiful!" cried Sophy.

The hall was not accessible to Julia nor Woodbine lodge to Mrs. Brownlow's little cook girl. But the squire's coachman had been at the station when Julia's train came in. Her arrival would be known in the hall kitchen if not upstairs. On the morrow she went into the avenue of old elms about 12 o'clock, conjecturing that her friend might have a few free moments about that hour—an oasis between the labors of the morning and the claims of luncheon. Standing there under the trees in all her finery—not very expensive finery no doubt, yet fresh and indisputably gay—she called her old mocking challenge: "Sophy Grouch! Sophy Grouch!"

Sophy was watching. Her head rose from the other side of the ditch. She was down in a moment, up again and in her friend's arms. "It's like a puff of fresh air," she whispered as she kissed her, and then, drawing away, looked her over. Sophy was tall beyond her years, and her head was nearly on a level with Julia's. She was in her short print gown, with her kitchen apron on, her sleeves rolled up, her face red from the fire, her hands, too, no doubt red from washing vegetables and dishes. "She looked like Cinderella in the first act of a pantomime," is Miss Robins' professional comment, colored perhaps also by subsequent events.

"You're beautiful!" cried Sophy. "Oh, that shirt! I love red!" And so on for some time no doubt. "Tell me about it. Tell me everything about it," she urged. "It's the next best thing, you know."

Miss Robins recounted her adventures. They would not seem very dazzling at this distance. Sophy heard them with ardent eyes. They availed to color the mark on her cheek to a rosy tint. "That's being alive," she said, with a deep drawn sigh.

Julia patted her hand consolingly. "But I'm twenty!" she reminded her friend. "Think how young you are!"

"Young or old's much the same in the kitchen," Sophy grumbled.

Linking arms, they walked up the avenue and came near to the gates. Julia felt a sudden pressure on her arm.

"Look!" whispered Sophy, her eyes lighting up again in interest.

A young man rode up the approach to the hall lodge. His mare was a beauty. He sat her well. He was perfectly dressed for the exercise. His features were clear cut and handsome. There was as fine an air of breeding about him as about the splendid Newfoundland dog which ran behind him.

Julia looked as she was bidden. "He's handsome," she said. "Why"— she laughed low—"I believe I know who it is—I think I've seen him somewhere."

"Have you?" Sophy's question was breathless.

"Yes, I know! When we were at York! He was one of the officers there. He was in a box. Sophy, it's the Earl of Dunstanbury!"

Sophy did not speak. She looked. The young man—he could be hardly more than twenty—came on. Sophy suddenly hid behind her friend ("To save my pride, not her own," generous Julia explains; Sophy herself advances no such excuse), but she could see. She saw the rider's eye rest on Julia. Did it rest in recognition? It almost seemed so, yet there was doubt. Julia blushed, but she forebore from smiling or from seeking to rouse his memory. Yet she was proud if he remembered her face from across the footlights. The young man, too, being but a young man, blushed a little as he gave the pretty girl by the gate such a glance as discreetly told her that he was of the same mind as herself about her looks. These silent interchanges of opinion on such matters are pleasant diversions as one plods the highway.

He was gone. Julia sighed in satisfied vanity. Sophy awoke to stern realities.

"Gracious," she cried, "he must have come to lunch! They'll want a salad! You'll be here tomorrow—do!" And she was off up the drive and around to her own regions at the back of the house.

"I believe his lordship did remember my face," thought Julia as she wandered back to Woodbine cottage.

But Sophy washed lettuce in her scullery, which, save for its base purposes, was a pleasant, airy apartment, looking out on a path that ran between yew hedges and led around from the lawn to the offices of the house. Diligently she washed, as Mrs. Smilker had taught her, whether rightly or not is nothing to the purpose here, but how many miles away was her mind? So far away from lettuces that it seemed in no way strange to look up and see Lord Dunstanbury and his dog on the path outside the window at which she had been performing her task. He began hastily:

"Oh, I say, I've been seeing my mare get her feed, and—er—do you think you could be so good as to find a bone and some water for Lorenzo?"

"Lorenzo?" she said.

"My dog, you know." He pointed to the handsome beast, which wagged an expectant tail.

"Why do you call him that?"

Dunstanbury smiled. "Because he's magnificent. I dare say you never heard of Lorenzo the Magnificent?"

"No. Who was he?"

"A duke—Duke of Florence, in Italy." He had begun to watch her face and seemed not impatient for the bone.

"Florence? Italy?" The lettuce dropped from her hands. She wiped her hands slowly on her apron.

"Do you think you could get me one?"

"Yes; I'll get it."

She went to the back of the room and chose a bone.

"Will this do?" she asked, holding it out through the window.

"Too much meat."

"Oh!" She went and got another. "This one all right?"

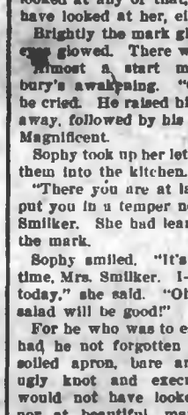
"Capital! Do you mind if I stay and see him eat it?"

"No."

"Here, Lorenzo! And thank the lady!"

Lorenzo directed three sharp barks at Sophy and fell to. Sophy filled and brought out a bowl of water. Lord Dunstanbury had lighted a cigar, but he was watching Sophy. A new light broke on him suddenly.

"I say, were you the other girl behind the gate?"



"Is she—er—a great friend of yours?"

"I didn't mean you to see me."

"I only caught a glimpse of you. I remember your friend, though."

"She remembered you too."

"I don't know her name, though."

"Julia Robins."

"Ah, yes—is it? He's about polished off that bone, hasn't he? Is she—er—a great friend of yours?"

His manner was perhaps a little at fault. The slightest note of chaff had crept into it, and the slightest was enough to put Sophy's quills up.

"Why not?" she asked.

"Why not? Every reason why she should be," he answered with his lips. His eyes answered more, but he refrained his tongue. He was scrupulously a gentleman, more so perhaps than, had sexes and places been reversed, Sophy herself would have been. But his eyes told her. "Only," he went on, "if so, why did you hide?"

That bit of chaff did not anger Sophy, but it went home to a different purpose, far deeper, far truer home than the young man had meant. Not the mark only reddened; even the cheeks flushed. She said no word. With a fling out of her arms—a gesture strangely, prophetically foreign as it seemed to him in after days—she exhibited herself—the print frock, the soiled apron, the bare arms, red hands, the ugly knot of her hair, the scrap of cap she wore. For a moment her lips quivered, while the mark—the red star of future days and future fame—grew redder still.

The only sound was of Lorenzo's worrying the last tough scrap of bone. The lad, gentleman as he was, was good flesh and blood, too, and the blood was moving. He felt a little tightness in his throat. He was new to it. New, too, was Sophy Grouch to what his eyes said to her, but she took it with head erect and a glance steadily leveled at his.

"Yes," he said, "but I shouldn't have looked at any of that, and I shouldn't have looked at her, either."

Brightly the mark glowed; subtly the cheek glowed. There was silence again. Almost a start marked Dunstanbury's awakening. "Come, Lorenzo!" he cried. He raised his hat and turned away, followed by his dog, Lorenzo the Magnificent.

Sophy took up her lettuces and carried them into the kitchen.

"There you are at last! And what's put you in a temper now?" asked Mrs. Smilker. She had learned the signs of the mark.

Sophy smiled. "It's not temper this time, Mrs. Smilker. I—I'm very happy today," she said. "Oh, I do hope the salad will be good!"

For he who was to eat of the salad—had he not forgotten print frock and soiled apron, bare arms, red hands, ugly knot and execrable cap? He would not have looked at them—no, nor at beautiful, many tinted Julia Robins in her pride! He had forgotten all these to look at the stained cheek and the eyes of subtle glow. She had glanced in the mirror of love and sipped from the cup of power.

Such was her first meeting with Lord Dunstanbury. If it were ever forgotten, it was not Dunstanbury who forgot.

The day had wrought much in her eyes. It had wrought more than she dreamed of. Her foot was near the ladder now, though she could not yet see the lowest rung.

"Don't Neglect a Cough or Cold."

It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It is without an equal as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Pain in the Chest, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Quinsy and all affections of the Throat and Lungs.

A single dose of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will stop a cough, soothe the throat, and if the cough or cold has become settled on the lungs, the healing properties of the Norway Pine Tree will proclaim its great virtue by promptly eradicating the bad effects, and a persistent use of the remedy cannot fail to bring about a complete cure.

Do not be humbugged into buying so-called Norway Pine Syrups, but be sure and insist on having Dr. Wood's. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cents.

Mrs. A. Elles, Innisfail, Alta., writes: "Last spring I had Typhoid fever and Bronchitis, which left me with a terrible cough. I tried doctor's medicine but got no relief until my husband got me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before I had finished it my cough was cured. My husband also uses it whenever he has a cough. I would not be without it."

The Mutual Life ASSURANCE CO. OF CANADA

Bigger Profits to Policy-holders

It is easy to see why a policy in this Company is an excellent investment as well as a protection.

Last year, the new business amounted to $7,081,402—a gain over 1906 of $1,577,855. Yet the operating expenses were about the same as last year.

For the last five years, the actual mortality was only 47% of the amount expected. And the Interest Income exceeded the mortality by $198,103.

With an expense ratio to Income smaller than its competitors, with a yearly expanding Interest Income, and a favorable death rate, it is but natural that The Mutual Life of Canada is earning more profits, which go to the policy-holders in reduction of their premiums. 103

PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

THE PROBLEM OF TILLING FIELDS FOR A PAYING CROP

From The Canadian Dairyman.

When one takes into consideration the extra labor required to fit some fields for a paying crop, or if he be not able to give that labor, the loss he sustains through the presence of weeds in the crop, smothering out and robbing the desirable plants of both food and moisture, is it any wonder that people are becoming more than ever aroused in these times when labor is scarce and high priced?

Just recently some interesting data came to hand regarding an experiment conducted in the Wisconsin Experimental Station to determine the cost of killing couch grass, on which weed, articles have appeared recently in our columns. The method followed was to plow the ground six inches deep in the fall, after which many of the root stalks were cultivated and harrowed on the surface and burned. In the spring it was plowed a little deeper, and the harrow was used frequently enough to prevent any growth on the surface. During a dry time in July last it was disced and harrowed and effectually killed by smothering with cultivation, at a cost of $18.00 on the half acre.

Lest some would feel like leaving their "quacky" farms, rather than clean them at a cost of $36.00 an acre it may be said that nothing was allowed for the benefit the extra cultivation would do the soil in improving it mechanically, and in liberating a large supply of plant food for the crop to follow. "Let us not be weary in well doing," even in fighting the weed pests of our country.

TEST OF DAIRY COWS DISCUSSED BY EASTERN DAIRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION

From the Canadian Dairyman

The testing of dairy cows came up for considerable discussion at the district meetings of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, held recently. While many farmers in these districts have taken up the question, the great bulk of our factory patrons seem to view the matter with indifference. To any farmer who prides himself on being really wide awake and business-like, the question of cow-testing must present a forcible appeal. Shrewd enough in his ordinary dealings with business men, should not the commercial aspect of his own dairy herd be thoroughly considered? The income from the herd as a whole may be fairly good, but often the proportion of profit to income remains undetermined. The question of net profit, both total amount and relative proportion to income, is one of primary importance to every dairyman.

Can profit be increased, even while the total cash revenue remains stationary? The man who knows, which in this case means the progressive dairyman, answers with a most decided affirmative, and points with pride to his monthly statement. How does he manage it? One simple way is to lessen expenses by weeding out the poorest cows in the herd. Those that do not bring any profit, those, indeed, which frequently entail a loss to their unsuspecting owner, can be unerringly detected by weighing and testing the milk of each cow in the herd systematically. We hope to see a rapid extension of this co-operative cow-testing work which has been inaugurated by the branch of the Dairy Commissioner, Ottawa.

125 MILES IN A ROWBOAT

REMARKABLE STORY FROM MISSION CITY.

Mr. John R. Wren, late Reeve of Mission City, B.C., is now 66 years of age and tells the following remarkable story: "Some years ago I was given up by the Doctors. I was so weak I could not walk across the floor, and was patiently waiting for death. I had paid as much as $25 a visit for a specialist who said I could not get relief. In this condition I sent for a sample of PSYCHINE. The first night PSYCHINE gave relief. The bleeding of the lungs ceased and in three weeks I was able to walk three miles before 7 o'clock a.m. and take the oversight of a crew of men." This was in 1894, just 14 years ago. Since that time Mr. J. Wren has been Reeve of Mission City, and on August 17th, 1908, wrote: "I am now in my 66th year and weigh 296 pounds and do considerable business. Last week I travelled 125 miles in a row boat and slept out every night, and feel no bad effects from it. I owe this new lease of life to Dr. T. A. Slocum and his remedies."

No wonder Mr. Wren is grateful for PSYCHINE, for it transformed him from a weakling into a sturdy, hardy man, and this at a time of life when most people are expecting the reverse.

PSYCHINE is a wonderful Tonic and Life Giver. Living witnesses prove this statement for PSYCHINE cures are permanent. THERE IS LIFE IN EVERY DOSE. We want you to test its power and send for a Trial Bottle at our expense.

THE ONTARIO FRUIT GROWERS' ASSOCIATION MEETS IN TORONTO

From The Canadian Dairyman.

Great interest was taken in the convention of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association held in Toronto last week. There was a representative attendance. The papers, addresses and discussions proved of much value to those present. The following directors were appointed for the ensuing year: R. B. Whyte, Ottawa; Harold Jones, Maitland; F. S. Wallbridge, Belleville; W. H. Gibson, Newcastle; R. W. Grierson, Oshawa; A. W. Peart, Burlington; E. D. Smith, Winona; G. A. Robertson, St. Catharines; James E. Johnson, Simcoe; D. Johnson, Forest; F. Metcalf, Blythe; C. W. Gurney, Paris, and C. L. Stephens, Orillia. The officers will be elected at a meeting of the directors next January. Among the resolutions passed were the following:

Whereas the announcement of the untimely death of Dr. James Fletcher, entomologist and botanist at the Central Experimental Farm, has come as a grievous shock to his many friends, the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, assembled in annual convention at Toronto begs to convey to his sorrowing family and to Dr. Saunders of the staff of the Central Experimental Farm, this expression of its deep regret and of sympathy with them in the loss which they have sustained, a loss which is common to the whole Dominion throughout which the deceased gentleman was well known and highly esteemed.

That it is the opinion of this association that the disease known as "little peach" should be added to the act respecting "black knot" and "yellows," and that the same regulation that applies to inspectors under the San Jose scale act shall apply to the inspectors under the aforesaid act.

That this association forward its thanks to the Grand Trunk Railway authorities for renovating and enlarging the old Scott street fruit and freight shed in the city of Toronto, all of which is greatly appreciated.

That it is the desire of this association that the Dominion department of agriculture continue in future its assistance in the matter of arranging for cold storage services on certain steamship lines for the carrying of early and tender fruits to Great Britain, and that same be extended as conditions may warrant.

Pressure of space will not allow more than a passing mention of the many excellent reports and addresses that were given. The reports of standing committees on new fruits, nursery control, co-operation, transportation and the Toronto fruit market, contained much valuable information. They will be referred to in subsequent issues. Some excellent addresses on commercial spraying were listened to with much interest. These and all others will be published in part or in full, later. "The Apple Maggot and Blister Leaf Mites" were discussed by Prof. Wm. Lochhead, Macdonald College; "Strawberry Culture," by S. H. Rittenhouse, Jordan Harbor; "Orchard Fertilizers," by Prof. R. Harcourt, O. A. C.; "Twig Blight and Peach Yellows," by Prof. M. B. Waite, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington; "Orchard Surveys," by Prof. C. S. Wilson, Cornell University; "The Shipments of Early Apples and Tender Fruits to Great Britain," by J. A. Ruddick, Ottawa; "The Western Fruit Market," by J. W. Crow, O. A. C.; "Apple Packing and Packages," by Elmer Lick, Oshawa; "Tender Fruit Packing and Packages," by H. L. Roberts, Grimsby; "Markets," by F. G. H. Pattison, Winona; "Observations on Fruit Conditions," by district representatives of the Department of Agriculture; and "The Commercial Status of our Standard Varieties of Fruits," by a number of practical growers.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF ONTARIO VEGETABLE GROWERS' ASSOCIATION

From The Canadian Dairyman.

At the fourth annual convention of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association, held in Toronto last week, the president, Mr. R. H. Lewis, Hamilton, recommended a reduction in the membership fee from $1.00 to 50 cents. He pointed out that this would result in a large increase in membership. The recommendation was adopted. This reduction in the fee will be welcomed by farmers who grow vegetables for market either on a small or large scale and who desire to join this organization.

In the course of an address by Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, the secretary, reference was made to the efforts made by the executive to have some recourse at law against seedsmen who sell seeds untrue to name and of poor vitality. Referring to the Dominion Pure Seed Act, Mr. Thos. Delworth of Weston contended that purity and vitality in vegetable seeds was even more important than similar qualifications in clover seed, which is now covered by the Act. He pointed out that the Act should be amended to cover vegetable seeds. As is well known, on every package of seeds sent out by a seedsman there is printed a disclaimer as to liability. The vegetable growers, therefore, are at the seedsman's mercy. Mr. Delworth suggested that seedsmen print on each package the percentage of seeds contained therein that will germinate.

Mr. A. McMeans, O.A.C., Guelph, gave a report on the onion industry of the United States and Canada. This will be referred to at greater length in a later issue. Other papers that were read and that also will be published in subsequent issues are: "Irrigation and its Effect on the Growth of Vegetables, and Small Fruits," by W. T. Macoun, Ottawa; "The Value of Commercial Fertilizers, to the Vegetable and Small Fruit Grower," by A. McKenney, Essex; "Tomatoes," by A. G. Turney, Guelph; "Combatting Insects and Fungous Foes of Vegetables," by T. D. Jarvis, Guelph.

Among the resolutions passed was an expression of sympathy addressed to the widow of the late Dr. Jas. Fletcher, Ottawa. A motion was carried asking that the Ontario Department of Agriculture conduct experiments in the growing of vegetable seeds on the experimental farms at Guelph, Jordan Harbor, Driftwood and at all other points that may be deemed advisable. It was moved also and carried that in the opinion of this association the Dominion Government should institute a series of experiments to determine the varieties of vegetable seeds that can be grown successfully in Canada.

At one of the sessions, the Hon. Jas. S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, was present and delivered a short address. He said that the association is one of the most important in the province. He advised that the association distribute to all growers in the province, whether affiliated or not, information respecting the work of the organization, experiments that have been conducted, and so forth. The minister promised the assistance of his department as far as practicable and as far as funds will allow.

THE DAIRY INSTRUCTOR FOR THE DISTRICT GIVES REPORT AT CAMPBELLFORD

From The Canadian Dairyman.

The report of the Dairy Instructor for the district as given at the Campbellford meeting of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, was as follows:

Number of factories in syndicate	39
Full day visits	79
Call visits	200
Number of meetings held during season	1
Samples tested for adulteration	3400
Number deteriorated	9
Nature of Adulteration.
Watered	6
Skimmed	2
Skimmed and watered	1
Samples tested by fermentation test	156
Number good	97
Number tainted	59
Patrons visited	65
Wrote letters to	111
Money spent on improvements and new buildings in district	$6125

"In presenting this report," said Mr. Gray, "I might say I have found the factories generally in a fairly good condition, and the makers as a whole fully alive to the benefits accruing to them from the instructor's visits.

"The greatest want among the farmers and cheese makers is a good supply of ice. Too much emphasis cannot be put on this question. A supply of ice is absolutely necessary to keep the milk wholesome in the summer months. When we consider that ice can be harvested at only the cost of labor it is a great pity there is not more of it gathered and stored away for the summer season.

"As regards the adulteration of milk, six of the cases I mentioned in my report were dealt with by the Public Prosecutor. Three were let go with a warning, the officers of the factories fined; owing to the small amount of milk sent in by them." In reference to the flavor of the cheese made in this district, he said that a better price could be obtained if the farmers refrained from feeding turnips, and also not using the milk cans, which are used to take milk to the factory, for the purpose of taking the whey back to the farm. Hog feeding for market has been found profitable by factories in other districts, and he could see no reason why it should not be so in this locality, and so do awa with the unsatisfactory whey flavor ow found in the cheese.

"The number of the samples found tainted may seem very large, but I must explain this by saying that the samples were taken from those of whom I had suspicion, and not indiscriminately. A very frequent cause of tainted milk is the close proximity of the milk house to the barnyard or stables, etc. In several cases, where such has been the case, I have, by explaining matters, had the milk house removed further away, with the result that the milk is now perfectly be desired. The case was adjourned sweet in every case.

DISAPPOINTED HUNTERS AT LASSWADE

Some of Them Have Not Met With the Best of Luck—Other News Items.

Examiner Special

Lasswade, Nov. 17.—The hunting season is just at an end, and it has left no small number of disappointed hunters. Deer being very scarce in some parts while they seem to be quite plentiful in other parts of this vicinity.

Thanksgiving service was held in Grace church on Sunday morning, 8th, by the Rev. Mr. Garbutt. The church was nicely decorated for the occasion, and quite a crowd attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews of "Glen Alda" passed through the village on Sunday on their way home from Wooler, where they have been visiting friends and relatives for the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Pattison and family returned on Saturday after spending a year in the Rainy River District. They intend spending the winter in the village.

Palpitation of the Heart.

One of the first danger signals that announce something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or again, there may be a most violent beating, with flushings of the skin and visable pulsations of the arteries. The person may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die. In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond all question, marvellous. They give such prompt relief that no one need suffer.

Mr. Sylvester Smith, Hampton, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and tried doctor's medicines, but they only gave me temporary relief. I heard of your Heart and Nerve Pills and bought two boxes and before I had used them I was completely cured and would recommend them to all similarly affected."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Another "O'K" Ale

Our latest—and, some say—our finest, brew. We perfected an uncommonly fine blend of hops and malt—and then brought all our years of experience to bear in brewing, ageing and bottling it.

O'Keefe's "Gold Label" Ale is just the kind of Ale that you would expect a brewery like this to brew.

It's pure and old, and rich and creamy—a delight to the palate—and the most nourishing and healthful of malt beverages.

LAST RITES OF THE CHURCH ADMINISTERED

Miraculous Escape From Death of Mme. Lirette, of Sorel, Que.

"I look upon my recovery from approaching death as a miracle and it was "Fruit-a-tives" alone that cured me. I suffered from severe womb disease for seven years, and I suffered from severe constipation, great weakness and constant pain all the time. I was treated by six different physicians without any benefit and took every medicine I heard of, but nothing gave me any relief. My suffering was so intense that for a year I was unable to get out of bed—and I became so ill that my friends did not expect me to recover and the last rites of the Church were administered to me. At this time I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives" and at once I began to improve. These tablets cured the constipation and relieved the dreadful womb pains. I began to improve and "Fruit-a-tives" entirely cured me. Nothing did me any good but "Fruit-a-tives." I took in all 18 boxes and I am quite as well as ever I was, entirely due to the use of this great medicine."

"Fruit-a-tives" is put up in a new 25c trial size as well as the regular 50c boxes, in order to enable everyone to try these wonderful fruit juice tablets. Sent on receipt of price if your dealer does not have them.

Woman's World

A SUFFRAGETTE HERE.

Mrs. Philip Snowden, Wife of a Distinguished Member of Parliament.

Mrs. Philip Snowden, who recently arrived in this country from England, is not only the wife of a distinguished member of parliament, but is famous on her own account as a suffragette and a lecturer. During her stay in America she will talk on the subject nearest her heart, woman's rights, at a number of colleges and women's clubs.

Mrs. Snowden is young and passing fair, of the dainty pink and white type of English beauty. She is not of the most militant variety of the suffragettes. She has never been in jail or smashed a window or chained herself to a park railing so the police couldn't make her move along, but she marched at the head of the first monster procession in London last June between Lady Frances Balfour, sister-in-law of King Edward's sister, on one side and Mrs. Henry Fawcett, widow of Victoria's cabinet minister, on the other.

"We have hundreds of titled persons who are members and contributors to the movement," said Mrs. Snowden when interviewed the other day. "At one meeting alone, attended mainly by the aristocracy, we took up a collection of $35,000. I don't know what part the Duchess of Marlborough is going to take, because she joined just before I came away. I think she was influenced by the Hon. Mrs. Bertland Russell, sister-in-law of Countess Russell, who is also a suffragette. Mrs. Russell, who was formerly a Philadelphia girl, is a great friend of the duchess.

"Annie Kenney has brought more fashionable women into the movement than anybody. Annie Kenney is the little factory girl whom W. T. Stead has called the Joan of Arc of the movement. She started the whole thing with a question to John Burns at Albert hall one night soon after the Liberal government came in. Before an audience of 11,000 he was outlining what the Liberal party proposed to do for the various classes of men. Annie Kenney leaned out of a box and said, 'What are you going to do for the women?' The audience would have torn her in pieces if it could have got at her. At the same time Cristabel Pankhurst was doing the same thing at a meeting in Manchester, and she was put ont of the hall with her clothes torn half off her. The things that have been done to the suffragettes by the stewards of political meetings in which they asked questions would not be believed in America."

Her Searchlight the Best Yet.

Women have not achieved much in the field of invention, but for the improvement of the searchlight Mrs. Bertha Ayrton is being honored by scientific bodies in England. She is the only woman who holds membership in the British Institute of Electrical Engineers and the only woman who has received a medal from the Royal society of London for original, unaided research in electricity. She succeeded with the searchlight where men the world over failed. After experiments carried over several years had failed to increase range and illumination the British admiralty called in Professor Ayrton in the hope of making the searchlight more effective. Ayrton was puzzled, as other experts had been. His wife watched his work, and she finally expressed confidence in her ability to make an improvement. Ayrton gave her a free hand, engaging himself in other work. A couple of weeks ago the admiralty heads grew enthusiastic about the improved searchlight he exhibited before them. When they crowded around to congratulate him the professor said: "Congratulate my wife. She's the inventor; not I."

Do You Comb Your Hair Properly?

"My hair is coming out by the handful," complained a woman to her hairdresser recently.

"How do you comb it?" was the reply. "Half of my patients who complain of failing hair really are pulling it out by their own barbarous use of the comb.

"Never pull or tug at long hair; use a long, sweeping stroke if there are no tangles. If there are, work at each one lightly and separately till it is removed.

"Always begin at the ends of the hair, working up gradually. If the tangles are very bad, it is much better to thread them with the fingers before touching with the comb.

"Easily tangled hair should always be combed in small strands, which are kept separate till the entire head has been gone over.

"In the case of an invalid whose hair has not been combed for several days it is well to rub a little oil or vaseline on the hair, which helps to take out the tangles more easily. Even for a short illness the hair should be parted down the middle from the forehead to the nape of the neck and two plaits made. Never endeavor to make the brush do the work of the comb.

"The brush is for smoothing, for giving that fine gloss so justly admired, not to be driven fiercely through a mass of tangles.

"Treat your hair gently, as a precious possession. Remember, it is 'woman's crowning glory!'"

Gay Bedroom Slippers.

Not all the bedroom slippers that are shown as novelties are copyable, but the gay effects in colored canvas, lined with quilted satin, can easily be made up from a good slipper pattern and sewed to a pair of soles.

The best way to manage is to rip up a pair of old bedroom slippers that fit well, cut out the shape in red, green, pink or any desired color of canvas such as is used for fancy work and cut similar pieces of quilted satin, either in the same or a contrasting tone.

Baste the canvas and satin together wrong side to wrong side, turn in the edges, overcast them neatly together and sew to the soles.

Finish on the toe with a pompon the same color or with a rosette made of many knotted loops of inch wide ribbon, either velvet or satin.

How to Sew on Buttons.

The following is an excellent way of sewing buttons on children's coats, etc.: Make a good sized knot in your thread, which should be fairly coarse, then place a small pearl button on the inside of the coat. Put the needle first through the material, starting from the right side of the garment, then through the small button, then back again through the material and right through the big button.

Continue to stitch through and through until the button feels quite firm, then give the thread a twist or two round the base of the top button and finish off securely. There will then be no fear of the buttons coming off or tearing away the cloth.

Mice Don't Like Camphor.

Country people long ago discovered that lumps of camphor scattered through their pantries and cellars would drive off the pest of tiny red ants that sometimes and without apparent cause infest places where food is placed. It is now known that mice and rats also have an aversion to camphor and will not go where it is. A lump of it placed at the mouth of rat and mice holes while waiting for the carpenter is a sufficient deterrent. If one is in the habit of placing tablecloths in hampers to wait for washing day, a lump of camphor in a cheesecloth bag tied to the hamper will keep mice away and always be in its place.

NO AMATEUR FOR HER.

She Was a Wise Girl and Wanted Only the Real Article.

"Ah, no," she sighed, "I am not worthy of you."

The young man stood as one stricken with a palsy. A deathly pallor overspread his countenance. He tried to speak, but his tongue would not obey him.

Meanwhile the maiden's cheeks blazed and her eyes flashed. She clinched her little white hands so fiercely that the nails of her fingers cut into her tender palms.

At last with a mighty effort Vivian Osgood pulled himself together and cried out:

"Oh, this will break my heart! I cannot survive it."

Then he sank down into the chair from which he had risen up in his strong, young manhood but a moment before and, resting his elbows upon his knees and burying his face in his hands, sobbed pitifully.

Beatrice Bushkirk moved upon him as a tigress approaches her prey.

Grasping him by a shoulder, she shook him roughly and angrily cried out:

"What do you mean by acting in this way?"

He looked at her with wonder on his visage.

"Explain yourself, sir!" the beautiful girl fiercely continued. "No man can come into my father's house and carry on as you have been carrying on for the past three minutes without an explanation."

"But—but," Vivian Osgood said, "you have told me that you are not worthy of me."

"Idiot!" she returned. "You should have declared that it was false—that you would take me in spite of it. Go away somewhere and serve an apprenticeship at lovemaking, then come back to me, and we shall see."

He begged for pity, but she was obdurate, and as he stumbled out into the unsympathetic night he was followed by a low, mocking laugh.—New York World.

His Sacrifice.

He was a good little boy and very thoughtful. He had heard about the great scarcity of water throughout the country, and his little heart was touched.

He came to his mother and slipped his hand into hers.

"Mamma," he said, "is it true that in some places the little boys and girls have scarcely enough water to drink?"

"That is what the papers say, my dear."

He was silent for a moment.

"Mamma," he presently said, "I'd like to give up somethin' for those poor little boys and girls."

His mother gave him a fond look.

"Yes, dear. And what would you like to give up?

He came a little closer.

"Mamma," he said in his earnest way, "as long as the water is so very, very scarce I think I ought to give up bein' washed!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Protest.

"I beg pardon," said the new arrival, "but it seems to me it's excessively warm here."

"Eh! What?" snorted Satan. "Evidently you forget where you are. This place is meant to be warm."

"Quite so, but there's such a thing as overdoing it."—Philadelphia Press.

THE HEAT OF THE SUN.

Why It Is Warmer on the Plains Than on Mountain Tops.

There is one thing in connection with the heat of the sun that many people do not understand, says the Chicago News. Citing the well known fact that the nearer we get to a fire the more we feel its heat, they ask why it is that we find the air so much colder on the top of a high mountain than on the plain below. On the plain the sun's rays pour down with an intensity that causes actual suffering, while on the mountain, three miles nearer the source of heat, there is perpetual snow.

That apparent inconsistency is perfectly understood by those that have given even casual study to atmospheric phenomena, for it is in the earth's atmosphere that the cause may be found. The sun's rays impart little of their heat to the air. It is the surface of the earth that they warm, and their radiation from the surface warms the superincumbent air. It is a law of nature that all hot bodies throw off their heat into space. The earth throws off at night part of the heat that it receives from the sun during the day. It would throw it off with almost equal facility during the day if it were not for the atmospheric coat that surrounds it. That atmospheric coat may be compared to the glass top of a hothouse—it permits the sun's heat to enter readily, but prevents it from escaping.

We see, therefore, why in precisely the same latitude the heat on the plains may be so great as to parch the vegetation, while on the mountain top there may be snow and ice the whole year around. The air is so dense on the lower levels that free radiation of heat from the earth's surface is impossible. Therefore the lower levels are warm. But on the mountain top the air is not nearly so dense, and heat is thrown off into space almost as fast as it is received.

GOOD PARLOR TRICK.

The Demon Lump of Sugar Will Amuse the Audience.

An audience rather enjoys a laugh against itself sometimes, so try the conjuring trick with the demon lump of sugar and give it them.

Borrow two hats and place them crowns downward on the table. Take care to elaborately call attention to the fact that there is nothing under either of them.

Next demand a lump of sugar—be insistent that it may be one of a peculiar shape, easily recognised again by your audience.

When you have received it, hold it up well to public inspection and explain that after having swallowed it before their eyes you will after a very short interval bring it under either of the two hats, whichever your audience may choose.

The company—all agog with your last trick—will expect some clever sleight-of-hand and will watch you closely to see that there is no humbugging and that you really eat and swallow the lump of sugar.

Eat it openly before them all—crunch it unmistakably, so that they may hear you do it—and then ask with a great show of confidence under which hat you shall bring the lump.

The choice having been made, place the chosen hat with great solemnity on your head and thus fulfill your undertaking.

Your little piece of fooling will raise a hearty laugh in the audience at their own expense and establish a feeling of good fellowship that will make your other tricks go off smoothly and well.

Contentment.

"Is your married life happy?"

"Oh, yes. My mother-in-law is an incubator."

AN EASY VICTIM TO CONSUMPTION

The run down system is an inviting field for the germ of Tuberculosis. You cannot avoid breathing in the germs—they are everywhere—but a robust system is immune from their attacks. To rebuild a weakened system there is nothing that contains so much virtue as COD LIVER OIL, but the virtue is not in the grease. In fact the grease retards the beneficial action of the really valuable principles of the OIL by deranging the digestion.

In "BRICK'S TASTELESS" the grease is eliminated. It presents the valuable principles of COD LIVER OIL in a palatable form, combined with phosphorous in the form of the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, the nutritious Liquid Extract of Malt and the Bronchial Tonic and Sedative Fluid Extract of Wild Cherry Bark.

ARM YOURSELF AGAINST CONTAGION.

"BRICK'S TASTELESS" will build up the enervated system and will cure Bronchitis, Pulmonary Affections, and the deranged or disordered nervous system. Make your body healthy and you need have no fear of germs or diseases.

AMBEROL RECORDS for The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

"One touch of melody makes the whole world kin".

Mr. Edison has produced in the Amberol Record a Phonograph Record that plays twice as long as the regular Edison Record

This has not been done by making the Record larger or longer, but by engraving more than twice as many lines to the inch as on the regular Record. Thus Amberol Records can be used in the standard sizes of Edison Phonographs by the addition of a simple attachment or gear.

Edison Amberol Records not only play longer than any other Record now made, but they play better, their tone quality being richer, clearer and more delicate than has been possible in the past.

To Play Amberol Records on Your Present Phonograph requires an attachment comprising a change gear and a new reproducer. Your dealer has this attachment, will put one on your Phonograph at a moderate cost, and will explain it to you.

We will be glad to send to anyone, however, a booklet describing the new attachment, describing the Amberol Records, giving a list of the music now available on these Records and giving all the other information necessary to make it possible for you to get more than twice as much enjoyment out of your Edison Phonograph as you are now getting.

We Desire Good, Live Dealers to sell Edison Phonographs in every town where we are not now well represented. Dealers having established stores should write at once to National Phonograph Company, 100 Lakeside Avenue, Orange, N. J., U. S. A.

CRETONNETTE WORK.

Magical Effects Arrived at in a Short Time.

Votaries of the lighter forms of fancy work, who are ever anxious to obtain wonderful results in a short space of time with very little trouble to themselves, will find in cretonnette work the ideal of their dreams, so magical are the achievements quickly arrived at, while it offers at the same time ample scope for the exercise of individuality, originality and skill, the effective grouping of designs and arrangements of color schemes calling into play the ingenuity of the worker.

The materials for cretonnette work are simple and readily obtained. All that is necessary are a few odd remnants of cretonne possessing bold, artistic designs, some white curtain net, a pair of sharp embroidery scissors and a little strong gum arabic. Silk or satin for lining purposes is also frequently called into requisition, as well as some of the numerous edgings used by fancy workers, whether chiffon, ruchings, fringe, ribbon or lace.

Suppose a set of three transparent mats for a polished wood dressing table is desired. Many modern toilet tables are covered with a sheet of plate glass, on which mats ornamented in the manner about to be described are particularly pleasing.

A duchess cloth usually measures about 12 by 45 inches. This is first cut out in the net, a tiny portion is turned in all around and the lace or chiffon edging added before any decoration is attempted. A length of cretonne is next selected, on which are depicted bold, realistic roses in shades of pink and crimson. The worker will carefully cut out the flowers, buds and foliage and glue them beneath the net, taking care that all delicate stems and sharp corners are well secured. Bit by bit, adding a few leaves here, a cluster of buds there, a most realistic looking spray can be evolved. If the mat is a very large one several sprays of varying lengths should be arranged with studied carelessness. For small mats, be they round, square or heart shaped, large single roses look well. Seen through the softening veil of net, the bright colors of the cretonne are pleasingly subdued, while the blurred effect adds an elusive charm. A toilet set, including sachets of various shapes and sizes, all harmonizing with the tints of the room, is remarkably chic and dainty. Sachets must, of course, be lined with silk or satin. In these cases it is naturally far easier to apply the cut out flowers, etc., on to the foundation and then cover with the net.

Cretonnes are really so lovely nowadays that there should be no difficulty in making a choice of suitable designs. Bazaar workers will do well to make a trial of this easy and interesting work, which bids fair to become exceedingly popular this winter.

A Comfort When Traveling

A bottle of spirits of camphor is a friend to be relied upon when traveling, for it quickly relieves many discomforts.

If the day be warm and everything seems sticky and grimy, bathe the face with camphor. It frees the pores of accumulation of waste matter, brightens the eyes and is cooling and invigorating.

A little camphor in water would often relieve a sick stomach caused by train motion and heat.

Camphor will keep away mosquitoes, says a writer, if the exposed portion of the body be bathed with it, and it is excellent to use as a wash when one has been bitten by an insect.

A Quick Dessert.

Sometimes one is called upon to make a dessert in a hurry, and for this open a can of apricots, peaches, berries or any fruit at hand. Put on to heat and in the meantime mix one pint of prepared flour with one beaten egg and one scant cupful of milk. Drop this like dumplings in a stew over the fruit, cover closely and steam from ten to fifteen minutes. Watch the fruit closely, as there is danger of its burning while the dumplings are cooking. Serve the dumplings and fruit together with sugar and cream or with a hard sauce.

The Midnight Sun.

But now it's more dan she kin stand
To hear me reel eech rot off.
You'd tink de loidy trot off
If I sh'd spring a gag.
I didn't know she'd act up so
Afore I married Mag.

She liked de smell o' cigarettes
Or any kind o' smokin',
But now a whiff o' backer sets
Her coughin' an' a-chokin'.
She's got me sort o' broke in;

The Telltale Hand.

A writer in an English weekly declares that if we want to know what the other person is thinking we must look at his or her hands. Even unpracticed lips can lie, as every one knows. Long practice in self control will enable one to keep one's voice sweetly cordial when there is nothing but indifference or cold dislike behind it. The eyes can be made to shoot glances which are not at all a register for the emotions. But the hands, it is asserted, are utterly beyond the control of those to whom they belong. Even people who hardly gesticulate at all—and to keep the hands still is considered by the Anglo-Saxon a most essential part of good breeding—even these people are, it seems, constantly revealing themselves in little movements of the hands. The immortal Mulvaney has put it on record that a woman's truth or untruth can be discerned by the action of her hands. Of course it takes a practiced reader to interpret what the hands are saying. It is not a case of "he who runs may read."

Queer Furs.

"This is cat fur," said a furrier. "We use it for linings. An excellent lining cat fur makes too. Dogs, calves, colts, coons, opossums, bats, rats—any animal that wears fur, in fact, is salable in the fur market. Bat hair is felted up with other stuff into an imitation skin. It is also used, I believe, in rope plaiting. The dog, the coon and the opossum yield a fur that, properly treated, makes a very handsome lining. Rat skins are employed in certain delicate repairs, and they also serve to form the thumbs of cheap gloves. A queer thing about the fur business is that the furs must be taken in the dead of winter. The trapper must work under the cruelest climatic conditions. Only thus is the fur at its best. The dresser, on the other hand, who could work best in cold weather, must do all his work in the heat of summer or otherwise he would not be able to keep up with the changing fashions."—Exchange.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

The extremely large buttons used on coats and skirts have brought a new way of cutting the buttonholes, for now, instead of being just a straight slit, vertical or horizontal, they slant upward, and the button is sewed so that the lower end of the buttonhole just reaches. This is quite an improvement, for buttons cannot easily slip out of these holes.

In replacing an old skirt braid or sewing on a new one after the skirt has been finished try the following method: Rip a place in the hem wide enough to insert a calling card and by slipping the card along between the outer and inner parts of the hem it will prevent the stitches from showing through on the outer side. This is of special benefit when sewing on thin material.

There seems a great desire upon the part of all persons to again revive the pleasing art of hand embroidery as a proper and befitting trimming for waists. One waist of taupe satin, the new shade of gray, was made with a very plain front, showing festoons of brick red flowers. The pattern was somewhat scattered, not the least compact, and showed well upon the dull background. The sleeves were treated in similar manner.

Here is an idea for the inventive girl. It comes from London and proves that the hatpin can be something besides a relic of the inquisition. She who likes an odd touch of color and of originality in her own handiwork can now mold "sealing wax" hatpins. Lovely new colors are now found in sealing wax—sticks of exquisite hortensia pink, emerald green, lizard green, gemlike purples—which are captivating. These, softened and cunningly modeled by the wearer's own fingers, produce beautiful results and, too, are puzzling to the looker on, who wonders of what substance the hatpin heads are produced.

Alum Cures Fever Blisters.

Not the least unpleasant by any means of the ills attendant upon a cold is the uncomfortable, unbecoming cold sore or fever blister. If taken in time its further development can often be stopped by the application of a bit of alum. Moisten this and rub gently, but thoroughly, over the spot.

To Remove Carpet Stains.

Stains on carpet can often be removed by making a thick paste of fuller's earth to which a little ammonia has been added. Put on the paste thickly, let it stand twenty-four hours and brush off. Sometimes a second application is necessary.

THE WAY TO FUMIGATE.

Some People Think Duty Done if Sulphur is Burned.

If you live in the country or where there is no board of health to fumigate for you after a contagious disease, it is well to know how to do it for yourself.

Some persons think their duty done if a few sticks of sulphur are burned in a room even after such diseases as scarlet fever or diphtheria. Unless properly used sulphur is quite ineffective.

The room must be air tight. This does not mean doors and windows closed, but practically hermetically sealed.

If possible, shut the windows so that they can be opened from the outside. It makes it easier on the one who must open the room after fumigation.

Have on hand plenty of cotton batting cut into strips three or four inches wide. This should be stuffed into all cracks around the doors and windows and in the keyholes.

Cover a register or fireplace with unbleached muslin tacked or pasted tight over the opening to prevent the fumes from escaping. An old fashioned blower can be used in the fireplace if the edges are stuffed tight.

Open bureau drawers and closets and open and hang up bedding and any underclothing that may have been in the room.

Toilet articles of silver or brass furnishings should not be used in a sickroom, as sulphur will ruin them. If they have been used, wash them off carefully with carbolic acid solution or some other disinfectant and remove them before fumigating.

Buy rolled sulphur and break it into small pieces. Every 500 cubic feet of air space will take about a pound and three-quarters of sulphur. Three pounds to a room ten feet square will answer.

Remember that the effect of the fumes is heightened by moisture, so have vessels of water standing in the room and hang up wet sheets. The iron pot in which sulphur is burned can also be stood in a pan of water.

A small preserving kettle should be stood in a deep dishpan and both raised from the floor by inverted flowerpots or bricks.

If the sulphur is saturated with alcohol, it will burn better. It is well to investigate at the end of a half hour, for the sulphur may not have ignited. Do not open the room for twenty-four hours.

If you cannot get at the windows from the outside, cover the mouth and nose with a damp cloth until the window is reached and have a strong draft blowing from the hall.

Let the room air for a day before using again and wash off the woodwork and floor with a solution of carbolic acid and water in the proportion of a tablespoonful of the acid to a gallon of hot water.

For scarlet fever or diphtheria bedding should be burned or sent to be recovered. All toys that cannot be washed should be burned, and books as well. Scarlet fever has been taken from books after twenty years. Fresh paper should be put on the walls.

Book For Menus.

The various menus served at luncheons and dinners are so soon forgotten by the hostess that she is often apt to repeat the menu for some of the same guests. To prevent this the woman who entertains might buy a blank book and into it write a list of the guests entertained and the menu served, together with a word or two about the decorations. In this way she has but to look over the list to see what she served when certain guests were entertained. After a few months or so the book would prove valuable for suggestions.

Various Things to Remember.

When selecting the goods for your business or stecet shirt waist, remember that it is the color note that is the novelty. The colored stripe, both in linen and lawn, is extremely fashionable, especially when the stripe is of brown, porcelain or navy blue and lavender. Remember when planning your waists that simple styles are the smartest. Even the lingerie waist that reached the height of elaborateness is now seen in the plain tailored style. The one side frill is a favorite form of trimming and is made so that it can be buttoned into the waist.

The First Safety Pin.

A little boy, the son of an English blacksmith, used to act as nursemaid to his baby brother. The baby often cried, and its tears were generally caused by pin pricks. Noticing this, the boy tried to bend pins in such a way that they would do their work without puncturing the baby.

He failed, but his father, seeing the utility of the idea the lad had been at work on, set to work on his own account and eventually turned out the safety pin, which is now used all over the world.

THE GAMING PASSION

Incidents In Actual Life That Outstrip Fiction.

A COLD BLOODED MONARCH.

Louis XV. and the Dead Man at the Card Table—A Woman Who Gambled on Her Deathbed—Lord Denison's Play While His Bride Waited at the Altar.

If the full story of the card table could be written it would surely be the most startling revelation of human cupidity ever published, and almost every page of it would be marked by some incident which would outstrip fiction.

When Louis XV. was at the card table the fascination of the game made him absolutely dead to all externals and even to decency and humanity. On one occasion when he was playing for heavy stakes one of his opponents, overcome by excitement, collapsed in his chair in a fit of apoplexy. His majesty affected to ignore the incident until some one exclaimed, "M. de Chauvelin is ill!" "Ill?" retorted the king, casting a careless glance at the stricken man; "he is dead. Take him away. Spades are trumps, gentlemen!"

Equally weird is a story Goldsmith tells. When the clergyman arrived to prepare a lady parishioner who had a passion for gambling for her approaching death the lady after listening for a short time to his exhortation exclaimed: "That's enough! Now let us have a game of cards." To humor her the parson consented to play. The dying woman won all his money and had just suggested playing for her funeral fee when she fell back and expired.

In the early years of last century a whist club composed largely of clergymen used to meet in the back room of a barber's shop in a Somersetshire town. On one occasion, so the story runs, when four of the club members were acting as pallbearers at the funeral of a reverend brother, some delay occurred, and the coffin was set down in the chancel. One of them produced a pack of cards and suggested a rubber. The coffin served the purpose of a table, and the players were deeply immersed in the game when the sexton arrived to announce that everything was at last ready.

Mazarin's passion for gambling was so strong even in death that he played cards to the very end, when he was so weak that they had to be held for him, and the "merry monarch" spent his last Sunday on earth playing at basset round a large table with his great courtiers and other dissolute persons and with a bank of at least £2,000 before him.

The curious fascination cards possess for their devotees is illustrated by the following story of Lord Granville, at the time ambassador to France. One afternoon when he was about to return to Paris he repaired to Graham's to have a farewell game of whist, ordering his carriage to be at the door at 4. When it arrived he was much too deep in the game to be disturbed. At 10 o'clock he sent out to say that he was not ready and that the horses had better be changed. Six hours later the same message was sent out, and twice more the waiting horses were changed before he consented to leave the table after losing £10,000.

An equally remarkable story is told of George Payne, the great turf plunger of seventy years ago. On one occasion he sat down at Limmer's hotel to play cards with Lord Albert Denison, later the first Lord Londesborough. Hour after hour passed. The game proceeded all through the night and long after day dawned, and it was not until an urgent message came to tell Lord Albert that his bride was waiting for him at the altar of St. George's, Hanover square, that the cards were at last flung down. It was Lord Albert's wedding day, and he met his bride £30,000 poorer than when he left her on the previous day.

One of the most romantic of gambling stories is told by Mr. Thiselton-Dyer of a plainly dressed stranger who once took his seat at a faro table and after an extraordinary run of luck succeeded in breaking the bank. "Heavens," exclaimed an old, infirm Austrian officer who had sat next to the stranger, "the twentieth part of your gains would make me the happiest man in the world!" "You shall have it, then," answered the stranger as he left the room.

A servant speedily returned and presented the officer with the twentieth part of the bank, adding, "My master, sir, requires no answer." The successful stranger was soon discovered to be the king of Prussia in disguise.

The most costly game of cards on record was probably that in which the late George McCulloch, chairman of the Broken Hill Proprietary company, once took part. A syndicate of seven had been formed to finance the famous Broken Hill silver mine, and Mr. McCulloch was one of the seven. One day, while sitting in a shanty at the foot of the hill, McCulloch offered a fourteenth share in the mine to a young man named Cox for £200.

Cox would only offer £120, and after much haggling it was decided to settle the dispute by a game of euchre. If Cox proved the winner he was to have the share for £120. If he lost he was to pay £180 for it. He won and for the absurd sum of £120 became owner of the share which a few years later was valued at £1,250,000.—London Tit-Bits.

Had Been Anticipated.

A London composer was one summer engaged on the score of an opera, and as the weather was very hot he worked with the windows of his study open. This fact was taken advantage of by his neighbor, a lady, an accomplished musician, with a very quick and retentive ear, to play upon him a harmless practical joke.

One morning he completed and tried over a new march, and the lady on the same afternoon seated herself at her grand piano, opened her windows and rolled forth the air fortissimo. The composer rushed distractedly into his garden to his wife and, tearing his hair in anguish, cried out:

"My dear, I give it up! I thought I had composed an original tune, but it must be a delusion, for my grand march—my chef d'oeuvre, as I thought it—is only a reminiscence and is already the property of some music publisher!"

They Sat Down.

One night at a theater some scenery took fire, and a very perceptible odor of burning alarmed the spectators. A panic seemed to be imminent when an actor appeared on the stage.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "compose yourselves. There is no danger."

The audience did not seem reassured.

"Ladies and gentlemen," continued the comedian, rising to the necessity of the occasion—"confound it all—do you think if there was any danger I'd be here?"

The panic collapsed.

England's Mother Church.

The oldest frequented church in England is probably St. Martin's, at Canterbury, and you may call it the mother church of England. Walk up from the outskirts of the city and you will pass the font which gave baptism to King Ethelbert 1,300 years ago. The font still stands, the worshipers still mount the slope, and one considers whether it was Augustine or Bertha who dragged the king and husband to that font.—London Chronicle.

A Gallant Clergyman.

It is said that the Rev. Sydney Smith could be gallant as well as witty on occasion.

"Oh, Mr. Smith, I cannot bring this flower to perfection," said a young lady to him once as she showed him about her conservatory.

Whereupon he took her by the hand and said, "Then let me bring perfection to the flower."

HUSBAND AND WIFE

Both Restored to Health by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"Both myself and my wife can truthfully say that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been of great benefit to us, and we are constantly recommending them to our friends." Thus writes Mr. Ernest L. Archibald, Truro, N. S., who further says:—"In my own case I had been subject to dizzy headaches for over a year, and three boxes of the Pills completely cured me of the trouble. About a year ago my wife began to complain. She seemed to be completely run down; was very pale and weak; she could not walk up stairs without stopping on the way to get breath, and ultimately she grew so weak she could not sweep a floor without resting. She tried several tonics but received no benefit. Then I persuaded her to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and got her a half dozen boxes. After she had used a couple of boxes her appetite began to improve and the colour to return to her face. She continued using the Pills until she had taken the six boxes, and to-day she is perfectly well, feels stronger and looks better than she has done for some years. While she was taking the Pills she gained twelve pounds in weight.'

Dr. Williams' Pills cure troubles like these because they are rooted in the blood. Bad blood is the cause of all common diseases like anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, general weakness, and those ailments that only women folks know, with their attendant headaches and backaches and irregularities. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a sure cure when given a fair trial, because they enrich the blood and thus reach the root of disease. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. T. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club for November 22nd, 1908, are as follows:—

Solomon Anointed King — I Kings 1: 11-13.

Golden Text — Know thou the God of thy father and serve him with a perfect heart and with a willing mind. I Chron. xxviii: 9.

Verses 1-44 — How old was David and had he any rights to be a decrepit old man at such an age?

What can we say of the advisers of the old king, marrying him with "one foot in the grave," to this young and fair maiden?

Was God in those days ever pleased with things which grieve him in these days?

Verses 5-10 — How do you explain the fact that Absalom and Adonijah, sons of the same mother and very handsome men, both turned traitors to their father and to the plans of God? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the Club.)

Are unusual good looks and ability generally a help or a hindrance to character?

If Absalom and Adonijah had not been pampered and petted by their father and mother, but had been properly trained, what would have been the probability as to their characters?

Here are two priests, one on the side of the usurper, and the other on the side of the constituted kingly succession; is it thinkable that they were both men of God?

Verses 11-13 — Who was Bathsheba before she was the wife of David?

Notwithstanding the circumstances of David's marriage to Bathsheba, is there any reason to think that she had not been a true wife to David, and a good mother to his children?

Does God expect us to use as much skill and diplomacy in carrying out his purposes, as though we were unaided by him?

Verses 32-41 — What was the character of Nathan? and what part did he take in the Uriah-David-Bathsheba matter? (See II Sam. xii: 1-13)

Can we usually judge of the righteousness of a cause, by the character of the men who advocate it?

Do even good men sometimes have to be reminded of their promises?

Is a promise made under oath of any greater moral obligation than a promise without an oath?

Verses 32-53 — Why did God through David select Solomon for the future King? (I Chron. xxii: 5-9)

If a son has all the qualities for a position, does God disqualify him for any sin on the part of his parents?

Which is the wiser way to kill an insurrection, with peaceful methods of to stamp it out with arms?

Chap. II: 1-12 — Is righteousness a sure guarantee of success to every individual, as well as to a king and his people?

What, notwithstanding all his ambitions in life, will be a man's chief concern at death?

What had, for the most part, been the character of David's reign?

What can you say concerning David's parting instructions to Solomon concerning the rewards which he wanted to be imparted?

COMPLETION OF THE AERODROME

Trial Flight Likely to be Attempted To-day—Lieut. Selfridge to be The Engineer.

Examiner Special.

Halifax, Nov. 20.—Professor Alexander Graham Bell's immense tetrahedral aerodrome on the construction of which experts have been busy all summer, is completed and a trial flight will likely be attempted tomorrow. The new aerodrome which was built under the supervision of W. F. Baldwin, chief of Professor Bell's staff, is on the same lines as the "Cygnet" in which Lieut. Selfridge, of the United States Signal Corps, made several successful flights last December, but is much larger and carries a number of improvements which the experiments with the "Cygnet" and other airships suggested to Professor Bell. It contains 5,000 tetrahedral cells. If weather permits it is expected that the first test with the new aerodrome will be made to-morrow. Lieutenant Selfridge, who is now at Cape Breton, headquarters of the Canadian inventor, will likely be chosen to make the initial flight.

A PLEASANT HOME PROVIDED FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN AT THE NEW CHILDREN'S SHELTER

How the Old Hilliard Farm Has Been Converted Into an Ideal Shelter for the Young Who Require Assistance---Admirably Adapted to the Intended Purposes and Well Cared For.

The Situation A Most Satisfactory One

"Beautiful for situation" is the Children's Shelter—the permanent home of the Children's Aid Society. It is placed on the street that flanks the river on the west, at 1013 George street, corner of Mill street. From the broad verandah facing the east the view is beautiful. In the foreground the river, expanded into a lake by the Auburn dam, yesterday reflected the leaden November clouds in its placid face. Beyond, through the leafless boughs of the Auburn elms, the view, pierced deep into Douro; and all around the outlook is widely embracing. Like a city set on a hill, the Shelter cannot be hid. In front a fine stretch of lawn extends to an embankment, delimited by a cedar hedge and below, extending to the street line, is the slope of the vine yard, set with vines of excellent fruit. Both street front and side are ornamented with lines of well-grown shade trees. To the south are the orchard and garden grounds, ample in extent for the purposes of the Shelter in the way of fruit and vegetable production, especially when the trees shall have been pruned and brought to good bearing condition. The grounds which, consist of two or three acres, when they came into the possession of the Society had by neglect largely reverted to a state of nature, a thicket of tangled undergrowth. Mr. William Henry has cleared this away, and the extent of it may be judged from the fact that the growth has supplied all the firewood needed during the past year. Next year the grounds will be improved, the lawns extended and tidied, some unsightly sheds now in the rear of the property removed and the space occupied by them converted into a play ground for the Shelter inmates, separate from the garden and orchard grounds.

The Renewed Buildings

As is known the Shelter buildings consist of the old Hilliard residence, owned by the city, and under lease to the Society at a nominal rental. Though the buildings were erected over forty years ago, they are in excellent condition—in those days building work was well and solidly done. As an indication of the solidity of the structure which is of wood, it may be noted that the rafters are 4x6 inches and placed 15 inches apart from centres. Consequently the essential parts are in good repair and the changes required in the interior were necessary to suit the new uses of the building. The whole interior has been practically renewed, partitions removed, walls re-papered, wood work repainted and a general improvement effected. The floors of the main rooms on the ground floor are covered with linoleum.

The Rooms

Opening from the verandah on the east is the sewing room (as large apartment, 16x18 feet, used by the ladies of the sewing society, nominally composed of representatives of the several churches, who meet to prepare clothing for the inmates. Off this is the private parlour of the caretaker, Mr. Henry

From the sewing room, according to the old-fashioned style of farm houses, the main stairs ascend, and two passages, one at the foot of the stairs and another under the landing, lead to the dining-room, 18x30 feet, extending the whole width of the house lighted from both sides and with French windows opening upon verandahs to the south and north and with built-in China closets.

Next west of the dining room is the spacious kitchen, with pantry and built-in cabinets and shelves.

On the second floor, at the landing at the back stairs is the bathroom and lavatory, with dado of sanitary paper.

Next in order is the girls' dormitory, provided with three iron beds with comfortable mattresses and coverings. Across a passage is the boys' dormitory, with three similar beds, but with room for several more and further on is the nursery with beds and cribs for the younger inmates. There is another room available for more beds. Altogether there is room for between 15 and 20 beds, which will doubtless be supplied if the occasion requires. All the rooms are well lighted and warm, there being a hot water radiator in each.

The Heating

From the kitchen, the stairs lead to the cellar 22x30 feet, well cemented and dry. When first occupied by the Society this cellar was a veritable quagmire, with rotting water butts and decaying filth. Mr. Henry drained it, filled it in with stone and gravel and cemented it in first-class style. Off the cellar in the furnace room where is installed an Oxford (Gurney) No. 6 boiler for heating purposes. This boiler, and the radiators were installed by Mr. R J G Sutherland, and in Mr. Henry's judgment he did a first-class job of work. At least the system with 15 radiators works admirably with a minimum consumption of fuel.

There are numerous other improvements made by Mr. Henry who has done all the work of placing the Shelter, internally in perfect repair, except the heating and electric lighting systems.

A Comfortable Shelter.

The Society has now an ample, comfortable and well-furnished, well-equipped Shelter, in every way well adapted to its purpose and provided with excellent caretakers in the persons of Mr. and Mrs Wm. Henry, who have had an experience of nearly nine years in Shelter work. They seem to be well adapted to the work, and the children take kindly to them; and as kindness begets love, this indicates that the children are treated with affectionate care. The lads as was seen yesterday, followed Mr. Henry about the grounds where he is employed, and the baby of the inmates a little child of 18 months, an energetic and tireless little monkey, literally swarmed over Mrs. Henry during the whole of an hour's visit yesterday.

Is it Worth While?

The cost of the improvements to the Shelter has been in the neighbourhood of $1,000. There are only three inmates at present and it might be urged that a thousand dollars is a large sum to spend to provide shelter for three children; but when one reflects that the work of the Society and Shelter mean the "saving of souls from death," preventing from time to time scores of children from growing up in vice, to become burdens on the state and a menace to society, it will be admitted the results are well worth the price in money expenditure were it even much greater. Though at present there are only three inmates, this year has been the most populous in the history of the Shelter, the enrollments having since last January amounted to 61. The stay of the inmates is not long; they are drafted out to foster homes almost as fast as they are admitted, and cared for, changed into presentable condition. Many of the poor, neglected children arrive in a condition of semi-starvation, but under good food, good care and decent clothing they improve in a short time to be unrecognisable, even by their own mothers, after the lapse of three weeks, as has actually happened.

Things Needed

The inside of the building having been transformed there is considerable work to be done on the outside. The surroundings can be made most beautiful, but there are necessities required. The bad state of the eaves tends to destroy the verandah which needs to be provided with new steps, and a range of concrete steps from Mill street to the grounds is very much required.

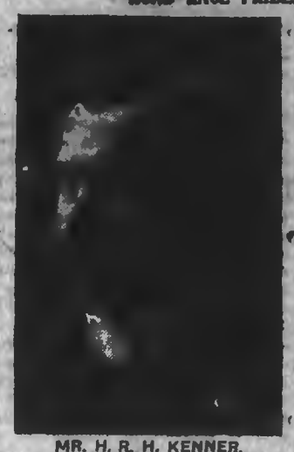
It is learned from a Boston, N. S., journal that Mr. Walter H. Cluxton last Wednesday delivered Tennyson's "Enoch Arden" before the students of Emerson College, in the Chickering Hall. There was an audience of between four and five hundred present and appreciative attention and enthusiastic applause was given. At the conclusion of the reading several of the faculty sought the stage and warmly congratulated Mr. Cluxton on his clever performance. His many friends in Peterborough join felicitations.

AT PRESENTATION OF THE EXAMINER ROAD RACE PRIZES



MR. H. R. H. KENNER,
Who advocates an Athletic Club in Peterborough to govern all branches of sport.

Presentation Of Examiner Road Race Prizes Made At The Opera House Last Night

Advocation of the Formation of a Peterborough Athletic Club by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner---An Idea Growing in Popularity Among the Sporting Fraternities---Many Were in Attendance.

An Address Given By The Senior Winner

WINNERS AND PRIZES

SENIOR RACE

J.H. ADAMS—Silver Trophy and Gold Watch
CHAS. THORPE—Royal Knoll Vase
ERNEST WILSON—Gold Pin
HANLON HOWARD—Gold Cuff Links

JUNIOR RACE

BERTRAM CROSS—Gold Ring
GARNET TOVEY—Fob and Locket
JIMMY McMARTIN—Gold Pin
ORMIE SPILLSBURY—Gold Lead Pencil
HARRY NELLIST—Watch

The occasion of the presentation of the Examiner Road Race prizes last night, was also the occasion for the presenting publicly by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, of the idea of the formation of a Peterborough Athletic Association, to govern all branches of sport in the city. The prizes were given at the Grand Opera House between the second and third acts of the production "All the Comforts of Home," and there was a large attendance to witness both events.

All the participants in the Examiner road races were the guests of Messrs J. J. Turner & Sons, and they occupied box or orchestra seats As each prize winner came on the stage to receive his reward he was loudly cheered. Little Harry Nellist, the nine-year-old youth, who ran such a plucky race, finishing sixth in the junior race was probably the most enthusiastically received. His manly stride in front of the footlights, reminded the audience of the manly manner in which he crossed the tape on Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. J. H. Adams, the victor in the senior event, in accepting the silver trophy emblematic of the County long distance championship, addressed the audience. His references to sport in Peterborough, and to the men who had achieved distinction in the football, hockey, lacrosse and foot running arenas, were warmly received.

Advocates Athletic Club

Mr. Kenner said he was probably not so much at home on that stage of comic opera, as many who had appeared upon it, and when requested to make this distribution of prizes had at first hesitated, to do so. He had, however, been persuaded by his interest in athletic sports and his recognition of their importance in our educational life, to officiate at this formality, resulting from the contest that had been so splendidly conducted on the birthday of the King. He would say in beginning that no man in Peterborough had done more to advance the welfare of good amateur sports than Hon. J. R. Stratton. The year 1908 had been an important one in athletics. It had included the celebration of the Olympic games in London, and if our Canadian representatives had not achieved what we had hoped from them, our disappointment was probably due to the fact that we perhaps expected too much from them. But some Canadian representatives had made a good showing and had brought away some prizes in competition with the world. In Canada, however, it had been a bad year, and if we looked for the reason of a falling off in progress, he thought it might perhaps be found in our paying too much attention to the senior athletic divisions, and not enough to the juniors. He believed what was needed was to concentrate all our athletic abilities into one organization—to combine our forces under one general direction. In the road races for which he was called upon to deliver the prizes, 37 contestants took part. The weather had been ideal, but the roads were not of the best. The race had been a splendid one, but he would like to say that the people who turned out in thousands to witness the race, in their excitement, had not given the boys a chance. It was a splendidly conducted race down to McDonel street, but from that point to the finish the streets were crowded with motor cars, and all sorts of vehicles down to perambulators, and the throng pressed upon the track so that the contestants were given no fair show. He hoped that next year arrangements would be made to keep a clear track from Smith street in, and that from McDonel street to the finish no motor cars or other vehicles would be permitted to close up the road. He had taken a peculiar interest in this race because in July last he had entered for the race the man who had won it. He had told Mr. Adams then he must win this race if he wanted to hold his job, and he still has the job. (Laughter and applause.) He referred to the winner of the second prize as an old college chum, who had made a record in these trials of skill and endurance.

Mr. Kenner then introduced Mr. J H. Adams, as the winner of the Road Race Trophy, and also of the handsome gold watch which was, in company with the three handled silver loving-cup, handed over to him.

The Winner's Address

Mr. J H Adams received an ovation upon taking over the splendid prizes that he had won. He regarded the enthusiasm displayed not only as a tribute to the Examiner Road Races, but as a testimony of interest in athletics in general, to those who had so well conducted the event, and to all the boys who took part in it, mentioning the names of Fred Simpson, Ben Simpson, Fred Whitcroft and Eugene Hartubise. Under the direction and with the aid of such men as Mr. Kenner, G G Graham, Roland M Glover, Fred Clarke and Dr. Wightman, Peterborough could and would be made the hub of Canadian Athletics. He wished to say that though he had passed first over the tape, those who followed him so closely had demonstrated that they were all in the same class. He referred to the defeat of his namesake in Hamilton, and the splendid record of Charles Thorpe and E A Wilson as evidence that Peterborough's sons, both native and adopted, took place in the front rank of Canadian athletics.

Referring particularly to the recent road race, he wished to impress upon them that the officers of a race cannot carry out their good intentions if people will persist in blocking the course. If the course had been kept reasonably clear, they (the leaders in the race) would have given the public one of the most exciting finishes that could be imagined, but the pressure of the crowds and the vehicles has spoiled that feature of the event. He trusted that next year some means would be applied to leave a clear track, for a clean finish, when the success of the race would be doubly assured, and the interest and pleasure of all greatly enhanced. Mr. Adams concluded his brief remarks amid a salvo of enthusiastic cheers.

LATE MANAGER OF THE BANK AT LAKEFIELD BURIED IN WINDSOR

Funeral Held From Railway Station To The Sandwich Cemetery—Many In Attendance—A Windsor Man His Successor.

WHO CASKET BEARERS WERE

Windsor, Nov. 21.—Special — The funeral of Mr. Robert P. Davidson, late manager of the Lakefield branch of the Traders Bank, and at one time a well known Windsorite, who committed suicide at Lakefield a few days ago, took place yesterday afternoon, with burial in Sandwich Cemetery. A large number of friends were in the funeral cortege, which left the Grand Trunk station in Windsor. The casket was borne by W. T. Carter, W. C. Kennedy, Dr. J. A. Ashbaugh, J. A. Mooney, A. B. Bartlett and J. H. Rodd.

Mr. John Duck, of Windsor, has been appointed manager of the Lakefield branch.

PROPOSAL TO SUPPLY CRUSHED GRANITE FOR THE CITY STREETS IS MADE TO THE BOARD OF WORKS

Crushed granite from Stony Lake for the city streets is a new proposition. Last night at the Board of Works meeting it was made by Mr. Richard Sheehy, and was that he furnish crushed granite from the north for street making purposes.

Mr. Sheehy was present and addressed the meeting. He said he understood that the city was spending considerable money in making good roadbeds. He said that he would like to supply the city with its crushed stone. He now has a boat and scow and is in good shape to bring the stone down, and he would furnish granite stone crushed, ready for the roads. There is plenty of granite in and around Stony Lake, and he could easily secure a granite quarry. He thought he could supply it for $1.50 per cubic yard, laid down on the dock, or in waggons, so long as the scow is there.

Granite stone, it is said, will last easily twice as long on the roads as does the lime stone, (which is mostly) used here now.

The City Engineer said that a year ago he estimated that the stone cost the city, on the streets and rolled, about $1.41 per yard. This included some 200 cords of stone which the city took out of its own gravel pit. He stated, however, that if the city could get all granite stone at that price it would be much more satisfactory and far more superior for road purposes. The city ran out of stone the past year, but as it was over 3,500 cords were used, and had they not run short they would have used much more.

Mr. Sheehy said that he would be willing to take a chance upon investing his money in a plant. He would expect a contract from the city for at least five years. A stone crushing plant is expensive and at the price of $1.50 per cubic yard there is not very much margin. The question will be discussed at length at a future meeting.

FARMERS OF SURROUNDING TOWNSHIPS HAVE IN SOME CASES TO DRAW WATER FOR STOCK

With a view to ascertaining the exact condition of the farmers of the county in regard to the water supply on their properties, a reporter enquired on the market from a representative number, with the result that the general condition is not entirely satisfactory. An Ennismore man said that throughout that township the supply was fairly good. It might be better, but he believed that there was sufficient for the stock at present.

A real complaint came from a Smith farmer, who stated that there were many who had to drive for water distances in some places of five miles. Rain was needed badly and the hope that was expressed on all sides was that there would be a copious fall of rain before the frost got into the ground. On many farms this man stated there was just sufficient rain to meet the demands of the family.

In Otonabee the same condition is reported. The farmer questioned stated that he occasionally drew a barrel or two of water for the stock, but that the supply of the farm was fairly good. Douro is in about the same state. Some find it necessary to make "a noise like a water waggon," but they will be well provided if it rains abundantly before winter sets in.

"All The Comforts of Home" For Third Time Scores Success Last Night

For the third time in Peterborough that clever four-act comedy "All the Comforts of Home" was most successfully presented last evening at the Grand Opera House before a large and enthusiastic audience which seemed to enjoy every moment of the very funny production. The company of local amateurs under the direction of Mr. Irving Beers, added new laurels to those won on the occasion of its last presentation some weeks ago, and many were the expressions of appreciation heard as the audience filed through the doors of the Grand when the curtain had dropped for the last time. If enthusiastic applause is any criterion the play made a decided hit last night, and was voted by the audience one of the best amateur productions that has ever been given in Peterborough.

All the company did excellent work but the greatest meed of praise must necessarily be given to Mrs. J M Barber to whose pluck much of the success achieved last evening is due. Mrs. Barber had been very ill for several days and was ordered by her physician not to dream of taking part in last evening's performance. It looked very much as if the presentation would have to be postponed at the last moment and the management was in despair, but Mrs. Barber pluckily volunteered to go and do her best under the circumstances and she played her exacting role so cleverly that the audience did not realise her discomfort, if not actual pain. The thanks of the management is indeed due to Mrs. Barber for her courageous work.

SPLENDID BANK STATEMENT--NEW CANADIAN GRAIN MARKET AND OTHER LATE CAPITAL NEWS

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—The October bank statement issued last night shows a condition that is unexampled in the face of the financial depression of the past year. The bank deposits of the Dominion were increased during the month by $11,382,879, while loans were only increased by $3,322,014. The capital and deposits in the banks today have reached the enormous aggregate of $763,000,000. That the country has been enabled to reach this splendid showing is very largely due to the magnificent creation of new capital out of the agricultural resources of the Western provinces.

Mr. F. A. Acland, for the past year and a half Secretary of the Labour Department, and acting Deputy Minister during the absence of Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, has been formally appointed Deputy Minister of the department. The appointment of a secretary to succeed Mr. Acland will be announced shortly.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Lady Laurier, accompanied by Miss Melvin Jones, of Toronto, left yesterday afternoon for the south, and will spend a few days in New York before going to Florida. Hon. Geo. P. Graham accompanied the Premier as far as New York. Yesterday was Sir Wilfrid's sixty-seventh birthday, and it is appropriately celebrated by the first real holiday he has had for a year. He was inundated during the day with messages of congratulations. The Premier's party are expected to return in the first week in December.

Sir Frederick and Lady Borden sail for England on the Celtic on Monday next.

Finance Minister Fielding, who will sail from New York to England next month, will be absent until January, in fact almost until the opening of Parliament. His present trip to Europe is in connection with removing some obstacles that have arisen in perfecting the new French treaty arrangements. Mr. Fielding states that no new Canadian loan is at present

Hunter Dispatches Wolf That Was Killing His Hound

Examiner Special.

Oak Lake, Methuen, Nov. 21.—One of the hunting stories brought down from the hunting grounds after the chase was that of the shooting of a huge timber wolf which attacked one of Mr. M Hogan's hounds. The dog scented its ferocious rival and took after it. The result was they came in contact with each other and the wolf was slowly killing the hound, when a bullet from Mr. Hogan's trusty rifle laid it low.

The benefit of the bounty which amounts to $15 goes to Mr. Hogan.

Amateur Players Had Enjoyable After-Theatre Banquet Last Night

The members of the cast of "All the Comforts of Home" had a very enjoyable little banquet last night, in the Dominion Chinese Cafe, after the performance at the Grand. Nearly all the members of the company were present, including the directory Mr. Irving Beers, and a pleasant social time was spent around the festive board. After justice had been done to the good things provided short speeches were made by several of the company. Mr. Beers thanked the cast for the support they had given him and expressed his regret that the pleasant associations existing between himself and the local members of the troupe would have to be severed shortly.

Brief speeches were also made by Messrs. C. G. Graham, D. B. MacRae, A. B. Cutting and others, while Mr. George Lynch give a recitation in his usual inimitable style.

The banquet was a very pleasant finale to a most pleasant experience for the local amateurs who took part in the production.

INCENTIVES TO UNTHRIFT.

The Examiner has received from "A Mother," a letter in complaint of a condition which tends, according to her idea, to work hardship in families. She speaks of the too prevalent practice of many girls employed in establishments, anticipating pay day by making little interim drafts upon the amount of the accruing wages to be spent in sweets, chewing gum and in other ways. "A Mother" complains that as a consequence, when pay day comes her daughter, and many others she knows of, have either nothing or only a few cents due them. She looks upon this practice, from her limited point of view—of her personal inconvenience—its influence upon the means available for home purposes.

This is, of course, an important matter in many a home, but the practice has more serious and far reaching consequences. To young girls, who cannot be expected to appreciate the value of money, understand its legitimate use or estimate the value of habits of thrift and saving, the practice referred to may be a trifling matter, but its deeper significance consists in the destruction of the ideas of thrift and the proper use of money, whose absence is the main reason for much of the poverty and destitution we have to wrestle with every winter. Necessarily the girls at fault cannot be expected to make good wives and careful heads of homes, not to speak of the development of light ideals of the responsibility of life, and of a lust for frivolous pleasures, amusements and gratification of misdirected tastes. Perhaps the girls are not altogether to blame; they possibly inherited the undesirable characteristics they exhibit from mothers addicted to the same unthinking habits in their girlhood days, and who have not carefully enough attended to the training of their daughters and the instilling of wholesome ideas of thrift.

Employers of girls in their good nature, yield to the demands of their employees for petty advances of pay, quite thoughtless of the evil habits of extravagance and useless expenditure they encourage, habits, which operating for years and throughout the community, lead to the development of national characteristics hostile to the creation of conditions that represent national prosperity, and personal and domestic contentment and happiness. It might be remarked that absence of thrift is responsible for much of the prevailing poverty and destitution. A concrete example will serve to illustrate. Last summer a skilled mechanic throughout the season earned, and was paid $4.00 per day; yet in the early winter, his family without the excuse of illness or similar adversity, became claimants upon the civic charity, in the early days of winter.

It is, therefore, more than probable that many of the cases of destitution in Peterborough—which, however, must be relieved no matter what the cause—will this winter be due to waste of the summer's income on frivolous amusements, and in the purchase of petty articles not of necessity or of benefit, but possibly of positive harm. Living within one's income is a high art—involving at times much sacrifice, but in the end yielding greater satisfaction and comfort. The lesson of thrift needs to be learned, not only by those of small and precarious incomes, but by persons of more pretentious means but with similar habits of unthrift—predatory habits because they are practised at the expense of good natured and long-suffering tradesmen. The easy credit given by merchants is an incentive to unthrift on the same principle as petty advances to their employees.

RELATIONS OF DEVELOPMENT AND TRANSPORTATION.

It has often been remarked that the level of the civilization of a community is to be gauged by the quality of its highways and other means of communication and transportation. We in Canada, with our magnificent distances and far-flung territories, can especially appreciate the importance and necessity of facilities for transportation. We have also examples of its beneficient effects. The marvellous growth of the Northwest is entirely due to the extent and excellence of its railway facilities. Within a generation a transformation has been effected, a revolution accomplished. Less than thirty years ago the first shipment of wheat was made from the Northwest. On the occasion referred to a shipment of eight hundred bushels was loaded on a Red River steamer and taken up the Red River to Fisher's Landing, then the terminal of Northwest railway construction in the United States. Here it was transshipped and taken by car to Duluth, whence it was carried by one of the small boats then sufficient to meet the requirements of lake shipping, to the east. That was only thirty years ago, and the value of this year's grain crop is $125,000,000, and within the next ten years it will probably be four or five times that amount, and very probably much more, if the facilities for transportation—in the interests of settlement—are adequately provided.

It is not the visionary theorist alone who appreciates the value of transportation, but the hard-headed business man. In this relation the words of Mr. F. W. Thompson, vice-president of the Ogilvie Flour Company, are worth repeating. He is in a position to form a correct judgment—to know what he is talking about. In a recent address he says:

"Has it occurred to you what it means to Canada when a bushel of export grain finds its way, say, at Emmerson, into the United States? A bushel of wheat shipped from Winnipeg east pays a freight of 6 cents to the Canadian railway between Winnipeg and Fort William or Port Arthur. Further, on its journey towards Britain, it pays toll, if kept within Canada, to Canadian shipping, and assists in affording employment to our working people at our seaports. The same bushel of wheat finding its way east via the United States would pay to our Canadian railways a freight of probably 1 cent, instead of 6. The difference, if kept in Canada; that is, if our commodities be shipped on our own railways and over our own waterways, means that this freight, which we keep from American transportation companies, is largely circulated in Canada is available for the construction and maintenance of our own railways, for the employment of our citizens, and for the preservation of capital, as well as the creation and building up of a vast inland marine. It is this motive, selfish if you will, that impels me to advocate that Canadians, irrespective of party affiliations, should stand shoulder to shoulder for the upbuilding of transportation facilities within our borders, which can compete on a sound financial basis with any which can be offered by our cousins to the south."

Mr. Thompson speaks as a business man and not as a politician; and he appeals for a consideration of the subject of transportation with its allied advantages, upon broad and comprehensive lines. As was to be expected, he recognizes the good work of the Government in the way of improvement of harbours and lading conveniences, such as wharves, etc. The doubling and trebling of the harbour capacity of the St. Lawrence, the deepening of the channel between Montreal and Quebec, are in the direct interests of every Canadian, whether he be a great grain shipper or stevedore. From this point of view the provision of minor improvements as aids to navigation and transportation, such as wharves and even landing stages on inland waters, is to be regarded with favour as part of a great transportation scheme that is essential to the development of Canadian resources. Mr. Thompson is right in saying that the prosperity of our eastern shipping points is vitally dependent upon the progress and growth of our interior. What helps one benefits the other and vice versa. Railway building has been responsible for the growth of the west, and improvement of intermediate avenues of transportation has made the benefit of this growth national in its influence. What the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern have done in regard to the settlement and opening of the west, will be duplicated and more by the construction and operation of the Grand Trunk Pacific. With only 700 miles of it completed west of Winnipeg already this year this incomplete line has moved to Winnipeg a million and a half bushels of grain. No small amount of this is grown upon lands occupied and tilled through the construction of the railway. If thus early the direct results are so much in evidence, what may we not expect from the completion of the line and the necessary branches, in full operation? Canada cannot very well overdo the transportation business. Every new railway or other transportation enterprise puts into motion the multiform benefits so aptly pointed out by Mr. Thompson, as quoted above.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

On moral grounds the extent of the dry area, under local option may, from a general point of view, be defended, but when the clerk of the weather gets inoculated with the dry idea, it is carrying a good thing to extremes.

Up to Oct. 24 36,247 applications for old-age pensions have been received in the United Kingdom as follows: England (excluding Monmouthshire), 320,042, or a ratio of 97 per 10,000 of the population; Wales, (including Monmouthshire), 20,227, a ratio of 91 per 10,000; Scotland, 59,244, a ratio of 123 per 10,000; Ireland, 162,658, or a ratio of 378 per 10,000 of population. The total number of applications was 562,171, or a ratio of 126 per 10,000 of population. The comparative figures are a sad commentary of the poverty of Ireland, though a proof also of the longevity of the people.

MURDER—30 DAYS.

Man Who Ran Amuck Lightly Punished—Eight Years For Theft.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 21.—Thirty days in jail for a man charged with murder, who had slashed his victim's throat with a razor, stabbed another man and crushed the skull of a third, and eight years in the penitentiary for a man who had stolen a pair of boots because he had none, were sentences imposed by a jury which tried the two defendants in the Lake County, Indiana, superior court sitting at Hammond. The man charged with murder was Joseph Mahovski. The other defendant was Lawrence Ryan. His sentence was adjudged under the indeterminate act.

C.P.R. Tuber Scalded.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—John Marriott, 34 years of age, married, residing at 380 West Wellington street, a tuber for the C.P.R., was probably fatally scalded while repairing defective tubes in passenger engine No. 890 at the company's roundhouse, foot of John street, at 9.30 last night.

He was in the firebox of the locomotive, which carried a considerable head of steam, repairing one tube when another gave out.

Mysterious Death.

Binscarth, Man., Nov. 21.—On the road home on Tuesday, Joseph L. Johnston, a prosperous farmer, sent his team home with a hired man as he wished to visit a neighbor. He was not seen alive again. A search party was organized, and one of the searchers, putting his horse in a disused stable, stumbled on Johnston's body, covered with a blanket and straw. The cause of death is a mystery.

Suit For False Detention.

Windsor, Nov. 21.—Miss Jennie Alexander, formerly a nurse in Port Huron, but now residing in St. Thomas, has filed suit for $25,000 damages against Dr. Albert Thompson of St. Clair, Mich., and ex-Sheriff Moore of the same place, alleging that she was falsely imprisoned in the London Insane Asylum.

Empress' Fast Trip.

Montreal, Nov. 21.—Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of Ireland arrived at Liverpool at 5.35 a.m. yesterday and has completed the voyage from Rimouski, where the mails for Europe are taken aboard, in 5 days, 15 hours and 20 minutes. This is considered a remarkable achievement at this season of the year.

STARTLING STATEMENT

It's Statements Like That of H. Heyman, Kingston, Ont., That is Making Mi-o-na World Famous For Obstinate Stomach Complaints.

Mr. H. Heyman, 132 Colborne street, Kingston, Ont., says: "Mi-o-na is worth its weight in gold as a remedy to quickly cure long-standing cases of dyspepsia. For years I had suffered with my stomach and could find no cure nor even relief. I could not eat anything, as it would sour and form gas on my stomach that had a pressure on the heart. Heavy pains would come around my sides and pit of my stomach. I was unable to sleep for this and there was nothing to relieve my miserable condition. I was weak and languid and would feel as tired in the morning as on going to bed and perspiration would break out all over my body. I would be so weak from vomiting that I would fall to my knees. My head would ache and spells of dizziness would leave me unable to see. Doctors had termed the trouble gastritis, but failed to benefit me. I tried Mi-o-na, of which I procured a bottle on the advise of a friend, which has cured me when all else failed. I am sound and well and feel grateful to Mi-o-na for my present health."

It's the known results obtained by Mi-o-na that places it far and away above all other remedies and confirms Wm. Madill in offering to refund the money if Mi-o-na fails to cure stomach trouble. 50 cents a box. Relief in twenty-four hours.

Joseph Phillips' New Job.

Kingston, Nov. 21.—Cleaning dormitories in the penitentiary is the new job given to Joseph Phillips, late president of the York County Loan Co.

Unknown Man Killed by Train.

Port Arthur, Nov. 21.—The body of an unknown man was found on the C.P.R. track Thursday two and a half miles east of Pearl. Evidently the man was struck by a train, as there was a deep cut on his face. The body was dressed in blue serge and a peak cap lay not far distant. Coroner Jury was notified.

Gets Dakota Divorce.

Kingston, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Richard V. Dickinson of Merricksville has secured a divorce at Sioux Falls, Dakota, on grounds of desertion.

Canadian Life Guards.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—There is a well-founded rumor emanating from headquarters at Ottawa, that a new permanent corps is soon to be formed in the capital, and that this corps will wear the uniform of the Life Guards. The new command will be under Leslie Macoun, one of the prominent members of the younger set in Ottawa.

Daring Robbery.

Attica, O., Nov. 21.—Robbers held several citizens at bay early yesterday while they blew open and robbed the safe of Renninger & Silcox of $6,000 in cash.

Would Seem So.

"The things I got in today's shower are lovely," said the bride to be, "but so few of them match."

"But in a china shower," her mother reminded her, "one must expect broken lots."—Kansas City Times.

A Distinguishing Feature.

A woman entered a police station in Holland and asked the officer in charge to have the canals dragged.

"My husband has been threatening for some time to drown himself," she explained, "and he's been missing now for two days."

"Anything peculiar about him by which he can be recognized?" asked the officer, preparing to fill out a description blank.

For several moments the woman seemed to be searching her memory. Suddenly her face brightened.

"Why, yes, sir. He's deaf."—Everybody's.

An Odorless Disinfectant.

If one objects to the odor of carbolic acid, he may use for the plumbing an odorless disinfectant prepared as follows: Dissolve half a pound of permanganate of potash in four gallons of water and pour this carefully down the pipes. This solution, if allowed to stand in bowls or basins, will stain them purple. The stains may be removed with a weak solution of oxalic acid. The acid must be rinsed off immediately after it has been used.

A Hindrance.

Suburbanite—You are half an hour late this morning. Letter Carrier—Yes, ma'am. The sections of stovepipe I have to wear inside my trousers legs on account of the dogs you keep along this street hamper my movements, ma'am."—Chicago Tribune.

Why She Held on to It.

Mrs. Willful—My husband told me if I didn't like the brooch you'd exchange it for me. Jeweler—Certainly, madam. I'll be only too glad, as four different ladies of your set want it.

HIS PAINS AND ACHES ALL GONE

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Chas. N. Cyr's Rheumatism.

Statement of a Man Who Suffered for a Year From Different Forms of Kidney Disease and Found a Speedy Cure.

New Richmond Station, Que., Nov. 20.—Special—In these cold fall days when rheumatism, sciatica, backache and other kidney diseases are working havoc in every corner of Canada, thousands will be interested in the statement of Mr. Chas. N. Cyr, the well known barber of this place.

"I had been a sufferer from rheumatism and backache for a year," Mr. Cyr states. "My head also troubled me and it was hard to collect my thoughts. I heard of cures made by Dodd's Kidney Pills and made up my mind to try them. The marvellous effect of the first box on my system at once raised my hopes and by continuing to take them I am now a sound and well man. All my pains and aches are gone and I am able to do my work without pain."

Mr. Cyr is only one of thousands whom Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured of rheumatism, sciatica and backache. For Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure sick or disordered kidneys. And if your kidneys are well you can't have rheumatism, sciatica or backache.

Twenty-Five Thought to Have Died in New York Explosion.

WOMAN AND CHILDREN DIE

Spark Ignites Escaping Gas in Sewer Excavation and Entire Surface of Street is Blown Up—Men Buried Fifty Feet Deep — Four Make Their Escape Through Sewer to the Outlet in the River.

New York, Nov. 21.—Twenty-five persons are believed to have lost their lives in an explosion of gas, which tore up a great section of Gold street, Brooklyn, yesterday.

It is definitely known that fifteen persons were buried under the hundreds of tons of earth and timber that were thrown into the air by the explosion and ten more persons are missing.

The exact number of dead cannot be determined yet, for those working to recover the entombed bodies must dig through fifty feet of dirt, rock and a tangle of pipes and timbers.

The explosion occurred in a fifty-foot deep excavation that had been made in Gold street between York and Front streets, where a water main was being laid. The gas main recently sprung a leak and in a manner unknown a spark came in contact with the escaping gas. There was a terrific explosion that lifted the surface of the street for half a block in both directions and hurled dirt, paving stones and debris into the air.

When the smoke and dirt had been cleared away it was seen that the street had been opened from doorstep to doorstep over an area of nearly a block. The loosened earth and debris had fallen into the excavation, burying the score of laborers who were at work when the accident happened. Great tongues of flame leaped into the air from a water main that had been shattered by the explosion. Two bodies were sticking out of the wreckage.

Gold street was crowded with school children when the explosion occurred, and that scores of children were not killed or injured was remarkable. A woman and three children were almost opposite the excavation when the earth crumbled under their feet and they were swept down into the hole under tons of wreckage. The other children were on the opposite side of the street when the sidewalk caved in and they lost their lives.

Samuel Trout, foreman of the gang of laborers, who were laying the watermain, was near the woman and children who lost their lives. He rushed forward as he felt the street tremble from the explosion in an endeavor to save them, but he too was drawn into the death hole. His body was the first to be recovered. Trout was roasted to a cinder.

Only four of the men working in the excavation escaped. They were: Arthur Strand, Frank Sohlnwood, John Crain and an Italian laborer known as "John." These men were digging near the opening of a four-foot sewer and the force of the explosion blew them to the entrance of it. Strand was hurled farther down, and he pulled the other three men after him.

Water from the broken main began to pour into the sewer and the four men were in danger of being drowned. They began to run toward the river, where there was an outlet to the river.

Grand Jury For Booth Co.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—At a meeting of the creditors committee of bankers, the question was seriously discussed, it is said, of asking the state attorney to use his judgment of laying the failure of A. Booth & Co., known as the "fish trust," before the Cook County Grand Jury.

The creditors will receive, it is claimed, only 35 cents on the dollar.

The receivership discloses the fact that banks in Chicago, New York and other cities held $5,695,000 of the corporation's paper.

U. S. Tariff on Timber.

Washington, Nov. 21.—A number of lumbermen from the northwest want the tariff on timber taken off, and W. H. Parrish of Richmond, Va., wants cedar admitted free of duty.

The National Association of Furniture Manufacturers has declared that there should be immediate reduction on certain tariff rates, which they claim have enabled a few beneficiaries to combine and destroy competition.

Job For Loughrin.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—The appointment of John Loughrin of Mattawa as commissioner of police for Sudbury district is gazetted.

MR GEO. W AMORY

Mrs. Emma F. Mumford, No. 7 Olive Court, Salt Lake City, Utah, writes:

"Four months ago I became chilled through and through by getting my feet wet.

"The next morning I was stiff and sore with a severe cold which had settled all over my body. The blood seemed to rush to my head, causing dizziness and blinding headaches.

"As soon as Peruna was recommended to me I decided to give it a trial and am pleased to say that it cured me after I had used it only two months.

"I think you have a splendid medicine and gladly endorse it."

As soon as the people become acquainted with the virtues of Peruna, they find catarrh not to be so formidable a disease.

Mr. George W. Amory, 357 West 35th St., New York City, New York, writes:

"Somehow I have always had a prejudice against advertised medicines, but I want to make one decided exception in favor of Peruna.

"I caught a cold last winter and it settled in throat and head, developing a most persistent catarrh, which seemed to defy all medicines and I tried Peruna. Before I had used two bottles I considered myself cured."

Catarrh of Bronchial Tubes.

Mr. Wickliffe R. Smith, editor of The Potlatch Herald, formerly principal of the schools at Cameron, Idaho, writes:

"For some time I suffered with catarrh of the throat and bronchial tubes.

"I tried many remedies, but could find nothing that would give me relief. Finally I tried Peruna. Three bottles cured me, sound and well. I believe it will do as much for others as it did for me."

Gained Thirty Pounds.

Mrs. Alice J. Bordner, 1211 Maple Ave., Harrisburg, Pa., writes:

"I have found a cure in Peruna. I cannot recommend Peruna enough, and I also thank you for your kind attention to me. I am as well as could be ever since I began taking Peruna, and will recommend it to others. I only weighed 95 pounds before taking Peruna; now I weigh 125."
